BLUE GRASS MENACED BY "JAY" SHORT CUTS

Irregular Paths in the Snow are Now Threatening to Become Permanent—Student Council Issues Statement.

DANGER IN WARM WEATHER.

The practice of cutting across the college grounds between buildings, where there is no walk, is endangering the life of the blue grass on the campus, according to Professor C. A. Scott, head of the forestry department. To the forestry department is entrusted the care and maintenance of the college grounds.

Several well defined paths have appeared on the campus since the snow has been on the ground, as thoughtless students believed that the snow served as a protective covering, which it does to a certain extent. But when the snow begins to soften, the effect of tramping is made infinitely worse.

"When the ground is moist, shoe-heels sink right in and just tramp the life out of the grass," said Professor Scott last night.

The student council has issued the following statement in regard to the matter:

All have part in preserving the appearance of our campus.

Since the coming of the last snow the practice of taking short cuts across the campus has been general. As long as the weather has remained cold no damage has resulted. Now the weather is beginning to warm, and unless the practice of short cutting is stopped at once the paths will become permanent and the appearance of the campus will be greatly marred. Let's all cooperate, use the walks, and save the appearance of our campus.

IS HEAD OF D. S. DEPARTMENT.

Etta V. Sherwood, '12, Teaches D. S. in Cawker City High School.

Etta V. Sherwood, '12, who is teaching domestic science and art in the Cawker City high school, is pleasing her superintendent and patrons. This is her second year at Cawker City. Besides her domestic science and art work she is teaching several other subjects.

A new two story manual training and domestic science building has just been completed there. Miss Sherwood has three rooms devoted to her work. One is a dining room, one a kitchen, and one a sewing laboratory. There are 26 girls enrolled in the domestic science work and 20 in the domestic art work. The work is given only in the junior and senior classes.

The girls of the domestic science department get practical work in dinner and lunch serving. They recently served dinner to the county teachers' association. They regularly serve noon lunches to the students who attend the school from the country.

Cawker City has a population of 850, and an enrollment in junior and senior high school of 270.

DAMPER ON THE DRAMA.

Chemistry Department Foils Willy Co-ed's in "Flirtation."

The pathetic drama in which some pretty co-ed is frantically hunting for some one to sharpen a pencil just before a quiz, need no longer be staged in the chemistry building.

The chemistry department has installed a first class pencil sharpener in one window of the hall on the first floor. Dean J. T. Willard says that the sharpener has been put there especially for the use of the girls.

It is expected that the co-eds will use the pencil sharpener only in case they have not been using the pencil sharpening request as an excuse for getting acquainted with some good looking classmate.

BEAUTY CONTEST COUNT.

With Only One More Week Miss Adams Leads by Far.

The Royal Purple Beauty contest which is to close at six p. m. February 16, is attracting more interest since the date of closing is approaching. More votes are being cast every day than were handed in the previous day and interest seems to be more keen than when the contest was first started.

At present the standing of the contestants is as follows: Ruth Adams, 1750; Jannita Reynolds, 725; Wilma Burtis, 500; Laura Ramsey, 500; Eva Lawson, 400; Claudine Rathman, 375; Mary Polson, 275; Helen Crane, 225.

NEXT REVIEW FEB. 28.

College Cadets to Turn Out Again—Special Stunts on Program.

Monday, February 28, has been set as the date for the next review of the Cadet corps of the college, according to a bulletin of the military department.

Some special features are included in the program for this date. The signal corps will carry on communication by wireless, wigwagging and semaphore signals.

Y. W. C. A. ORGANIZING EIGHT WEEKS CLUB HERE

Plan Provides for Work Which May Be Done by College Girls to Aid Their Communities.

Arrangements are being made under the auspices of the Y. W. C. A. for giving college girls instruction in leadership among the girls of their own communities who do not go to college. The course is known as the "Eight Weeks Club" plan.

The first eight weeks club was organized sometime ago when a college girl conceived the idea that she might take home some of the things she had learned in college to the girls in her community. A Y. W. C. A. worker heard her work and approved of the idea. She organized classes to prepare girls for the work in the summer.

Since that time Eight Weeks Clubs have been carried on successfully. The following is taken from a report of an association in the country:

"The Young Woman's Christian association, keenly sensitive to the needs of all girls, is finding a way to serve these girls. College girls are often going back home to their communities in the summer vacation and organizing and leading eight weeks clubs. You cannot fully understand what such a club is until you have one.

"It is a sort of a slice of college that you take home to those girls. We had an eight weeks club down here one summer, the little girls of this town and I. There was very little of what I learned in college that we did not use—hand-painted score cards, a knowledge of what girls like best to eat, botany, games, committee work, Bible study, and something else, a sure belief that there is something in every girl's life that is reaching upward, seeking the nobler things. After the club was over a high school brother of mine said, 'Those girls are different, they do not talk so loudly on the street, they are interested in more things.'

"A girl from South Carolina sent in this report: 'The girls who were members of this club live on western ranches, they have never been away from home, most of them have never seen the inside of a railroad train. They know how to ride horses, plow corn, rake hay and cook for farm men, but they have hearts and wonderful possibilities of leadership. These girls lived four, five or eight miles apart, but they always had full attendance. They organized a Sunday school class under their president.' The report continues with the story of their meetings, sewing classes, short stories and Bible study. They remodeled the church, fixed the window frames, mended the ragged carpet and broken benches. There was a splendid 'country round up' to which every one came. She closed her report with this, 'You can't imagine the joy this brought into their lives. They are not the same. They are very happy and going to continue their club under the leadership of their pastor.'

The eight weeks club preparatory class at Kansas State Agricultural college has started with Mrs. H. W. Brubaker as leader. The meetings will be held every Wednesday night at seven o'clock at 1116 Fremont street. Discussional meetings will be held. The questions of the home community and how to help it will be considered. The girls will work out plans of courses to give one lesson each week for eight weeks in the summer. Miss Helen Halm, assistant professor in home economics and education, will have charge of the lesson plans.

At the close of this eight weeks study each girl will be given a commission from the national board of Y. W. C. A. to hold a club in her community. At the close of the summer reports are all sent in to headquarters.

MOST POPULAR PLACE ON HILL IS THE CAFETERIA

Pies are a Favorite While Much Doubt Is Expressed as to "Hungarian Goulashe"—Co-eds Must Eat Even the Best of Salad.

BAKED HASH IS VERY POPULAR.

Every month there are enough pies consumed at the cafeteria to stretch two city blocks! The walk from main hall to the street car line could be lined on both sides with chocolate pies, pumpkin pie, caramel pies, banana pies, and any number of berry pies with five or six left over for some hungry motorman.

The excellent pastry cook at the cafeteria makes more than 35 pies a day—a thousand a month to tempt the eye and tickle the palate of 400 eager patrons. There are more of the one-layer pies made than any other kind, for, as Miss Grace Willets, assistant-in-charge of the cafeteria expressed it: "Boys will eat any kind and the girls are partial to the one-layer pies." The average attendance of girls is greater than that of boys, so it is natural that their tastes are especially considered.

On some auspicious days, there is written on the bulletin board just outside the cafeteria door, the imposing and mysterious words, "Hungarian Goulashe." They have a fatal fascination for the passerby. His attention is arrested in spite of himself. In a half irritated, half amused fashion he recalls former occasions on which he ordered deceptive dishes that traveled under foreign names. With a firm resolve to remain forever disassociated from any but food with American names, he joins the tray bearing throng in the cafeteria. Faintly, from the head of the line is borne back the almost universal order "Hungarian Goulashe, please." In tones that vary as much from pleasant acquaintanceship to timorous wonder, as do the pronouncements. "More fools getting stung," mentally notes the cynical one. His turn arrived, tantalizing, hunger-stirring odor of well-cooked meat and deliciously spiced tomato-catsup grips him. With more conscience than manners he directs the expectant woman, "Give me some of that." "That" obtained, he asks as he departs, "What is it?" At the answer "Hungarian Goulashe," he stops suddenly, grins shamefacedly, is reassured by the spice of the catsup, and bears off the triumphant goulashe of Hungarian extraction. Amid scenes and conditions such as these this dish has earned and kept its well-deserved popularity.

Another popular dish of good American origin, possessing neither picturesque nor the foreign flavor of the goulashe, is baked hash. Despite the disparaging remarks and boarding house jokes directed against this dish, it is much in demand at the cafeteria. Lima beans, sweet potatoes, and corn bread are also made up in great quantities.

Salads, even the most tempting array of fruit salad are strictly avoided by the masculine patrons of the cafeteria. They pass it by for the most part, without a second glance, although there are some, to judge from their furtive air, who half expect to hear some sweetly-insistent feminine voice ask: "John, arn't you going to eat that lovely salad?"

SPRING HATCH BEGINS.

Chicks From College Incubators Begin to Appear.

The spring hatch of chicks in the college incubators began last week. Two incubators have been emptied, and there is every prospect of a good hatch.

The department is quite proud of one of its pullets. The pullet weighed three and one-quarter pounds, and recently laid an egg weighing one-quarter of a pound.

Cosmopolitan Elects Officers.

The following officers have been elected by the Cosmopolitan club for the winter term: Edward Shim president; Charles G. Luckner, vice-president; Walter A. Bergen, secretary; Miss Estella Boot, treasurer; and B. K. Bagdikian, marshal.

Notice Organization Committees.

All copy and pictures must be in the hands of the Royal Purple Editors at 6 p. m. March 10th. It is an absolute necessity that all copy be in by this time.

WILL PETITION CO-EDS JOURNALISM FRATERNITY

Ten Girls of the Department of Journalism Have Organized in Order That They May Get a National Charter.

TO BE THE HEA SIGMA PHI.

In order that they might petition the Theta Sigma Phi, national honorary women's journalism fraternity, the co-eds of the college who are studying journalism have organized a Women's Press club. The club has 10 charter members. They are Hazel Beck, Edith Updegraff, Lucile Mills, Mrs. Ethel M. Stothers, Nell Flynn, Florence Laude, Erba Kauli, Annette Perry, Erwin McLean and Eva Hostetter.

The club has adopted a constitution and elected officers. Mrs. Ethel Stothers is president of the organization and Miss Edith Updegraff is secretary. The club is making arrangements to petition Theta Sigma Phi, and it is expected that the petition will be sent to the national organizer of the fraternity within a week.

The national men's honorary journalism fraternity, Sigma Delta Chi, already has a chapter at the college. It was installed last spring.

HART-PARR AGENT HERE.

Is Demonstrating the "Little Devil" Engine to Students.

C. C. Wheeler, the state agent for the Hart-Parr tractor company gave lectures and demonstrated the Hart-Parr "Little Devil" to the members of the short course traction classes last Monday.

The Hart-Parr machine is the two cycle type and is rated as an 8-22 engine although the engine under the supervision of Mr. Wheeler was able to make a showing of 22 1-2 horsepower on the belt.

A. W. Stuart, a factory expert from the Kansas City branch of the Hart-Parr company will conduct the classes during the rest of the week and will endeavor to show the action of the "Little Devil" under both belt and the road work.

Mr. Stuart has been working the last few years with E. D. Richardson of Cawker City, a graduate of the college in '05. Mr. Richardson is operating a number of Hart-Parr machines in the vicinity of Cawker City.

Mr. Richardson will be remembered in the engineering department as the only man in this vicinity who made a four cylinder, four cycle engine that was reversible. This engine was made at the college shops and is still running at the machine shop of Mr. Richardson.

MIRACLES FOLLOW LAWS OF NATURE, SAYS SCHWEGLER

K. U. Lecturer Says Prayer Is One of Phenomena Connected With Religion.

Miracles comply with the laws of nature, according to Dr. Raymond W. Schwegler, associate professor of sociology at K. U. Dr. Schwegler spoke Thursday night in the college auditorium, giving the third of his series of addresses on "Christian Fundamentals."

"Prayer seems to be one of the phenomena intimately and vitally connected with religion," said Dr. Schwegler. "It is one of the greatest things which has marked the progress of mankind down through the centuries."

"Miracles are nothing more or less than the working out of certain fundamental principles, complying with the great underlying laws of nature. The things that are occurring around us every day are just as miraculous as the miracles of old. But we do not consider them as such, because as soon as things become common in occurrence they are no longer miracles. We simply say that it is one of the ways nature has of doing things."

Dr. Schwegler emphasized the fact that many great rulers and leaders have made fun of prayer and tried to make people believe there was nothing to it. "But people still keep on praying, and it is because there is something in real prayer that appeals to the inner man—something that makes him stronger and gives him a better grip on himself and upon life. It is not the pretense of prayer, but the reaction of real prayer that counts."

"We have a right to believe there is something in prayer," said Dr. Schwegler, "because all down through the centuries we have had the words from the lips of people who are willing to believe, that prayer works. We believe it because we see the effect of prayer on the usefulness of their lives."

"But, after all, with all of the great examples at hand to prove that prayer works, prayer means nothing to you unless it is in harmony with the Master and is directly in accordance with His will."

"The essence of the Gospel of Jesus Christ is the call to self-realization, to a larger, broader, deeper, and more endless life."

G. C. CLAMMER IN CHAPEL.

Manhattan Lawyer Talks About Law and Its Limitations.

Law should be supreme and should furnish protection for those who abide by the law according to George C. Clammer, a Manhattan lawyer who spoke to the student assembly last week on "The Supremacy of Law and Its Limitations."

"Law is perhaps impossible of absolute definition," said Mr. Clammer, "and yet we may define it as a system of rules. The ultimate aim of the law is that all questions concerning personal and property rights shall be submitted for determination in accordance with the rules of the law."

"In a state of nature, man pursued and took with a strong hand whatever he could and kept whatever strong hand, and cunning permitted. As man approached civilization, he more and more renounced the right of private vengeance. It is the high ideal of civilization that man shall submit their controversies to the rules of law and abide by the judgment of the court."

"We recognize the fact that might does not make right, but we must maintain police, militia and an army to protect society against the lawless element. The question then arises, how much should society prepare against the lawless instinct of man. Society must prepare sufficiently, whatever that may be, in order that law may be supreme. There must be sufficient force to compel that obedience. It is the ideal of civilization that all questions shall be submitted to the arbitration of law, but there must be enough preparedness."

Mr. Clammer then dwelt upon the present European conflict and showed how it was effecting America and the need of preparedness. He argued that we should leave the question of preparedness in the hands of experts.

"We must remember constantly, and none of us would for moment forget," continued Mr. Clammer, "that we are living now under Christian ideals, but as we think this, we must remember this further fact that the very Prince of Peace himself drove the money changers from the temple with a whip of cords, and that he did not seek to have them leave by the use of futile words or an exchange of diplomatic notes. There are times when the very law of love must appeal to force."

Compete in Theme Writing.

The second hour class in College Rhetoric I has challenged the fifth hour class in the same course to a contest in writing of themes.

AGGIE FIVE OFF FOR NEBRASKA THURSDAY

Meruer's Team Will Probably Meet the Hardest Team It Has Been Up Against Since the Season Started—Men in Good Condition.

THE COURT THERE IS SMALL.

The Aggies Fight! That element of the Aggie camp will need to be in evidence perhaps more than at any other time so far this season when the Aggie quintet meet the chavy Cornhusker team at Nebraska university for the two games of Friday and Saturday nights.

Meeting a five of men who are much heavier, three of whom were hardened on the gridiron last fall, the "K-five" will have two hard games.

While the Cornhusker team averages perhaps fifteen pounds heavier than the 154 pound Aggie squad, it is hoped that they will find early in the game that they are not contesting "midgets."

The Aggies will not only be handicapped by playing off their home floor, but the Nebraska court is small—to which fact the Jayhawkers lay their defeat.

At the close of the last Washington game on Thursday evening, the Aggies stood abreast with the Nebraskans in the conference. The two victories over Ames has placed Nebraska in the lead. But with the "Reynolds' Adams machine," Ramsey's scrapping qualities, "Big" Leonard with the big reach at the tip-off, and MacMillan's strong guarding, the "K-five" has material which bids fair to even the difference now standing between the two teams in the conference. "We expect that Nebraska will give us a hard fight," said Captain Adams last night, "and their court will be a handicap. But the men are coming out of the bruises received in the Washington games and we expect to be able to give them a hard fight."

In addition to the regular Coach Meruer will probably take McIlrath, Van Trine and Gunning to meet the Nebraskans.

DON'T NEED DATE COMMITTEE.

Senior Girls Think They Can Make Dates Without Assistance

It is believed that the date committee of the winter term senior class party will not be needed. The party is to be a leap year affair, and the girls are to make the dates. They have asserted that they will not need a date committee, and that there will be no need of reporting the dates as they are made.

LOCAL Y. W. ASSISTS IN MISSION WORK IN CHINA

Missionaries in the Orient Carry Out Work of Social Service Among Women of all Classes.

A big task challenges the Young Women's association in China. Women of leisure and students in government and private schools demand the best. What is the association doing for China?

While the association exists for any woman who has need for what such an organization can provide, in China effort has been made to so develop the city association as to function first for those classes whose needs can best be met by an inter-denominational agency. These classes are—the women of leisure, and students in government and private schools. These city associations are started upon the invitation of a representative missionary body, and are conducted under trained leadership.

In each association a number of voluntary Bible classes are opened in the building, and in various sections of the city. In Shanghai, a regular Sunday afternoon evangelistic meeting is conducted for non-Christian women.

The Young Women's Christian association becomes a social center for the women. Special entertainments are held occasionally. The women grow eager to help the Chinese.

Supplementary education is provided by the association for Chinese women. Classes are arranged at convenient hours for housewives, in cooking, sewing English, and other branches. A half-day school has been organized in the Shanghai association.

The department of physical training is doing a great work for Chinese women who are in great need of it.

Students of the Kansas State Agricultural college may be especially interested in association work, as Miss Lily K. Haass, former secretary in the college, is in Peking. Miss Haass has received an appointment to organize a student's association in Peking, China.

There are eighteen associations secretaries in China.

One vitalizing influence in the student's associations is the Bible study work. Especially good results are obtained from the classes organized by the girls themselves. Student associations in schools furnish Christian activities for entire communities.

Perhaps no influence reaches so many individuals and is scattered to so many centers, as the influence created at the summer conferences. In 1915 six conferences were held, one of which was for non-Christian students.

The west central field of the Young Women's Christian association of which our college is a part, is supporting Miss Catherine Vance, who is associated with Miss Haass.

In a letter to the girls of the Kan-as State Agricultural College Miss Vance says:

"The only part of association work that I can do during my first year of language study is calling on Chinese ladies. One family was so kind as to include me in an invitation to a feast, which I shall describe. At the gate of our destination, we are met by two little girls coated in blue or red, to conduct us in. They greet us warmly, for Miss Haass is a favorite of theirs. They lead us through several courts to the living room.

"We are greeted by two of the young ladies, beautifully dressed in blue or black satin coats, and perhaps an accordion pleated silk skirt. They conduct us to a room, where tea is served. We ask them as to the health, first of their father and mother, then of their brothers and sisters, if we can.

"We are soon ushered into the other room, and seated at a table covered with a white cloth and furnished with chopsticks and a long spoon with such a deep bowl that you can't extract anything you put in. Out of courtesy to us, there is sometimes added a little silver knife and fork.

"On the table are the sweets. In addition, there are dishes of salted fish. When we have nibbled some of these, they bring on course after course. Perhaps the next will be duck's liver fried most delectably. With that they may serve a bread that looks very doughy—I hardly think the domestic economy girls would care for the recipe.—Delicious shrimp cooked with lotus seeds may follow.

"Next comes the soup, perhaps reheated on the table with chrysanthemum leaves thrown in at the last minute. We are then given some deliciously tart redfruit juice. We finally breathe a sigh of satisfaction, and relief when the ten or thirteen courses are over. But when we reach the next room we must drink some more tea.

"When we leave we are accompanied by the ladies to the outer gate.

"This is all a part of our cultivation work, for we hope that when the association work in Peking is started they will join not only our English classes, but our Bible classes.

"Altho language study is my occupation, I can not tell you so well about that. Suffice it to say that I enjoy it exceedingly except the examinations.

"The future stretches out very inviting, and the present is all that I could wish. I am grateful to the girls of K. S. A. C. for their share in giving me this privilege of working in this country where the women are so hungry for friendship and lives with a broader outlook, that we hope to give them through the Christian life."

Foreign work is not devoted to China, exclusively. The association is carrying on work in India with five in Turkey with one, and in South America with three secretaries.

Y. W. GIRLS AT ESTES PARK CONFERENCE EACH YEAR

K. S. A. C. Well Represented at Annual Gathering in the Rockies—Is Ten Days Outing.

Beautiful Estes Park in the heart of the Rockies, is the scene of one of the many summer conferences of the Y. W. C. A. It is situated 120 miles up Big Thompson Canyon from the railroad and the trip is made in large automobiles.

The park itself covers many miles and the conference grounds are in the interior of the park and completely surrounded by mountains. The tent homes of the various college taught by the leaders as well as a very entertaining one of camp life.

Nearly 200 girls go to Estes Park every summer. They come from the colleges of all the middle-western states and from Texas, Utah, New Mexico, Wyoming, Montana, and Idaho. Similar conferences are held every summer at Silver Bay, N. Y.; Eagles Mere, Penn.; Black Mountain, N. C.; Northfield, Mass.; Seaback, Ore.; Asilomar, Calif.; Blue Ridge, Va.; and Lake Geneva, Wis.

The expenses, not including railroad fare, are reasonable. They include a fee of $5, which pays the expenses of the speakers and of $12.50, which is for room and board for the delegations form a semi-circle which is completed into a circle by the auditorium, dining hall, administration building, and the lodge, which is the home of the camp leaders. The large buildings are built of logs and all the furniture is made in rustic design. The space between the buildings has been converted into tennis courts.

A day at the Estes Park camp is much as follows: The morning is devoted to the study of the Bible and mission work. There are regular classes organized in this study and they are led by capable men and women. There is always a speaker for the assembly period.

The afternoons are spent in hikes, horseback riding, automobile trips, or in such games as, hockey, tennis, and baseball. All this strenuous exercise is preceded by the "Quiet Hour," the hour of rest which comes immediately after dinner.

Hikes into the mountains are popular and are organized every day. Before leaving the girls must register where they are going, and when they return they must scratch off their name. By this method every girl's whereabouts is known. No less than three girls are allowed to leave the grounds alone. Thus if one girl gets hurt, there is one to come for help and one to remain with the injured girl.

Great rivalry is shown by the different college delegations and it is not unusual to give college yells and songs during the supper hour.

After supper there is assembly at which there is music or a talk by some prominent speaker. After assembly the girls often gather around the big fireplace in administration hall and tell stories. The walls of this building are covered with the large banners of the schools represented at the conference. After the story hour each delegation gathers in its own tent where review of the day is made and a few moments devoted to prayer.

At 10 o'clock the proctor of each tent blows out the light, and if the curl papers are not arranged they must go, for every one must be in bed by ten.

The recreation and discipline of the camp is arranged for by two committees, one on amusements which organizes all games and hikes and the other on discipline that sees that every girl is accounted for during the day and which makes the rounds of the tents at night to see that every one is in.

The ten days outing trip in Estes Park is open to any girl belonging to the Y. W. C. A. She can pay her own expenses or she can borrow from the loan fund of her local association. This loan must be paid back when she leaves college. This trip is an instructive one full of good things ten days. The entire expenses are covered by $50.

ANOTHER AGGIE MAKING GOOD.

Karl Knaus, '14, is County Agent for Cloud County Now.

H. Umberger, demonstration supervisor of county agent work, went to Concordia Friday in the interest of the farm bureau that has recently been established in Cloud county. This bureau began its work January 10, with Karl Knaus, a former student of the college, as county agent.

Mr. Knaus graduated in the course in animal husbandry in 1914. His former home was Benedict. Mr. Knaus took active part in athletics and other activities of the college and was well thought of by those who knew him.

This bureau is undertaking its work under exceptionally favorable circumstances. The people are enthusiastic about the new move and are giving it their loyal support. The business men of the county gave $800 in contributions; the board of county commissioners made an appropriation of county funds for the work of the bureau and part salary of the agent, which sum was duplicated by the Agricultural college from Smith-Lever funds under its control.

The bureau has a membership of over 250 farmers at present and promises one of the best bureaus in the state.

Miss Frances Hildebrand, who was called home last term by the death of her father, has returned to college.

THE PESSIMIST

WHO was it who defined a pessimist as "A Man Who Has to Live With Optimists?" The inventor was a misled joker, anyway, for no pessimist could stand the constant society of more than one simon-pure optimist without either becoming one himself, or committing suicide.

Nevertheless, we have pessimists in our student body. Students who do not realize that a college paper is a necessity.

In fact, it is the life of the college—the medium which keeps athletics alive, which praises those who are trying to do good work when others jeer them.

So, if you have not already subscribed for the KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN, do so today and line up with the rest of the optimists of the college.

ABOUT VACATION.

"What are these 'mid-terms' every one is talking about? Are these vacations?" asked a freshman of a senior last term. This may provoke a laugh but was he so badly mistaken after all?

A vacation is usually thought of as something out of the ordinary—that is to get away from every day routine. There are some students who never write up a note book, review any lectures, hand in themes, or pretend to get their money's worth out of textbooks until just about mid-term.

Sometimes a grandma, maiden aunt, or father, tells about would-be students who never missed a show, a dance, a chance for a date, or in anyway let business interfere with pleasure until that awful week. Just ask students who get a change from the monotony of life during mid-term week if it seems like a vacation.

This may serve as a little reminder that it is now time to take one's "pen in hand" to write lecture notes, have textbooks open day and night, attend classes regularly, and look wise. Forgetting these things now may remind one a little later of a college parody on an old maxim, "Of all sad words of tongue or pen, the saddest are these, 'I've slunked again.'"

Dr. Harmon's Book Adopted.

Laboratory Outlines for Embryology, a text book prepared by Dr. Mary T. Harmon, of the department of zoology of the college, and published by Blackiston's, has been adopted for use in the classes in embryology in the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, Boston, Mas.

Forty years ago gymnasium work of today was unknown, but calisthenics—which was more training in grace of movement than in healthful bodily vigor—was first taught in 1877 by a boarder in the Boston boarding home.

In 1884 Boston opened the first Association gymnasium for women in America in their building on Berkeley street.

Boston led the country in establishing cooking classes and domestic training in 1879.

In 1883 Boston gave the first series of emergency lectures.

Heretofore there had been practically unrelated local Associations. In 1884 State Associations made up of various local Associations were formed in Michigan, Ohio and Iowa.

Albert Dickens, professor of horticulture, spoke to the meeting of the Farmers' Institute in Parsons last night. The subject of Professor Dickens' address was, "Live Stock Conference."

"THE BATTLE CRY OF PEACE."

was written by Commodore J. Stuart Blackton, after he had read Hudson Maxim's "Defenseless America." The book burned its way into his soul and he took a still mightier torch and is burning the same message into the minds and hearts of Americans.

The message is one that has been heard before—"Prepare!" But this time its true meaning came with a shock that struck at the throat and at the pit of the stomach and at the heart itself.

"Peace," said Blackton, when he appeared before the curtain between the two acts, "should be spelled only one way, and that phonetically—P-o-w-e-r."

Collier, the freshman speed merchant, is working out daily on the dashes. This year is Collier's first appearance on indoor track. He will show up much better on the outdoor cinder path. It is rumored that he will cause some dope upsets in the K. S. A. C. indoor meet, February 28.

Totten, a freshman, is showing up well in the high jump. Totten duplicates "Duroc" Frizzell's form with peculiar exactness and has been leaping five feet six consistently. As this is Frizzell's last year of track, Coach Merner is glad to see someone showing form in this event. Totten and Weimer will be hard to beat in another year.

In a final track tryout, last night, the men who will compete against Kansas University in the dual meet of February 21 were chosen. All the track men were there in their best form and the competition was keen in every event. Especial interest was shown in the distance events in which no one was sure of his place, with the possible exception of Teeter on the two mile.

Following is a summary of the events, listing the men who competed in order of places won:

30 yard dash—Vandenberg, Collier.
One mile—A. Seeber, Bixby.
30 yard hurdles (low)—Vandenberg, Wilder.

30 yard hurdles (high)—Frizzell, Wilder.

Quarter mile—Turner, Holroyd, Grandfield, Essick.

Half mile—Wilder, Keys.

Two mile—Teeter, Foreman.

Shot put—Schaper, Dodderill.

Pole vault—Enlow.

High jump—Frizzell, Weimer.

"Duroc" Frizzell was slightly off on the high jump last night. In the first tryout Vandenberg beat "Duroc" on the high hurdles, thereby arousing the ambition of the Oklahoman to that extent that he began to devote his attention to high hurdles to the partial exclusion of the high jump. Hence the apparent defection in the performance of the red-headed one at the high jump last night. His heart was set on the high hurdles.

Our aim is to be up-to-date and give you the best possible service for your money. Expert manicuring—Gillett Barber Shop.

TO THINK COMPLEX THOUGHTS.

Professor Winship Does Not Wish His Students to Be Narrow.

To teach his freshman students to think complex thoughts, is the object of F. C. Winship, instructor in the English language department. "Students should learn to think world thoughts—to get their minds out of personal affairs and away from purely local interests," asserts Mr. Winship.

"Do you think this can be accomplished?" he was asked.

"As a matter of fact, the majority of freshman students have difficulty in comprehending simple thoughts," was the answer. "There are always a few in every class, however, who really have the power to think."

Mr. Winship is attempting to gain his end by assigning a magazine article to each student, to be read and summarized in a single sentence. "Every freshman should be able to grasp the main thought of an article—to pick out the kernel," says Mr. Winship. "This rhetorical exercise cultivate the student's mind."

TEACHERS ARE BUNGLERS?

So Says a Prominent Professor of the College.

"We teachers are a set of bunglers," a prominent professor was heard to remark the other day. "We work with hammer and tongs trying to drive knowledge into the student's head. We see that he keeps his nose to the grindstone, and then we wonder why he does not seem to learn anything. The average student is made a problem solver."

"This is not nature's way. Nature makes one a problem discoverer, and few teachers do this. But the teacher who stimulates the student to find himself—to discover great truths for himself—is the real teacher."

NEW MACHINERY IN SHOPS.

Are Now Equipped With Most Modern Labor-saving Devices.

The department of shop practice has added considerable valuable equipment this year for the instruction of students.

A Fay and Egan saw in the carpenter shop which takes a 20 inch circular saw and cuts six and one-half inch oak with ease is a great time saver. It replaces the smaller saw that has been in service 26 years.

Another valuable piece of machinery in the carpenter shop is an eight inch jointer, or hand planer, which is used for straightening the edges of boards that are to be dovetailed and glued together, such as pieces for table tops, doors, and various pieces of furniture. Formerly this work had to be done by hand.

The grindstones used by the students in carpentry and woodwork have been moved into the bench room and connected up with an individual Westinghouse half horsepower motor. This enables the instructors to supervise the sharpening of the woodwork tools to better advantage and at the same time makes it unnecessary to run the 25 horsepower motor which drives the woodworking machinery and which formerly drove the grindstones also.

Because of the termite ravages the wooden columns in the woodworking machinery room have been replaced by steel and concrete. All overhead shafting has been removed, adding greatly to the appearance of the room as well as lessening the disturbance to the classes meeting above.

The foundry has received a molding machine which does away with all the packing of the sand by hand, and makes it possible for any one to pack the sand uniformly and properly.

A complete set of sheet metal working tools has been added to the machine shop equipment. This will enable the shops to give useful work in laying out, forming, bending, soldering and other operations on sheet metal.

While all this equipment increases the rate of production and lessens the necessary skill of the workman, the student will not fail to acquire man-

MAUD POWELL PLEASURES LARGE AUDIENCE HERE

Concert of Noted Woman Violinist
One of the Best Ever Heard at the College—Player has Especially Pleasing Manner.

MR. LOESSER ACCOMPANIED HER

Miss Maud Powell played a most delightful program Wednesday evening to an audience which comfortably filled the auditorium. Madam Powell impresses one as a sane, substantial musician as well as an artist of great worth. Her playing is especially pleasing as she is free from all mannerisms now seemingly so popular with some great artists, and she plays her instrument for the value of her art.

The program itself and the manner in which it was rendered, would make everyone believe that Madam Powell deserves the title of, "The World's Greatest Woman Violinist."

Madam Powell was most ably assisted and supported by Mr. Loesser, pianist and accompanist. His beautiful swinging tone on the piano is little short of marvelous. He showed himself, both in accompanying and in his own piano solos, to be an artist of real worth.

WHAT DRILL REALLY IS.

Means More Than Simply Holding a Gun to Shoot a Rabbit.

"Present arms." At the command, up go the guns of the whole regiment. They are right into it. Every man of the regiment is doing the same thing at the same time. Some man up front yells, "Order, arms," and down go the guns. That is just a start. Here is some more of the ways it looked to a new man in military drill.

Who would ever think there is anything about handling a gun that a boy doesn't know about? Every boy thinks he knows how to handle a gun. He does too so far as a 22 rifle and rabbit shooting is concerned. When it comes to getting one of the rifles of the military department in his hands and doing with it just what the rest of the fellows in the company are doing and at the same time they are doing it, he begins to think he is considerable of a novice. Those who are watching him think so too, so he is not alone in his opinion.

The new men in the Kansas State Agricultural college cadet corps are beginning to see there is science in handling even an old army rifle. They are lined up in company front. Each man has a rifle. What he is to do with it he is not just sure. A man standing out in front of the company yells something that sounds like "order, arms." The new man watches the man next to him, who has been drilling for several terms. Down goes that man's gun on the ground with its butt parallel with the right foot and even with the toe of the right shoe.

Next comes the order "port arms," and up goes the gun of the new man's neighbor at an angle of 45 degrees across the front of the man, with the barrel in the air. The new man follows the lead and gets through all right. Now what? Wait, you'll soon see. The man in front of the company is talking. He says, "Hey, you fellows down there at that end get a move on you and get that gun up when the order is given. Don't act as though you were getting ready to go out to do chores on a cold morning."

Now comes a succession of orders, "present, arms," "right shoulder, arms," "left shoulder, arms," "inspection, arms," "dismissed," and for one day the ordeal is over. Before the next time the new cadet gets a drill manual and looks up some of these jerky moves, so that he will not get "bawled out" again.

Dr. J. C. Wilhoit has presented Coach Bender with the skin of a wild cat which will be mounted and placed in the office. It will be used as an emblem at Aggie games or demonstrations of exuberant pep.

SHORT COURSE TO CONVENTION.

Many Will Attend Meeting of Threshermen in Wichita.

A large delegation of the students in the engineering short course, are planning to attend the Threshermen's convention in Wichita, February 24, 25, and 26.

Last year nearly a hundred men went to Wichita on the trip, at the invitation of one of the organizations connected with the convention, and enjoyed themselves hugely. This year, according to W. H. Sanders, instructor in farm motors, there are about 170 men in the course. "If the same proportion of this year's classes go to Wichita, we will have more than a hundred students on the trip," says Mr. Sanders.

Definite plans for the occasion have not yet been worked out, but it is probable that there will be a special car arranged for, and that Mr. Sanders and W. A. Buck, fellow in gas engines, will go with the students, in charge of the expedition.

Mr. Sanders is to address the convention on the evening of Thursday, February 24, on "Power Farming."

SOME NEW POINTS ON TASTE CITED BY DAVIS

Says That People do not Know What Tastes are—Just a Matter of Sentiment.

"Taste is largely a matter of imagination, largely a matter of sentiment," was the startling statement made by H. W. Davis, assistant professor of English language at the Kansas State Agricultural college, who spoke to the student assembly Wednesday morning on, "Advertising Things to Eat."

"People do not know what tastes are," said Professor Davis. "How many adjectives have you in your vocabulary which are descriptive of taste? Some words which are descriptive of taste are strong, sharp, sweet, bitter, sour, spicy, acid, luscious, stinky and morbid."

"The meat tasting game is a very interesting game and you should try it at your next party. Suppose you take any number of individual meats, chop them up. Do not season them but get them to looking as much alike as possible, and then pass them around and see how many will be able to distinguish the different kinds of meat."

Professor Davis asked his audience to describe what a raw turnip tasted like. He said that tests had been made where chopped onions had been called raw potatoes, but this was when the smelling apparatus was out of commission.

"Taste is largely a matter of imagination and atmosphere," said Professor Davis. "We like turkey better than we do chicken, and the reason we like turkey is because it is associated with big, fine Christmas dinners. Which would you rather have, duck or wild duck? We think about the pleasing, enjoyable associations with wild game. That is the reason we like quail better than chicken."

"There is a strong prejudice in favor of country produce. Country butter sounds a good deal better than just butter. Fresh eggs sounds better than just eggs. We don't like to be told about eating hog, cow, and sheep. We would rather think of it as bacon, beef, and mutton. We know we are carnivorous, but we do not like to be reminded of the fact. Hence this matter of tastes is largely a matter of sentiment and atmosphere. It is the business of the advertiser to build up an atmosphere for his produce."

It was stated that a great many articles which are advertised so extensively today are in such great demand because there has been built up about them a pleasing and appetizing atmosphere by their being advertised with elegant associations.

"Within the last ten years," continued Professor Davis, "a great amount of goods has been put up in packages. This has become a part of the atmosphere of the food. The advertisement must look good. It must get the taste all ready for you or at least suggest it. It is the business of the advertiser to create as far as possible an atmosphere for his food so that when you eat that article it will taste just about as the advertiser said it would."

A. P. Immenschuh of Aragon, N. M., is the guest of his parents. Mr. Immenschuh will leave tomorrow for Holton where he will visit his fiancée. The wedding of Mr. Immenschuh will take place soon and he will go to the western part of Colorado where he will practice as a veterinarian.

FIRST ALL-COLLEGE MIXER ON TONIGHT

The First of a Series of Get-Together Affairs Will be Featured by Several National Dances—General Dancing Later.

PROF. J. E. ACKERT MANAGER

Tonight will be staged the first of a series of all-college mixers which it has been planned that the different departments of the college shall hold. The get-together meeting tonight will be under the supervision of the physical training and athletic departments.

The girls of the physical training department will have a prominent place on the program.

The instructors in the girls' physical training department have labored hard and long to turn the girls into either 'Swedes' or 'Dutchmen' that they may give with feeling the Swedish schottische and the Dutch dance tonight.

The Swedish schottische is given by forty girls in true Swedish style. Part of the dancers are 'boys.' The girls' costumes consist of a white cap, white waist, short black skirt, yellow bodice and a tiny white apron. The boys' costume is distinguished from his partner's by the red bodice. The same dancers will present the Gorskittanec, a Polish dance, before leaving the floor.

Another set of forty girls present the Dutch dance in costume. The girls dress in Dutch blue, her apron, kerchief and cap are white. The boys wear bloomers, blue blouses and blue caps. The hair is done in the latest Dutch bob, special for the occasion.

The dance "Patriotism" to be given by the girls of the physical training V class is much in keeping with the present times.

Following the program there will be general dancing on the main floor of the gymnasium. The college orchestra will play. Professor M. P. Ahearn was to have been manager of the event, but was called to Boston yesterday on account of the death of his mother. Professor J. E. Ackert will act as manager tonight.

POPPING ALL THE TIME.

The Engines are Most Popular Poppers on Pop's Farm.

"Pop, Pop, Pop, Pop, Pou" says the gasoline engine on the modern farm from morning until night and then until far into the night the engine will run the electric plant while the farmer is enjoying his evening paper, that has been delivered by another gasoline engine ridden by the mail carrier.

The gasoline engine is an economic necessity to the farmer and will be found on all of the modern farms. Gasoline is found doing all the hard work from plowing to running the sewing machine in the parlor, the sewing machine is run indirectly by gasoline of course, but the electric motor that does the actual work is furnished with power from the little gas-electric dynamo in the cellar, this same power furnishes the lights for the house, the barn and the garage.

Some of the more important uses of the gas engine on the farm might be, plowing, harvesting, grading roads, running power machinery, pumping water, running dynamos, sawing wood and many other odd jobs for the farmer.

"SHORT" ENGINEERING POPULAR.

Enrollment in That Branch at College Has Reached 198.

An increase of more than 100 per cent over last year is recorded in the enrollment in the engineering short courses in the Kansas Agricultural College. The students in this course now number 198. Nearly half of these have petitioned A. A. Potter, dean, to be permitted to take a more advanced course next year.

The short course men are active in the college life, and have given several social events. At the last of these they entertained the first year home economics students. Addresses were made by H. J. Waters, president of the college; A. A. Potter, dean of engineering, and T. T. Cade, president of the short course engineers, and a reading by C. O. Williamson, a member of the class. Nearly 250 were present.

A. Wirt, instructor in farm machinery, is in Kansas City attending the motor show.

MANY STUDENTS ARE ATTRACTED BY ART

SHOULD NOT JUDGE BY PRICE

Many students of the college are profiting by the art exhibit which is now being shown in the rest rooms of the domestic science and art building. While a large number of people see the pictures every day it is the opinion of Miss Araminta Holman, instructor in home art, that many do not know how to judge pictures.

The money value of the pictures and the price of the frame are of minor importance according to Miss A. Holman, instructor in the department of home art, in discussing the pictures in the Art Exhibit at the college.

"Everyone should try to find out what the artist wishes to convey. Perhaps he is trying to describe a place that he has seen, narrate an incident or express a feeling that he has felt. "Fine art may be compared to poetry in which the artist is trying to express a beautiful thought in a beautiful way, as the poet does. He is trying to give us aesthetic pleasure through color and arrangement just as the musician does through harmony of sound."

"Some people want every leaf of a tree to be shown in a landscape view. In this case it is best to use a camera as the oil painting becomes mechanical. The greatest artist is the one who can suggest the most to us in the least number of strokes. He does not imitate or reproduce, but interprets nature. A suggestion is far stronger than a detailed account of anything."

"An artist who can paint broad masses indicates that he is a master of details and that he can select the important. He gives types and enduring features rather than minor details."

"The artist Whistler says that nature itself is not art. An artist does not stand at the window and paint what he sees but selects the essentials of nature."

"A picture is great or small depending upon the conception or idea the artists has, the personality or individuality which the artist shows in the expression of his thought, and the technique or workmanship of the artist. The skill of the artist is the least important part of the picture and the artistic conception is the most important."

MRS. FLATTER IN CHAPEL.

National W. C. T. U. Worker Talks on "Preparedness for Life."

We should prepare to live by living purely and thinking purely according to Mrs. Carrie L. Flatter of Zenia, Ohio, national lecturer for the W. C. T. U., who addressed the student assembly Tuesday morning on the subject "Preparedness for Life."

"Someone has said that we are not prepared to live until we are prepared to die," said Mrs. Flatter. "You are here to learn what other men and other women in past years have discovered. You begin where other men and women have left off, and go on and make something out of your life."

Mrs. Flatter then went on to show that there were other things that harmed the human mind and human soul just as much as alcohol, and that one of those was tobacco. At the instance of the W. C. T. U. forty physicians of twenty years experience recently made investigations which showed that the tobacco habit of the father effected the children, and the generations yet to come.

"When the young men realize that tobacco is effecting the future generations, they will be men and will give it up," said Mrs. Flatter. "I have confidence in the boys."

"God told us in this great Book of Books, that 'as a man thinketh so is he.' Let us analyze this: to be the man or woman that we desire to be, we must live so that when we are ready to leave this world, someone will say that I am a better man or woman because this individual lived. We must think only clean thoughts."

"Thoughts make their impressions upon the surface of the brain, and we believe today that it will be only a question of time when man's brain will be read the same as a book. If this is true, it is necessary that we watch the thoughts of our younger years. Our thoughts are being wafted

PROF. KAMMEYER SCORES "BATTLE CRY OF PEACE"

In Address Before Riley County Educational Association, Head of Economics Department Declares for Peace.

Questioning the motives of Sir Hudson Maxim, and referring to the title of his book, "Defenseless America" a lie, Professor J. E. Kammeier, of the college and president of the Manhattan Commercial club assailed the story and argument of the play "The Battle Cry of Peace," before three hundred members of the Riley county Educational association last night.

"The play itself is a work of art and beyond doubt the ultimate in motion pictures," said Professor Kammeier. "However the plot and argument of the story is as insidious as it is beautiful and I wish to condemn the whole gang behind the play who are using the production as a cloak for their schemes to make money."

"There is a world trust, a great holding syndicate which by interlocking directorates controls the whole munitions production of the world and it is this body of profit taking patriots, who would frighten us through the editorials of newspapers, through magazines and even the screen of the theatres, into mortgaging our future to make wealth for their coffers."

"Why, the picture is an indictment of itself. If militarism of the sort that is shown in that picture, the Battle Cry of Peace, is the thing we are to expect, and against which we are to prepare ourselves, God save us."

"If there is such great need for men why is it that these profit taking long distance patriots do all their fighting elsewhere than on the battle line?"

"I am for preparedness. I believe that we should be prepared against the time when this war is over, that we may hereafter settle all disputes as the nations of Europe could have settled it before the war started and as they will have to settle their differences when they have fought till they can fight no more, by mutual agreement."

LIVE STOCK CONFERENCE.
Will be Held at Parsons, Kansas, the Last of this Month.

A livestock conference will be held at Parsons February 23 and 24. Live stock men will be there from the Kansas State Agricultural college, United States department of agriculture, and Parsons chamber of commerce.

Those desiring further information in regard to the conference are asked to write C. G. Elling, Parsons, Kansas.

The purpose of the conference is to promote the livestock industry in that section of the state. It is a good live stock country but has not been receiving as much attention as it should from a live stock standpoint.

ELIJAH TO BE GIVEN BY THE CHORAL SOCIETY

Promises to be the Best Musical Event of the Season—Assisted by Clay Center Musicians.

What will probably be the greatest musical event of the season will be the rendering of Mendelssohn's Elijah the first part of March in the college auditorium.

The Kansas State Agricultural College Choral Society is holding special rehearsals besides those regularly held on Monday nights and under the supervision of Arthur E. Westbrook, professor of music in the college, is making marked progress in its great work.

The college Choral Society will be assisted in this concert by the one from Clay Center which is also under the direction of Professor Westbrook. The society at Clay Center is preparing the same work as the one here and sometime after this concert will give Elijah in their own city.

For the concert here four of Chicago's best vocal soloists have been engaged to assist. Each will sing vocal selections as a prelude to the concert, and will sing the solos in the great oratorio Elijah.

The college orchestra under the supervision of Professor Brown is preparing the Elijah accompaniments and promises to be most proficient by the time of the concert.

"GIRLS OF YESTERDAY."

Will be Presented by the Y. W. C. A. February 23.

"The Girls of Yesterday," is the title of the historical pageant which will be given by the Young Woman's Christian association February 23. The pageant was written at national headquarters and is being presented by the big associations all over the country.

The pageant begins with the first Young Woman's Christian association, treats with the growing period and on to the present day. It shows the work that being done in the city associations, the county, the student, and the foreign work.

Practice for the local pageant is now being carried on under the direction of Mr. Brannan, student assistant in the public speaking department. Miss Alice Neiman, assisted by Miss Margaret Robinson, is chairman of the committee. Miss Ella Kraft has charge of the costumes and the ticket sale is in charge of Miss Eva Lawson and Miss May Brookshire.

The ticket sale will be February 18. Admission will be ten cents.

J. C. Shutt, assistant instructor of steam and gas engineering, returned from Kansas City Thursday evening where he had been attending the tractor show.

PICTURE ITSELF IS VERY GOOD

Questioning the motives of Sir Hudson Maxim, and referring to the title of his book, "Defenseless America" a lie, Professor J. E. HOLTON ADDRESSES JOURNALIST

Professor of Education Gives Some Pointers on Value of Printing.

E. L. Holton, professor of education, addressed the students of the department of industrial journalism in the auditorium Wednesday on, "The Educational Value of Journalism and Printing."

The students of the department were excused from classes, on orders of President Waters, to attend the lecture, and several classes from the English department, attended by their instructors, were present.

"If I were czar or kaiser of this college, I would require every student to take some work in journalism or printing," said Professor Holton. The benefit to be derived from these courses is not dependent on the intention of the student to enter journalism or printing, in his opinion.

"Tests by eminent psychologists and educators have shown that in silent reading, the ability of the students who have studied printing to get the thought content of the printed matter, is twenty percent greater than the ability of those who have not studied printing," said Professor Holton.

He referred to the fact that when the student knows that there is a possibility of his composition being printed, there is an added ambition to do good work, which results in more effort, and a correspondingly higher grade of productions.

Acknowledging the place of the newspaper in community service, Professor Holton stated that the general study of journalism in the schools was bound to encourage the general reading of newspapers, especially in rural communities, and that thus the ends of universal brotherhood are to be served.

J. C. Werner, formerly head of the correspondence department of the college writes from Albion, Idaho, where he is head of the department of rural education and training school in the State Normal. He says that he is enjoying his work and sends greetings to K. S. A. C.

"SERMONS IN STONES."

It seems to be an ingrowing failing of human nature, to be unable to recount any circumstance or occurrences, without injecting into the account some personal opinions, decisions, or beliefs, pertinent or otherwise.

The failing is noticeable particularly in the work of the "club" reporter. Those people who have to do with the stories turned in by students for a school or college paper, find one of their greatest griefs in the fact that every story is an editorial; that every writer feels a cosmic urge which compels him or her to interpret, explain, and apply the lessons which are to be drawn from the incident of the story, to the life of the reader.

An account of the winning of prizes by the college stock is developed into a hymn of praise of the college and its greatness. A story of work done in class invariably degenerates into a homily on the benefit to be derived by the students from that work.

Professor Crawford recently told a class that a reporter who colors a story with his own opinion or interpretation, shows that he is either ignorant or dishonest. Ignorant of the function of a news reporter, the strict and accurate portrayal of facts, or dishonest in wishing to create a false impression.

Verily, the club finds "sermons in stones, and books in running brooks," and invariably writes them.

What and Why Is a Flunk?

No One Knows for Certain—Theories of the Freshman, the Co-ed, and the Engineer—College Professor Gives New Light on Subject.

Why is a flunk? There have been varying interpretations of the meaning of the operation, from that of the freshman who is dead sure that the instructor has made a mistake, somewhere, and the co-ed who believes that the instructor is a woman hater, to the honest engineering student who recently confessed that he flunked because he was "so ——— dumb, by gosh."

But the delicate reactional reactions which have taken place in the internal mental organization of a professor when he flunked a student, have never been entirely revealed. Even the outward and visible effects of the act were never seriously considered, until a recent faculty meeting.

Students would probably never have heard the "inside story" then, if it had not been for an editorial on the matter which appeared in the Industrialist last week. The editorial is reprinted below.

Anyhow, it is a relief to students to know that even as in the sessions in the woodshed, "it hurts me more than it does you, Johnnie."

The editorial:

Prof. H. W. Davis was right when he told the general science faculty the other day that nobody commends a dancing teacher for the number of pupils he failed to teach to dance. He was also right in his application of the underlying principle to school and college teaching.

People who get their living from fees paid by individual pupils as does the dancing teacher, put forth a strong, consistent effort to make their pupils learn something. Failures are marked down in everyday circles as the teacher's failures.

In public education, on the other hand, there are teachers who even boast of the number of pupils that they did not promote—in other words of the number of pupils into whose heads they failed to get a reasonable amount of knowledge of the subject studied. Why should not this be marked down as at least in part the teacher's failure? asked Professor Davis. Why should professional teachers try to get away with excuses that the non-pedagogical world fails to use because they are worthless? Of course, there is an occasional boy or girl so awkward that he can't possibly learn to dance. As to this the world makes allowance. It will likewise make allowance as to the boy or girl who is abnormally short of brains. But if it finds that nine persons out of 10 can learn to dance, it will hardly look with complacency on the theory that only five or six out of 10 can be taught school or college subjects. Certainly it is to be hoped that civilization has produced as good brains as feet.

JAYHAWKERS ARE AFTER LANDLADY

Cruel Hearted Rooming House Keeper Bounces Studes—Is Enjoined.

The students at K. U. are apparently no better off in this cold and cruel world than are the Aggies, in some respects at least. From the following article, from the Lawrence Gazette are to be discovered certain unpleasant features which have a strangely familiar sound.

Listen to the story printed below: "The landlady of a Tennessee street rooming house last night hit upon a novel and temporarily successful method of ejecting roomers, but in doing so she caused the ejected roomers such wrath that she is now the defendant in an injunction suit filed in the district court of Douglas county this noon.

The suit was filed by Oren Eaton, R. W. McGregor and L. C. Schmidt, university students, against Mrs. M. A. Morgan, who maintains a rooming house for boys at 1122 Tennessee street. In their petition to the court, the boys say they have paid their room rent until February 4, February 20, and February 21, respectively, and that the landlady had served no notice that she no longer desired them as lodgers. They have lived in her rooms since the beginning of the fall term on the hill.

But at 6 o'clock last evening while the boys were absent from the house at dinner, she removed all clothing, books, and other personal effects belonging to them, and set it on the front porch of the dwelling. On their return from the evening meal she refused to permit them to enter the house and still refuses such permission, although room rent is paid, and the petition states that the landlady intends to rent the rooms to other parties.

The plaintiffs ask that the court enjoin the defendant from refusing to permit them to enter the rooms until the period for which their rent is paid has expired, or until they are legally ejected, and ask such other equitable relief as the court may grant them.

Dean Brink Solves Mystery

Explains Antecedents and History of Queer Piece of Furniture Which Stands in His Classroom in Anderson Hall.

The mystery is solved—Dean Brink explained it to his class in English literature the other day. Here is it: Many of the students have been piece of antique furniture in the northwest corner of Dean Brink's class room. This particular piece of furniture is circular, approximately seven feet high and three feet in diameter. The upper half is composed of vertical glass panels which revolve about a central axis. Not even the oldest (in attendance at college) of the students could tell where it came from, what it had been used for, or what it was to be used for.

According to Dean Brink, this queer looking object was made under the direction of former President Nichols for the purpose of exhibiting views of the agricultural college at the Centennial exposition at Chicago in 1893, the pictures of the college being placed on the vertical glass panels.

By some means or other, it fell into the hands of the department of much concerned about a certain queer English literature in a damaged condition. Dean Brink had it sent to the shops for repairs, and when it came back, it was accompanied by a bill of $13.50, this amount being charged for repairing one corner and a few glass panels.

"I have never felt any admiration for it," said Dean Brink, "but have left it her in the hope that sometime I would have some pictures to fill it up. Like an angel, it has wings, and I hope that sometime it will be of more use."

More men and better work is the result of afternoon hours for baseball practice. Thirty men were out for practice Thursday evening. Coach Bender is working the men on the "hook" slide, base running, and bunting. The coach says that he is very much pleased with the way the men are bunting the ball and that some good men will be in evidence by the time outdoor practice is on.

Twenty-five to five in the Tiger's favor was the score at the half in Thursday night's game between Missouri University and Kansas. Missouri played her scrubs in the last half, for a few minutes—and the final score stood 42 to 20. In Wednesday's game the Tigers took the long end of a 30 to 24 count. Missouri only led 14 to 13 at the end of the first period. Perhaps the Aggies have some chance with the Tigers after all.

Red Hair Quite Popular

The Titian Locks are Popular About the Campus and Some of the Possessors Even Claim That They are the Cleverest Girls in Any Place.

The soul of the Titian must be lurking some place on the Kansas State Agricultural College campus, for red-haired girls just naturally gravitate this way. You can't count them, for while you're counting the six that are getting the mail from their postoffice boxes, eight or ten are passing behind you down the hall. About the time you get to the ninety-fourth, you're almost dizzy.

Anyway, if you want to meet about 100—more or less—of the cleverest girls in this college, just pretend you are a reporter and stop every red-haired girl you see. You'll get 100 of the prettiest smiles and 100 of the most innocent looks you ever saw besides 100 of the cleverest remarks you ever heard.

"I get tired of wearing brown, green, and blue all the time just because nothing else will go with my hair," said a girl with loads of rust-colored curls stacked up on top of her head, "but I'm proud of my red head anyway. Yes, I'm Irish and I'm proud of that, too."

"It's so convenient to have red hair," said another. "You know most people think red hair means a hot temper, so they're mighty careful when there's a 'torch' around."

A girl with golden-rod hair wonders what color her hair really is. "I've been nicknamed 'Brick-Top,' 'Red,' 'Sorrel,' 'Strawberry' and 'Pinkie,'" she explained with a laugh, "but I guess there isn't any real name for it. Sometimes I've wondered if it wasn't once in the rainbow and got kicked out for fighting all the other colors."

WHERE Y. W. C. A. WORKERS GET EXPERT INSTRUCTION

First Training is Received in Local Training Centers—Nearest at Denver, Colorado.

Girls wishing to go into Y. W. C. A. work receive their first instruction in local training centers established in different cities. The one nearest to Manhattan is at Denver. After three months of work the girls take a minor position in association work for the rest of the year and then it is recommended that they go to the National Training school to complete their training.

The instruction at the training center consists partly of lectures from the secretary of national headquarters, partly of lectures from settlement workers and philanthropists and partly in practice work in the offices and in actual work with factory girls, girls' club work in high school and anything that presents itself.

The national training school, where the girls complete their training for Y. W. C. A. work, was first opened in 1908 at No. 3 Grammercy Park, New York City. In 1912 the school was moved into the new building on the corner of Fifty-second street and Lexington avenue.

The course given is a one year post graduate course. The students who finish there are equipped to fill important positions in home and foreign association work. Course in Bible Study, pedagogy, economics, sociology, public speaking, executive and financial management, and current movements are given. Students may also take courses in Teachers' college or any other college in New York city if they wish.

The resident character of the school gives an excellent opportunity for contact with leaders of the association and kindred organizations for the use of New York city as a sociological laboratory. The kind of home life that the girls would like to develop in associations to which they go out as secretaries is limited.

The building is a large twelve-story one, with the offices occupying the lower part and the living quarters of the girls the top story. The living rooms and single bedrooms are attractive and artistically furnished and a roof garden furnishes the outdoor life.

Girls come to the National training school from all over this country and several foreign nations. There are usually several Chinese and Japanese girls preparing themselves to go back into their native homes. The classes average sixty or over.

A six weeks' summer course is also given in this school to girls who have been recommended to go into associations and a four weeks' course for house secretaries in city associations. City associations furnish eighty percent of all vacancies.

The Cigarette Fiend.

Does Anyone Wish to Challenge the Title Which the Writer of This Article has Conferred upon Himself—If so, Tell the Discipline Committee.

When a man has a talent of extraordinary proportions why should he wrap it up in a napkin and red flannel remorse? As a college student I may be a tobacco soaked failure, but as a cigarette fiend I am a tropical triumph. Not only do I wish to assert at this time that I am an expert "pill roller"—probably the best of the generation—but I desire to strongly contend that I can quit at any time.

I've smoked pills for over ten years now and it has never hurt me in any way. When I see that it has hurt me I shall stop using them.

I firmly believe that I can smoke more "coffin nails" than any other person in college. Now I do not mean to gloat over the fact. I do not say this to the disparagement of the many bright young smokers who started at the same time and have had an equal chance with me. I do not wish to taunt those whose prospects of being a professional cigarette fiend were at one time greater than mine. I do not wish to vaunt my powers but I say without fear of contradiction that I have done what I could and have been a success. I merely wish to maintain my position in the grandest galaxy of smoke eaters in this portion of the country.

Why do I smoke? Well, it seems to be the only talent I have. As I have tried many times to cultivate others and was unable to do so I have decided that this lone one which has been developed into an ability which attracts much notice, should not "be hidden under a bushel."

I have seen people who seemed to be gifted in no line what ever and I have often wondered why they do not try to make themselves proficient in this line which has brought me so much renown, especially with the older professors on the hill.

OPEN COLUMN.

The senior Vets are carrying canes. That is fine to make them distinguishable from the other classes on the hill. The trouble is that there has not been a one yet seen who really knew what was the proper manner in which to carry his "swagger stick." Every Vet I have noticed has had his cane firmly grasped about its center like he might be playing shindy. I even noticed one poor chap who was carrying the stick up side down.

Now I am no accepted critic of such things myself but I believe that I know that a walking stick should never be carried any way except by the handle. It does not make as good a club that way but then the carriers here should not need a club this cold weather any way as the squirrels are not active.

SELF MADE SPORT.

I am glad to note that some class at K. S. A. C. has at last taken up the matter of doing something to make them stand out from the rest of the students and make other students realize that there is such a class as theirs on the hill. This system has long been in vogue at large schools all over the country and certainly Manhattan should not be so behind the times.

What I cannot understand is why the 'Vets' should be the ones to take up this matter. Perhaps things have changed since I was there in college but I know that when I was a student the "horse doctors" certainly did not need anything more than a stroll through their building to make them recognized for days after when any one passed them. Of course it was not by sight, but don't you think that there are other things some times just as impressive as vision?

SILKS

An Event of Unusual Interest and Importance

It is fortunate, indeed, that our purchases of Spring Silks were made many months ago. Otherwise we should not be in a position to offer such extensive assortments as will be displayed here tomorrow. Circumstances have combined to shorten the production of silks. We, therefore, urge you to make your selection early, inasmuch as there is no telling what the situation will be a month or two hence.

The silks shown in our first display tomorrow are quite as dandy, pretty and serviceable as any we have ever shown and the prices are most attractive.

WOULDN'T IT BE NICE

If a newspaper could be gotten out without hurting anyone's feelings?

If notebooks should turn out to be only a horrible nightmare, after all?

If glass doors could be placed in all the buildings, so as to avoid sudden and disconcerting collisions?

If there were more typewriters in the journalism practice room, or fewer users, during chapel hour?

If all the journalism "boneheads" found their way to Mr. Snow's bulletin board, and fewer of them reached the Collegian?

If the little private rainstorms (prithes, compositor let it not appear rainstorm) in the entrance to Kedzie hall, would only cease?

"THE BATTLE CRY OF PEACE."

The most wonderful work in moving pictures ever shown, must be the unanimous verdict of those who see "The Battle Cry of Peace." Some of the effects produced by imposing two, three, or even four scenes on one film are most striking.

The main object of the picture, as stated on the screen, is to drive home the need for preparedness against war.

A Pitiful Plea for Help

A "Bright Young Man" Would Plumb the Mysteries of Cafeteria Terminology—Can't save "Cream of Tomato Soup"

Ever and anon there appears at the top of the cafeteria menu bulletin board in Kedzie hall this sign: "Cream of Tomato Soup."

The other day one of the professors, with a puzzled look on his face, accosted a student in Kedzie hall and said: "Say, what the dickens does that mean, the cream of the tomato or the tomato or the cream of the soup?"

The student, who had the name of being a bright young chap among his professors, scratched his head in perplexity. Here was a stunner. He knew that they used tomatoes to make the soup, and he also knew that they used milk. That a limited amount of salt and pepper was used to season the soup he knew because he had sampled it. But where did the cream come in?

At last the student gave a sigh of despair and said, "I'll be hanged if I know. All I know is that it has milk in it."

Since that time this student has been trying to figure out just whether this means the cream of the tomato or the cream of the soup. He comes to classes without his lessons, his eyes have a far away look, and he has wasted two-bits worth of good writing paper. Furthermore he has found three gray hairs in his head, and his landlady threatens to raise his room rent if he doesn't quit burning so much "midnight oil." Can anyone help him out?

K. S. A. C. Engineers.

"K. S. A. C. engineers are certainly making good in the East," says Dean A. A. Potter of the Engineering department, in speaking of his trip to the Eastern engineering schools. "During my trip I saw over 30 graduates of the engineering department here and they were all making good." Dean Potter visited the engineering departments at Pittsburg and Chicago.

An Invitation to Speak.

A. R. Losh, assistant state engineer, received an invitation recently from the Commercial club of Mankato to meet with it and discuss paving arrangements.

Mr. Losh has been giving talks on maintenance of earth roads, improvements of highways and other subjects of similar nature.

More Debate Tryouts.

Alternate tryouts for the girls' Washburn debating team will be held Saturday. Anna Neel, Browning, has been challenged by Wilma Burtis, Eurodelphian. Matilda Ziller, Browning, has been challenged by Vilona Cutler, Eurodelphian. The question is the Monroe doctrine question. The debate between Washburn and K. S. A. C. is a dual debate and will be held on Friday night, March 3.

CUB REPORTER GETS A SCOOP ON CLASS BOOK

Attempted to Get Special Dope on What was Going to be in the snap Shot Section of the Royal Purple—Here It Is.

AND THEN SHE GOT CAUGHT

Some cub reporters get an exaggerated idea of their duties and responsibilities in the matter of news-gathering. It is feared that the lurid fiction which is put out telling of the hazards that the experiences of reporters in their calling, is responsible for the lamentable lack of ethics sometimes displayed.

Anyhow, last week, one of the Collegian cubs conceived the notion that it would be a brilliant stroke to get some real inside dope on the Royal Purple. She wanted to put one over on the committee, and incidentally earn the approval of the editor.

The reporter has a brain which would better be employed writing fiction than gathering news, and out of some of the fiction which she had read, she evolved a plan of sorts, a plan which without going into too much detail, landed her in the office of the committee, one night when the committee were none of them present.

She found the copy for the book, some of the proofs of the photographs and many other interesting things, but the editors of the book found her there when they returned from the movies, and the Collegian staff moved Heaven and earth to save her reputation and square themselves with the committee.

Here is the story that she turned in, after all was over, and the smoke of battle had cleared away.

There are to be in the Royal Purple, Volume VIII, some very interesting things. Some of them are of interest to the public generally, others will be of interest to the public generally, and to some private parties in particular. Very particular, in fact.

There are to be forty pages of snapshots, which are going to cause some surprises and some little embarrassments on the campus. There is one of — and — (The names were deleted by the editor) at —, while — was absent.

The snapshots were the features of the entire array of material. (Naturally, since it was a girl that was investigating.) Some of the people of college who least expect to blossom into prominence are going to get a lot of publicity out of Volume VIII. T. K. Vincent, who is snapshot editor, of the book, must have a camera with a periscope and an X-ray attachment, in order to get some of his pictures.

There is one of — just after the night that he went to Kansas City to celebrate New Year's. It was taken by some of his friends at — house, according to the legend attached. Honest, you never would have believed that — was the dissipated man that that picture indicates. Of all the war-worn countenances you ever looked at!

Of course the women of the college get their fair share of the snaps in the snapshots. There is one of a pajama party at the — house, and if the disciplinary committee ever persuades the committee to tell who took it, and who some of the subjects are, there are several degrees that will not be awarded at commencement.

Of course there was a lot of proxy stuff, too. There are eight cities represented by a page in the book, and some of the scenes in and near them have been reproduced.

Of course the pictures of the classes are there the same as usual. The seniors, juniors, and sophomores have individual pictures, and the freshmen have had theirs taken in groups. Some of the people will wonder what the photographer had against them when they see their pictures.

There are several proofs of the pages which will be devoted to jokes and humors, and some of the humor never even saw a censor. Its just as personal as can be. Names are called right out in public.

The "Vanity Fair" section isn't ready yet, but it ought to be great. Some of the designs for it were lying on the tables.

But that snapshot section. It would be worth while to be in —'s room when he sees that picture of himself and — on Wildcat. And —, the fat one, if she knew that the picture taken at —'s room in —'s room, was in there, would probably assassinate the entire committee, and burn their office."

CURRENT HISTORY CHANGED.

Student May Now Elect Two Hours of This Subject in One Year.

The course in current history has been made elective. A student may elect two hours in one year. It is a one hour subject. The student may graduate with only four hours credit in this subject. "I believe a student in journalism should elect current history every term," said R. R. Price, professor of history and civics. "Even if he cannot get credit toward a degree by doing it, he will get much credit toward his future success by doing it. The college student does not have time to read as he should, nor does the professor. I wish I might teach a class in current history every term to keep up on history of today."

K. S. A. C. GETS TIME BY WIRELESS NOW

College Signal Corps Gets Time Signals From Big Virginia Naval Station.

The college cadet signal corps, under the command of Cadet Captain H. M. McClelland, is receiving time signals from the big naval observatory at Arlington, Virginia, and the master clock which controls the bells in the various buildings, is being regulated by this means.

The naval wireless installation at Arlington is the largest in the country. The observatory from which the time is taken is just across the Potomac river, in Washington, D. C. It is flashed from the big wireless plant to other stations and the range of the plant permits the college instruments to pick it up.

The time signals are usually taken at night, as atmospheric conditions then are more favorable than during the day time.

Conversations are readily carried on between the college station and Forts Riley and Clavenworth. There are thirty men in the signal squad, and four of them are specializing on the study of wireless.

The master clock at the college, which regulates the bells, was designed by J. O. Hamilton, professor of physics, and is an entirely new arrangement. It was installed last summer.

SPEAKS WELL OF KANSAS.

Barton W. Currie Praises the Sunflower State.

Barton W. Currie, has contributed two articles to The Country Gentleman, entitled "KANSAS, U. S. A.," in which he pays tribute to the wonderful progress this state has made and praises her citizens for what they have accomplished. Mr. Currie, who has visited every agricultural state in the country, comes back to Kansas and hands her the palm. His articles, the first of which appears in this week's issue, tell "how Kansas got on the map, and why she stays put."

Mr. Currie mentions prominent Kansans, tells about the State Board of Agriculture, which he says really "does things," and relates the story of the development of Kansas—how the pioneers of 1869 became the husbandmen of 1880, how the wealth of the state has increased, and why the impartial citizen, wherever he lives, feels a thrill in everything relating to Kansas. News from Kansas has the snap of real, live news.

Mr. Currie's articles will interest every citizen of Kansas. He speaks of Kansas as a state that raised 300,000,000 bushels of wheat in two years, a state that passed "blue sky" laws to protect its people; a state that "makes news too fast for a six-cylinder historian to keep up with;" a state that is a crank on education, religion and sobriety; a state that keeps tab on its progress and makes news of it; a state that has advanced from broken-down prairie-schooners to limousines; a state that celebrated the New Year by paying off the last dollar of its debt; a state that is building silos at the rate of eight a day!

ORATORICAL CONTEST TO BE SATURDAY NIGHT

Eight Orators Will Take Part in the Big Inter-Society Meet in College Auditorium for Respective Societies.

SOME FACULTY OPINIONS.

The annual inter-society oratorical contest will be held in the college auditorium next Saturday night. For several weeks eight students, representing as many literary societies of the school, have been working in preparation for this event and it promises to be a big success this season.

Several members of the faculty have expressed feelings of intense interest in the affair.

"Oratorical contests are valuable because they supply definite specific training in the art of speaking, and because they stimulate the contestants to put forth their best efforts at improvement in this art," said J. E. Kammeyer, professor of economics, when asked to give his opinion of the value of the coming inter-society oratorical contest.

"Slovenliness in speech or manner is indefensible either in conversation or on the platform. He who will improve as a conversationalist or as a speaker, and the results from any point of view are worth the effort. The contention may be that public speaking is not an art."

"This is freely granted so far as it applies to much that is heard from the pulpit and from the platform. The same is true of music, painting, and sculpture. This opinion is probably due to the common place character of vocal speech, it is in the main, unconsciously acquired and the common possession of all. People who would not think of singing in public without previous training and without being to some extent at least, master of the art, do not hesitate to inflict themselves upon the public as speakers."

"Public speaking is an art and therefore teachable and acquirable. Intelligent and persistent effort in this art will always be rewarded with increased efficiency."

The opinion of many of the faculty as to the value of oratorical work has been expressed by W. H. Andrews, associate professor of mathematics. "The work of the Oratorical Board in the Kansas State Agricultural college seems to me most admirable. It is a matter of the greatest satisfaction that in a technical school, supposedly given to other interests, such a large, healthy and commendable interest in oratory and debate should be shown."

"There is no other student activity which will bring both the student and the college, such substantial results as we are now doing in oratory and debate. I wish to commend such activities in the strongest possible manner and to assure my interest and cooperation."

"The inter-society oratorical contest probably interests more people than any other student activity, with the exception of athletics," said C. M. Erink, professor of English literature. "In reading over the orations that will be delivered this year, they impress me as being exceptionally strong. Everything indicates that this contest will be far better than any of the contests of previous years."

DANCING FRIDAY NIGHT.

Band Will Play for an Hour After the Game Against K. U.

After the game against Kansas Friday night there will be a dance in the gymnasium. Professor Hamilton gave his consent Tuesday and Mr. Ozment has been good enough to say that the band will be out and there will be plenty of good music for those who care to shake their feet.

Informal Dinner

An informal dinner party was given Sunday evening to the members of the Aztec fraternity at the home of Miss Anna Howard, 1925 Bluemont avenue by six Aztec sisters. Hyacinths, violets and carnations formed the centerpiece and lavender shaded candles were placed at the corners of the table. The hostesses were: Miss Wilma Burtis, Miss Anna Howard, Miss Virginia Layton, Miss Marguerite Elliot, Miss Sarah Drake and Miss Mae Skinner.

The Alpha Beta Literary society held a kid party in the domestic science hall Friday night.

BOARD MADE CHANGES IN COLLEGE FACULTY

Helder, Head of Hays Station, Resigns—Searson is on Leave for Year to Prepare Textbooks.

TALK SUMMER SCHOOL PLANS.

The resignation of George K. Helder, superintendent of the state agricultural experiment station at Hays, was received and accepted at a meeting of the state board of educational administration, held in Manhattan yesterday. All the members of the board except E. W. Hoch, were present.

Mr. Helder resigns to go into business. He was a student in the college from 1888 to 1890. Later he was clerk and cashier of the First National bank at Manhattan. He went to the experiment station as bookkeeper in 1904, and has since served as secretary, assistant superintendent and superintendent. He has done excellent work at the station.

The board at present has several candidates for the position under consideration but has made no announcement as to their probable choice.

At the same meeting J. W. Searson, professor of the English language, was granted a year's leave of absence without pay, at the request of the state text book commission. Professor Searson has been commissioned to prepare a set of elementary readers for the use of the public schools of the state, and will work on the textbooks for a year. Two books are to be prepared, Prof. Searson receiving $2,500 for the copy for each. His leave of absence goes into effect March 25. He expects to spend at least a part of the year in the eastern part of the United States, gathering materials and ideas for the work.

Dr. J. R. MacArthur, associate professor of the English language, has been selected as the head of the department during the absence of Prof. Searson. Dr. MacArthur has been raised to the rank of a full professorship. He was professor of English and dean of the College at the New Mexico State Agricultural college from 1911 to 1913, and educational secretary of the Young Men's Christian association at Sacramento, Calif., until 1914, when he came to the Kansas State Agricultural college as associate professor of English.

Budget for Summer School.

The budget for the summer school of 1916 was discussed and approved at the meeting. Arrangements were made to have many of the subjects offered in the regular work, taught next summer by regular instructors at the college.

Mrs. Ann Gilchrist Strong, dean of the department of home economics of the University of Cincinnati, will be here to give special work in home economics next summer. Mrs. Strong had charge of the work here last summer.

L. S. Hawkins, director of agricultural education for the New York state board of education, will also be at the summer school, and will deliver a series of lectures. The meeting adjourned last night. Mrs. Cora G. Lewis, of the board of administration, left Manhattan at noon today. She will go to Chicago at the end of this week.

TRACTION ENGINEERING DEPARTMENT WANTS INFO

Would Know What Tractors in Kansas are Doing—More Than 3000 in the State.

The engineering division wants to know how many tractors there are in Kansas, and what they are doing at the present time.

For this reason there is being prepared in the department of traction engineering a circular letter which will be sent to all the tractor owners in the state whose names the department can discover. The letter will make inquiries as to several phases of the usefulness of the tractor on the farm, and the opinion of the owner as to the relative value of tractors and horses as motive power.

When the answers have been received the results will be tabulated and collected and from the information derived, the men of the department hope to draw certain deductions which will be embodied in a bulletin to be issued.

It is known that there are more than 3000 tractors owned in the state.

CONTEST WILL CLOSE TODAY.

No More Votes Will be Accepted After Six O'Clock Today.

Today is the last day of the Royal Purple Beauty contest. During the last few days the voting has been much faster than it was during the first few weeks of the contest and today promises to be a most busy time at the polls opposite the postoffice.

While books may be purchased for some time yet, no votes will be accepted on the Beauty contest after six o'clock this evening and any one who has a favorite co-ed, whose picture he would like to see adorning one of the most prominent pages in the class book this year had best buy his book now and cast his vote at once.

The standing at present is: Ruth Adams, 2700; Jaunita Reynolds, 1050; Wilma Burtis, 975; Claudine Rathman, 900; Laura Ramsey, 800; Helen Crane, 525; Eva Lawson, 450; Mary Polson, 400.

STUDENT MIXER SATURDAY NIGHT A SUCCESS

Fifteen Hundred Persons Enjoyed the Stunts and Dancing Throughout the Evening.

Fifteen hundred students of the college attended the all student college mixer held in Nichols gymnasium on last Saturday night. This was the first of a series of student mixers which the different departments of the college have planned.

The event Saturday night was under the supervision of the physical training department and every part of the varied program was well taken. The stunts put on by the girls under the supervision of Miss Enyart were especially well given and appreciated by the audience.

The tumbling and gymnastic acts put on by the young men from Mr. Koppke's department were features of the evening and showed that much good work was being done by the department.

Not the least enjoyed part of the program was the dancing which occupied the time from 9:30 to 11:30. To the music furnished by the college orchestra, not less than a hundred couples shook their toes while hundreds of other people enjoyed watching the dancing from the gallery.

SHOULD HAVE A CAR.

Farmer Will Find One a Most Valuable Asset.

It pays the farmer in dollars and cents to own an automobile, and especially a light car, in the opinion of E. V. Collins, assistant in steam and gas engines in the Kansas Agricultural College.

"In the busy season of the year when time is worth money, and repairs for machinery are needed, the farmer can take his car and make the trip to town for the necessary repairs without a great loss of time," said Mr. Collins. "Or when groceries and provisions are needed for the house the trip can be made to town in the noon hour or in the evening without taking the time from the field work."

If the farmer has a light car—a car that is cheap enough so that he feels like using it in good or bad weather—he will save time and save his horses, according to Mr. Collins. If some repairs to the fence are to be made, the farmer can throw his tools and a few fence posts into the car and go out and do the work in the time ordinarily required to hitch a team. It is a waste to board horses for traveling purposes when they are needed in the field, and when an automobile will better meet that requirement. Mr. Collins also believes that a farmer has no business having a big heavy car unless he can also afford a small car.

Whittaker Making Good.

E. Whittaker, of Orangeburg, South Carolina, graduate in the course of architecture in '13, writes: D. Walters, professor of architecture, as follows:

"I am still engaged in the same work that I accepted after my graduation, director of manual training at the South Carolina Agricultural college. My work has been successful in every way."

An Exceptional Paper.

P. L. Gahney, instructor in soil bacteriology, has received considerable correspondence in regard to his recent paper which he delivered before the American Association of Bacteriology at its annual convention at Urbana, Illinois, recently. His paper is said to be one of the best ever delivered.

JAYHAWKER COMES TO AGGIE CAMP THURSDAY

Not Much to be Said About the Games Thursday as the Local Team has Already Trimmed the Gang from Lawrence Two Games.

MEN ARE BACK IN GOOD FORM.

Thursday the Jayhawk basketball bird will invade the Aggie camp for two games, one Thursday night and one Friday night. Probably the mighty bird will not come with as confident a smile this time as of old.

There is little to be said of the chances of the Aggies in these two games. On the court at Lawrence, Coach Mermer's five defeated the Jayhawkers two games by lovely margins and there seems to be no reason why the operation can not be repeated when the boys are playing on their own floor.

Much of the stiffness which the men received in the rough games last week has disappeared and the entire squad is back in good shape.

For many years the Aggies and the gang from Lawrence have been fighting for supremacy and it has so happened that the Jayhawkers were almost always successful. No so is it this season. Not only does the Aggie basketball five expect to win both of the games this week but the track team has been dreaming a lot lately about what they are going to do to the speedsters from Lawrence when they come here Monday.

Some one has suggested that it is barely possible that the Aggies will take all three events which are to take place within the next five days.

INHERITANCE IS IMPORTANT.

It Plays Important Part in Education of Child.

Inheritance plays an important part in the education of the child and for this reason, the ancestry of the child should be studied and his traits of heredity determined so that they may be controlled or checked by his environment. Many inherited tendencies can be modified, if not entirely cured, by the right kind of treatment and properly directed training.

"It has been accurately observed," says Dr. R. K. Nabours, professor of zoology in the Kansas Agricultural College, "that many mental traits—high tempers, dispositions of sweetness and kindness, or a disposition to theft, inebriety, immorality or criminality—run in families, and consequently are qualities of inheritance."

"A disposition toward a sweet temper continually thrown under adverse circumstances may be changed to that of a bad temper, although frequently the worst possible environment has not overcome the tendency; whereas a disposition toward a bad temper, if properly trained, may be overcome, though everybody knows of exceptions."

Professor Floyd Talks.

E. V. Floyd, assistant professor of physics, will give a talk before Miss Eugene Fairman's harmony class on the subject, "Resonance and Response." The talk will be illustrated by many very interesting demonstrations with various instruments. These demonstrations will be given on the auditorium stage and all interested persons are invited to attend.

RILEY COUNTY BABIES AT COLLEGE IN MARCH

"Baby Week" to be Held in Manhattan—Kids to be Scored and Explained Here.

The second week of March is to be "Baby Week" in Manhattan, and on two days during that week there will be gathered in the domestic science building the progeny of all the aspiring parents who can be induced to submit "Little Precious" to be scored by the experts in attendance, and to be made the subject, willy nilly, of lectures and demonstrations.

Dean Mary Pierce Van Zile will be in charge of the program. The county board of health and the Public Health Nursing association are backing the project.

The mothers of the babies which are scored at the domestic science building will be given certificates from the state board of health, giving the grades made by the youngsters.

The meetings are to be public, and all the mothers of the county are being asked to bring along the kiddies and attend the exercises.

Published every Wednesday and Saturday of the College year by the students of the Kansas State Agricultural College.

By subscription, $1.50 the year. Fifty cents the term. Five cents the copy.

Entered at the postoffice in Manhattan as second-class matter.

ROOTERS—SHOW YOUR PEP.

The Rooters of a school are a most important part in the matter of aiding a team to victory. Good clean rooting is an inspiration to the players and helps materially to their success. Our really important conference games are yet to be played and a word of encouragement to our rooters would not be amiss. We have two very clever yell leaders who work hard and earnestly in their endeavors to get the proper enthusiasm from the rooters, they are as good as any leaders in the valley but for some unaccountable reason the rooters expect the yell leaders to do all the work. K. U., let us hope, will be our next victims, but whether or not let us show them that we have a wide awake rooters' squad, one that can root coherently and that will start at the beginning of the yell and not at the middle. Rooters, you can do it and do it well, this was demonstrated last fall! Let us not lose our "Aggie fight." The Aggie fight is just as important to the rooters as it is to the team, for the more "Aggie fight" the rooters have the more the team will have. Rooting requires a lot of practice and a great deal of enthusiasm. Rooting is really an art. I will venture to say that if the rooters yelled as loud and worked as hard as our two rooter kings that the noise would stop the leak in the gymnasium roof, and many a visiting team would go away full of admiration for the Aggies' pep and the "Aggie fight."

The rooters are urged to treat the Kansas Jayhawkers with the greatest courtesy when they play here Feb. 17 and 18. Last year we lost one game by the official awarding a point for unsportsmanlike conduct of the crowd. The games will be close and we cannot afford to jeopardize the possibility of victory by the official calling fouls for hooting.—Athletic Department.

Why They Are So Careful

Some of the Co-eds Cannot Understand Why so Much Trouble is Taken by the Chemistry Department in Regard to Note Books.

"I don't see why they have to be so bloomin' careful about our notebooks," said one freshman girl as she was carefully scrutinizing the new notebook case in the chemistry annex.

"As if our lives depended on it," said another.

"Well, you see we are just providing a way to help you keep losing your notes so you won't have to re-write them," explained a professor who, unobserved, had heard the remarks.

"Besides this we like variety in our notebooks just as women enjoy variations in the styles," continued the professor. "You see we have been getting too many notebooks made over the same pattern."

"Well, why don't you pen up the seniors notes as you do ours?" said one girl.

"We believe that if we train the freshmen in the way that they should go, the seniors will not depart therefrom. It is too late to redeem the seniors as their habits are fixed, so we are building up our hopes in the future seniors."

"Well, there are so many pigeon holes, how are we to know which is ours?"

"That's easy even though there are 585 of those compartments. Noticed that each desk number appears in each of the nine rows of figures running lengthwise. Nine rows because there are nine drawers in each desk numbered from one to nine. When you have found your desk number in the row which corresponds to your drawer number, put your notes into it."

"On second thought, that isn't such a bad plan after all."

We absolutely guarantee our work and service. If it isn't right we will make it so. A. V. Laundry. Phone 701.

OPEN COLUMN.

Editor of the Collegian:
Since you do not run a want ad section in your paper I take this method of getting a certain fact before some of the fair co-eds of this college.

At a recent meeting of the senior class it was decided that the senior party this year should be a leap year affair, the girls making the dates and taking the fellows to the party. Perhaps it is because the girls are just ignorant of the fact that they should make their dates as soon as possible so as to save some young men much uneasiness which they are now undergoing.

I have heard the following perfectly nice senior boys say that they did not yet have dates and, moreover, they had no assurance that they were going to get one.

I have heard that both Stratton and Herold almost had dates but not hardly. Another Who Hasn't.

Editor of the Collegian:
I want to take advantage of the opening of your column to the student public, to tell of a beautiful incident I saw in the park the other day. It illustrates the beautiful influence which surrounds true young womanhood, and is delightfully symbolic of what the place of the co-ed should be, not only in college, but in the world.

I observed a college girl as she started across the park to lunch. There were several squirrels dodging about among the trees, and they seemed charmed by the picture she made in her bright sweater. She was dressed in the latest fashion, with high fur-topped boots, fur-trimmed skirt, and a perfect dear of a hat. Everything in perfect style. The squirrels seemed to be attracted to her by some strange occult force, and they followed her, dodging from tree to tree, clear across the park.

Oh, how fine it would be if all of us might have the same noble influence over dumb animals! Would that each one of us students might have such experience. A Co-ed.

To the Editor of the Collegian:
Although I have only been in college one term and part of another, it seems to me that that there are several things about this institution concerning which I could make a few valuable suggestions. The college is not at all what I expected it to be. It is not run on the lines of the high school back home, in many respects, and coming here from an up-to-date high school, one suffers many astounding surprises.

For instance, there seems to be a slavish subservience to college rules and regulations, which I had not expected in a group of students this size. From all the stories that I ever read of college life, I thought students were a carefree bunch, who cared nothing for rules, and who never seemed to be in trouble on that account. On the contrary, when I arrived here, I discovered that practically every student is apparently afraid to pull off the real red-blooded stunts I have read about, and that those that do try it, get into trouble. What's the matter with K. S. A. C.?

Let's break up a few rules, and get out of this rut of slavish obedience to faculty rules, that's the only way to generate pep and start college spirit. Ex-High School Student.

Miss Holman Talks of Art

Instructor in the Department of Home Art Department says That Really Great Art Is Born From the People and not From Superior Order of Human Things.

The greatest works of art are those that have made a direct appeal to the great masses of the people, according to Miss A. Holman, instructor in the department of home art.

"The most glorious art does not need the technical artist to interpret their message as they come and go," says Miss Holman. "Really great art is born from the people and not handed down to them by a different and superior order of human beings. The really great artists are those who most completely embody the finest ideals of their times."

"However, no education in the fine arts is of much worth which does not bring the learner into direct contact with the actual creations of the artists. The American Federation of Arts is doing the most important work in art education today in sending exhibitions throughout the country similar to that at the Kansas State Agricultural college this month."

"In this campaign for art the colleges and universities constitute important positions to be occupied. There are comparatively few of the many educational institutions through out the country which can offer the opportunity for their students to cultivate an appreciation of the arts of architecture, sculpture, and painting. "If the sympathies of the young men and the young women for the beautiful in art and nature are stimulated it produces a profound effect for the better upon the quality of art appreciation throughout our land. This great increase in intelligent interest in art would do more than anything else to narrow the breach between the artist and the unappreciative public."

"This month the American Federation of Arts has 23 traveling exhibitions located in different parts of the United States—one of which is now at the Kansas State Agricultural college. These are the original paintings of American artists. There are no others like them any place, and never will be, for this exhibition is not an advertising scheme as some people have thought it was. Next month these exhibitions will move on to different places. The one at the Kansas State Agricultural college will go to the University of Kansas from here."

NEBRASKA STOPS AGGIES IN CHAMPIONSHIP MARCH

Kansas	4	6	.400
Ames	2	6	.250
Drake	0	4	.000

In two hard fought battles royal, featured by a football style of play, the Aggies lost the Nebraska games last Friday and Saturday by a margin of one point in each game.

Referee Kearns's acknowledgement that the play at many times was not under his control, however, which combined with many blunders, all too plainly evident, convinced the Aggie squad and the many Nebraska fans, who were rooting for the Aggies, that, given a referee who could control and an unfenced court, they could easily defeat the Cornhusker quintet.

"The first half of the first game," said Captain Adams yesterday, "was the roughest half of basketball that I have played in my three years' of college basketball. It was, too, the most provoking half that I ever played. We could dribble past them, bearing down on our basket, only to have a husky Cornhusker play the man with a shove which would land him in the laps of the rooters. The benches lined the court on either side so that it was impossible to get, 'off-side' except at the ends."

"Three goals were made by the Cornhuskers which although clearly not allowable, despite our parley, were allowed. The first was made by Rutherford, left forward, who stood with one foot out of bounds, at the end.

"The second was made from a ball which bounced from the basket back stop. According to the new ruling of this year, a ball touching the backstop which is on the goal line, is out of bounds and must be thrown in. Rutherford, catching the ball which bounced from the edge of the backstop, threw a goal which was not declared void.

The third blunder of this sort was shockingly evident when the Nebraska's made their final goal. Advancing four strides around or rather under MacMillan's arm, the Nebraska placed a field goal which was not called when he should have been fouled for advancing.

"We are not hard losers," continued Captain Adams, "but those six points alone would have placed us five points in the lead. And then only one foul was called in the first half on our opponents and fouling was the order of the day. It was a—w—f—u—l."

Van Trine, replaced Reynolds at right forward when a charity-horse put him on the bench, and Gunning substituted for MacMillan when four personal fouls called him to the side line. Both of these men had the spirit of the contest and played A1 basketball.

The Aggie scoring in the first game was as follows: Reynolds 3 field goals, 2 free throws; Leonard 2 f. g.; Adams 1 f. g., 4 f. t.; Ramsey 1 f. g.

While the game Friday night was a thriller, it did not reach the heights of Saturday's contest. The playing was ragged at first but it became faster and hotter as time advanced. The Aggies took the lead from the first whistle and throughout the first half they had the better of it.

Nelson led off with the first field goal for the Cornhuskers but was followed shortly by Reynolds who grabbed two baskets in short order. Rutherford and Theisen each had a goal to their credit in the half, but brilliant shots for Adams and Reynolds kept the lead for the Aggies. The first session ended with a score of 14 to 12 for the Aggies, half of Nebraska's scores being from free throws.

Adams started the second half by slipping an easy one through the ring. The Cornhuskers began to play football. After rushing each other about the floor, the teams finally landed under the basket. The Cornhuskers could not penetrate the Aggies' defense and Nelson landed a desperate shot for two points.

Gardner followed with another long one and Tugg took another desperate chance a moment later.

The Aggies had the little end of a 16 to 18 score and the battle royal began. Back and forth over the court it seemed that neither could gain a safe lead until Adams began his sharp shooting landing six baskets, two of them beautifully placed.

The climax came logically in the last moment of play. The score stood 25 to 26 in Nebraska's favor, each side had chances to take the lead, when Gardner was detected hugging an Aggie too assiduously. Referee Kearns called a foul just as the final shot started the crowd from the bleachers. The crowd halted expectantly while Captain Adams tried for a free throw which, successful, would tie the score and call for an extra five minutes.

"Adams, who had been shooting goal promiscuously all evening carefully measured the distance to the basket and heaved the ball far to one side," says the Lincoln. "It was the worst shot of the game for him."

The visitors have two forwards in Captain Adams and Reynolds and a jackrabbit guard in little Ramsey. All three men were able to show the bleachers a few things in fancy basketball. Adams was the big scoring machine for his team with six field goals and seven free throws.

"Adams' only fumble was the last one which cost him the game and a slice in the valley championship. With the score four points against his bunch, the little captain tossed in two from the middle of the floor and tied it up only to lose his advantage at the last second."

About Literary Societies

The Eight Literary Societies on the Hill do an Important Work—Have a Membership of over Six Hundred—Meet on Saturdays.

There are eight literary societies in the college and three in the school of agriculture. Of the eight college societies two have a membership of both boys and girls, three are exclusively girls, and three are exclusively for boys. The maximum membership of any of these societies is 100. In some the maximum is as low as 55. The total possible membership in all together is 650.

Each society meets once a week. Each girl's society has a "brother" society. The girls meet in their hall on Saturday afternoon and the brother society meets in the same hall Saturday night. The two mixed societies meet Saturday night. Special rooms have been allotted to the societies in the Nichols gymnasium. These rooms have been tastefully decorated by the societies and no other use is made of them.

The dues range from $1.50 to fifty cents for initiation fee, and from $1 to 25 cents a term dues. As early as 1880 two societies existed, but soon after that others were started.

It is the purpose of the literary societies to build up their members in the work of oratory, debate, social development, and general literature. A lyceum course was established several years ago by the combined societies. Each year eight or ten good numbers, selected from the best talent to be had from the bureaus of the country, are given in the college auditorium, to audiences of nearly two thousand.

Every February an inter-society oratorical contest is held. Each society has a representative. This contest was first held in 1901. The college Auditorium, which holds between 2000 and 3500 persons is usually filled to its doors at this contest.

Intercollegiate debate in the Kansas State Agricultural college was started by the literary societies and is still entirely financed by them. The debating squad is selected from the members of the eight societies by means of an inter-society elimination contest. All society lines are then lost sight of, and the debaters represent the school as Aggies.

The financing and managing of the debates is done for the societies by a debating council composed of two members from each society. All debate contests are procured by this council. The finances are provided by an assessment of 25 cents a term per member. The societies collect these dues and give each member a season ticket.

Once each year each society has charge of a chapel program. It has been found to be generally true that the literary society members make better workers in other lines of outside activities than those who have not had literary society training. The greatest test of the value of this training is the fact that the student, who gets the literary society training while in college, makes a greater success of his work after graduation than he could have otherwise done.

Most men and women are unable to put their thoughts into words and especially to do so when standing before audiences. The literary societies of the college are the only place in the training of the students where other than the public speaking department, where practice is given along this line. The work of putting into operation and successfully carrying through the debates, oratorical contests, inter-society farces, lyceum courses and chapel programs as well as the other things that are carried on by the societies, here gives a training that can not be gotten in any class room.

BIG INTER-SOCIETY ORATORICAL TONIGHT

Eight Contestants, Representing as Many Literary Societies, Will Take Part in Fifteenth Annual meet at College.

GOVERNOR CAPPER TO BE HERE.

The extensive preparations for the annual inter-society oratorical contest to be held in the college auditorium tonight, indicate that the event is to be one of the most brilliant of the series, which commenced in 1901. The building has been decorated with the colors and banners of the different societies, and sections for each society have been reserved. It is expected that more than 2500 people will attend. The auditorium has been crowded to capacity in other years, and interest this year among the more than 600 members of the societies, is running higher than usual.

Governor Arthur Capper arrived in Manhattan today and will preside at the contest. President Waters will introduce the governor. The Reverend Lewis Jacobsen will offer the invocation.

The program will include the eight orations, each of which will consist of about 1200 words, and eight "stunts," by the different societies. In previous years the "stunts" have been one of the most attractive features of the occasion, consisting of songs, dancing, dialogues, and other manifestations to which the fertile minds of the students have been moved.

Following the delivery of the orations, three minutes will be allowed to each society for a demonstration. Yells and songs have been practiced behind closed doors for weeks, in preparation for this part of the program.

The decision of the judges will be announced by Governor Capper, who will also award the prizes. The winner of first place will receive a gold medal and twenty-five dollars in gold, the winner of second place will receive a silver medal and fifteen dollars in gold, and the winner of third place will receive a bronze medal and ten dollars in gold.

The orations have already been judged on the grounds of thought and composition, and the sealed decisions of the judges will be opened tonight to be tabulated with the decisions of the judges on delivery. The latter judges remain unknown, except to the oratorical board in charge of the event.

The orators who will represent the different societies tonight, and their subjects, are as follows: E. I. Maris, Hamilton, "The Public School and National Greatness;" Stella Blain, Ionia, "The College Graduate and the New Patriotism;" Lillian Lathrop, Eurodelphian, "Unto the Least of These;" Hannah M. Campbell, Browning, "Individual Preparedness;" Florence Justin, Alpha Beta, "The War Woman;" Leo C. Moser, Athenian, "Our Real Foreign Foe;" G. C. Gibbons, Webster, "Things Worth While;" L. A. Zimmerman, Franklin, "The Great Paradox."

Following the contest, which seldom closes before midnight, each society will hold a social session.

The auditorium doors will be opened at 6:30 o'clock tonight, and the contest will begin at 7:30 o'clock.

Those who have won in previous years are:

1901	Alpha Beta
1902	Ionian
1903	Ionian
1904	Ionian
1905	Hamilton

A HOLIDAY.

Washington's birthday, next Tuesday, there will be no classes held at the college. Not only will this be a holiday for the students but it has been decided that the library shall not be open at all on this day.

STELLA BLAIN, Ionian.
Stella Blain is representing the Ionians in the coming oratorical contest this year. Miss Blain is a graduate of the Minneapolis high school and is now a junior in the division of home economics. She is a member of the Y. W. C. A. and the Quill club. Miss Blain's oration is "College Graduate and New Patriotism." The Ionians are looking forward to victory.

AGGIES WIN FOURTH GAME

Game Easy for Mernerites—Everything working Pretty—K. U. Apparently Disheartened by two Previous Defeats.

BEATS JAYHAWKERS 45 TO 21

ADAMS GARNERED 20 POINTS

The Aggies fight.
Four basketball games from the Kansas University five in one season is true this time. The game on Thursday night resulted in a final count of 33 to 23 while Friday night, the Jayhawkers were able to tally but 21 while Merner's men made 45.

In the game Thursday night the Aggies seemed to have lost some of their old time pep but all of that and more too was in evidence during the second battle. Even though the home five did seem to be weakening some at the beginning of the second half last night it was not for long.

One feature of both games must be pointed out: All the way through the men on both teams played a clean game, the Kansas men wearing smiles all of the time even though they had not a chance to win at any stage of either contest.

The First Game.

In a fast but loosely played game Thursday night the Aggies took their third straight victory from the Jayhawkers by a 33 to 23 score.

Merner's proteges showed the effects of their "football game" with the Cornhuskers last week in their lack of steam and inaccurate goal shooting, but managed to warm up sufficiently to keep the Lawrence contingent guessing the greater part of the game.

The first ten minutes of play showed this fact and it was not until the period was over half over, that the Aggies began to draw away from K. U. The half ended 24 to 13 in favor of the Aggies.

The rest between halves did not seem to improve the Aggies. They returned to their slow play at the start of the second half and for a few minutes it appeared that the Jayhawkers would be able to tie the score again. They warmed to their work for the second time and while a great deal of their pep was lacking they managed to total 14 points for the half, as against ten of the Jayhawkers.

The second period was particularly noticeable for rough play and lack of team work on the part of both teams. A cry of "touchdown" from the bleachers was not without its cause but Referee Quigley objected and a foul was called. Reber of the Lawrence bunch scored a bloody nose for himself while Reynolds and Gibbons smashed a ball between them.

Adams was decidedly off form at free throws. He made six of the nineteen field goals scored by the Aggies. Reynolds played his usual star game making nine goals from the field. One of the features of the game was the guarding of Ramsey, he playing one of his fastest games.

Kauders for K. U. played a consistent game, connecting with the basket for scores, five times during the game and scoring on two of the seven chances given him for free throws.

Summary:

Aggies	FT	FG	T	P
Adams	6	6	1	0
Reynolds	9	9	0	0

The Second Game.

Playing with more of their snap than they have shown on their home court for some time, the Aggies took their fourth victory of the season from the Kansas Jayhawkers by a score of 45 to 21.

The first period was marked by some of the fastest team work of Aggies have ever displayed, the half ending 24 to 7 in their favor.

They took the ball from the tip-off and rushed the Jayhawkers off their feet in a whirlwind of play that smothered the visitors, who were unable to get any of their team work started.

The second period started with all the pep of the first but the Aggies soon tired down and the last few minutes of play, allowed the game to drag and only the inability of the Kansas to connect with the basket prevented their end of the score from piling up.

In the last fifteen minutes of the game Coach Hamilton sent in an almost fresh team and the game ended with the entire K. U. first string on the side lines.

Field goals—For Aggies, Reynolds 6, Adams 3, Leonard 4, Van Trine 1; For Kansas, Kauder 3, Uhrlaub 1, Gibbons 1, Fausch 1.

CHILDREN SHOULD LEARN TO WORK AS WELL AS PLAY

President Waters Speaks to Manhattan Christian Brotherhood on Play.

That the world is becoming so crowded that there is no longer so much elbow room for the young man, and that it is vitally necessary for the boys and girls to be taught how to work in order that they may grow up with habits of industry and thrift, was the central idea brought out by President H. J. Waters at the Tuesday evening meeting of the Manhattan Christian Brotherhood.

President Waters traced the change which has come about since the days when the home was the center of everything and was self-sustaining, when each member of the family worked to help produce the various articles of food and clothing used by the family. He stated that the present condition, when the head of the family can earn enough to maintain the other members of the family in idleness, is but temporary.

Discussing the necessity for courage in the young, Dr. Waters made the striking statement that "The man who cannot get mad under proper provocation until the occasion is all past will never cut much ice in this world."

On motion of Fred C. Winship it was declared to be the sense of the meeting that the juvenile overlight committee of the brotherhood investigate the needs of the city along the line of play facilities for the children, and to report to the executive committee.

President A. M. Johnston presided at the meeting and introduced the speaker. Mr. Johnston stated briefly the purpose of the brotherhood to be to work for anything which is an aid in upbuilding and promoting the development of Manhattan and Manhattan's people.

L. D. Hanson entertained the audience with two solos.

Several hundred members and visitors were present.

The next meeting of the brotherhood will be held on March 13 at the Methodist church, when Rev. Roy B. Hill of New York City will speak on the federation of the churches.

WOMAN'S DRESS IS IMPORTANT.

Instructor Says It Should Give Poetry to the Man's Life.

The way to a man's heart may be through his stomach, but he will eat more heartily if his food is prepared by a tidy woman, whose dress, thinks Miss Mildred French, instructor in domestic art in the Agricultural college, gives the poetry to his life. A tastefully dressed housewife, with neatly combed hair and carefully manicured nails, can satisfy a hungry man with a simple meal while the careless woman fails with her carefully cooked dinner.

"Always look your best," is the advice of Miss French. "Clothes are betrayers of characters. Carelessness, extravagance, and deceit are easily read by the keen observer."

"The home should furnish recreation for a man's life and a woman's dress should give the poetry to his life. A man's romance usually starts when he first sees his lady in a neat, attractive dress. Sometimes it is at a formal party, often at a country husking bee. The least carelessness on her part may end it. Romance means more to a woman than to a man."

THE CAMPUS PEST.

The campus pest is a peculiar character. Just exactly what he is no one has discovered. To see him consume the candy, peanuts and other "eats" that he sponges off his acquaintances a person would think that like the lower order of invertebrates he was one large stomach. His capacity for drink would convince one of his cellular structure. When walking at his normal rate and in his natural style he resembles an animated saw horse shot off endwise. To hear him talk would convey to the casual observer the idea that he was wind or desiccated atmosphere. To the scientist he seems to be one great reaction. It is a law of physics that action and reaction are equal and in opposite directions. So the campus pest in the capacity of a reaction is usually in favor of a course exactly opposite to that proposed. If the faculty passes a ruling he is against it, not because he thinks it is wrong but because he is a reaction. If the student body starts a good movement he is against it for the same reason.

It is thought by some that the campus pest is the missing link. They have reference to the intermediate form between man and monkey, but they are slightly in error. The campus pest does not look like the missing link, at least, not enough to mislead the practiced eye. His inferior maxilla does not have the prominence of character that is predominant in the prehistoric man. On the other hand, his lower jaw bone is rather receding, retiring bashfully behind the scanty growth of scrub that covers his physiognomy.

The fact is that the campus pest merely constitutes a generalized type of the mediocre form of life. Possibly he does not yet realize this. It is related that a person in the full flush, flower, fluff and bloom of life's meridian usually overrates his ability and places himself further up the scale of civilization than his personal achievements will warrant. So it is with the campus pest.

Any one at all conversant with phrenology can see that the spiritual largely predominates in his character. Spirituality is his greatest attribute. The question is whether it is good or bad spirit.

There is no known remedy for the campus pest. As soon as he is weeded out by the low grade ruling and the discipline committee he is replaced by others. All that can be done is to aid him in every way possible to obtain a speedy and efficient end.

Are You Home Sick?

If You are at all Afflicted With this Dire Malady You Should Not Even Finish Reading this Headline--You'll Get Worse.

The college student with any heart at all longs to go home every time there is the least chance. He doesn't like to admit it even to himself—thinks it is babyish to become homesick.

But at night this same student sits down at his littered table, with a green shade over his eyes, to battle with horrid equations in chemistry or the life cycle of the amoeba. A picture comes to him—home as it looks to the memory. There is mother with a large plate of hot rolls and blackberry jam. "Sister" in her pink apron. Even a boy or girl whom he is still "crazy" about but who thinks he is "stuck up."

It is natural to want to go home to see old friends and old places one loves so well. Let young men talk all they want to about, "just going home to get some cash." Let the co-ed talk all she pleases about wanting to "stay here for the mixer but the folks are expecting me." They do not mean it deep down in their hearts, they are all the time saying to themselves, "the time goes so slow, I am anxious to get home."

But home in the memory isn't different than home in the reality. Everything changes as time goes on. Always and with every one there is that clash between the memory one has of home and the home as it is.

When the student gets home mother has on a new dress; it may be up-to-date but it isn't the dress of soft grey that he loved so much. Sister has done up her hair and she will not allow mother to serve the favorite rolls—they must be made in different shapes, far too small, and served with tea. Tea! tea! the college student doesn't go home to drink tea.

The old friends instead of the jolly pals you wanted to go back to, try to be as intellectual as they think a college student must be, while the student has only learned in reality how much he doesn't know. The girls talk about classical literature and play classical music while the student is longing to pull up the rugs and dance to "They didn't believe me."

The boys all smoke ten cent cigars and invite the visitor home for Sunday dinner apologizing, "We won't have much but"—while the student wants to walk down the back way and smoke cigarettes and drop in to supper when he isn't expected. But that is the way it has always been.

The student goes back to school. He forgets his visit and goes on cherishing the old memory of home. It is by far the prettier memory and it is the memory always retained. Years after when the old home has been rebuilt and some of the old friends are gone the same disappointment will come. Humanity can not forget that home must change as the individual changes. If that fact were forgotten many disappointments would be eliminated but after all the beautiful memory of the home brings many happy reflections to the minds of the busiest matter of fact people, when the home has long since ceased to be a reality.

The Soup Feud Settled

A Culinary Expert Does Research Work—Delves Deep Into Tangled Phraseology and History.

Is cream of the tomato soup cream the o-mato it should be labeled
This food is a food consisting of a homogeneous promiscuousness of milk tomatoes and divers and sundry seasoning condiments.

After a thorough gastronomic analysis of the material a rather indefinite conclusion is reached. If cream of tomato soup refers to the cream of the tomato it should be labeled,
"prize cream of tomato—the person who finds the tomato gets the prize."
If it is cream of soup there should be some skimmed-milk-of-the-soup, from which the cream has been separated, that could be sold to those who couldn't afford the cream.

An investigation of the history of cream of tomato soup solves the perplexing question. It is found that the name, cream of tomato soup, originated in the wayside inns of a couple of decades ago. On account of the small variety of foods available the cooks of these inns were obliged to make several distinctly different dishes having the same ingredients.

Among the dual purpose dishes made by these cooks was a certain kind of tomato soup which was allowed to stand until the heavier portion had settled to the bottom of the container. The thinner more refined portion of the soup was then decanted and sold to the better class of patrons. The coarser, more vulgar part was sold to the poorer classes who sipped, supped, gargled or yodeled it, according to their respective temper-ments.

The decanted portion of the soup was called, cream of the soup because of the method in which it was procured. The heavier portion of the soup was just plain old tomato soup.
At the present time, through some evolution in the method of cooking, the entire solid matter in the soup is taken into solution, thus making it all into cream of the soup. This explanation should prove, conclusively, to those in doubt, that cream of tomato soup is cream of the soup and not cream of the tomato.

* OPEN COLUMN. *

Editor of the Collegian:
In an article published in the Collegian February 16 it was stated that there were eight literary societies in college two of which were mixed. The writer of the article might further inform himself along that line. There are nine literary societies in the college, three of which are mixed societies.

The Forensic literary society was recognized by the faculty the earlier part of the term. This society is a mixed society with a membership of 35. The meetings of the Forensic society are held in the Forum room in the basement of Fairchild hall every Saturday night. H. D. P.

Editor of the Collegian:

"My life is cold, and dark, and dreary," says the poet and certainly at the time he wrote this he was in much the same frame of mind as I have been the past two weeks. I wonder if there are any other students on the hill who are troubled like I am.

Last Saturday night I went to the all college mixer and there I had an experience which I had always thought would never come into my life. Down home I knew a lot of pretty girls who lived near us. Many is the buggy ride I have taken with them—one at a time, but I was never in the least affected by their smiles and nice manner.

Now I see that just because they had never attracted me very much, it was not possible for me to pass through this world without falling in love. Up at the mixer the other night
I was mixing around with every one else when I happened to meet a real nice sort of a fellow. We talked a while and then he said that he had some friends he wanted me to meet.
I went over to one side with him and there she was. Never did I see such a beautiful face or such clothes.
She sure must be the daughter of a mighty rich man if she has money to dress like that.

Well I met her and I guess that I made a hit with her because she shook hands with me and even held my hand all the time she was telling me that she was glad to meet me.
I never felt so funny in my life and it is beginning to look like I never would again.

Since that night I have never seen her. I have looked for her every place I have been and even stand in main hall every hour I have off, hoping that she may pass. Surely she must be wanting to see just as much too or she would never have held my hand so long when I met her.

MY DREAM, if you see this please meet me in front of the post office any day right after noon hour. I will be there every day. Don't break my heart. A SHORT COURSE LOVER.

TRACK MEET MONDAY NIGHT TO BE CLOSE

According to the Present Dope the Aggies Should Win Forty-four to Forty-one—But You Can Never Tell.

EACH RACE TO BE A GOOD ONE.

Event	Aggies	K. U.
20-yard Dash	5	3
1-mile Run	3	5
30-yard Low Hurdles	5	3
Half Mile	3	5
30-yard High Hurdles	5	3
440-yard Dash	5	3
Shot Put	3	5
Pole Vault	5	3
High Jump	5	3
Two Mile	5	3
Totals	44	41

Doping out the result of an indoor track meet is one of the most futile things in the world, but if dope shows anything at all, the Aggies should win the Annual Indoor Track meet with K. U. next Monday night by a goodly margin. Each race, however, will be close and fought to a finish.

Last year the Kansas university won the indoor track meet by a scant margin of two points. Both schools have evenly balanced teams again this year although the Aggies are apparently weak in the mile and shot put while K. U. is strong in the events, but lacks hurdlers and sprinters. Conceding to K. U. everything possible, the Aggies should win by a margin of from three to ten points.

The Aggies have a fast bunch of dash men. The diminutive Vandenburg covers the 30 yards quickly and will be hard to beat. Bernard, Turner, Crumbacker, and Osborne are also dashers who can be depended on to run a good race.

In the mile, Seebor and Bixby, two comparatively new men, will be pitted against the K. U. veterans, Grady and Sproull. This will be a close race and Seebor and Bixby should make up in fight what they lack in experience.

The low hurdles will also find Vandenburg lined up for the start. Van won this event last year and Wilder should be able to help him make a clean sweep of this number.

The half mile will be well worth seeing. Rodney of K. U. has been credited with a 2:04—A half this winter. Although Wilder has not equaled this record, it must be considered that "M. P." has not uncorked as yet to the best of his ability.

Captain "Duroc" Frizzell should be good for a first in the "high sticks," although Treweeke and Winn will give him a good race. With luck breaking in favor of the Aggies, Wilder should clear for second.

The 440 looks good for the Aggies. Holroyd the college record holder for this event is running in great form and Turner has been romping right along on his heels.

Schafer or Dodderill have good chances to place in the shot put. Captain "Donnie" Reber of K. U. is supposed to be a "gun" in this event. Enlow has been showing up well in the pole vault in spite of his injuries and will be a strong contender.

The high jump will be a pretty event between Captain Frizzell and Treweeke. Treweeke has a record of nearly six feet to his credit, but he will have to smash that record in order to beat Captain "Friz." The high hopping kangaroo from Oklahoma always has the right kick at the right time.

K. U. must bring a very fast and a very long winded man to place higher than second in the two mile. Teeter has been showing good form in the long distance and can knock a few records if it is necessary.

The relay is a toss up. K. U. has a great quartet of quarter-milers, but the Aggies have Turner, Holroyd, Essek, and Grandfield. The meet last year was decided by the relay, but with even chances to win it the Aggies should win without it.

JOURNALISM STUDENTS MAKE TRIP TO TOPEKA

"Cubs" Who Expect to be Real Newspaper People Someday Made an Inspection Trip of the Publishing Plants in Capital.

TWENTY-SEVEN IN THE PARTY

"Yes, I had a fine time, but I never want to see another Monotype again." That is the way some of the co-eds who made the trip to Topeka Monday expressed themselves.

Twenty-four students made the trip. Professor N. A. Crawford, head of the department, F. L. Snow, instructor in journalism, and Mrs. Snow, accompanied the student and shepherd them through the different phases of the expedition.

A false start and a dilatory hackman caused some of the "cubs" who were planning to make the trip, to miss the train at 6:28 o'clock in the morning, on which the party left. A telegram from a co-ed thus disappointed read: "Missed train. No eloquent praises to hack man. Help."

The train arrived at Topeka at about 8 o'clock, and the crowd, which was augmented there by several students who had spent the week end in Topeka went up town immediately. Some who had been unable to secure any breakfast before leaving Manhattan, delayed the procession long enough to snatch a few bites of sustenance.

The Crane Publishing Company's plant was first visited. There the students were taken to the top floor of the building by a guide, and introduced to their first Monotype, a typesetting machine which was to be encountered at every turn thereafter. From the composing room the course of printed matter was followed to the lower floor where the bindery is located.

From the Crane company's building the students were taken to the Hall Lithographing company's plant, and there were shown the entire process of lithographing.

The experience of the day came at the State Journal plant. The city editor, Arthur J. Carruth, had already notified Mr. Snow that the students would be expected to get out the second or noon edition of the State Journal, and the story of the trip was to be one of the features. The assignments for the story had been given out to the students on the trip, and they were taken to the local room of the building and set to work, with Mr. Snow at the city editor's desk. After their copy had been turned in they followed it through the composing room, the stereotyping plant and the remainder of the processes until it was printed, and the papers were placed on sale on the streets.

As soon as the paper was out the delegation was escorted to the Capper building, where they were the guests of Charles Dillon, now editor in chief of the Capper farm publications, and formerly head of the department of journalism here, for lunch.

Lunch was served in the building. All the newspaper men who have graduated or attended K. S. A. C. were also guests at the lunch. A large number of graduates and former students of the college are employed on the news staff of the Daily Capital, and the editorial force of the farm papers.

Mr. Dillon, himself escorted the party through the editorial composing, stereotyping, and press rooms of the plant.

The offices of the state board of administration at the state house were visited. Ed T. Hackney, chairman of the board, Mr. J. T. Lardner, purchasing secretary, and several members of the office force who were recently transferred from Manhattan to Topeka, were seen. Some of the students climbed to the top of the state house dome, being delayed thereby so that they were late in catching up with the rest of the party at the state printing plant. The state printing plant contained, in addition to other machinery, more Monotypes. The machinery and quarters in the plant were the most up-to-date and pleasant, of any seen.

The Kansas Farmer was the last port of call. Both the editorial and mechanical departments of the paper were thoroughly inspected.

Most of the party went to the Y. M. C. A. cafeteria for supper, returning at a 7:30 o'clock train.

Unfortunately, two members of the party were unable to resist the mov-le habit, attended one of the shows, and missed that train. They returned on an 8 o'clock Rock Island train.

All the students who made the trip expressed their enthusiastic appreciation of the manner in which they were received at all the plants visited. At each place a real welcome was extended, and the people in charge did everything in their power to make the processes plain, and "give the Aggies a good time."

WILL BE A NEW COURSE.

Bee Keeping is to be Taught by Professor Merrill.

J. H. Merrill, assistant professor in entomology is introducing a new course in "Bee Keeping this coming term."

Recently the subject of the importance of bee culture is being recognized more through out the country and the colleges both in the United States and Canada are introducing course in "Bee Culture."

This will be the first year that this subject could be given as a separate course in the Kansas State Agricultural college. The course is open to all students in the departments of agriculture and general science who have had general entomology. The course will consist of structure, life history, general behavior, activities and products of the honey bee. In this course special attention will be given to practical bee keeping, dealing with the best methods among bee keepers.

Study will be made of the diseases and best methods to be used for radiation and control. Further study will be made of their relation to horticulture and agriculture. The work will consist of two class hours and two laboratory periods. Three hours credit will be given.

ATTENDANCE WAS LARGE.

Art Exhibit Attracted 2500 Students and Town People.

The attendance at the exhibit of the American Federation of Arts in the home economics hall February 4 to 13 was 2,500, exclusive of "repeaters."

Some students studied the pictures voluntarily, others went to report on them for history, English, and art classes. There were more than 150 paid admissions. Ten high school classes attended.

"Of course, this was only a beginning, but the attendance, and the interest shown in this exhibit, which we hope to make an annual event, were gratifying," commented Miss Araminta Holman, instructor in home art.

Lectures on the pictures were given each afternoon and evening. Those who spoke were Miss Holman, Miss Grace Averill, Miss Florence Hunt, Miss Jessie Reynolds, Mrs. W. E. Canohar, Miss Gladys Bate, S. A. Smith, and F. C. Harris.

The American federation of art was organized to encourage the development of art and its appreciation in America. There will probably be a chapter of the federation in the college next year.

The exhibit of Kansas paintings which was shown was assembled by W. A. Griffith, professor of drawing and painting in the University of Kansas.

W. P. LAMBERTSON HERE.

Senator Visits College on a Tour of Inspection.

W. P. Lambertson, state senator from Brown and Doniphan counties, was on the hill last week visiting friends and giving the college the "once over." Senator Lambertson is chairman of the "Economy and Efficiency" committee, which was created by the last legislature. The committee, consists of one member from the house, one from the senate, and one appointed by the governor. It is their duty to visit all state institutions and make recommendations for improvements of any kind to the next legislature. Senator Lambertson expressed himself as being very favorably impressed with the student body, saying, "This school shows the greatest improvement of any that I have visited."

Y.W.C.A. PAGEANT WILL BE PRESENTED TONIGHT

Local Branch of the National Organization Will Show What They Have Done, are Now Doing and Expect to do Later.

TABLEAUX AND PANTOMIME.

An historical pageant, presenting the growth and work of the Young Women's Christian association will be presented by the local association tonight in the college auditorium.

Miss Hattie Droll will take the part of the girl of 1866 and Miss Goldie Mitchell the part of the girl of 1916. These are the only two speaking parts. The rest is acted out in tableaux and pantomime.

As the curtain goes up the girl of 1866 tells of the conditions of girls as they were when first entering the field of industry at that time. In the opening scene, the formation of the Young Women's Christian association in Boston is portrayed.

The second scene pictures the association life during the years intervening between 1866 and 1916.

The girl of 1916 takes the floor at the beginning of the third scene. Work of the modern Young Women's Christian association with its work in college and city communities and in all countries of the world is shown.

The close of the story gives the prophetic vision of the future of the Y. W. C. A.—that the history of the Y. W. C. A. is not over but is just beginning a much bigger work than that of the last 50 years.

Costumes of the past years are being collected from all residents of the town and in many cases girls are sending home for costumes. One hundred girls will take part in the local pageant.

The last issue of the Independent contains an article, "Fifty Years of Y. W. C. A.," and the following is an extract from it: "Reminiscences and prophecies are both in order; the achievement of the Y. W. C. A. in the past offers a broad basis of hope for the future. But the organization is planning to make the most of its opportunities to remind the people of the United States during its anniversary celebration of all that it is and hopes to do."

"Pageants, illustrating the various steps in its history and suggesting its future plans are being given in nearly every city of the United States. Probably the most spectacular of these is in New York City, where over a thousand girls are to take part in a dramatic presentation of the "Girls of Yesterday and Today."

GOV. CAPPER PLEDGES ACACIA.

Kansas State Chapter Elects Him as Honorary Member.

Governor Arthur Capper of Topeka was pledged Saturday evening to the local chapter of the Acacia fraternity, at 821 Osage street. The National organization permits only a limited number of honorary members in each chapter, and Governor Capper is the first one to be elected to this honor by the Kansas State chapter.

The pledging ceremony immediately followed the dinner served at the chapter house in his honor, after which the governor was taken to the college auditorium, where he presided at the annual intersociety oratorical contest.

Governor Capper has been very active in Masonic circles, for several years, and his election to membership in the social college fraternity of Masons expresses the esteem with which the local organization regards him.

The initiation services will be held during the latter part of April, at which time it will be convenient for him to return to the city.

Physics Department Co-operate With Medical Department.

By means of an X-ray the physics department cooperates with the medical department.

Pictures are taken of injured bones to determine whether they are broken or sprained. Many of the people who coasted and some members of the basketball team have had a chance to see how the machine operates, said Mr. Smith.

Only fifteen or twenty minutes are required to make a picture and some good ones have been finished.

MOSER WINS SOCIETY ORATORICAL CONTEST

Junior in Department of Journalism Won First Place for the Athenians in Annual Contest Last Saturday Night.

STELLA BLAIN IN SECOND PLACE

Leo C. Moser, of Cortland, representing the Athenian literary society, won first place in the annual intersociety oratorical contest Saturday night. Second place was taken by Miss Stella Blain, of Minneapolis, the Ionian society, and third place by L. A. Zimmerman, of Belle Plaine, representing the Franklin society.

Moser is a junior student in the department of industrial journalism at the college, and is sport editor of the Collegian. He is a leader in the affairs of the journalism students.

Leo C. Moser, winner of first honors in oratorical contest.

He is a leader in the affairs of the journalism students. His oration was entitled "Our Real Foreign Foe," and treated of the dangers to the United States which resulted from foreign immigration.

Miss Stella Blain's subject was, "The College Graduate and the New Patriotism." Miss Blain is a junior in the division of home economics.

The subject of L. A. Zimmerman's oration was, "The Great Paradox." The first prize, awarded to Mr. Moser.

Stella Blain, who placed second in the contest.

er, consisted of a gold medal and $25 in gold. The second prize was a silver medal and $15 in gold, and the third prize was a bronze medal and $10 in gold.

The orations this year were limited to 1200 words each. Each society gave a musical selection before the presentation of its orator, and they were three minutes allotted to each for a demonstration at the close of the contest, and before the announcement of the decision was made.

The auditorium was decorated for the occasion by the members of the societies. Each society had charge of the adornment of its own section.

In accordance with custom each society wore a distinctive costume.

The victory Saturday night is the second in the fifteen years during which the contests have been held, for the Athenians. Their man won in 1910. They were also awarded second place in last year's contest.

Governor Arthur Capper presided at the contest, being introduced by President Waters.

Following the contest and the announcement of the decision, each society gave a social program, either in its hall, or in one of the popular resorts for such proceedings. The Athenian-Browning banquet was held in the College Inn down town.

AGGIE QUINTETE WINS ANOTHER EASY CONTEST

Beat St. Marys Yesterday With a One Sided Count of Thirty-five to Twelve—Easy Enough.

Another victory was added to the long list already made by the Aggies this year when Coach Merner's quintette defeated the St. Marys five on their own court by a 35 to 12 count yesterday afternoon.

The Aggies played almost perfect ball right from the start never giving the Catholics a chance at any stage of the game. Reynolds was the star performer for the Manhattanites, making seven field goals. Adams was in his best form and got away with four goals from field and five free tosses. VanTrine made one of the other field goals, Ramsey one, and Leonard two.

St. Marys was able to make but three field goals, the other six of their points being counted from as many free throws.

LIKE PROFESSOR WESBROOK.

Clay Center of Pile are Greatly Pleased With His Work.

"Prof. A. E. Wesbrook, who has recently taken charge of the department of music at the Agricultural college at Manhattan, was here yesterday and conducted a special rehearsal of the oratorio, Elijah. There was a large attendance, nearly double that of any previous rehearsal and a fine advance in the study of this great work was made."

"Prof. Wesbrook is a conductor of pronounced ability and the members of the society were greatly pleased with his work. Incidentally, Mr. Wesbrook expressed great satisfaction with the progress already made. In addition to being an able conductor, Mr. Wesbrook also possesses a fine bass voice and in the evening he sang a selection at the Presbyterian and First Methodist churches greatly pleasing two large audiences."—Clay Center Dispatch-Republican.

TO BE EXTENSION ENTOMOLOGIST.

T. H. Parks, of Ashland, Ohio, Will Come to K. S. A. C.

T. H. Parks, Ashland, Ohio, was appointed specialist in entomology in the extension division, at the meeting of the board of administration Monday of last week.

Mr. Parks was with the United States department of agriculture for five years, some of which time he spent in Kansas at the entomological laboratory at Wellington. He was connected with the University of Idaho as extension entomologist, for about two years.

He has published many bulletins on staple crop insects, and is usually well qualified for the practice. He will teach in institute and extension schools and will help conduct insect prevention campaigns throughout the state.

CRABTREE IS DISTRICT AGENT.

Extension Worker Is Agricultural Agent in Western Kansas.

P. E. Crabtree, specialist in crops in the extension division, will become district agricultural agent in western Kansas March 1. He will have his headquarters in Scott City beginning March 1.

Mr. Crabtree has been unusually successful in institute work and in demonstration work throughout the state. His friends in western Kansas are delighted to know that he will spend most of his time in that section.

Mr. Crabtree will be just as closely connected with the Agricultural college as formerly, since all agricultural agent work in western Kansas is under the supervision of the Agricultural college.

MISSOURI BASKETBALL FIVE HERE THIS WEEK

Friday and Saturday Nights Will See Two of the Fastest Games Ever Played Here—Teams Have Almost Equal Chance.

BOTH BEAT WASHINGTON FIVE

Two teams with almost equal chances will meet on Nichols court Friday and Saturday nights when the Missouri Tigers and the Kansas Aggies meet for the last two games on the home court.

In the games which Missouri played against Washington, the scores were practically balanced with those of the Aggie-Washington series which was played here. The Missourians, however, have little chance to carry off a victory in either game.

It is the opinion of those who have seen the team play that their style of playing will not meet the onslaught of the Aggie team work. Further than that the Aggies will have the advantage of playing on their home court, but the Tigers will not meet the disadvantages which the home team experienced recently on an alien court.

The present standing of the Aggies in the conference is eight won and two lost to Nebraska. The Missourians, losing these two games, will be tied with the Aggies at the close of the season. Should Nebraska also lose to Ames, providing they are no dope upsets, they, too, will have won ten and lost two games, thus making a grand triple tie.

In the event of such a tie the post-season games will probably be played in Kansas City on a neutral court.

NEBRASKA HANDICAPS THE REST

Cornhusker Five Refuses to Journey Into Belligerent Territory.

With the continued success of the Nebraska basketball team, followers of the game at the University of Missouri have begun to ask each other as to the rights of the Cornhusker five to contest in the valley championship race. It is a fact, little known or realized by students of the Valley schools, that Nebraska at the beginning of the season, laid down certain conditions under which to meet the other teams, and refusing absolutely to play unless the opposing teams met these conditions.

First of all, Nebraska could not arrange to make the trip to Lawrence, to Manhattan or to Columbia. The officials said that the trip was too much for the Cornhusker team. For this reason, Missouri and Nebraska did not arrange to play. Kansas and the Kansas Aggies did, however, agree to go to Lincoln. Missourians believe the Jayhawkers and the Aggies are rather sorry for it now.

In commenting on the Nebraska-Kansas Aggies games Director C. L. Brewer said: "Everyone who knows the Nebraska sports knows that any opposing team playing at Lincoln does so under a handicap. The scores of the two Aggie games showed that the Aggies had as good a team as Nebraska, if not a better one. Certainly if the Aggies defeat the other schools of the Valley in basketball, Nebraska should give them a post-season game, either at Manhattan or on some neutral court."

Missourians are not talking of a post-season game with Nebraska as yet. The Tiger five will meet the Aggies this week, and then there will be time enough to consider Nebraska.

SUCCESSFUL INSTITUTES.

Ross M. Sherwood of Extension Department Held Several.

Ross M. Sherwood, poultry specialist in the extension division, reports the following successful institutes during the week of February 7 to 12: Buffalo, February 7, with an attendance of 85; Fredonia, February 8, and 9, with an attendance of 95; Benedict, February 10, with an attendance of 125.

At these institutes Mr. Sherwood discussed the care of eggs, housing and judging of poultry and the preparation of fowls for the table. A great deal of interest was shown throughout the circuit, especially in Benedict.

FREE SCHOLARSHIPS.

Review of Reviews Awards Them for Summer Work.

College men who earn a large part or all of their college expenses will doubtless be greatly interested again this year in the free cash scholarships offered under the direction of Mr. H. W. Frey, to self-supporting students. During the past seven years more than 1600 students have won free cash scholarships worth $100 to $100 apiece.

President Wilson, together with five prominent college presidents, has endorsed this plan of awarding free scholarships to ambitious students. A certificate of such endorsement for enrollment is accepted.

These scholarships are not competitive, in any sense of the word, but are available to any student of good character. Each student is apportioned an exclusive radius. The scholarships are won, not for class room proficiency, but for practical work during the summer months or in spare time through the college year.

College employment bureaus from Maine to California recommend this plan as a sure means of meeting college expenses for self-supporting students. The work possesses a dignity and distinction which invariably appeals to the ideals of college men, is always congenial and eminently satisfactory financially. Over 100 scholarships were awarded students the past summer, Mr. Arthur Henkel, of the University of Michigan, winning a $1000 scholarship by 10 weeks work.

Any self-supporting student can secure full particulars without obligation by dropping a postcard at once for "Pepper of Princeton" to the Review of Reviews Scholarship Fund, 24 Irving Place, New York City.

BETTER FARMING WINS.

President Waters Talks to Short Students About Uplifting.

Better farming will win. This fact was urged upon the short course students Wednesday by Dr. H. J. Waters, president of the college. He discussed briefly the characteristics that would mark the successful farmers and upbuilders of rural communities in the future.

"Every graduate of the short course, as well as every graduate of the long course of the agricultural college who returns to the farm, is marked," said Doctor Waters.

"Don't expect to reconstruct farm operations to rapidly. Be conservative, at the same time persistent and determined, in your progress. People naturally think in terms of concrete examples and not in terms of averages. Hence it is not uncommon to find that, under certain peculiar conditions wholly reliable advice given on the basis of the average, may result disastrously. Its exponent is then gloriously denounced. Be cautious, but be not discouraged by an occasional exception to a rule. Better farming will win. Be a student always. Keep in close touch with the agricultural college.

"Don't be afraid to work. Calloused hands do not lower a man's standing in society in any respect. A leader is able, through frankness, sincerity, and capability, to advance, and to take the crowd with him. He doesn't say much about leading, but if he is a clear thinker and if his propositions are right, his influence in a community will steadily increase."

Doctor Waters reminded the students that the results a man is able to accomplish are dependent on two factors—native ability and work. These factors may be likened to the multiplicand and multiplier in a problem in multiplication. If the native ability and the work are both small, the product may be almost insignificant. If the native ability is medium and the work large, the product may be greater than that of another individual with much greater native ability but with smaller capacity for work.

The Creator, Doctor Waters pointed out, has given the native ability, and that factor cannot be changed much. But the determination of the size of the other factor—thoughtful, persistent and effective work—lies very much within the control of the individual.

TALE OF PROF. AND FORD.

Instructor Anxious About Starting Habit of Jitneys.

A "jitney" Ford looks like a meek, harmless "crittur," but even yet the inner workings of that simple little four-wheeled "quadruped," and the cause of the noise that the engine makes when it is started serve as a source of mystery not only to Uncle Hank who does not like the looks of the "dern things," but also to some of the most learned profs. on the hill.

At almost any hour of the day a Ford may be found nestling peacefully against the walls of the south end of Anderson hall or "snoozing" gracefully on the parking in front of Kedzie hall unmindful of the cold, cruel world about it, or the hurry and flurry of the students who pass it by unnoticed—intent only on getting to a certain prof to apologize for a mid-term flunk.

The other evening such a Ford car was resting its weary wheels in front of Kedzie hall when its owner walked up and rudely gave the crank a yank. The engine started off with a whirr-r-r and a pop-pop-pop which rivaled any of the gas engines Cap. Sanders has under his watchful eye. The muffler was wide open and the engine protested violently against being so rudely handled.

A certain prominent professor who happened to be near, was suddenly startled from his peaceful reverie, by so unearthly a noise. He curiously eyed the protesting car a moment, and then asked as though he were trying to fathom the mystery of mysteries, "Does a Ford have to start that way?"

We have installed another new chair to accommodate you students with quick service. Five men working steady. Rogers & Cooper Barber Shop.

HAD A SUCCESSFUL WEEK.

Carl P. Thompson Had Large Crowd at Institutes Held.

Carl P. Thompson, specialist in animal husbandry in the extension division, visited the following institutes from February 1 to 5 successively: Alton, Osborn, Kirwin and Logan.

The subjects dealt with were: Feeding draft colts, care of the brood sow and her litter, and breeding up the farm herd.

Mr. Thompson says in regard to this circuit that it was well attended and that the best of interest was evidenced in the work. The others were all alive and were planning for better work next year.

Does Extension Work Now.

L. E. Thompson, formerly superintendent of sub-stations, has been doing extension work since January 1. He is now professor of crops in the extension division, and will conduct crop demonstrations in co-operation with county agents, and in counties where no county agents are employed. He will also teach in institutes and extension schools during the winter season.

Significance of Our Rank Insigula.

The second lieutenant stands on the level ground, looking up to his superiors at varying altitudes above him. He begins to climb toward the top, his first step being the lower bar of the fence, which position is typified by the one bar of the first lieutenant. Upon reaching the top of the fence, the officer wears two bars, which represent the bottom and the top bars of the fence, from which point of vantage he can now survey the field. From the fence, the officer must climb to the branches of the oak, the tree of might and strength. It is a long climb and symbolizes the marked difference that exists between the company and the field officer. The gold oak leaf on the major's shoulder straps symbolizes this position. The next step is to the tallest tree of the forest, the straight, towering silver poplar, with no branches for many feet from the ground. Although this point of vantage is somewhat higher than that of the oak, it is not materially so, and the duties and responsibilities of the position are about the same. The officer is now among the silver leaves of the poplar, which fact is typified by the silver leaf of the lieutenant-colonel. The silver eagle of the colonel symbolizes the bird that soars above the top of the towering poplar. The next step is the greatest of all: To the stars up in the firmament, far, far, above the eagle's flight, which position is typified by the star of the general officer's shoulder strap.

RED HAIR IS VALUABLE.

Reflection From Auburn Locks Boosts Bids on Hogs.

Red hair has been found to be not only a source of comfort to its owner, but also a source of profit. Anyway the auctioneer at hog sale in the stock judging pavilion the other day used a redheaded young gentleman of the college as an agent in raising bids on the Duroc Jersey hogs he was selling.

The auctioneer had auctioneered loud and long, as is the custom of auctioneers, trying to get some bids on a fine bunch of Duroc Jersey hogs which he had up for sale. Everything was dull and business dragged. Bids were coming slowly and scatteringly. In fact the bidders seemed to have lost interest. But the auctioneer was determined not to give the hogs away.

It was getting late, and the last rays of the setting sun flickered through the pavilion windows and shone on the sandy bristles of the hogs. The auctioneer paused for breath, and noticing the sunlight being reflected from the backs of the hogs, conceived a bright lead.

During the course of his call for bids, he had also noticed this red-headed young man of the college sitting near a window playing the role of an interested onlooker, and not caring a little bit whether the hogs sold at all or not.

Then the auctioneer called out: "Gentlemen, do you see how pretty and red these hogs are now? Well, that is just the reflection from the red hair of that young gentleman sitting there by the window. Why, he can jump higher than the bids you fellows have been putting on these hogs."

Needless to say the bids went up, and the auctioneer made enough to pay for his supper that night.

Athletic Carnival.

An athletic carnival will be held in the gymnasium March 6. The tumbling team and apparatus men are working hard in preparation for the event. The tumbling team will put on the same stunts that it will put on at the athletic meet at Emporia March 17. There will be some keen competition between the tumblers, for only four men will be picked to go to Emporia.

OPEN COLUMN.

To the Editor of the Collegian:

There exists on our campus a condition of affairs against which I feel that every right minded student has a right to protest. In fact, I think that it is the duty of the students generally to protest. There is an outrage against all the senses and sensibilities of a large number of students and instructors which has been perpetrated in cold-blooded cruelty, and which cries out to high heaven for redress. The matter to which I refer is the cooking of savory vands, in the cafeteria, during the fourth hour, and the victims are students who have classes in Kedzie hall during that hour. To sit in slavering agony on the second floor, and attend to a lesson in English or journalism, with those odors wafted up the stairs and in at the windows, permeating the entire building and percolating through every tiniest aperture, is calling for more restraint and self control than any student should be required to exercise. In the name of humanity, justice, mercy and decency, how long is this to be permitted to continue? How long shall we be forced to concentrate our minds on work, while our inner being is clamoring like a Roman mob for food? I believe that the low grades in fourth hour classes in Kedzie are caused directly by this awful cruelty. This condition is bad enough, but Oh! Hear me plying Heavens. What of Thursday? What added horrors were heaped upon our heads, what inward quakings and qualms induced, what finesse of cruelty and depravity, what immeasurable, infinite, incomprehensible torture, when they cooked onions! A REBELLIOUS STUDENT.

KANSAS SWAMPED AGGIES IN INDOOR TRACK MEET

Many Surprises and Dope Upsets Was the Result of the Annual Clash With the Lawrence Squad Here Last Monday Night.

THE SCORE: K. U. 66, AGGIES 19.

In the fastest track meet ever held in Nichols gymnasium or perhaps any other gymnasium in Kansas, the Aggies lost the annual indoor track meet to Kansas University, Monday night by a score of 66 to 19.

The annual clash resulted in many surprises both from the standpoint of dope upsets and in the records made in the different events. In five events, the time made was better than any previous records made for indoor track and a record was equalled in another. The Aggies were completely taken off their feet—the K. U. men succeeding with five shutouts, four firsts, and two seconds, while the Aggies could only garner two first and three seconds.

The individual point winner and star of the meet for the Aggies was Captain Herbert Frizzell. Frizzell took the two firsts for the Aggies on the low and high hurdles. He broke his own high hurdle record of 4-1, bringing it down to 4 flat. He then won the low hurdle race and tied the record of Sid Vandenberg, 4 flat. In doing this, he cramped the muscles of his right limb which lost him his main event, the high jump, to Tre weeke of Kansas University.

The other two Aggies to place in the "point pie" were Teeter and Vandenberg, Teeter winning second in the two mile and Van placing second in the thirty yard dash. The Aggies were not particularly weak in any one event but they were in extremely fast company.

The mile was a seesaw affair during the first three quarters between Herriott, Sprout, and Seaber. Herriott won by a surprising sprint in 4:24 3-5 time. This was the fastest time ever made on the Nichols track. Sprout won second, leaving Aggie Seaber with third.

K. U. broke the indoor record on the 440 with 54 seconds flat and won both places in the event. Holroyd ran a good race but was handicapped by a bad "calf."

The Aggies are all agreed that the half was entirely too fast. The time which was made by Rodney, 2:01, is four seconds better than any previous indoor record. Wilder and Keys ran a game race, but this record places Rodney easily as the best half miler in the valley.

Teeter's defeat in the two mile may be partly laid to Stetler's wonderful interference. But Grady ran a great race and his record of 10 flat will win almost any place on the indoor track.

Patterson and Campbell of K. U. tied for first place in the pole vault at 10-6. The weakness of this event in the Aggies will be eliminated in the spring when Edwards returns. Enlow, too, will no doubt improve.

The relay was easily won by K. U. in 2 minutes and 41 seconds, for the disheartening results of the first races had left the Aggies without the pep for sprints in this final event. The Kansas University men were able to show the Aggies many tricks, and they did it solely with better quality and better trim.

The summary:

30-yard dash—Davidson, Kansas first; Vandenberg, Aggies, second. Time, 3:4 seconds.

30-yard low hurdles—Frizzell, Aggies, first; Elliott, Kansas, second. Time, 4 seconds flat.

30-yard high hurdles—Frizzell, Aggies, first; Elliott, Kansas, second. Time, 4 seconds flat.

Mile—Herriott, Kansas, first; Sprout, Kansas, second. Time, 4:24 3-5 minutes.

440-yard dash—O'Leary, Kansas, first; Campbell, Kansas, second. Time, 54 seconds flat.

880-yard dash—Rodkey, Kansas, first; Fiske, Kansas, second. Time, 2:1 minutes flat.

2-mile—Grady, Kansas, first; Teeter, Aggies, second. Time, 10 minutes flat.

Shot put—Reber, Kansas, first; Paull, Kansas, second. Distance, 23-4 3 feet.

High jump—Treweeke, Kansas, first; Frizzell, Aggies, second. Height, 1 foot, 3-5 inch.

Pole vault—Patterson, Kansas, and Campbell, Kansas, tied at 10-6 feet.

Relay—Won by Kansas (Elliott, Campbell, O'Leary, Rodkey). Time, 4:41 flat.

Some Types of Fair Co-eds

Are you one who Powders Your Nose In Class, Does not Have Time to Study, Have Your Knowledge in the Note Books, or Wear Pink Waists and Green Skirts?

"Really I never take time to go any where or fix my clothes, I just study all the time," this co-ed will exclaim. The same girl will wonder why her grades are not always the highest in the class. "All work and no play makes Jack a dull boy," is an old maxim well applied.

This member of the fairer sex does not realize that her appearance, her ability to get acquainted, and her training in a social way do much to determine her success or failure in life. She forgets that the broadening of her ideas and development of her character come from mingling with the group.

About the time the observer gets a pessimistic idea of the situation or thinks it is a ridiculous spectacle, he will notice the ideal type of college girl. She has escaped notice because she seems to fit so well into the surroundings that she does not appear strange. She will be seen wearing a simple but effective one piece dress of medium length and fullness, or a plain serviceable dress and a suitable hat.

"Well I got most of my lessons but didn't get time to do everything because I went to watch our team wallop K. U. Wasn't it great? Tonight I will make up for lost time." These are some things one will hear the true type of college girl say.

This co-ed thinks she must have a well rounded education. She has come to college to get the square planed off, to make friends, and get a broad view of life. She has many acquaintances and is well liked, by and by she will be personally acquainted with many of the leaders of the state because she knew them in college.

Any person could enjoy himself for at least a day just observing the different types of girls in the Kansas State Agricultural college and feel that his time was well spent. Just travel over the campus a bit now.

Probably the type of girl that would first catch the eye is the one wearing an exquisite flashy blue or green suit of the latest model. It may be off of the bargain counter—it may not. Her shoes have French heels and are pointed—of the fancy or novelty type. The hat may be of cerise or bowling green, as dame fashion decrees. Often the whole combination is good in it's place but again it may be so "loud" that one can hear it coming. The observer would wonder if she were dressed for an afternoon tea.

To be sure she has one of the latest models in vanity cases. Her powder puff is handy and she never forgets to bring it to school or to use it after she gets it there. "O, did you get your lesson? I just didn't have the time to get mine," she will turn to remark to the splendid looking young man behind her. But first she powders her nose.

No matter how often this "fair one" blinks in a quiz, she is sure each time that it must be a mistake. If not a mistake, the teacher doesn't know his business, or else he's a brute or "pin-head." It would remind one of an old saying, "One must know a lot in order to know how little he does know." It is thought that the girl wearing a last year's party dress to school belongs to the past.

Attention may next be diverted to a girl with a red skirt and a pink waist, to one displaying all the colors of the rainbow, or another whose waist, skirt, and belt are not even tangent.

When a superintendent or manager wants some one to do a piece of work, he does not look for the girl with the well powdered nose or the one who dresses in bad taste; nor does he seek the girl with all of her education in a few note books or the one whose education is limited to book learning. He will choose one of the "happy medium," the true college girl if they are not all hired. This is to say nothing of the man who is hunting a helpmate, of whom he need not be ashamed.

SHOWS INTEREST IN ZOOLOGY.

Co-ed Captures Fierce, Carnivorous Animal for Scientific Investigation.

Members of the zoology department are relating an incident which happened last week, which they assert indicates that the study of zoology tends to make the student sit up and take notice of animal life, and feel a real interest therein.

While the ground was covered with a film of sleet, a co-ed, student in the department, on her way to college, spied a mole, rambling hither and yon upon the ice, and unable to find its burrow.

Now the mole is a carnivorous beast, which being interpreted, means that it is a meat-eater. Nevertheless, the co-ed was fired with the desire of the scientific investigator. She sallied forth upon the ice, and cunningly captured the mole, without being bitten. Nay, more. She carried the squealing, squirming little animal to the zoology department, in her muff, heedless of the chance of being nipped by its sharp teeth, and there immolated it upon the shrine of Scientific investigation.

One of the faculty, well versed in the ways of the co-eds, has asserted that the girl in question showed evidence of a deep and real interest in the subject of zoology.

SECOND BIG ANNUAL CARNIVAL MARCH 6

Stunts by Literary Societies, Fraternities, and Girls' Rooter Club Will be Program of Athletic Carnival This Year.

WILL HAVE A REAL CAKE WALK

Fancy drills and folk dancing, wrestling, races, boxing, tumbling, fraternities, and the Girls' Rooter club, and perhaps a cake walk, by those who are acquainted with the art at first hand, will be features of the second annual athletic carnival to be held in the gymnasium on Monday night, March 6.

The first event of this kind, which was held last year was very successful and the athletic department hopes to make this year's carnival even more interesting.

One of the features of the evening if Coach Lowman is successful, will be a cake walk by some colored folks of Manhattan who will be willing to show the merry makers just how the cake walk is properly performed.

A band concert for a half hour will perhaps precede the stunts of the Athletic department which will be followed by the funniest capers that the fraternities and literary societies are able to offer. These stunts were the feature of last year's carnival.

The program will be shortened somewhat according to Mr. Lowman so as not to detain the crowd until eleven o'clock as was necessary last year.

GRADUATE SCHOOL OF AG.

School at Massachusetts This Year Will be Especially Good.

Every two years, under the auspices of the Association of the American Agricultural Colleges and Experiment Stations, there is conducted at some agricultural college in the country a school for graduate study in agriculture. This school is conducted for the benefit of those desiring to study the more recent developments in natural, social and economic sciences, applied to agriculture, as well as in technical branches of the so-called practical agriculture, under the guidance of men able to deal efficiently with such problems. The purpose of the school is also to give the students such an outlook toward agricultural problems as will lead them to undertake graduate study as opportunity may be offered. In 1916 this school will be held at the Massachusetts Agricultural College, Amherst, Mass., from July 3 to 28.

The courses of instruction, as arranged, cover topics of Growth, Inheritance, Plant and Animal Physiology, Chemical Synthesis of Growth, Rural Organizations; Agricultural Education; Distribution; Land Problems; and Production. Adjunct courses will also be given in Physics, Chemistry and Physiology.

This school appeals particularly to seniors and the younger alumni, who are engaged, or hope to be engaged, in professional work in agricultural vocations.

The necessary expenses for tuition and board are moderate. A detailed statement of the purpose, scope and expense of this school may be had on application to Charles E. Marshall, Assistant Dean of the School, Amherst, Mass.

HURT IN FIRST PRACTICE.

S. C. Sherwood was Injured While on Baseball Field.

S. C. Sherwood, a junior in agriculture, was seriously injured Wednesday afternoon when he ran into a fellow player during baseball practice. Each of the men ran for a fly ball, and neither seeing the other ran together, Sherwood being rendered unconscious for two hours. He was badly bruised on the left side of his face and will probably not be able to be out for practice again for some time.

Sherwood is one of the most likely men trying out for the catcher's position on the varsity and it is hoped that he received no permanent injury.

The Kansas City section of the American Chemical Society will hold its May meeting in Manhattan. The society heretofore has been holding its meetings in Lawrence and Kansas City alternately. The department of chemistry will furnish the program.

BOYS' BANDS AT EMPORIA.

Contest to be Feature of State Normal's Festival Week.

At the festival week which is to be held at the Emporia State Normal school in April, there is to be a contest between various boys' bands of the state. There will also be contests for glee clubs, soloists, and choruses.

A boys' band at Salina challenges other similar bands in the state, to the contest to be held at Emporia. The towns of Burlington, Marquette, Cottonwood Falls, and others are said to be considering entering their juvenile bands in the event.

MISS. FIGHTS CIGARETTES.

University Club Goes After the Seductive Pill via Petitions.

The Better Life club, of the Mississippi University, is beginning a fight for the prohibition of the sale of cigarettes in the state.

The club has mailed more than 400 blank petitions asking the Mississippi legislature to enact effective legislation against the sale and use of cigarettes in the state. The petitions have been sent to the high schools, academies, and colleges of Mississippi.

40 SHORT COURSE MEN TO WICHITA MEETING

Delegation in Charge of W. H. Sanders Visits Wichita This Week.

Somewhere near 40 short course students left Manhattan Wednesday, to visit Wichita, to visit the Interstate Threshermen's convention at Wichita. They expect to return Saturday night. The students were invited to attend by the officials of the convention. A similar delegation attended last year, and the trip was so mutually agreeable to the students and the convention authorities, that a repetition was decided on for this year.

A special car was set out for the students at the Rock Island depot, and No. 28 picked them up at noon. "Cap" W. H. Sanders, instructor on farm motors, accompanied the men to Wichita. W. A. Buck, fellow in gas engines at the college, went down on Tuesday with a group which left ahead of time.

Most of the students were from the engineering short courses, but there were several from the agricultural courses in the body. A few regular students also attended from the school of agriculture.

A cheer leader was selected after the crowd left Manhattan, and several yells were worked out for purposes of demonstration at the convention. Last year "Benzine, Kerosene, Gasoline, Gas! K. S. A. C. Tractor Class!" was a favorite with the bunch.

Mr. Sanders made an address to the men assembled at the convention, Thursday night, on "Power Farming." When the plans for the convention were being made, a request was sent to the college for a speaker on that subject, and Mr. Sanders was chosen as the best fitted man for the place.

J. C. Shutt, assistant in engineering, will assist in taking care of Mr. Sanders' classes during the absence of the latter.

LEADING LADY ESPECIALLY GOOD

Purple Masque Cast Includes Mrs. Clara Tiffany as Leading Lady.

Mrs. Clara Tiffany, special student, will have the leading part of "Betty" in the Purple Masque's annual play, which is to be presented soon. The cast for "The Fortune Hunter" has been selected and is rehearsing regularly for the presentation of the play.

Mrs. Tiffany has had much experience in dramatic work. She has appeared in "A Midsummer Night's Dream," "The Lion and the Mouse," and others. She took part in the home talent production "A Day at Coney Isle," recently given in Manhattan.

Mr. J. H. Branham, who is coaching the play, commends Mrs. Tiffany's ability and manner on the stage, and states that she "more than comes up to the requirements of the part."

Admires Red Hair.

What old Tom Thompson, of the "Howard Courier" would do if he were young again! If I were a young chap and taking a college course, it would be hard to keep me from matriculating at K. S. A. C. at Manhattan. Of the four or five hundred pretty girls who are enrolled there, over one hundred are redheaded. Think of that!

HISTORICAL PAGEANT WAS A GREAT SUCCESS

Probably Fifteen Hundred Persons Saw the History of the Y. W. C. A. Presented in the College Auditorium Wed. Night.

HAD ONLY TWO SPEAKING PARTS

Before an appreciative audience of fifteen hundred persons in the college auditorium Wednesday night the girls of the local Y. W. C. A. presented the historical pageant "The Girl of Yesterday and Today."

The pageant consisted for the most part of tableaux and pantomime parts and was a most decided success in every way. It showed the founding of the national organization in Boston fifty years ago and the different steps in its growth up to the present time. The two speaking parts were taken by Miss Hattie Droll as the Girl of 1866 and Miss Goldie Mitchell, as the Girl of 1916.

There were fourteen parts to the presentation and each one of them was especially costumed. The prologue showed the Girl of 1866, her needs and then the organization of the first Y. W. C. A. to supply these needs. A separate procession was shown for each decade and as the years advanced, the number in the part grew larger just as the membership in the organization has become greater with each succeeding year. All the different types of girls who have been interested in the activities of the Y. W. C. A. were shown in costume and appropriate music accompanied each part.

The latter part of the pageant presented the different activities for which the association works and the girls appeared on the stage in the costumes of the different countries in which association work is now carried on. As the girls walked off the stage at the end a beam of light representing the future was thrown across the stage predicting that the organization had a long bright future before it.

The general committee in charge of the pageant was headed by Miss Alice Neuman. She was assisted by Miss Margaret Robinson. Miss Ella Krast was chairman of the committee on costumes. The chairman of the committee on stage properties was Miss Gladys Spring. Miss Eva Lawson and Miss May Brookshier had charge of the sale of tickets.

The entire production was under the supervision of Miss Helen Groves, secretary of the local Y. W. C. A. J. H. Branham of the public speaking department acted as stage director.

SEVENTEEN FACULTY MEN MEMBERS OF COUNTRY CLUB

Prof's are Directors and Charter Members of New Manhattan Social Organization.

Seventeen members of the faculty have subscribed as charter members of the country club which is being organized in Manhattan.

The movement for the organization of the club, while comparatively recent, has been very successful.

The club plans the erection of a house on the hills north of Blomont. Golf links will be laid out there at once, and plans for the complete organization and incorporation of the club are well under way. It is probable that a club house will not be built within a year.

M. F. Ahearn, associate professor of horticulture, was one of the leaders in the organization of the club, and was a member of the committee which secured the membership list. The faculty men who are charter members are: M. F. Ahearn, J. R. Bender, L. E. Call, R. V. Christian, W. A. Cochel, N. A. Crawford, E. L. Holton, W. M. Jardine, E. C. Johnson, G. S. Lowman, J. R. MacArthur, C. W. McCampbell, R. R. Price, O. E. Reed, F. S. Schoenleber, J. W. Searson, H. E. Porter, and President Waters.

L. E. Call, M. F. Ahearn, W. M. Jardine, R. R. Price, and H. E. Porter, are members of the board of directors of the club.

The physics department has just procured a new Multi-Audi-Fone which will be used in connection with the wireless apparatus. It will make sounds audible that would otherwise be too feeble to be heard.

SENATOR HOWE SPEAKS TO STUDENTS

The Student's Preparedness is Subject of Interesting and Educational Address Friday Morning by Statesman from Abilene.

WAS AN INSTRUCTIVE ADDRESS.

"The Student's Preparedness" was the subject of a talk by state Senator J. W. Howe, of Abilene, Kan., at student assembly Friday morning.

"By preparedness, I mean that preparedness for what you do after you leave college," said Senator Howe. "Every time one of you goes out and makes a success, you have done more for this school than all the college yells and all the pep meetings and all the legislative influence you have."

"You are proud of this school and you all want to see it grow, but if you will stop for a moment, you will realize that the future development of this school depends upon you. We all hope that you will be stepping stones in its progress, and if you are, the record you make and the things you do will permit this school to develop and expand."

"If you think you can come here and waste your time and merely receive passing grades and then go home and show your community how to wear the latest clothes, and wear the latest hair cut, and then tell them all the latest slang, that very thing is going to prejudice that community against this school, and every failure you make is charged up against the school."

"If your work in college does not increase your capacity for the work you intend to do after you leave college, then your work here has been wasted. Not only that, you have wasted your time, and have wasted your dad's money, and you have wasted the money of the taxpayer of the state. If you expect the taxpayer of this state to continue assisting you wherever possible, you must show the taxpayer you are going to be a student and that by being a student you will be a credit to the community from which you came. I want to promise you that as long as you make good, I am going to stand by you."

"Do you know what constitutes a school? The standard of the school is measured by your individual efforts. Your equipment, your need of buildings, your need of a larger faculty, your need of all these things increase only in proportion to the extent that you take advantage of the things the college offers you. It is up to you to increase this school—Increase this school—Increase its appropriations by your own individual work."

"Put forth all the effort you can for yourself and for the sake of the school. Do not become narrow in your views; do not take up every little charge that is made against you. If some fellow wants to fight you all the time, let him try it. Do not try to fight back, but go on and do the best you can and do not become conceited."

Senator Howe made it clear that the future growth of the school depended upon the success of the students. He stated that instances had come to his attention where some mistakes or thoughtlessness of a student had prejudiced a community against an institution. Students were urged to make the best of their ability and opportunity, to be sane in their ideas and not prejudice the people of the state, and thus insure the future greatness of the school.

MUSICAL WILL BE MARCH 13.

Choral Society Will Stage a Big Event

The date for the next Choral society concert has been set for Monday evening, March 13. At that time the large musical organization will present "Elijah." Four of the best soloists in the city of Chicago will assist in the concert. They are: Mrs. Ethel Geistwell Benedict, soprano; Miss Hazel Huntley, contralto; Mr. Worthe Faulkner, tenor, will sing the part of Obadiah; and Mr. Charles E. Lutton, who will sing the Elijah part.

Besides these noted sinners the choral society from Clay Center which is also under the direction of Professor Westbrook, will assist the local organization.

The Choral society is now holding two rehearsals a week and no doubt the concert March 13 will be one of the best musical events of the year.

COLLEGIAN SUBSCRIPTIONS.

We are not going to keep our promise about publishing the names of those persons who have failed to pay their Collegian subscription as they said they would do. Every one who has not yet paid has one more chance. If they do not come to a check for the amount, before next Tuesday evening, their names will appear in a BLACK LIST in this space in Wednesday's issue.

NEW EQUIPMENT AT POSTOFFICE.

Downtown Office has Much College Mail to Look After.

The downtown postoffice has been compelled to install some new equipment to take care of the extra free mail which is now coming from the college. A new circular filing case has been added to care for the large parcels of mail.

The free mail from the college weighed nearly 19 tons last year, and it is believed that there will be more than that amount this year.

TRACK ATHLETES OFF FOR BIG MEET IN K. C.

Thirteen Aggie Track Men will Enter Big Annual Meet of K. C. A. C. There Tonight.

Thirteen of the Varsity track team, accompanied by Coach John R. Bender, went to Kansas City this morning where they will enter in the Kansas City Athletic Club annual meet in which all the valley teams enter together with the best talent of some of the eastern states. This meet is not restricted to colleges and universities but includes all athletes.

Captain Frizzell will have some worthy competition in the high jump, the only event in which he will enter. Joe Loomis of Chicago, the best 100 yard man in the United States, who has a record of six feet three inches in the high jump will enter in this event. Vital of South Dakota with a easy record of six feet, Pitham of Missouri University, also with a record of six feet, and Treweeke, who performed on Nichols court last Monday night, will also rival "Duroc." With the record which Frizzell made in the first tryout this season, 6 and 1/3-4, the team expects to place.

Teeter will enter for the 1000 yards or for the mile against the best long winded track men in the valley and with better form on a shorter distance Rodkey may not be able to get his second wind sprint on the floor.

Art Seebler will enter in the half mile and may be joined by Wilder. Wilder will put the shot but has not decided yet on the half mile.

Collier with a high school record of 19 seconds in the hundred yards last year will enter for the 50 yards.

One of the features of the meet will be a special race between Ted Meredith of the University of Pennsylvania who will meet all comers who wish to take a half mile jaunt with him. He holds the world's record of one-half mile in one minute and 52 3/5 seconds, and one fourth mile in 47 seconds.

The varsity track men expect to see some events in which these track men of the country at large will participate which will be of great interest.

The following Aggies will represent K. S. A. C.: Captain Frizzell, Vandenburg, Keys, Teeter, Grandfield, Halroyd, Essick, Turner, Wilder, Collier, Crumbacker, Osborn, and Art Seebler.

K. S. A. C. VOTE IS FOR MO VALLEY BASEBALL.

Meetings Will be Held at St. Louis to Decide About Baseball Being Ruled Out in the Valley.

K. S. A. C. went on record at a faculty meeting held yesterday afternoon, as being in favor of intercollegiate baseball for the Missouri Valley conference.

There has been a move in the valley conference to have the sport abolished as an inter-collegiate affair, and the meeting of the conference officials which is to be held in St. Louis, March 3, the question will be settled. The vote of the faculty on the stand K. S. A. C. will take was unanimously against any change in the present system.

It is understood that K. U. has already voted on the matter, and is in favor of baseball.

President Waters will represent the college at the meeting of the conference officials next Friday.

AGGIES TWIST TIGERS' TAIL BY TEN POINTS

In First Game of Two Game Series Merner's Basketeers Live up to Dope and Tounce Missouri in Hard Battle.

THE FINAL COUNT WAS 27 TO 17.

The Aggies Fight! But it was not necessary as was hoped in all of the conference camps in last night's game in which the Aggies easily defeated the Tigers by a score of 27 to 17.

Quigley's first whistle was the signal for the Aggies to swoop down on the unsuspecting Tigers and begin a series of passing, intercepting and strong guarding which successfully kept the Tigers in the background.

In the third minute of play, Adams started the scoring with Reynolds' favors by registering two field goals and in the next minute with Leonard's favor, Adams dropped another two point through the iron ring.

Captain Adams was playing right and he had placed still another basket from long center field before the twelfth minute when Williams from under the Missouri Basket scored for the Tigers.

Ramsey's guarding was in evidence, which with the heavy offence of MacMillan and Leonard, made it impossible for the Missourians to put their plays through. Adams and Reynolds also found occasional opportunity to keep the visiting team on the defensive. The Aggies were able to keep the Missouri contingent guessing most of the time, and their goal shooting was of the hit or miss style. Also the visiting team did not take the floor at any time. The playing became slower toward the end of the half. The Aggies slumped perceptibly. Although the score was much in their favor, the opening for an additional basket by Williams and one by Campbell made the Aggie rooters very uneasy.

The half ended with the Aggies leading 15 to 7.

The second half differed but little from the first. The Aggies had retained their pep which they seemed to have lost at the close of the first, and came back for the strong offensive play which the Missourians were unable to meet.

Tamsey's guarding was again a feature but it was too much in evidence, and in the 10th minute of play, he was called out for four technicals and replaced by Gunning.

The Aggies fouled seven in both halves, giving the Missourians a chance to run up their score which they were not able to take advantage of. Williams placed the only free throw of the first half, missing one. Wear missing all five of his chances.

Wear was sufficiently practiced in the second to throw three out of five free offerings and Williams got one out of two. Shirkley with eight minutes to play replaced Wear. Merner made no substitutions save for Gunning.

Adams was high point taker for the Aggies with eight field goals, while Williams displayed the most skill for the visitors, but was only able to mass three field goals and two free throws.

The Missourians played an exceptionally clean game. Only two fouls were called on them throughout the game, while the Aggies were forced to give the Van Gent men fourteen trials for free throws.

Good team work and accuracy in shooting baskets was the feature of the playing for the local team. The visitors showed good team work but had poor luck in finding the basket.

Acquainted with the Aggie style of play and accustomed to the court, it may be that the Missourians will come back with stronger playing in tonight's battle on Nichols court.

The line-up follows:

Aggies	Pos.	Missouri
Adams	RF	Wear
Reynolds	LF	Campbell
Leonard	C	Williams
MacMillan	RG	Hyde
Tamsey	LG	Sheelman

Substitutions: Aggies, Gunning for Ramsey; Missouri, Shirkley for Wear

KANSANS IN DEMAND.

C. E. Younggreen Says That Kansans are not Curiousities Now.

"Let me tell you that the people of Kansas have an edge on the business interests of this country," said Charles C. Younggreen, business manager of the Kansas Farmer, before the students in assembly Wednesday morning.

"Instead of Kansas being curiosities as they were several years ago, they are now in demand because they have made good in all walks of the eastern business field. Today the Kansas man receives the attention of the business field. Today the Kansas man receives the attention of the business men of the east. Kansas men are hired and Kansas women are admired because they have the word 'Stick-to-it-iveness' bred in them and big business knows it. No other state has ever endured the hardships that Kansas has and come out on top.

"Most of you are probably bent on a business career and the majority of you will likely go into the business of farming, but what ever business it is," said Mr. Younggreen, "remember that the eyes of the country are on this institution and the young people of this state. The people of the country sometimes wonder if there isn't a magic wand over Kansas when they realize the prosperity of this state, the greatest per capita wealth, record crops, world record agriculture, splendid schools, free colleges, no slums, successful prohibition, not a dollar of state debt—a three billion dollar state with plenty of optimism, social justice, state loyalty, and numerous other advantages."

Mr. Younggreen went on to say that the people in big business were especially interested in the young men of Kansas and would offer almost any advantages to get the young people of the state to come into their institutions and factories. These are days of intense business interest and the young men of Kansas who turn their efficiency in the right direction are in demand where ever they may go.

MILITARY BALL A SUCCESS.

Function Tuesday Night was one of the Best Ever Seen Here.

The annual military ball given by the First Cadet Infantry of the college in honor of the Commandant, First Lieutenant L. O. Mathews, Fourth Infantry, in Harrison hall on Tuesday evening was one of the best affairs ever held here.

A special committee headed by Cadet Major A. E. Horak of the Second Battalion had charge of the arrangements for the evening and the appropriate decorations and programmes showed that much time was spent by the committee in charge.

The military idea was emphasized throughout the evening by bugle calls warning the dancers when a dance was to begin.

The grand march consisted of a series of military movements and figures ending with the officers forming an arch of flashing sabers under which the ladies marched.

The music for the evening was furnished by a special orchestra selected from Mr. Ozment's military band and furnished perfect harmony for the dancers.

During the intermission, delicious refreshments were served in the Harrison parlors below the hall.

The heavy of pretty girls present made the evening much more enjoyable and indicated that a soldier may be a good "picker" whether the "pickings" be enemy or friend.

Dean and Mrs. J. T. Willard, Professor J. G. Emerson and Dean Mary Pierce Van Zile were the chaperones of the evening.

ELLSWORTH BEAT MANHATTAN.

Short Grass High Schol Team Too Fast Company for Locals.

The Ellsworth high school basketball team defeated the Manhattan highs yesterday in a fast game, 40 to 17. The game was played in the high school gymnasium, and was called at 4 o'clock in the afternoon.

The Ellsworth team is a "mighty fast team," according to Chas. F. Holliday, formerly assistant in physical education at the college, and now director of physical education for the Manhattan city schools. The Manhattan team, by the disqualification of three of its regulars, is in pretty bad shape, and the dope looked bad from the start.

A Homily On Boots

Wherein a Certain Crumb Expresseth His Sentiments and His Opinions at Great Length.

And it came to pass that there was a gathering of the Crumb clan in the lair of one of the Crumbs. And being Crumbs, they gossiped, disseminating much vaporous scandal about their elders and betters, as well as their equals. As for their inferiors, there ain't no such animal as the inferior of a Crumb that gossipeth.

And one of the Crumbiest of the Crumbs was moved to speak in this wise. "I dined (dined is the exact word that I intended to use, Percival, so don't get new with that notebook.) at the College Inn Sunday night, having by the exercise of much care and cunning craft avoided the clutches of my creditors and having preserved the necessary thirty-five cents."

As I entered the front door and essayed to converse a la old friend with the cashier, I was almost stunned by a bright light which emanated from the rear of the room. The light was of a peculiar nature, of a rosy tinge, a mellow, golden quality, but bright with exceeding brightness withal.

Half dazzled by the glare, I started back to investigate. When I reached the point where I could get a full and uninterrupted view of the source of the unwanted illumination, I staggered once again. The brilliancy was almost overpowering. It came from the rear of the room, apparently from under one of the tables. Shading my eyes with my hand, and peering close, I was able to observe that the effulgent rays were given off by—Gimme some of that Tuxedo. It sure makes a fellow's throat tired to talk, don't it? What's that? Oh, why one of the newer instructors in the department of sartorial significance had just purchased a new pair of high tan boots, army officer pattern, and wore them to dinner, outside his trousers.

Waste Paper Valuable

Several Hundred Bales of Paper Is Thrown Away Every Year by Faculty and Student—Is Sold by Custodian's Department.

The waste paper business at the college is no small item according to G. F. Wagoner, custodian. The faculty and students throw more than a carload of paper, if it was baled, into the waste basket every year. This would be enough paper on which to print 216 issues of the "Industrialist."

Behind the old chapel, in the middle of the room and almost completely surrounded by waste paper is an old hand paper baller. It hardly pays to bale and ship this old paper but owing to the danger of fire entailed from the burning of it on the campus and because the baling gives work to some students, it is done. In the course of a year 350 bales, weighing 115 pounds each are turned out by the little hand machine. Only the clean paper is used as the price for which it may be sold depends on the condition it is in.

Shipment was made last October and another car will be ready for delivery in April. The last lot was sold to a firm in Marcelline, Illinois, as a larger price is commanded in the east.

Guy S. Lowman, head of the department, has been asked to attend the Kansas City Athletic Club Annual Indoor meet as an honorary official. This is the fourth year that Coach Lowman has received this honorary acknowledgement.

Guy S. Lowman, head of the department of athletics, left Thursday for Lawrence where he was called to referee the Kansas State Normal-Kansas University game. Friday evening he officiated at Ottawa for the Ottawa University-College of Emporia game.

The wildest skin which was presented to Coach Bender some time ago has been tanned and prepared as a rug to be hung on the wall in the coach's office. Coach Bender says that it will be used as an emblem of the Aggie team in future games, and will be taken on away-from-home games as a mascot.

Outdoor baseball practice is on. Tuesday's game between the scrubs and the varsity, despite the errors, was interesting, but it was broken up the seventh when Breckheiser by mistake made the first home run of the season. The swampy condition of the diamond renders it unfit for practice at the present, but Coach Bender will put it in use the first of next week.

Our Real Foreign foe.

The Winning Oration Delivered by Leo C. Moser at Inter-Society Oratorical last Saturday Night in College Auditorium.

Hudson Maxim, the great inventor, in a recent address at Columbus, Ohio, made this surprising statement; that a foreign army could land on the Atlantic seaboard and batter down all the resistance that we might offer, that all country to the Alleghenies could be taken in two weeks, that one-fourth million men might be landed every succeeding month.

As if in response a tremor of fear has shaken the city of New York and penetrated the nation through out its length and breadth. Today that fear has developed into a national issue. An American congress is considering the greatest expenditure for preparedness against attack ever contemplated in the history of any nation.

There is good reason to regard preparedness against mobilized nations with due seriousness. But many times in the present crisis we have allowed ourselves to be carried away by the fear of a possible but highly improbable invasion.

And possessed by that fear, we are making no preparation against another impending American invasion—an invasion that is more sure in its coming, more subtle in its attack, and whose approach is not heralded by the blare of trumpets and the roll of drums.

The real foreign invader of whom I speak to you is the army of foreign laborers from southern and eastern Europe and western Asia who flock to our shores by the hundreds of thousands.

Go stand at the landing station at Ellis Island where in a normal year a part of the three thousand immigrants who daily enter our land are massed, like sheep, in sorting pens, for acceptance or rejection. South Italian, Hebrew, Polish, North Italian, Magyars, Slovaks, Croatians, Moravians, Greeks, Rutherians—all are "beaten men from beaten races."

Do we find her a likeness to the inspired zeal of our forefathers who came to conquer a new land with a determined hand? Is it in the statue of these sluggish, ox-like men? Is it in the low-intellect, sloping forehead? Is it in the sordid, debauched face? Our forefathers came when men must needs be of staunch character. There was a red man to be battled. Great forests and barren tracts of land demanded hardihood and inflexible integrity. Why do these men come? They come to become a part of the most efficient machine ever constructed for the degradation of citizenship in the history of the world. It is a simply constructed machine—the basis of supply and demand applied. Capital controls the one lever—wages. Increase the supply of unskilled labor—labor which will work at any price—and corporate control smilingly releases the lever—the weight of low wages rests more heavily on the shoulders of the American laboring man.

These foreign laborers, the fuel for this machine, are the ideal bunkhouse, tenement citizens for they have only a three fold purpose in their invasion; to earn the largest possible amount of immediate earnings to live upon an absolute minimum basis, to save money to send or take abroad.

Comfort, cleanliness, food, and all other factors of their existence are subjected to the common program of the army. Thus, from a wage which is starvation to the family of the American laboring man, they, by living in filth, vermin, and squalor, are able to save far more than half.

The very fact that this great army of immigrants consists largely of men, not families, who reap a golden harvest and return to Europe by the hundreds of thousands yearly, stamps it as an exploiter of the American labor market. Oh! what a wonderful part this army of foreign laborers play in that capitalistic machine which is grinding out a lower rate of wages, an infamous standard of living, an inferior quality of citizenship.

It is contended by certain economists that such foreign labor is producing large industries, large fortunes, and large trade balances. Yes! and more than that!—larger tenement districts, larger breweries, large vice districts, larger hospitals, and larger charitable institutions. Once before a set of idealists attempted to uphold our industries, we fought the Civil war paying millions of lives and billions of dollars to undo the crime that was being perpetrated upon the nation in the name of development.

How much longer can the American laboring man stand upright under this stamp of national economy to declare to the world, "To be an American greater than to be a king."

The present war has pointed to a temporary solution. The war has called for and detained the foreign laborer. For a time, they have interests at home. As a result, the American laborer has begun to slowly cast off the weight of low wages. The list of unemployed in many industrial centers has dwindled from thousands to hundreds. In Chicago, the municipal lodging house for the unemployed is almost deserted. Only cripples and unfit knock at the gates of factories where throngs of swarthy foreigners and sturdy American asked for work a year ago. But a little while until plenty and good cheer will fill the hearts and homes of the American wage earner.

But the European war can only be a temporary barrier.

When the war ends, the absence of specie in Europe, poor credit, and industrial disorganization will result in a large surplus of unemployed population. Labor cannot work where there is no capital. European labor of the lowest order will wish to escape the heavy taxation and the dreary work of reconstruction.

To escape! Whither? To the land of the free! which has protective tariffs on each and every product but its greatest, the American laboring man. To America! where thousands and thousands have come before and whence they have returned with bulging pocketbooks.

Shall we have peace, prosperity, high wages, and plenty in the American tenement home while the "dam of war holds back the rising flood" and then with the close of war, a "ruinous rush" of unskilled pauperized laborers from southern and eastern Europe and Western Asia. Preparedness? Yes, to protect the eight million American laboring men who are struggling under a reduced wage scale, a living wage cut in half. Preparedness? Yes, to protect the eight hundred thousand children who must labor under despicable conditions of poverty, a mockery to free education.

Cheap foreign labor is the real foreign foe, against whom we must prepare. Their object in coming and their influence in our life—political, social, and moral—are at war with the ideals of Americanism. "Weak, they limit us; diseased, they pollute us; degraded, they lower us." That influence undermining the very vitality of the nation.

Mr. Gladstone, speaking in behalf of England's "hunger-bitten millions," once declared, "If you want a bulwark against despotism, there is no rampart like the breasts of free men." The bulwark of America's greatest development rests in the happiness and content which exists in all her homes.

"The first law of a nation as of man must be self preservation." "Our highest duty to charity and to humanity is to make this great experiment here, of free laws and educated labor, the most triumphant success."

By wise restriction let us prepare against our real foreign foe. Let us preserve American work for American hands and give to the American laborer the wage which will enable him to live as an American.

Department Is Profitable

Few People Realize That This Division of the College is One of the Most Paying Here. College cafeteria uses Large Amount of the Dairy Product.

Not the least paying department of the college is the dairy division. Many people do not realize the enormous output of milk, cream, and butter from the cows which are kept at the college for experimental and instructional purposes.

The dairy department furnishes the cafeteria maintained by the college with 15 gallons of milk, 10 pounds of butter, and two quarts of cream daily. A local creamery buys 100 gallons of milk a day and eight gallons of cream are retailed each twenty-four hours.

Five hundred pounds of butter are made each week, which are retailed to the down town stores and patrons of the creamery counter. Practically 75 pounds of cheese are made and retailed during the college year.

During the warmer season the students make a large amount of ice cream which is retailed in the down town parlors, at the creamery counter and on the campus.

Practically the only product of the department for which there is little or no sale is buttermilk. Hundreds of gallons are either thrown away or given away to any one who will take it.

We have installed another new chair to accommodate you students with quick service. Five men working steady. Rogers & Cooper Barber Shop.

Editor Collegian: I presume that the editorial staff of the college paper is qualified for their work, otherwise they would not be holding their positions, but I would like to make a suggestion to the staff. Why not run a "Scandal Number?" I have noticed that other college papers make a regular practice of doing so, and I believe that it has been the custom of the Collegian in past years. I believe that such a number might be produced, and furnish much innocent fun on the campus, as well as giving the staff an opportunity to display their wit and ingenuity. I do not believe that any bad feeling would result. It seems to me that at about the end of the term, when many of the students will be going home, would be going home, would be an ideal time. Hoping that my suggestion will not be taken in the wrong spirit, I nevertheless would like to bring the matter to your attention.

Action, action, action, with a big A is the secret of the success of a musical comedy, declared Milton Schuster of the Graces of Musical Comedy, who will present "A Prince for a Day" at the Marshall theater Monday, February 28. The theater going public of today expect a $2 show at one-half that price and that is just what we are giving them, and woe be to the producer who fails to please the taste of the sophisticated patron. Silver of Quality

There is a whole lot of difference in silver, and it is not always as good as it looks.

In selecting our stock we look beneath the surface. That is, we buy only goods that will stand the test. We buy from manufacturers who are willing to put their stamp on the goods and stand back of every thing they make.

Our silver is known as the "SILVER OF QUALITY," the kind of silver you want on your table—the kind of silver you would give your friends.

If you are not familiar with our stock and the attractive prices at which it is marked, you certainly owe it to yourself to visit our store.

MARCH 1, 1916.

WHICH ARE YOU DOING?

College life. What does it mean to you? Does it mean that you are simply here to have a good time and spend what cash you may get from father? Some people say that you owe it to the one who is furnishing you the money that you should make good in college. Well, you do but far more than that you owe it to yourself. The person who is furnishing you the necessary funds for the securing of a college education does not need what money or fame you may make for yourself after you are through with college. They have earned their amount of this world's goods. It is you who are to profit or lose what you get out of your college education. You may turn out a ne'er-do-well or the making of one of the most prominent persons in the land. It is up to you to say which it will be.

ABOUT BASEBALL.

Will baseball be ruled from the calendar of college athletics in the Missouri Valley schools? Such a plan is now under discussion and there is to be a meeting of the valley officials in St. Louis March 3. The reason given for this talked of measure is that the playing of the national pastime tends to create professional ball players. The real reason that this question was ever brought up is that there exists in some of the towns where valley schools are located, baseball clubs from organized leagues. It is natural that the organized club should be able to have a better team than is put out by the college and consequently draws much of the revenue which otherwise would come to the athletic department of the school. The college team also takes away some of the patronage the league team might have. There are only two towns in the Missouri Valley conference which have league teams of any size. Should the rest of the schools drop the pastime which is so attractive just to accommodate these schools or make a little money for some baseball magnate?

A Woman-Hater's View-Point

Here in the Woman Hater Tells Some of the Conclusions he has Come to After a Most Discriminating and Exhaustive Search.

As I do not like girls at all I know that every one will agree with all the good points I may bring out in this discussion of them. When I say I do not like them I do not wish to convey the idea that I have nothing to do with the fair sex. On the other hand I spend just as much of my time with them as I can but only for the purpose of education. They really are interesting but only in the way of research. Few of them have any personality and fewer yet have an ever amount of the gray matter. When you see a woman who has any sense the best thing you can do is to keep just as far away from her as you can. She is the most dangerous thing in the world.

Girls are nice. Most of them have ways about them which at least appear to be nicer than those possessed by boys. They do for playthings and at the same time a fellow acts just as nice as he can because they seem to be so innocent and tender. Sort of like a young flower you know.

I think that girls are nice to have around you because, say that you were surrounded by a bevy of pretty co-eds while you were standing in front of Main some chapel hour. Wouldn't all of the other fellows envy you and wish that they could get away with the women like you can?

Another thing in girls' favor is that they are a work-of art, I guess it is. Anyway they are a most refreshing sight when all dolled out in their best rags. They sort of make a fellow look himself over to see if his clothes are pressed good and that his shoes are shined.

I have heard some people say that girls are not good for a thing in the world. After the most intimate search I believe that I am perfectly competent to say that they are good for a great many things. Girls are good to be liked, taken to shows and sweet shops, to dance with, to be loved, petted and kissed.

They are the best kissers a fellow can find—or probably wants to find. I have studied this point exhaustively and know that my conclusion is true. I have never enjoyed kissing any of them but did it only to find out the difference in the way they do it. Believe me there is some big difference too. I could name a dozen of more different and distinct kinds but I do not care to as I have already mentioned too many good points of the fair sex.

Anyway they are the greatest thing in the world for a fellow to study. They have many more different angles for research work than has any subject taught in the class room and I am going to stay on the job until I find out all about them. As soon as I find out any new things they are good for I shall tell you.

PRICE FIVE CENTS.

GIRLS DEBATE WITH WASHBURN FRIDAY

Question Relative to the Monroe Doctrine Will be the Subject of Argument by Best Woman Debaters.

IN AUDITORIUM AT 7:30 O'CLOCK

The girls of Washburn college and the Kansas State Agricultural college will debate the question "Resolved That the Monroe Doctrine as Developed and Applied by the United States Should be Abandoned as a Part of Her Foreign Policy," Friday evening, March 3.

It will be a dual debate. Members of the Washburn team in the order they speak in Manhattan will be: Alvis Clayton, captain; Audrie Myers and Antoinette Dean. The Aggie girls debating at home in the order which they will speak are: Wilma Burtis, Louise Ziller and Marge Thompson, captain of the team. The K. S. A. C. debating at Washburn will be Mary Polson, captain; Fern Roderick and Lois Witham. Miss Estella Boot, assistant professor of the English language, will accompany them.

The judges at Manhattan will be Professor F. A. C. Cowper of the University of Kansas; Professor E. R. Haret of the Kansas State Normal and Albert Humphrey of the Westport high school, Kansas State, Mo.

"No educational institution in the United States has woman's debate developed as well as it has been in the Kansas State Agricultural college," said Dr. J. R. MacArthur, associate professor of the English language and debating coach in talking of the coming debate.

"Twenty-four girls are members of the squad and 18 will make their 'K' this year. One of the most encouraging features of debate in this college is that of all the women who debated last year not one who returned this year has failed to go into it again—everyone has stayed in the game.

The debate will start promptly at 7:30 in order that society members may attend it before going to the class parties.

TRACK MEN PLACED IN THREE EVENTS

Frizzell Made Best Record by Getting First in Jump at Six Feet Two Inches.

With a first, second, and a third won in the annual indoor track meet of the Kansas City Athletic club at Kansas City Saturday night, the Aggie track men are well satisfied with their team for they encountered the open competition of the best track men of the country.

It was in the high jump that the Aggies made their big victory. Captain H. H. Frizzell in competition with Jo Loomis, the Chicago star, in his favorite event, Pittam of Missouri, Treweeks of Kansas, won the event with a creditable leap of 6 feet and 2 inches. Pittam placed second. The Chicago star and "Frizz's" opponent of the Aggie-K. U. Dual meet divided their honors. It would appear that Frizzell will have his own way in the Valley meets this year in this event.

Ross B. Keys was the dark horse for the Aggies in the meet. Keys won second in the 1000 yard dash and had he started his sprint sooner, would no doubt have won first place. Keys runs a good consistent race and should make many of his opponents step in the "half" this spring.

Watson Collier, a freshman, placed third in the 50 yard dash against the best dash men of the country. He was defeated by Ward of Chicago and Mahl of St. Louis in 5 2-5 seconds. This is within 1-5 seconds of the world's record for this event. Collier's high school record of 10 seconds in the 100 yard together with this record will make him an invaluable addition to next year's team.

Teetr placed well up in the mile considering that he had been training for a longer distance. The mile was won in 4:35 which is specially good for an indoor track.

Seeber ran in the half which was won in 2:02. Seeber is also in training for a longer distance which together with such speed as 2:02 placed him down in the results.

Vandenburg and Wilder each placed in their heats in the low hurdles. Van was in the semi-finals but lost his footing and lost out in the finals. Crumbaker showed good in the dashes but it was too fast company for him.

The Aggies won the relay from Nebraska but were beaten by K. U. in 3:35. Gradfield, Essick, Holroyd, and Turner ran for the Aggies and they made much better time than what was made in the K. U.—Aggie meet.

A NEW FRATERNITY HERE?

Reported That Sigma Kappa Tau Is Organizing at College.

It is being rumored that the Sigma Kappa Tau fraternity, a social organization, would be established at the college soon. The organizers have not applied for permission from proper college authorities as yet, according to Dean W. M. Jardine, who is advisor to fraternities at the college. Permission must be obtained before any student organization can exist and it is probable that if the rumor is true the new fraternity has as yet no permanent organization.

BASEBALL MEN TURN OUT FOR PRACTICE

More Than Twenty Men Showed Up for the First Out Door Work on the Campus Last Week—Coach Bender is Satisfied.

BASEBALL SCHEDULE IS OUT

Now that the basketball season is almost over the followers of athletics at S. A. C. may turn their eyes toward the great national pastime as played on the college diamond.

Since the first of the winter term Athletic Director Bender has been trying out the aspirants for positions on the varsity nine and just now everything looks the best in the world for the production of one of the best basketball teams this school has ever produced.

During the fine afternoon last week a squad of almost twenty men were working outside, catching flies, running bases, and practicing batting. Everything worked out well too, according to Coach Bender. The seven old letter men back sort of steadied the youngsters and made them realize that if they were to make the team they must show something other than the "small town" variety of play.

The schedule for this year as far as made out at present is a heavy one, ten games being played at home and seven on foreign fields.

The schedule for baseball and track follows:

April 4, Kansas Wesleyan here.
April 7, Ames here.
April 8, Ames here.
April 14, Open.
April 22, Chinese University here.

FIFTIETH ANNIVERSARY SERVICE

Birthday Service of Y. W. C. A. Will Be Held March Seventh.

The fiftieth anniversary service of the Young Woman's Christian association will be held at the Congregational church Thursday evening, March 7, at 7:30 o'clock. Mrs. Mary Pierce VanZile, dean of the division of home economics, will preside at this meeting. J. E. Kammeyer, professor of economics, will speak on "The College Woman and Democracy." Incidentally he will mention the work of the Young Woman's Christian association.

A processional under the direction of A. E. Westbrook, professor of music, will be a feature. This will be the finest of the jubilee series of meetings. The same service will be given in all the large cities of the United States as near March 3 as possible.

The girls in the processional and the ushers will all be dressed in white and wear badges of the jubilee color—dark blue and light blue.

John Hepler at Iowa.

John V. Hepler, '15, is teaching agriculture in the high school at Iowa. A new laboratory has been equipped for the department of agriculture of which a detailed description was given in a recent edition of the "Jampoon," the paper put out by the department of journalism in the school. Experiments are not all carried on in the laboratory, however. Plots of ground are furnished on which experimental crops are planted. There is every indication that Mr. Hepler has his students interested and is making a success of his work.

SADDLE AND SIRLOIN CLUB HOLDS CONTEST

Organization of Animal Husbandry Students Will Give Eleven Prizes at Their Third Annual Contest Next Saturday.

EIGHT CLASSES OF STOCK

The Jayhawkers Saddle and Sirloin Club will hold its third annual stock judging contest in the pavillion Saturday, March 4, beginning at 1:30.

Eleven prizes will be given by the club. The first prize is a gold medal, the second a silver medal, and the third a bronze medal. The remaining prizes will be taken from a list of fifteen books which are of special interest to stockmen. The person winning fourth place gets the first choice of one of the fifteen, the person winning fifth place gets second choice, etc. In addition, Professor Paterson is offering to the contestants making the highest score on sheep, a valuable book on "Sheep Farming in America" by Craig. There will be eight classes of stock, two of sheep, two of hogs, two of cattle and two of horses. Twenty minutes will be allowed for each class; twelve for placing and eight for writing the reasons.

Professors Wentworth, McCampbell and Paterson will act as judges of the contest.

The contestants will be divided into four sections. Hale, Wilhoit, Gwin and McIlrath, men who have represented K. S. A. C. on the stock judging team, will each have charge of a section.

Negative Team Won For Each of the Societies Saturday Night.

The Lincoln and Hesperian societies held joint debates Saturday night in their respective halls. The subject under discussion was: Resolved that the United States should place an embargo upon exportation of arms and other munitions of war to the belligerents. In each case the negative team won.

The judges of the debate were Miss Root in the Lincoln hall and Professor H. W. Davis in the Hesperian hall. The debaters for the Lincoln society were: R. C. Keys and G. R. Giles, affirmative; W. A. Naher and Ray Ferree, negative. W. G. Oehrie and W. D. Sculley, affirmative, Roland Mather and M. A. Hake, negative, acted for the Hesperian.

AGGIES OFF ON LAST TRIP.

Will Meet Warrensburg Normals and Washington University.

The Kansas Aggie basketball team accompanied by Coach Carl J. Merner, will leave here this afternoon for Warrensburg, Mo., where it will play the Warrensburg Normals on Thursday night. From Warrensburg the team will go to St. Louis to meet the five of the Washington university on Friday and Saturday nights in two Missouri Valley conference games.

These three games will wind up the basketball season for the Aggies. The Merner troupe expects little trouble in annexing all three of the games.

MAKES EDUCATIONAL SURVEY.

College Dept. of Education Collects Information About Manhattan.

A study of Manhattan with reference to population, government, taxation, public utilities, health, churches and schools is being made by the department of education of the college. The information is being collected under the direction of Lee R. Light, a graduate student of the department, who has obtained special permission to send out questionnaires through the schools to the homes of the city.

The object of collecting the information is to aid the community and the schools. No information collected will be made personal. The Manhattan schools are not directing the survey but are giving access to their records for the information concerning the school phase of the work, according to E. B. Gift, superintendent of city schools.

T. W. Benner, instructor in veterinary medicine, has obtained a micrograph with which he has the typewritten notes in animal physiology copied for the students. A whole term's notes sell for thirty cents.

FOOTBALL PRACTICE PROGRESSES

Squad of More Than 12 Aggies Report for Duty Each Day. Spring football practice at the college is progressing satisfactorily, says Coach Bender. A squad of more than 12 men is reporting for practice each day. The squad is being run through signal practice. Other elementary forms of football work are being given to the men.

Coach Bender says the weather will have no effect on the practice. If it is too disagreeable to practice outdoors, the squad will be brought into Nichols gymnasium. With the basketball season at an end, there will be plenty of room in the gym now for the football men. Coach Bender is anxious to get the spring football practice out of the way by the time the baseball season starts in earnest.

Course in Play Ground Work.

A course in play ground methods will be given spring term by G. S. Lowman, professor of physical education and director of physical training. Play ground methods, equipment, and games will be taken up. Many senior girls expecting to teach are planning to take this as an elective.

WHAT IT USED TO BE.

According to This Student College Days Have Changed Somewhat.

Reentering a college after forty years of life as a merchant and horticulturist, Morris Ables, of Leavenworth, aged 60 years, now a student at the college, says that "the thing that surprises me the most is the fact that things are so quiet. Were it not for the massive buildings on every hand, and the occasional scurrying past of groups of boys and girls with books, one would almost imagine that this school here was an extra session of the Y. P. S. C. E."

Forty years ago Mr. Ables finished a course at the University of Michigan. Later he was a merchant in El Dorado, Kansas, and some sixteen years ago began fruit raising in Leavenworth county. He realized the need for special training in his work, and consequently enrolled here for a course in horticulture.

Speaking of conditions in the University of Michigan when he was a student there, Mr. Ables tells of how the students employed their time at the post office, waiting for the mail from home. When the two or three saloons in town were unable to cope with the business of these idlers, volunteers from the ranks of the students went behind the bars, and helped out.

"Here in Manhattan such things as pitching a freshman in a blanket or holding his head under the town pump, have been omitted from the curriculum, and are no longer considered essential to a college education," says Mr. Ables. "The labors of a bunch of boys to transport a husky donkey to the chapel, or to steal the bell from the main building, are frowned upon, and do not receive credit when the time for final examinations come."

"One by one these ancient customs of education have been eliminated, until now a college is only a place in which to learn."

Class of 1918 Will Dance and Play in College Gymnasium.

The class of 1918 will hold its annual winter term party in the college gymnasium Friday evening. Like the other classes this year the sophomores have broken away from the old form of entertainment and will have a mixed affair of which games and dancing will be a part. Daquet's orchestra will play for the dancers.

The date committee of the evening desires that every one have their dates turned in by Thursday morning at the latest so there will be time for assignments to be made to those who are too bashful to make their own dates. Not having a partner will not be accepted as sufficient reason for any member of the class not being present Friday night and the committee in charge of the affair urges every one to be present whether they have a date or not.

Professor N. A. Crawford, Miss Blanche Enyart, Miss Florence Hogue and Professor and Mrs. J. O. Hamilton will act as chaperones for the evening.

Notice Organization Committees.

All copy and pictures must be in the hands of the Royal Purple Editors by 6 p. m. March 10th. It is an absolute necessity that all copy be in by this time.

HIGHWAY OFFICIALS HERE FOR CONFERENCE

County Engineers and Road Overseers Gather For Short Course. In Road Building and Maintenance.

EXPECT A HUNDRED TODAY

Forty county engineers and road officials from all parts of the state, had registered for the short course in road building and maintenance, at the college yesterday. W. S. Gearhart, state highway engineer, believes that by tonight there will be one hundred men here to attend the conference.

The bad condition of the roads acted as a factor both for and against a larger crowd. While the condition of the state highways is arousing the engineers to more interest in their improvement, yet by that very condition many were prevented from coming.

Registration began at the engineering building at 3 o'clock Monday afternoon. At 4 o'clock, President Waters made an address of welcome to the visiting engineers. Talks by E. C. Johnson, head of the extension division, and A. A. Potter, dean of the division of engineering followed.

An illustrated lecture and smoker was given at the Commercial club rooms down town, Monday night.

Yesterday was taken up with a series of papers on questions pertinent to the business of the engineers, by experts from the college, and county engineers. A. R. Losh, assistant state engineer, H. B. Walker, drainage and irrigation engineer W. S. Gearhart, state engineer, and P. J. Freeman, assistant professor of applied mechanics, were the college men on the program.

C. F. Osborne, county engineer for Howard county, S. N. Hawkes, assistant and attorney general of Kansas, and T. J. McDonald, chief engineer for the Iowa Highways commission, made the other talks.

The work will continue in the same fashion today.

L. E. Conrad, professor of civil engineering, J. T. Kincaid, president of the Kansas Good Roads association, and J. K. Coddington, warden of the Kansas penitentiary, are additional speakers on today's program.

The meetings will close Saturday.

GIRLS BASKETBALL THURSDAY.

First of the Games to Decide Who Will be Class Champions.

The senior girls' basketball team will play the sophomore girls' team Thursday, eighth hour, in the big gymnasium. The freshman girls will play the junior girls at the same time. The results of this game will determine who will be the contestants in the next game as the winners of these games will play each other next Thursday and the losers will play the losers.

TO WEST POINT VIA K. U. GYM.

Student Hopes to Pass Test After a Year of Physical Training.

Lawrence, Kan., Feb. 29.—Physical training taken at the University of Kansas may be the means by which the ambition of Harold Thorpe of Lakin is realized.

For years young Thorpe has read stories of military and naval heroes. He took the examination to Annapolis Military academy last year and passed the educational tests with honor. He received the appointment from Kansas but when the physical examination was made he was not able to pass it.

On Thorpe's arrival at the University of Kansas last fall he began work in Robinson gymnasium to fit himself for the West Point requirements. Last week he was notified of his appointment to the national military academy and because of the rapid improvement of his physical condition under the gymnastic training at the University of Kansas, he is confident that he can qualify and realize his ambition to enter West Point.

A. S. M. E. Meeting Thursday.

There will be a meeting of the A. S. M. E. tomorrow evening at 7:30 in the engineering amphitheater. The program for the evening will consist of demonstration of the Oxy Acetylene and Thermit processes of welding metals. No doubt these will be of interest to all students of engineering and the association desires every one to attend.

OPEN COLUMN.

Collegium Editor: Dere sir, why ain't there no justis at this scool i want to kno for pursonel reasons. We have here a military dept which they sez is one of the best in the U. States and i want to know what fur.

Them rookies is never around when they had otto be and i never seen one of 'em do nothing wirth wile when they was around, in the way of akeeping order or nothing else. They don't nevr do nothing only walk around on the campus where and when they is told to do so by on of them officers which is another thing i can't see no use of if the rookies ain't got sents enough too shot a gun they had ought to of never came here, cause they can't pass examinations without no more sents than that. some time sinst a few of us was having a little party, and every thing was going fine as silk for a wile, and then the refreshments was gone some other bunch had just naturally swiped the hole caboodle, and ther we was with our girls and nothing to eat so much as a pickle they left us. which was a downright sorry trick say i and more lik me. and what did the bosted military ever do about it you got the anser right. O. And we caled up headquarters and we couldn't even git no ansr to th fon- and i want to kno if this unprotected condition is a going to keep on and continue so to speak, and if they ain't going to be nothing did about it, what for is the K. A. C. military Indignunt.

Editor of the Collegian:

I notice that you are running an open column so I would like to take advantage of it.

I have noticed that many of the students of the college, who are headed for the New Ag. or for the poultry farm, in time of wet weather in coming from Aggieville or in that direction, go up 13th street as far as Thurston Ave. and then turn into the college grounds.

I asked one of the students the reason he went out of his way. He said that the road on north of Thurston Ave. was so muddy that it was much easier to go out of his way and thus miss the mud.

The college has a cinder walk leading from the New Ag. east to 13th street and then north to the poultry farm. Why couldn't this walk be just as well carried south to meet the cement walk that ends at Thurston? Besides being a great help to many of the students it would be a benefit to many pedestrians who go that way.

LOSE LAST MISSOURI

GAME BY 12 POINTS

The Tigers Came Back in the Second Game Here Saturday Night and Took the Long End of a 22 to 10 count.

WAS EXCEPTIONALLY FAST GAME

In the fastest game ever played on Nichols court, the Tigers, Saturday night recovered from their defeat of Friday evening came away with a final score of 22 to 10 in their favor.

But in winning the game they learned that "The Aggies Fight!" was not an everyday platitude for they were forced to fight for every point.

From the first, the Missourians, rebuffed less on group playing which had forced them to the defensive the night before. At the twelve minutes the score stood 3 to 3 when Captain Wear called time out for a Tiger conference. They went back into the game with more offensive.

The Tigers forged ahead of the home team after the first twelve minutes of play, piled up a lead of 13 to 4 in the remainder of the game.

The Tigers negotiated six field goals and ten free throws while the Aggies placed only four field counters. Adams, with two field goals and three free throws, was the star point taker for the Aggies, while Captain Wear with ten free throws headed the Tiger list.

The first half was featured by the work of the Aggie guards who struggled against the determined Missourians that the Aggie goal shooters might have a chance. But the Aggies seemed unable to find the basket, and, pulling their field goals many good shots fell short of the mark.

While Missouri seemed to be especially lucky on shot goals from the field, Hyde made two spectacular goals from center field in the first half, was the geautre of the game.

Missouri was finding the basket on free throws and taking advantage of the Aggie fouls. It may be said that the Tigers won the game on the fouls made by the home team.

The Tigers in Saturday's game were the first team to intercept Aggie passes on the Nichols court this year. The Reynolds-Adams machine was conspicuous for its absence and the Aggies seemed to be unable to connect with the tip-off.

In contrast to the game of the night before, when the Tigers made only two fouls throughout the game, the Tigers broke loose in fouling. But the Aggies were unable to score by the free throw route, Adams making two shots out of nine tries. On the other hand, Wear tossed ten free throws out of sixteen chances for Missouri.

Several gymnastic stunts were put on the floor. Despite the seeming abundance of pep, possessed by Hyde and Williams they found that Ramsey always came out on top and he sometimes found it necessary to leave an opponent sprawling in his wake. Ramsey and MacMillan played an exceptionally cool headed game at the guard positions.

With the game safely in their hands the Tigers played only for time in the last five minutes of the game, with apparently no end in view but to keep the Aggies from scoring.

In the last eight minutes of play, Coach Merner sent Gunning, Van Trine and McIlrath from the side lines to relieve Adams, Reynolds, and Leanord.

In Society

Pi Beta Phi Cotillion.

Pi Beta Phi sorority gave the first formal spring party of the year Friday evening when they entertained with their annual cotillion in Harrison hall. The orchestral platform was enclosed with a lattice work of pastel shaded roses, and banks of palm and ferns. The archway between the reception rooms and dance floor was made into an old-fashioned gateway with white trellis and laden with flowers. In the reception rooms were several cosy corners made of flower covered trelliss.

Punch was served during the evening from a rose bower erected in the reception room.

Favor dances were the feature of the evening. The first was a "hoop dance" during which the girls caught the boys with hoops. Another was one in which the girls wore varicolored paper boas and the men paper dance caps. In the "flower dance" the girls wore pink and red garden hats and the men were given tiny violet buffeniers. White caps and aprons were worn by the girls in the "domestic science special," the men wearing farmer straw hats. In the "Cinderella dance" the men matched the girls' slippers, and in the last dance, the "Mardi Gras," confetti was thrown, horns blown and whirly-gigs tossed into the air.

After the dance the guests went down stairs where luncheon was served at tables arranged in the form of the Greek letter Pi, and decorated with colonial candle sticks with pastel shades and ropes of German ivy. The chaperones for the evening were Mrs. F. A. McConnel, Dean Mary Pierce Van Zile, Professor and Mrs. E. L. Holton, Dean and Mrs. C. M. Brink, Professor and Mrs. C. M. Vestal and Mr. and Mrs. Charles Lantz. Out-of-town guests at the party were Misses Elizabeth Mills, May Kemper, Gertrude Harling, Jane Kingan of Topeka; Wilma Updegraff of Maple Hill; Helen Robinson of Lawrence; Bess Davis and Harriett Kinney of Atchison, and Josephine Scherle of Kansas City.

Silver of Quality

There is a whole lot of difference in silver, and it is not always as good as it looks.

In selecting our stock we look beneath the surface. That is, we buy only goods that will stand the test. We buy from manufacturers who are willing to put their stamp on the goods and stand back of everything they make.

Our silver is known as the "SILVER OF QUALITY," the kind of silver you want on your table—the kind of silver you would give your friends.

If you are not familiar with our stock and the attractive prices at which it is marked, you certainly owe it to yourself to visit our store.

IDES OF MARCH WILL BE CELEBRATED HERE

Motion Making March 15 a "Rough-neck Day" Passed Three Classes Thursday and All Must Wear Old Clothes at That Time.

DIRE PENALTY IF YOU DON'T.

"Rough-neck day" is to be observed on the "Ides of March" (March 15), according to a motion passed by the great and learned seniors at their class meeting Thursday. Representatives of the senior class were immediately dispatched to the meetings of the freshmen, sophomores, and juniors to "talk the thing up" and secure their cooperation.

The freshman and sophomore classes heartily sanctioned this move on the part of the seniors and likewise passed a motion to cooperate with them in setting aside March 15 as a day on which the students of the college should appear on the campus attired in such a manner that their own mothers would not know them.

The senior representative who was going to the junior class meeting lost his way and reached his destination too late for the proposition to be voted on that morning. All of the juniors talked to express themselves as being heartily in favor of the plan and it is most probable that the measure will pass the class at its next meeting.

It is the plan to make this an annual affair. The idea is to have the students come to school on this date dressed in the worst manner possible, even to such an extent that "Weary Willie" would be put to shame should appear on the scene. It is hinted that dire vengeance will be meted out to those who dare to show themselves on the campus not attired according to regulations.

The memorable Caesar was warned by the soothsayers to "beware of the Ides of March!" He did not heed the warning and on March 15 he was assassinated by his bosom friend. It is said that retribution will not be carried quite so far, however, but a word to the wise is sufficient. "Beware of the Ides of March!"

CHARLES DILLON OF TOPEKA MAKES TALK

Former Head of Journalism Department Addresses Students Here Thursday Morning.

"One of the most important parts of the farm papers today is the department run for women," said Charles Dillon, ex-head of the department of journalism here and now managing editor of the Capper farm publications, in speaking before the students of journalism Thursday morning.

"Father may sit back in his easy chair at night and read the paper but there must be a department which will interest the women. It is they who renew the subscription."

No more are these departments run by women who know nothing about what they are writing but are the product of technical knowledge and experience of the women who edit them. No expense is spared as the lady editors may go to any part of the state for knowledge on some subject or may purchase magazines and papers at the expense of the publishers they are working for in order that the articles may be the best.

"The matter of 'making-up' a farm paper is no more a matter of guess work," Mr. Dillon went on to say. "Each issued is planned months ahead and every advertisement and reading article is placed long before the date of publication."

"The ads must carefully placed. One should not have an advertisement of women's ready to wear apparel opposite an ad for patterns. Put ads as close to reading matter relating to the same kind of things as possible."

40 FOOTBALL WARRIORS OUT.

Bender Experts Squad of 60 Will Be Out by Next Week.

A squad of 60 husky football warriors are expected to be out for practice by next week, according to Coach Bender. The coach already has issued 40 suits to football men and he expects at least 20 more to come out for practice.

The men who have reported for the spring practice are the members of last fall's freshmen team and also some new men. So far the old men have not reported. The spring practice is moving along nicely, says Coach Bender.

Efforts are being made to secure a game with either Baker or Salina Wesleyan on September 30 in view of the fact that the coach is anxious to have his men play two games before they meet the Nebraska eleven on October 14. A game early in the season will give the coach a better opportunity to look over his material, it is said.

FUTURE OF THE COLLEGE STUDENT IS DISCUSSED

Dr. Newell of Illinois Says Technical Knowledge Is Only Eighteen Per Cent of Success.

"The Future of the College Student" was the subject of an address given by Dr. F. H. Newell, professor of civil engineering at the university of Illinois, before the student assembly Friday morning.

"For how much do you suppose a technical education counts in the success of life?" said Professor Newell. "It counts about 18 per cent. The rest, about 82 per cent, is made up of good common, horse sense—one of the most uncommon articles in the market. The youngsters in college are eager to get out and get to work. All of us are looking forward to tomorrow, to the coming events, rather than to what is near us today."

"We are too anxious about the future as regards the particular things we are studying. All successful men soon learn that the college course makes very little difference in our future if we have the ability to grasp the opportunities as they come, if we only have the vision to see and the ability to take hold of it."

"I think it is perhaps a mistake we make in colleges in asking the young man what course he is going to take at the beginning of his college course—at a time when he is least qualified to judge. That choice tends to narrow his thoughts in a rather deep rut. An educated man must keep out of the ruts, and yet not be so broad as to be superficial and so deep as to be narrow. He must get out of the ruts of habits and get on the smooth running rails where the opportunities seem to offer."

"Our education is really getting our vision so broadened that we can see the doors of opportunity standing around us so that we may know to take advantage of them or when to take the door or take hold on the right knob. That is the great object of education. It is not to make you experience in one particular line, but that you may see all the opportunities that come along."

Professor Newell emphasized the need of learning to speak and write the English language correctly, so that when one had a good idea, he could express it and make an appeal to others in such a manner that they will understand him. It was stated that one should have good command of his English that he may be able to utilize his knowledge when occasion requires.

MEETING OF ENGINEERS CLOSES THIS MORNING

H. C. Bilger Will be Last Speaker of the Session—Many in Attendance All Week.

The conference of highway engineers which has been meeting at the college since last Monday, will close this morning, with an address by H. C. Bilger, a road engineer with the state highway commission.

The programs of the meetings have been made up of a series of addresses given by experts in the care and building of roads. The engineers of the civil engineering and extension departments of the college have been on the program several times for lectures and demonstrations.

Most of the addresses have been given in the engineering amphitheatre of the engineering building but the night sessions have been held in the Old Chapel.

The attendance at the meeting was not as large as had been expected when it was planned. It is believed that the sudden "cold spell" was responsible for the light attendance. Some forty officials and men interested in highway development, from all parts of the state, have been present during the meeting.

The "Why" of It All.

The measles germ gave 105 college people a rest this term, according to records. One instructor explains this by the fact that there was one young man in the Nichols gymnasium on the first registration day, who had the measles. It is thought that there are some students in college who would like to meet this young man and "sympathize" with him.

WASHBURN TAKES BOTH ENDS OF DUAL DEBATE

Topeka Co-eds Corral two Two-To-One Decisions, and Walk off With the Honors of the Bout.

BANQUET AFTER THE DEBATE.

Washburn co-ed debaters took both ends of the dual debate with the Aggie co-eds on the question of the abandonment of the Monroe doctrine, last night. The decisions were two to one in favor of Washburn, at both places.

Avis Clayton, captain of the Washburn team, is a freshman in the straight college course at Washburn. She is a member of the Kappa Kappa Phi sorority and comes from Hill City. While in high school Miss Clayton did considerable debating.

Audrie Myers, second speaker on the Washburn team, is a sophomore and is taking the straight college course. She comes from Seneca, and is a member of the Beta sorority.

Antoinette Dean, third speaker on the visiting team, is also a sophomore in the college course at Washburn. She comes from Smith Center. Miss Dean is a member of the Kappa Kappa Phi sorority.

Madge Thompson, captain and third speaker of the Aggie team, is a junior in the home economics course here. She is a member of the Zeta Kappa Psi debating sorority, Forum, Quill club, Y. W. C. A. cabinet, Ionian literary society, and won her third college "K" in debate last night.

Wilma Burtis, first speaker on the home team last night is president of the senior class, vice-president of the Y. W. C. A. member of the Zeta Kappa Psi debating sorority, member of the Forum, Eurodelphian, and one of the six prettiest girls in K. S. A. C. according to the senior beauty contest.

Louise Ziller, second speaker on the Aggie team, is a junior in the home economics course, member of the Forum, and member of the Browning literary society.

Dr. J. R. Macarthur, debating coach, went to Topeka yesterday to hear the Aggie girls support the negative of the question that was debated here last night.

The Zeta Kappa Psi sorority entertained for the debaters last night. Harrison's hall was the scene of the banquet.

Prof. J. W. Searson presided at the debate. Miss Fern Preston, of the Eurodelphian society gave a violin solo.

TYPES OF ROADS EXHIBITED.

U. S. Department of Agriculture Has Interesting Display.

An interesting exhibit of types of road construction is being made in the road materials laboratory of the college this week by the office of public roads of the United States department of agriculture in connection with the conference in highway engineering.

The exhibit shows the construction of the old Roman Appian way, earth roads, sand-clay roads, gravel roads, and macadam roads; the use of bricks and asphalt blocks in road construction, and the construction of concrete and slab reinforced concrete bridges.

Zane Fairchild, senior in dairying, went to Hutchinson last Thursday on business.

EXTEMPORE CLASSES TO MEET IN CONTEST

Preliminary Tryouts to Choose Representative Speakers Now in Full Swing.

The preliminaries for an extemporaneous speaking contest to be held the last of the term are now in full swing in the public speaking department. These tryouts began a week ago and will continue throughout next week. A week later will follow the semi-finals.

Each of the three classes in extempore speech is divided into three subdivisions. The elimination for the final competition starts with these subdivisions, two speakers being selected from each. To the six thus chosen is added a seventh who will be selected by the instructor in charge. These seven speakers compete in a semi-final tryout at which time three speakers are chosen who will represent the class. The three speakers thus selected will meet three speakers similarly chosen from each of the two other classes. There will be nine contestants in the final competition.

The speeches in these contests are five minutes in length and are extemporaneous. They are not, however impromptu speeches. The material is prepared beforehand, but the words are chosen at the moment of speaking. The student seeks to present his ideas in the most effective manner, gauging his treatment and delivery by the needs and possibilities of the occasion.

"It is remarkable the amount of good solid matter that can be packed into a five minute talk," says Professor Emerson who is in charge of the department. "Likewise remarkable is the amount of interesting anecdotes and humorous narrative that the student manages to work into that solid matter to make his talk delightful. Time-saving treatment is compact treatment and the student soon learns to accomplish a great deal in a short time."

Members of the classes are acting as judges in these preliminary contests. The following persons, having won first and second places in their respective sub-divisions have so far qualified for the semi-finals: Miss Wilma Burtis, H. A. Muir, Miss Hannah Campbell, Wm. Campbell, Miss Velma Carson, I. O. Moll, P. R. Pharr, H. B. Dudley, James J. Huey, O. N. Davis, C. E. Lovett, and Sam C. Sherwood.

FRESHIES AND SOPHOMORES WIN OVER UPPER CLASSES

Class Championship for Girls now Seems a toss up Between First and Second Years.

The first lap of the girls' class basketball was covered Thursday when the sophomores won from the seniors by a count of 17 to 9, and the little freshmen trimmed the mighty juniors to the tune of 13 to 3.

Although freshmen as a whole, are said to be green the juniors did not find them so in the art of playing basketball. Elsie Bonnie, playing forward for the first year squad, was the star player of the day, gaining the entire count of 13 points allotted to her side. It seemed that it was almost impossible for this co-ed to miss a basket and even when she did manage to fail it was only to catch the ball as it came down and make sure of the ring and two points then.

The seniors did not find the sophomores such easy picking in their game. When the first half closed, the count stood eight to nothing against the fourth year people. All kinds of pep was gained from some unknown source for the second period and the battle was much more interesting after this.

Neva Anderson was the star for the sophomores, making half of their 19 points. The brightest light the seniors could show was Grace Currie who played a good consistent game and made seven of the total tally of nine.

Next Thursday at 4:30 o'clock the freshmen and sophomores will play off the last game and the class championship for 1916 will go to the winner of this contest.

A NEW TRACTOR TO COME.

Adams, Dickson and Burrows People Will put One on Display.

Word has been received from the Adams, Dickson and Burrows company in Kansas City that they will send the engineering department one of their Leader tractors. The tractor will be of the 9-15 type or the 12-18 type. The tractor will be sent by the Dayton-Dick company of Quincy, Ill. The tractor will be sent from the factory in Illinois and will be demonstrated before the engineering students at the traction shed, before the short course closes.

Bull Tractors Exhibit.

C. O. Morris, factory expert for the Bull tractor company, has been demonstrating the Bull tractor to the short course engineering students. All members of the college are invited to be present at these demonstrations. They will be held from eight till five thirty o'clock every day.

Miss Louise Price and Miss Ora McMillan are doing demonstration work for a gas company in Concordia. They were sent out by the college to do this work.

Notice Organization Committees. All copy and pictures must be in the hands of the Royal Purple Editors at 6 p. m. March 10th. It is an absolute necessity that all copy be in by this time.

AGGIES TAKE GAME FROM WARRENSBURG

Battle Thursday Night on Enemy's Territory Lacked Much of Being as Easy as Some of the Valley Games Have Been.

SCORE WAS CLOSE: 39 TO 23.

In a fast game between two well matched teams, the Aggies defeated the Warrensburg Normals Thursday night at Warrensburg, Missouri, by a score of 39 to 23.

The Aggies took the floor shortly after the beginning of the first half and had piled up a lead of 25 to 10, before the intermission. The feature of the first half to the Warrensburg rooters was the excellent interference of the Merner five with which the Missourians were not able to cope.

Adams' fine goal tosses, daringly tossed from center field, was one of the greatest assets to the Aggies for they were playing against a team which makes a point on every free throw. The little Aggie captain was playing a good game and it was his success on goal shooting together with the strong guarding of the Aggie five which defeated the Warrensburg quintet.

The report to the Collegian was necessarily short and details of the game cannot be given. The officials were: referee, Quigley; umpire, Red Brown.

ENGINES IN PRACTICAL USE.

Tractors are Being Used for Work by the Agronomy Department.

The members of the special class of traction students in the engineering course have been putting the engines through actual work on the agronomy farm during the last week.

Tuesday the Avery tractor was placed in charge of the students and was used to haul clover for the agronomy department. The other tractors have been used during the last week baling alfalfa. This gives the students the chance to learn all the different phases of the operation of tractors under different conditions, and places the entire responsibility of the correct operation of the tractors upon the students.

"I have been very well pleased with the way that the men have handled the tractors under actual working conditions," says W. H. Sanders, instructor in farm motors. "I turned the machines over to them and they were required to keep the engine running up to speed required by the pitchers and to keep it running steadily. I was very well satisfied with their work."

PROF. SEARSON SEES BALLET.

Russian Ballet in Chicago Pleased English Instructor.

J. W. Searson, professor of English attended a Russian ballet while in Chicago. The productions he enjoyed the most were the Petroucha and the Scheherazada.

"There was not a word spoken on the stage for three and one half hours," said Professor Searson. The wonderful music of the classical orchestra, the graceful movement of the dancers and the magnificently painted scenes told the story.

"To me it was simply a wonderful production of art and it was in this light that I watched the dancers, listened to the music and marveled at the marvelous scenery."

"It was the most exquisite harmony of color, sound and movement I have have ever known."

ZETA KAPPA PSI BANQUET.

Girls' Honorary Entertain for Visiting Debaters Last Night.

The Zeta Kappa Psi girls honorary debating sorority gave a banquet for the Pi Kappa Delta men's honorary debating fraternity at Harrison's after the Washburn-K. S. A. C. debate Friday night. Other guests were the Washburn girl debaters and their coach, Professor and Mrs. J. W. Searson, Professor J. G. Emerson, Dr. J. R. Macarthur, Dr. Mary T. Harmon and Miss Grace Derby.

The room was prettily decorated in palms and ferns. Red and white roses were on the tables and violets were used as place cards.

Miss Eva Townsend acted as toastmistress. Toasts were responded to by Doctor Harmon, Professor Searson and Professor Emerson.

DEBATE TRYOUTS.

There has been a great deal of discussion in regard to whether or not the tryouts for inter-collegiate debating teams should be open to all students. The students who participate in inter-collegiate debate receive a "K" for the work. Is it fair that these students receive a "K" for this work when they do not represent the college out only the literary societies?

Upon inquiry it was found that in six out of eight colleges, picked at random from a large list, debate is open to all students. Letters from Purdue, Pennsylvania, Colorado, Indiana, Michigan and Wisconsin, stated that debate was open to all students in the college although in most of these colleges it had recently been taken out of the hands of the literary societies.

The interest in debate seemed to be increasing in the colleges in which the tryouts are open to all students, according to the letters, while interest in debate was decreasing in the colleges where it was under the supervision of the literary societies.

Are you educated? Why, of course, you will answer. I have gone to college four years, I possess a degree and I did good work throughout my course. Am I educated? Why, certainly.

A University of Chicago professor thinks differently. He gave a class the following list of questions, and said that the persons who could answer them affirmatively would, in his opinion, be educated.

Here are the questions:
Has education given you sympathy with all the good causes and made you espouse them?

Has it made you public-spirited?
Has it made you a brother to the weak?

Have you learned how to make friends and keep them?
Do you know what it is to be a friend yourself?

Do you see anything to love in a little child?

Can you be high-minded and happy in the meanest drudgeries of life?
Are you good for anything yourself?

Can you be happy alone?

Can you look out on the world and see anything except dollars and cents?

Can you look into a mud-puddle by the wayside and see a clear sky?

Can you see anything in the puddle but mud?

Can you look into the sky at night and see beyond the stars?

Are you as educated as you thought you were?

Some of the young people in college do not have much respect for what the older people they know have to say. Many of the students are of the opinion that because these older people have never had a college education that they do not know very much. Certainly when it comes to general knowledge the men and women of fifty and sixty years of experience in this world are far ahead of the student with fifty or sixty hours of credit for subjects marked passed on his card.

A short time ago an elderly man was talking to a student. The student mentioned some of the affairs he had attended lately, and how the basketball team was coming along on the hill. At last the older man looked at the student for a short time, then said, "Harry, what are you here for—always remember that."

The next afternoon the student was talking to a friend and mentioned the incident and remark the old gentleman had made. That student went on to say that before the advice had been passed to him he had thought the giver a sort of old fogey but now he saw that he himself was the dense one.

That student had never thought before about why he was here. His folks had wanted him to attend college and, as he had heard of all the good things connected with college life, he decided to come, never thinking of what was really the object.

Now this young man is just as popular as ever with his crowd as he was before he received the advice, and is much more popular than before with instructors. He knows why he is here, and gets the most from every angle. He is receiving education because he is up and is thinking for himself. He does not take everything for granted now but reasons them out for himself just as he did about the old gentleman's remark; "Harry—what you are here for—always remember that."

Y. W. C. A. HONORS WOMAN.

Grace H. Dodge Was one of the Most Valuable Workers.

The life and work of Grace H. Dodge, head of the Young Women's Christian association, was the subject of a recent meeting of the Y. W. C. A. Jubilee series. A memorial collection was taken by the association March 2.

Memorial collections taken by all Young Women's Christian associations of America will be added to a fund left by Grace Dodge. Interest in this fund is used on the national association budget.

Miss Dodge, who is said to have been the greatest least-known woman of her generation, was the daughter of William E. Dodge, Jr., of New York. In this city she lived her 58 years of Christian citizenship. Her death occurred December 27, 1914.

Miss Dodge's simple statement that she was a working woman whose wages were earned in advance was the keynote to the use of her vast inherited fortune.

After being graduated from a woman's school at Farmington, N. Y. she at once began to assume the responsibilities which later grew to statesmanlike proportions. That she was not a college woman was always her regret, but her school was life and people, especially working girls into whose cause she threw herself unreservedly.

Her principal interests are briefly told as follows: When largely through the influence of Dwight L. Moody, who was often entertained at her father's home, she began to turn her attention to the organized philanthropic work, one of the first things to claim her active service was the state Charities Aid association. Out of this grew, somewhat later, the Consumer's League, which she was instrumental in founding.

She founded in New York City, the first Working Girls' clubs ever formed, which have since developed into a nation-wide chain of industrial clubs, under the auspices of various organizations, such as the National League of Women Workers, the Young Women's Christian association, etc.

Following her establishment of the Kitchen Garden and the Industrial Education, she founded Teachers College in New York City, and thus virtually installed the whole existing system of vocational training.

She was one of the first two women on the Board of Education of New York City.

By her support in its earliest stages she helped to make possible the entire organized movement against vice conditions in this country and abroad. She continued her constructive interest by serving on the American Vigilance Committee and the committee of its lineal descendant the American Society for Social Hygiene; and also by doing more than any other person towards founding Travelers' Aid Work.

She was president of the American Board of Trustees of the American College for Girls in Constantinople and gave herself unsparringly to its support and administration during the crucial years of the Turkish Revolution.

One of her latest and most absorbing interests was the Young Women's Christian association. To the presidency of its National Board she gave the greater part of her time during the last eight years of her life. These were years of extraordinary growth and standardization. Miss Dodge lived to see the National Board and its Training School for secretaries housed in a building of its own in New York City—outward symbol of the sound establishment of this organization for the building of Christian young womanhood. Her last piece of work was thus the grounding of an organization which should strike at the roots of all problems affecting the lives of girls—always and forever her greatest concern.

Grace Dodge gave in the later years of her life, from $85,000 to $98,000 annually toward the National Y. W. C. A. budget. Interest on a fund of $500,000 was left by her to the National board.

Get Dates Far Ahead.

Some of the organizations have been unusually early in obtaining dates for spring term social affairs. This is due to the crowded condition of the schedule of social events at the end of this term and the inability to procure choice dates.

M. E. Hartzler, '14, spent Saturday and Sunday visiting with his sister, Miss Nancy Hartzler, who is attending college here, and has been sick with the measles. He is working with the Inter-state commerce commission with headquarters at Kansas City.

D. C. Wiley, assistant in the experiment station, returned Thursday from Oklahoma.

ESTES PARK CLUB FORMED.

Twenty-nine Members of Local Y. M. C. A. Make up Membership.

Tuesday evening 29 of the Y. M. C. A. boys met at the Harrison cafe and organized the Y. M. C. A. Estes Park club. There were sixteen of the boys that signed the active members pledge. This pledge says: "I will agree to try to go to Estes Park student conference, by beginning now to remove all obstacles that might keep me from going. I will try to take another fellow with me. To meet at such times as the club designates."

Those who are charter members of the club are: B. Q. Shields, C. J. Speck, L. G. Abele, Henry Bondurant, J. E. Taylor, W. W. Smith, W. H. Portland, Willard Welsh, F. L. Rimbach, Fred Robb, S. L. Sweet, S. Fairman, Waldo Heppner, R. H. Parsons, D. W. Wooley, and Floyd Hawkins.

Those who have been to Estes Park conference signed the associate membership list and are as follows: C. L. Howard, E. I. Maris, J. R. Neale, C. U. Howard, L. N. Moody, H. B. Baycr, R. H. Whitnack, Jack Kiene, J. A. Hull, Walter Ott, F. B. Kelley, Paul Gwin, A. E. Jones.

After the banquet was served several of the boys who had been to Estes Park and Secretary McLean told of the value of the trip and the things that they got from it. During the banquet pictures of the mountain scenes near the Y. M. C. A. conference grounds, and some of the hiking parties were passed around.

Last year K. S. A. C. had one more man there than did K. U. This year K. U. is trying to beat the Aggies, but the boys here don't intend to be beaten.

Value of an Education.

Boys and girls to whom a job looks more alluring than an education should ponder over what a wealthy farmer told the editor of the Hays Free Press the other day. He said that he would gladly give 320 acres of land, worth $20,000, for an education. Commenting on the statement, the Press says: "While he had great accumulations of property, he felt himself poor. He was a beggar in an educational sense. Yet we have seen young people standing around refusing to take advantage of present opportunities. Each day spent in school is worth $10 to any person in the future. Any young man who has completed a 12-year course has at his command—if he will use it—an asset equal to $21,600. Remember school tests and tool chests are valuable."—Ex.

Six Reasons for Avery Tractor Success

STUDY over these special features in the design and construction of Avery Tractors and you will know why so many men are buying Avery Tractors. There are more acres plowed by Avery Tractors and Plows than by any other make. What they are doing for others they will do for you. These are some of the reasons why it will pay you best to get an Avery:

First—Avery Tractors have a special sliding frame which makes possible the elimination of the intermediate gear, shift and housing. An Avery Tractor has the least gears, the least shifting and the least bearings of any two-speed, double-drive tractor built—whichever means power and longer life.

Second—Avery Tractors have two rear drive wheels and two axles—a big advantage over single-drive and one-speed tractors.

Third—Avery Tractors have low-speed, heavy duty opposed motors—not high-speed, light automobile motors.

Fourth—Avery crankshafts are one-half the diameter of the cylinder or more. There has never been a broken Avery crankshaft.

Fifth—Avery motors have renewable inner cylinder walls. If the parts can be replaced or re-dressed without having to buy complete new cylinders.

Sixth—Avery Tractors are entirely free from vibration.

more than forty men had already checked out suits they were much handicapped by the weather. He went on to say that the squad looks as good to him right now as did the first bunch he had to handle when he came here last fall. If that is the case and considering that the great Stiehm has left Nebraska it might be that the Cornhuskers would not have such a romp through the Valley games as they have been used to for some time.

"To allay all rumors in regard to any post-season basketball games with Nebraska," said Athletic Director Bender yesterday, "I wish to say that there will be no request for a post-season series so far as the Aggies are concerned. Nebraska closed her season February 26 when she played her twelfth game, her twelfth victory. Her team has disbanded. Nebraska has won a clean cut championship and is entitled to the laurels."

OPEN COLUMN.

I take this method of notifying the young lady who had the honor of going with me several times and then jumped the job on the evening of the big "do," after I had bragged to the fellows of my date, that she is fully forgiven.

Oh, Susanna, come back and be my little subeame once more—come back and we will let the "dead past bury its dead."

When we had our little disagreement I did not realize as I do now that you should not be held strictly to your dates—because you are young and should be given a chance to have a good time. I did not take this into consideration, in my criticism, the fact that you were still in the royal flush and heyday of life.

Where I erred was in dividing the blame. The blame should have been divided into two equal parts, leaving me to bear one part and conscience the other, instead of forcing you to bear the burden as I did.

In our little dispute I made many harsh and unfeeling remarks which I now wish to retract. I said you were as unprepossessing as a mud fence. I had never seen a mud fence but I have since had the pleasure of viewing one and I will recall my statement. You are not as ugly as a mud fence.

I said that your singing was vocal contortions and likened it unto the melodies poured forth by a shingle mill. It was not my higher, better nature that spoke but my grosser, more human nature, that asserted itself. You do not sing like a shingle mill, that is not so much as to deceive the cultivated ear. Your voice is sweeter, has more volume and when your upper register is closed is mellower than any shingle mill I ever heard.

Those who read this humiliating note may make callous and unfeeling comments about it. But Susanna, if these submissive concessions come before your eyes, think them over, consider them seriously and do not longer hold yourself aloof from one who is still,

Yours truly on his knees,
HYRAIME DON PAYGO.

DANCING SCHOOL.
Every Saturday night, Youngcamp Hall, Aggieville. School from 7:15 to 10:30.

The sophomore class at their meeting Thursday voted to make March 15 a "rough neck" day which is to be an annual affair. The seniors originated and adopted the idea and then sent representatives to each of the other classes to talk it up. The sophomores must appear in his tackiest clothing. The penalty for not doing so was not definitely decided.

$15.00 and $18.00 is what you can buy a new up-to-date Spring Suit for at Miller's.

William Orr, '10, and Eula McDonaid Orr, '12, are living in Porto Rico, where Mr. Orr is pastor of a church.

And Now It Is All Over

The Promising Journalist is Sadly Dissatisfied and Owing to the Shame he Thought had Been Sent on Him the Profession Lost an Exceptionally Good Man.

The amateur journalist came to breakfast with a blithesome heart. So jubilant were his thoughts that his breakfast was neglected. His fair left-hand neighbor hoped he was not ill, but his unfeeling roommate remarked, "I know what's the matter with him, he expects to have one of his humorous stories published in a Kansas City paper today."

The embryonic author blushed to the roots of his hair and silently consigned all such cruel tormentors to oblivion. He felt too happy to be long troubled by such occurrences and bore them all with bravery and fortitude.

He carried his usual load of volumes on bacteriology, genetics and forage crops up the hill with out a murmur. His acquaintances thought, that morning, that the student was not long for this world. He seemed strangely confused on some subjects and gave unintelligible answers to all questions.

He tried to find time that afternoon to go to the house after the mail but he had to find time, instead to write up a long article about milking machines. At last this irksome duty was performed and he hastened down the hill with a light heart and a merry step. He was so interested in his thoughts that it did not even break the train of his visions when he caught his foot in a patent fence bracing device and "pied" himself.

Upon entering the house he tried to assume a listless air and casually remarked that he wondered if there was any mail for him. He was handed a peculiar looking envelope with the name of a Kansas City firm in the corner. Bright visions flashed through his mind. He saw, in his mind, a fabulously large check and an offer of a position at an immense salary. He imagined that in a few weeks he would be driving an expensive black and red automobile down the street. By his side would sit a certain young lady of his acquaintance. It was a beautiful picture and one that would naturally have the tendency to induce a man to leave his happy home.

He retired from the company so that he might enjoy his great treasure in private. Time passed and he did not reappear. Search was instituted with no success. At last on the floor of the hall was found the envelope containing two unblemished postage stamps and a letter which read somewhat as follows:

"Dear Sir: Enclosed you will find two postage stamps, one to pay for your story you sent us and the other to pay for any other information you might possess. Your compositions are valuable to us as we can use them as examples for our reporters.

We can hang them up and label them, "How NOT to write stories." In short it was to all appearances somewhat of a slam on the student's ability. But this was the only trace of the fugitive that could be found.

At length a man reported that just after dusk as he was crossing the Kaw river bridge a figure was seen to leap from the railing, there was a splash and a faint cry and all was silence. The cold dark waters had closed over the young head with its glossy curls. The sweet blue eyes of the ambitious journalism student were closer forever. The silvery ripples murmured on in the flickering moonlight as if they could not tell the tale of darkness and despair that was hidden beneath them.

The "Silver" brand collars and lin-cord eyelets hard to get away from. Miller sells them.

OPEN COLUMN.

Editor Collegian: After reading the article, "A Woman Hater's View-Point," in the last Collegian I also have come to several conclusions.

To my idea the writer of such an article has not an over sufficient supply of grey matter himself. As I read the article I wondered why he should avoid the sensible girls—or those with the grey matter as he terms it. As a matter of fact I am assured that he would have a difficult time "keeping up" with these girls. In fact he admits it by saying that they are dangerous.

He isn't in any immediate danger of coming in contact with this type of a girl, and I fear that after a time he may be found out by the other levy of pretty co-eds when they discover that they are being kissed "just for experiment." Sad as it may seem his "studies" will desert him from jealousy and his research work will come to an end. The waiting world will never know the other good points of the fair sex.

Editor Collegian: It was, I assure you, with extreme delight that I saw that you had published my first communication to your valued column, on the young lady who seemed to exert so remarkable an influence on the wild animals in the park, that the squirrels followed her across the campus. But I have heard that the communication in question was made the subject of some remarks in one of the classes in English on the hill, wherein, so I understand, I was characterized as a silly schoolgirl, and my contribution to your column as sentimental mush.

I want to ask what is our educational system coming to, when the sincere outpourings of a heart attuned to recognize beauty and charm, and a nature capable of paying homage to them, receive such treatment? I may be only a schoolgirl, and I may be silly, but would not this dreary world of ours be the better for some of the "sentimental mush" which I wrote once before?—E. A. S.

The track men are spending their outdoor practice in cross country runs until the cinder track is ready for them. Quite a number of men were out for a cross country run Monday afternoon.

The senior girls have challenged the Varsity basketball team to a "game of cats" which will be staged, on a court particularly fitted for the occasion, at 917 Laramie street, on March 13. It is rumored that second string men will not have to wait for the second half to get into the game. Captain Adams will call the whole squad out for double practice to be prepared for this event. Coach Mermer has been asked to referee.

"We have won the conference championship and that ends all the arguments so far as we are concerned," said Manager Guy E. Reed, of Nebraska University to a Star correspondent last Saturday night.

"Eight of Nebraska's games this year were played on the home floor. Last winter we played eight of our twelve games away from home, including two at Manhattan and two at Lawrence. We won the two at Manhattan and lost the two at Lawrence, but Nebraska did not question the right of K. U. to the title, nor did the Cornhuskers suggest a post-season series. This year's Nebraska record speaks for itself."

And there are others who are speaking about the Nebraska record besides the record itself. They may be of und in the Tiger, Kansas, and also in the Aggie camp. The suggestion of post season games has not been made by the Aggie camp alone, for Missouri too has asserted the justness of such a series.

The score of the Aggie-Nebraska games allowed them for conference marks for Nebraska. However, considering the open assertion by the referee that the games were beyond his control, the Aggies have weight to their statement that they did not lose the games. Further, those games which were played on an undersize court can only favor that team, which regularly plays upon it.

The Aggies are not hard losers. Their standing in the conference is that of a clean team in all sports, game in the fighting, and with a ready, hearty hand to congratulate that team which by sheer force and skill is able to outclass them. That fighting spirit has been caught up by the Aggie rooters in their slogan "The Aggies Fight," and the Wildcat is a worthy mascot, representative of that same tenacity.

It is that same spirit which rebels at the decision of an official who freely acknowledges that he did not officiate correctly, when the placing of the conference is at stake. Whether the championship goes to Nebraska, Missouri, or is the Aggies is not a question so far as the Aggies are concerned on this point. It is whether or not that "record which speaks itself" is above question. If the Nebraska can defeat the Aggie team on a basketball court when there is a referee at work, the Aggies will be the first to give that championship decision in the Cornhuskers' favor their hearty accord.

AGGIES WILL PLAY FIVE GAMES ON HOME GROUNDS

Homecoming Day Will be Observed on November 11, When Missouri Comes to Manhattan—Washburn here Thanksgiving.

ENTIRE SCHEDULE ANNOUNCED.

Eight games, five of them on the home field, will be played by the Kansas Aggie football eleven next fall, according to the completed schedule for the 1916 football season which was announced by John R. Bender, director of athletics at the college, Monday morning. The Aggies will meet three Missouri Valley elevens.

The Aggies will play the Baker, Southwestern, Emporia Normal, Washburn, and Missouri university teams on College field. The season will begin one week earlier than usual, a game being scheduled with Baker university on September 30. The object of this early game is to give the coach a better opportunity to look over his material before the game with Nebraska Cornhuskers on October 14. It also is hoped that the game will prove an incentive to the men to return early in the fall for practice.

Homecoming day will be observed on November 11, when the Missouri university football eleven will come to Manhattan. This is the first time the Tigers have invaded Manhattan for football in a number of years.

In accordance with the new ruling of the Missouri Valley conference board, a Thanksgiving game has been scheduled. Washburn will be in Manhattan on Turkey Day, November 30, to play the Aggies.

The schedule follows:
Sept. 30, Baker university at Manhattan.

Oct. 6, Southwestern college at Manhattan.

Oct. 14, Nebraska university at Lincoln.

Oct. 21, Kansas State Normal at Manhattan.

Oct. 28, Kansas university at Lawrence.

Nov. 11, Missouri university at Manhattan.

FINISHED SEASON BY WINNING THREE GAMES

Aggie Basketball Five Comes Back
From Eastern Trip After Taking One Game From Warrensburg and Two from Washington.

THIRD PLACE IN THE VALLEY.

With a hard fought game won from the Warrensburg Normals and two comparatively easy victories from Washington University at St. Louis, the Aggies have returned from their last tour of the season.

The last game of the schedule was played against Washington University Saturday night. The Aggies have a record of seventeen games with fourteen victories awarded to their credit, losing one game to Missouri and also two at Nebraska.

These three games which were lost in the conference places the Aggies third, Missouri placing second with two games lost, and Nebraska claiming first with a clean-cut record of twelve victories out of twelve games played in the conference.

"The Warrensburg team was fast," said Frank Reynolds, forward on the regular varsity five. "That was all that they depended upon in their playing. We were able to force them to defensive playing in the first half. Adams threw three field goals, and Ramsey one, and I had a lucky streak with six field goals and two free throws, with a record of 19 out of the first half, the score stood 25 to 10 in our favor.

"In the second half the Warrensburg team came back with strong offensive play. Menze, for Warrensburg, is a whirlwind goal shooter on free throws, with a record of 19 out of 20 tries in one game. In the second half, by throwing ten free throws he was able to better their score considerably. He missed the basket five times out of 18 during the game.

"In our games with Washington University, the teams were lined up about the same size. The big guard, Grossman, who played here was not played in the game. Capt. Berry, who in the game. Captain Berry who played guard here, was playing forward, and they had two fast men at the guard positions. This placed Berry in his right position for he was playing wonderfully good basketball.

"But these two games, compared with the Warrensburg game, were slow. The first night, and especially in the first half, Adams was playing an exceptional game. MacMillan and Ramsey were doing some good guarding throughout the game and were forced to keep busy by the opposing guards.

"In the second game, Washington played the same line up. But Mermer shifted Gunning to right guard in place of MacMillan, and McIlrath played Leonard's position at center. MacIlrath led on goal shots in this game. Ramsey was showing his fighting spirit at the guard position, playing favors to the basket.

"In the last ten minutes, MacMillan was substituted for Gunning, and Van Trine for Reynolds. None of us were playing our best in these games, for we had traveled all night on the Missouri Pacific from Warrensburg and naturally we were dead on our feet."

But it was Van Trine who perhaps saved the day for the Aggies in the last game when he was substituted for ten minutes of play. The score was at a narrow margin of 18 to 19 in the Aggies favor when Van Trine came into the game with lots of fight. Before the final whistle he had widened the breach with two free throws, a field goal, and Adams scored his favor for another two points.

Captain Berry of the Washington University five played his last college basketball game against the Aggies Saturday night. He ended his career with a wonderful game according to the Aggie contingent. The failure of the opposing team was not because of his failure for he was playing the game of his life. "He played a great game," was Reynolds statement, "and he really made some of us fellows look slow. We would have to get down and play hard if we bucked a five of men playing as he was."

MUST ACCEPT CHALLENGE IF YOU ARE TO SUCCEED

That Success Depends More Upon the Mental Attitude of a Man Than Upon Capacity Is Statement of Dr. Guild.

TEAM WORK IS IMPORTANT.

Team work should be the slogan of the community churches says Dr. Roy B. Guild of New York who spoke to the student assembly Friday morning on the subject "The Challenge of that Church at Home."

"The man of today who is worth while, is the one who can see a thing, and see in that thing a challenge," said Dr. Guild. "The people who are worth while are those who accept the challenge and succeed in that direction. Success or failure depends more upon the mental attitude of a man than upon his capacity."

"There are two classes of schools in this country. There are schools that have as their aim, self-improvement, mere development with the thought centered upon what the student can get out of the school for him or herself. The other type of school has not merely the thought of self-improvement, but the thought of service."

It is this type of student, pointed out Dr. Guild, who will see and accept the challenges that come to him when he returns to his home community. One of the main challenges of any community is the church.

"We have fixed up our homes, our farms, our roads," said Dr. Guild, "we have fixed up all these things but we have not fixed up the church and it does not appeal to us. The next thing that will be a problem will be the services of the church. We are running our church services very much as we ran them fifty years ago. Then there is going to be the challenge of the church cooperation."

"The reason the church has not progressed and has not accomplished the best results is because of a lack of cooperation. In so many of our communities there are so many people who are keeping their own little prejudices, and who play their 'one-old-cat' religion in their little back yard."

"Get these people to catch the larger vision. Go to work to beat the devil or his representative that puts up to you the challenge of your community or home town. Get the churches to play the game together against the forces of unrighteousness, and they will accomplish things worth while."

THEY REALLY COULD COOK.

And Some People Even Thought Demonstrating was Their Business.

"Their biscuits were as good as I can make," said many Concordia housewives last week. They had been eating biscuits prepared by two girls from K. S. A. C., who were demonstrating in the city.

"The high school domestic science classes watched us and wrote down everything we did or said in their note books," said one of the girls. "We weren't a bit fussed because the Concordia papers had called us 'professional demonstrators,' maybe we are."

AGGIE CADETS MAY GET COMMISSIONS

Lieutenant Matthews Believes That the Mexican Crisis, on Further Development, Might Offer Opportunities.

U. S. INVADES "UNOFFICIALLY."

Veteran cadets of the college may have an opportunity to step into commissions in the regular army, by a short cut, if present developments in Mexico continue to the point where there is an actual invasion of that country, according to Lieutenant L. O. Mathews, commandant of cadets.

When asked last night if there was a possibility of his being ordered to join his regiment, Lieutenant Mathews said that he thought it hardly probable. My regiment, the Fourth," said Lieutenant Mathews, "is on the border now. But in case of an emergency, it is probable that the officers now on detached duty would be ordered to recruit, and recruit rapidly, where they are."

Aggie cadets who have had a large amount of military training here, would have excellent opportunities to secure commissions in the regular troops, if the United States has need of a real army at once, in Lieutenant Mathews' opinion. "Some of the men are to be recommended for examinations for commissions, by the orders of the war department, in June," said Lieutenant Mathews, "and it is probable that in a crisis they would get their commissions anyhow."

Yesterday's papers told of the dispatching of five thousand United States troops across the border into Mexico, under command of General Funston, with orders to bring Villa back, dead or alive. It was the sentiment of the administration at Washington that Villa must be killed or captured, and his murderous forays stopped, whether Carranza was willing to have the United States do it or not. Troops were sent across the border before Carranza was communicated with in regard to the matter. Later, however, a Washington dispatch said that it was believed that Carranza had consented to the unofficial invasion by American troops.

The danger of serious war does not lie in the pursuit of Villa. Although he is reputed to have 1500 men with him, there are enough United States regulars to deal with him. But armed resistance on the part of Carranza to intervention might cause the need of a larger army than the United States has at present.

The administration regards the dispatching of American troops into Mexico as a "punitive measure" rather than an invasion, and it is said that the procedure is justified by an old treaty with Mexico.

FINAL ORATORIO REHEARSAL THURSDAY

Preparations for Big Musical Production are Complete—Four Soloists Here Monday.

The final rehearsal before the production of the concert of "Elijah" was held Thursday evening when all the singers of the local society and the entire orchestra met in the auditorium. Mrs. R. H. Brown was present at the rehearsal and played over several very beautiful and effective accompaniments on the harp. This is a new feature of the entertainment planned for Monday night.

The Clay Center chorus which is to assist the local musicians in the big production will arrive early Monday afternoon so that they will be here for a special rehearsal with the soloists from Chicago that day. The chorus from Clay Center must return on the 10:30 train so the concert will begin at 7:30 o'clock.

A platform raising the orchestra nearly even with the stage has been built and with the chorus arranged on raised seats the music will be heard to the best possible advantage.

In speaking of the concert yesterday Professor Westbrook emphasized the one remark, "The concert will be most enjoyable."

One of the English professors at the Kansas State Agricultural college, asked one of the boys in his class, "what three words are most commonly used by students?" This boy replied "I don't know." "You are correct," said the professor.

SUMMARY OF AGGIE BASKETBALL SEASON

Fifteen Victories Out of a Schedule of 18 Games is the Record of Coach Merner's Prodigies for the Season Just Closed.

THIRD PLACE IN THE VALLEY.

With 15 victories out of an 18-game schedule the Aggie basketball squad has completed a successful season of basketball. In 18 games the quintet registered a total of 619 points as opposed to 342 points made by their opponents.

Nebraska claims first place in the Valley with twelve victories out of twelve conference games; Missouri places second with one game lost to Aggies and one to Kansas University, and the Aggies place third with one game lost to Missouri and also the two at Nebraska.

In the conference games played—four with Washington university, four with Kansas university, two with Missouri university, and two with Nebraska university—the Aggies made 126 more points than their opponents, 35 points as against 229 points.

The Aggie basketball team owes much to the careful coaching of Carl J. Merner, better known to the squad as "Coach Carl Jawn" whose ability to handle men brought forth their best effort. All of the team were undoubtedly stars but they did not sacrifice team work for starring and team work is what counts in basketball.

While the All Missouri Valley team has not been picked, Adams and Reynolds are two of the best forwards in the valley and MacMillan and Ramsey have played as good at guard position and as Missouri Valley guards which were seen in action this year.

Following is a list of the Aggie games played this season:

Senior in Animal Husbandry, Eureka, Kansas.

"Cap" Adams, the midget forward in the Missouri Valley and apt material for the all-Missouri Valley team, was at the head of the Aggie five. "Cap" earned his third K this season.

Fast floor work was the feature of all his playing. The first Missouri game in which he tossed 16 points of the 27 scored for the Aggies, was his best game of the year. In this game his floor work and speed were almost perfect.

Reynolds is closely seconded for high point taker by Adams' 205 points. Adams holds first on free throws with 45 baskets out of 79 tries from the foul line. The team loses a hard worker and player by the graduation of "Cap" Adams.

FRANK I. REYNOLDS Junior in Agriculture, Mulvane, Kansas.

Frank Reynolds, right forward, and with a good chance to be chosen for the all-Missouri Valley team, is the high point taker for the Aggie squad with a season record of 230 points—100 field goals and 30 baskets from 57 tries.

And those field goals from Reynolds' hands!—They're wonders, just when you are not looking for them, on long drives from center field or in a dash from around or under the arms of a guarding opponent.

Reynolds won his second K this year and will be on the court next year as the senior member of the "machine."

EARL RAMSEY Senior in Animal Husbandry, Solomon, Kansas.

"Slim" Ramsey was the undisputed star scrapper of the year's quintet. The Missouri Valley team is not an impossibility to this game fighter who was the strongest advocate of the Aggie slogan on the court this year.

"Slim" did his playing away from home last year. His ability to cover the floor, dribbling at a rapid pace was a feature in every game.

He graduates this year. Ramsey is one of the best guards of which the Aggie camp has ever been able to boast.

R. I. MACMILLAN, Junior in Dairy Husbandry, Kansas City, Kansas.

Although "Mac" is not a sensational player, he plays the heaviest game of any of the Merner men—a fact borne out by the opponents who attempted to thwart his guarding. Followers of the play agree that better guarding was not in evidence in the conference this year.

"Mac" plays either the ball or the man. He can do either effectually and he graciously accommodates his opponents with which ever style of play they choose. He tumbles them over if he feels like it. MacMillan will be in the squad next year with plenty of the same fight.

L. A. LEONARD, Senior in Civil Engineering, Wamego, Kansas.

"Wamego" Leonard at the tip-off position was able to get the jump on every tip-off whom he opposed, save Cole of Kansas university. In addition he pocketed 34 field goals for the Aggies.

Leonard was one of the biggest factors in winning the two K. U. games at Lawrence where played some of the basketball of his career. He would have undoubtedly starred more had it not been that he was seriously handicapped by broken arches.

"Big" Leonard's graduation deprives the team of a man who gave the purple and white his best effort.

R. A. VAN TRINE, Sophomore in Electrical Engineering, Salina, Kansas.

"Rough" Van Trine is a second string forward who started the season with much promise and ended it with a flash which is indicative of the good basketball which he is capable of playing.

At St. Louis last Saturday night, when the score hung on a balance, the Aggies out of form from traveling, and eight minutes to play, Merner sent "Rough" into the game.

With cool headed playing, he saved the game by shooting three baskets out of three tries, a field goal and passed a favor to Adams for another two points.

Substituted for forward chiefly at the close of the game, he has a worthy record. Watch out for Van Trine next year.

HARRY A. GUNNING, Senior in Horticulture, Kansas City, Kansas.

Harry Gunning, second string guard, was no doubt only kept from the regular team by reason of no practice last year when he was out of school.

While he was overshadowed by the other guards, when he was called for in the first Missouri game to replace Ramsey, he made good big. He made one goal in that game which was as sensational as any on the floor this year.

Gunning's playing was of high order for it takes much more than an average man to play second string to a 1916 Aggie five.

C. F. McILRATH, Senior in Animal Husbandry, Kingman, Kansas.

"Judge" McIlrath was the high court of appeal when it came to defensive playing this year. He played center position as substitute for Leonard. He did more playing last year when Leonard was forced to drop out because of broken arches.

McIlrath has been a big asset to the squad. His aptness on defense however was not so much in need this year as last, but the new pep which he brought into the game substituted was always evident.

JAY H. CUSHMAN, Junior in Agriculture, Emporia, Kansas.

"Fat" Cushman, second string at forward, is another scrapper whose playing this year, when substituted for the chances of next year's team, for the chances of next year's team.

He follows close with Van Trine on points at the Washburn game played at Topeka which was played by second men entirely. Cushman is a fast player and he may develop in to the Adams of next year's team.

WORSE THAN VERSE.

O, what care we for women's smiles?
My pipe and my mill and I?
What care we for the siren's wiles?
As the busy years roll by?

The family man, unlucky chap,
With cares and worries galore
Can ne'er taste the sweets of a bachelor's life
His existence is one long bore.

My pipe and my mill companions are;
A meal ticket and a friend.
They've wandered with me far and near While grief did me attend.

The solace offered by my pipe,
Has never failed me yet.
When inspirations fruit is ripe,
My mill's my one best bet.

Then here is to that faithful twain,
Naught else do I require.
My pipe and my mill, I will ne'er disdain
This side my funeral pyre.

So I'll tickle my mill and smoke my fill Till my days of life are o'er
And stick to my mill and my pipe, I will,
Till I reach the other shore.

Editor's Note—In journalese, a "mill" is a typewriter, and the process of "tickling a mill" translated into civilized Anglo-Saxon, means writing on a typewriter.

DANCING SCHOOL.

Every Saturday night, Youngcamp Hall, Aggieville. School from 7:15 to 10:30.

Rough Neck Day.

Let's every one get out and take some pictures next Wednesday—on "Rough Neck Day." If you get some good ones there is no doubt but that the class book would be glad to use them. This is the first occasion of the kind at the college so let's every one get into the spirit of the affair, let your whiskers grow (this means you who have, or are supposed to have, such things) wear the oldest clothes you have and help make the day a general success. Don't forget the kodak either as there will no doubt be some sights worth keeping a picture of in your memory book forever.

"Batter up! Strike one, two, whoopee, Home Run, Hip hip hoorah, hodie!" "My those Louisville slugger bats do hold home runs, and those Reach balls and gloves, look at those Schmetzer shoes grip the grit. Safe two, three, batter out! Wrong dope, poor outfit. Didn't get it at Kittell's. What's on his Umps?"

We have installed another new chair to accommodate you students with quick service. Five men working steady. Rogers & Cooper Barber Shop.

They Fought Anyway.

Although the Aggies did not win the Missouri Valley championship and by the decree of the powers that be take the third honors in the contest, the supporters of the Aggie team have a quintet of which they may well be proud.

The Aggie fighting spirit was not a misnomer as applied to this season's wearers of the purple and white who represented the college at home and on foreign courts. The feature as expressed by those who met them in contest was the wonderful cooperation of the Aggie five.

HOW SHE SPENDS IT.

Some Actual Facts Just as They Were Found by a Reporter.

"Go to Aggieville with me Dorothy? I have some white kid gloves at the cleaners that I want for tonight—Yes I'll take you to the Sweet Shop if you will—that takes my last cent for this week. White kid gloves and candy keep me in a state of poverty." So the co-ed meandered toward Aggieville.

"Speaking of poverty," said a fair senior, vigorously stamping letters at the post office window, "I know I spend more for stamps than anyone else on the hill."

Another interested co-ed standing nearby knew that her fortune flew fast at the cafeteria. Each girl manages to invest her allowance and probably no two consider the same "little extras" essential to complete happiness. Some blame the extra expense of the day for a reduced pleasure allowance. "All my surplus wealth has gone up in fees lately," says one with a frown. "Why there's household microbiology fee, bacteriology fee, cooking fee and some more fees."

Another miss admits that her money is largely invested in dancing pumps of various styles, hues, and tints. "Chocolate double nut sun-dae and movies reduce my bank account," says a sophomore girl. She is followed by another who proclaims Hershey's and picture shows her enemies to wealth and fame.

THE PENTANGULAR MARCH 24 HAVE YOU YOUR DATE?

It Is An Old Story

Although This Short Horn was Taken on the Same Old Snipe Hunt, He did not Play the Sucker as Perhaps You and I did Once upon a time. Remember!

It was a bright moonlight night in spring. The world appeared exceedingly desirable as a summer resort. Nature seemed to have gotten up and humped herself to make the evening perfect. I had returned from supper and was sitting by my window gazing at the tops of the trees, wishing that there was something else to do other than trying to interpret the mysteries of chemical formulae. When someone knocked at my door.

I opened the door cautiously, thinking perhaps I was to have a visit from the mysterious and terrible "barrel stave clan." I was relieved to find that it was only one of my school-mates.

I bade him enter, make himself comfortable in the large red chair with the green cushions and help himself to the red and pink sticks of candy that were lying among a stack of trinkets. He politely declined and said that he merely came to invite me to participate in a little escapade with a few of his friends.

I did not know what an escapade was but I was willing to do anything to relieve the monotonous routine of studying, so I accepted the invitation. My friends casually dropped the hint that it would be necessary for me to contribute the small sum of "two-bits" to the general fund to help pay expenses. I rummaged around in my personal effects, found the necessary finances—also my "lid"—and we started.

After walking several blocks we arrived at my friend's house, where we were to meet the rest of the bunch. My companion courteously ushered me into the parlor and introduced me to the crowd. I could see from their attitude that they had expected me to be embarrassed. But I was not. I ran my hand nimbly over the keys of the piano and expectorated in the large plate glass cuspidor, just to let them know that I was accustomed to associating with the furniture of polite society.

The cuspidor was of a unique and capacious design. It was made of heavy transparent glass and mounted on a pedestal. It was partly filled with water and contained several fish COLLEGIAN—Parsons of a different type than any I had ever caught while fishing. The combination made a useful and ornamental article.

After exchanging a few pleasant remarks to promote good feeling, we started for the timber along Wild Cat creek. As we passed through the business section of the town we supplied ourselves with packages containing materials to allay our hunger.

A delightful stroll of three or four miles brought us to a suitable place for our evening reverie. We cached our grub and cast about for some method of passing the time. One of the party suggested that we have a "snipe hunt." This idea met with great enthusiasm. I did not know the nature of the game but not wanting to show my ignorance I was as much delighted with the idea as any of them.

We went a mile back into the woods where we found a suitable place for the "round up" as they called it. The company voted on who was to have the easiest job. They finally decided that, as I was the visitor, it should be mine.

All I had to do was to stand in an open place in the timber and hold a sack, which one of the party produced, in such a manner as was calculated to be most enticing to the snipe. The other members of the crowd took clubs and scattered out through the woods to scare the snipe in.

It was very lonesome, sitting in the cool, dark depths of the forest, listening to the melody of the deep-voiced bull frog and the long-legged cricket. Ever and anon, the falsetto tremolo of the bleary eyed screech owl would break the monotony of other sounds and recall to my mind the fact that the evening was a bit chilly.

I suddenly remembered that I had been entirely without nourishment for almost two hours and decided that it was time to eat. I hastened back to the cached grub and helped myself. Just as I was starting on the last package of "eats" I heard the gang approach talking in a loud, hilarious manner. I suddenly remembered I had some studying to do. I hurried to my room and locked the door so no one could disturb me.

Before long there came a cautious although firm step in the hall. I was informed that there were several gentlemen in the street who would like to have a conversation with me. I answered that I was a poor conversationalist and moreover I was not dressed in a condition to hold an animated discussion in the street. The person in the hall tried to open the door but when he found it was locked he went down the stairs muttering incoherent words. I fear he was angry.

The gymnasium team will go to Emporia next Friday morning to enter in the triple gymnasium meet which is to be held there Friday night.

Each of the basketball squad and Coach Merner, Lowman and Bender, were pleasantly surprised with a two pound box of candy Tuesday. They were accompanied with the compliments of The Girls' Rooters club.

Guy S. Lowman, head of the department of physical education, will address the presidents of the Kansas Y. M. C. A. Saturday evening, March 18, at Topeka. He has been asked to take as his subject, "Inter-Collegiate Athletics."

Coach Lowman is making plans to have six new tennis courts laid out in the near future. A road will probably be built directly west from the gymnasium to the athletic grounds. The six new courts together with the two old ones will border the proposed road.

Athletic Director Bender is worried about a few of his next year's football stars because of grades. "Some do not seem to understand the importance of keeping their college work up to date despite the repeated urging on my part," said the coach. "We must get down to business on studies. We cannot afford to lose some of our best men for this reason."

The baseball squad had a game on Monday afternoon on the campus in which Coach Bender began his slimming process in the team, putting the men into their various positions.

"Some of the men are looking very good," said Coach Bender last evening. "Dutch" Hewey and "Brecht" Heisen, the two speed merchants, were pitted against each other in Monday's game to good advantage.

"We are banking on a hitting team, and everything else will be sacrificed to get this. If necessary the infield will play the outfield to bolster up the hitting department."

K. Dance for Everyone.

It is planned to make the K dance March 17 as much of an all college affair as possible. Tickets for the big event may be purchased from any member of the K fraternity. The receipts of the affair will go toward paying for the new running boards in the gym. The money for these events was originally advanced by the rooters club.

MANY IN EXTENSION COURSES.

More Than Thirteen Hundred Persons Enrolled in Free Hand Drawing.

More than thirteen hundred students have enrolled in the free reading courses of the Home Study service which is conducted by the division of college extension, since the first of the year, according to M. G. Burton, director of the home service department. There is a total of seventeen hundred students enrolled in the department at the present.

These reading courses treat of a wide range of subjects in Agriculture, home economics, education and industry under the superintendancy of E. M. Tiffany, Frances Brown, M. G. Kirkpatrick and George E. Bray respectively.

The reading courses are prepared especially for busy people and those who have not the time or inclination to undertake a complete line of correspondence-study work. The instruction is all of a very usable nature, dealing with such problems as arise every day in connection with farm and home life.

The reading is designed for the purpose of furnishing specific information which can be immediately supplied in the solution of definite problems. Technical and difficult terms are avoided; everything is explained so that it cannot be misunderstood.

A brief discussion and assignment accompanies the reading together with a few practical questions which are asked for the purpose of laying stress on the more important points. In these courses, there are no textbooks to buy and no fees to pay.

In addition to this large number of students which the extension department is caring for in the free reading courses of the home study service, it has five hundred and sixty-six students enrolled in the extension courses.

The extension courses are arranged in groups so as to form a systematic course for those who wish to follow a definite line. There is a charge of three dollars per subject in this division, but the persistent student who has taken a course of five subjects is rewarded by permission to take any three additional subjects with no charges attached.

The satisfactory completion of the five required subjects of any course together with the three electives, including an examination in each, entitles the student to an extension certificate. However, any single subject set forth in the course may be taken separately without reference to the course.

From Military Department

Few People Realize What are the Real Duties of the Soldier. Each of the Trumpet Calls has a Verse Suggestive of It's Meaning.

The Spirit of the Soldier.

"The supreme duty of the soldier is loyalty to country. Most of those born in this country are not wanting in a sort of patriotism; but for the soldier, a patriotism of the highest quality is so essential that without it he is of little worth. Many men are stirred to temporary emotion at the sight of the flag or at the sound of martial music, and then as quickly forget; but with the soldier, love for his country and devotion to his flag must ever be present and rooted in his inmost being, nerveing and sustaining him not only in the dangers and hardships of war, but in the discipline and training of peace. He should not, therefore, entangle himself overmuch in matters political or social, remembering that he belongs not to a party or class, but to his country as a whole, regarding his supreme duty of loyalty. This duty should have for him the weight of a mountain, while death itself should be lightly considered in comparison.

2. "The soldier must have due regard for the rights of his superiors and subordinates, and his duties toward them. In an army there are various grades of rank, all of which are necessary for efficient and harmonious action. The junior must respect and obey the senior and the subordinate his superior, with ready willingness. Superiors must never be haughty or capricious toward those lower in rank; and severity must be reserved for willful disobedience or carelessness. Dignity is best sustained by implicit and kindness, without undue familiarity. If juniors treat their seniors with disrespect, and soldiers treat their subordinates with harshness and injustice, it is impossible that the army could unite harmoniously as one man in the service of the country. All soldiers of whatever degree must remember that they are associated in a great and honorable service, and that to serve worthily in the station in which each is placed is an honor, in which the private participates as fully as his general.

3. It is necessary that the soldier have both courage and fortitude. Although it is natural for men to shrink from toil and hardship, and to fear wounds and death, the soldier must have courage and endurance, and that far more than other men. He must, therefore, cultivate these qualities, make every effort to make his body hardy and vigorous, and preparing his mind in advance for any demand or sacrifice his country may require of him. He should study and emulate the valor of the men who in time past have fought under his flag, and be ever of his supreme duty to his country, in comparison the death of one man, or even many men, is a very little thing. The soldier's courage should be exercised with judgment and reason. He must never despise his enemy although they be but few in number; nor should he fear even a large number, knowing that strong-hearted determination is always superior to mere numbers. He must not expect to obtain honor in ease and safety. His calling is honorable because it is hard and dangerous, and calls for stronger bodies and minds than are commonly found among men.

4. A soldier must observe the highest degree of truth and uprightness, as well as strict fidelity to all his engagements. His word must be truth and his promise sacred. This must be so, not only because of considerations of honor, but because the sure and successful conduct of military operations depends upon the mutual confidence than can otherwise prevail. To tell exact truth is not always easy, even with good intentions. The soldier therefore, upon whose word or report much often depends, must use great care to state no more and no less than the entire truth. Before making an important promise or engagement he should consider with care whether the thing can be done, and whether the thing ought to be done. But when he has once passed his word, whether with friend or with an enemy, he should be faithful to it, if by any means within his power. By such conduct he will inspire the confidence of his superiors, the respect of his subordinates, and the fear of his enemies.

5. It is the duty of a good soldier to be simple and temperate in his life and habits. This is the only way by which he can maintain strength of body and vigor of mind. Soldiers who allow themselves to become accustomed to luxury are led to extravagance and to too great a desire for wealth. Thus they become weak, false-hearted and ignoble, and forget and abandon the virtues of loyalty, fidelity, and courage, and become unfit for their calling.

These five articles are the spirit of the man of arms; and the true heart is the spirit of the five articles. If the heart be not true good words and good conduct are but useless ornaments. If the heart be true you can accomplish anything.

REVARNISH THEIR ORNAMENTS.

Girls Make Jewelry Look Like New by Gold Plating Method.

Many girls show an interest in silver plating because they have a chance to put a new coat on some worn off silver plated articles or to cover brass and other metal commodities with silver at a nominal cost, asserts W. G. Allee, instructor of physics in the college.

"First the pieces to be plated must be thoroughly cleansed by mechanical means. For a plain surface this takes about fifteen minutes, but for flowered pattern it sometimes takes two hours. All the old silver plate, lacquer and grease must be removed or the new coat of silver will not stick," says Mr. Allee.

"The things are then ready for the plating bath. This consists of a small tub containing silver ammonium chloride and connected with an electric current. Silver ammonium chloride is used because it is safer than anything else suited to the purpose. A cyanide solution of silver does quicker work but it gives off poisonous fumes. When the articles are fixed in the bath the electric current is connected.

"The time required varies with the size of pieces to be plated and the thickness of the plate but average about two hours. When taken out of the bath, the pieces are polished with a chamols skin and some jeweler's rouge. The students pay for the silver used and may single, double, or triple plate as they choose. The average cost of plating a set of knives and forks or a dozen spoons is 75 cents for single and $1.50 for triple plate.

"More than 75 girls take the work this term. Many useful but worn articles had their original beauty restored and others were clothed with bright coats unknown to them before. More than 100 silver and brass thimbles were plated. One set of knives, forks, and spoons was retouched. Many cheap and useful brass pieces have been purchased and dressed in silver. K's of all sizes are popular—the small ones are used for cuff links and the larger ones for fobs. The girls often take advantage of this opportunity to make an old manicure set, that some fond friend has presented, look new again. Only a few girls show their interest by borrowing a penny to plate."

Young man or woman with teaching experience wanted to do educational work during their vacation. Salary paid. Address W. M. Hughes, 28 Columbian Bldg., Topeka, Kansas.

Editor of the Collegian: It certainly made me indignant to read the article, "A Woman-Hater's View Point." Just to think that any boy on the campus should have as low an opinion of the girls as he does! And I'm sure there are many more like him, tho' they might not confess it.

While I do not stand up for the boys who take such "privileges" as mentioned, why do the girls allow such privileges? And such is known to be the case. Why should not every girl hold her self-respect so high, yet above reproach at all times and places, that any boy would be most proud to be a friend to her and to consider her among his true friends? She owes it to herself first, then to those about her, to live up to the best that is within herself. Tho' there are many girls who are doing this, there are also many who are not, and who might well feel ashamed that they have aided the "Woman-Hater" in forming his opinion.

Girls, pull up the standard.
STUDENT.

To the Open Column:

The Collegian has announced that it will put out a "Scandal Edition" the 22nd of this month. Well, that is alright if it is done right. In one way it will be alright but in the other it will be all wrong. If the writers of the articles which appear in the special issue deal only with the truth it will serve to work a great good with the student body as a whole. It will make the students see their faults and do better in the future.

On the other hand, if the issue is filled with stories in which there is no vestige of truth many people will be put in a very bad light. The paper is understood to be reliable about all it prints so I hope that the articles are only the truth and that every one believes them. This will show many people their weak points and thus make them do better in the future.

CHORAL SOCIETY SCORES A WONDERFUL SUCCESS

The Production Monday Evening was No Doubt the Most Wonderful Musical Event Ever Presented at the College.

FOUR CHICAGO SINGERS ASSIST.

Without doubt the greatest musical event ever staged at the college was Monday night when more than 300 singers, under the direction of Professor Arthur Westbrook of the college music department, presented Mendelssohn's "Elijah."

The K. S. A. C. Choral society was ably assisted in the concert by the Choral society from Clay Center and four very accomplished soloists from Chicago and Mrs. R. H. Brown on the harp.

Much credit is due Professor Westbrook for the wonderful musical treat he prepared for the students and faculty of the college and the people of Manhattan. It has been under the direction of this able artist that the Choral society has been built up and that the musicians from Chicago were induced to come here and take part in the program Monday evening. Professor Westbrook has made the music department of the college most prominent over this part of the country.

Miss Hazel Huntley, who was first on the program, has a wonderful contralto voice and gave her selections in an easy, accustomed manner.

Mrs. Ethel Gelsweil Benedict of Chicago is one of the most noted sopranos of the country. Her range of tone and the wonderful control she has over her voice is little short of marvelous. It is needless to say that the entire audience was overjoyed with her part of the program and trusts that she may again favor this school with her presence.

The selections rendered by Mr. C. E. Lutton, baritone, were appreciated to the utmost. It is not often that anyone here has an opportunity to hear a finer singer or a better presented selection of songs than was given by this proficient musician.

Several wonderful numbers were sung by Mr. Worth Paulkner, tenor. Mr. Paulkner has one of the most pleasing voices ever heard here and presents his songs in a most winning manner.

Only the word "wonderful" will describe the singing of the mammoth chorus. The rendering of the "Double Chorus" was especially delightful while each one of the chorus selections displayed much work, both on the part of the people singing and of Professor Westbrook.

Miss Fanchon Easter, on the piano, accompanied the soloists in a most ably manner. No doubt the rendering of their numbers in such a perfect manner was largely due to the excellent work of Miss Easter.

The chorus and recitative selections were accompanied by the college orchestra under the direction of Professor R. H. Brown, Miss Patricia Abernathy assisting at the piano. Miss Abernathy played the most difficult accompaniments with remarkable skill.

Mrs. R. H. Brown assisted on the harp. On the trio sang by Mrs. Benedict, Miss Huntley, and Miss Mae Carley, the accompanying of the harp was especially excellent.

Miss Clara Biddison of the college music department assisted Mr. Lutton in rendering one of the most difficult parts of the program.

THREE MORE WINNERS.

Semi-final Tryouts Adds Three to List of Extemporists.

The first round in the extemporaneous speaking contest preliminaries ended last week. Those qualifying were: Wilma Burtis, H. A. Muir, Wm. Campbell, Hanna Campbell, E. P. Wilson, Winifred Cornic, O. G. Githens, C. E. Lovett, Sam S. Sherwood, J. L. Garlough, Mary Polson, Iva Freeman, P. R. Pharr, H. B. Dudley, James Huey, O. N. Davis, R. F. Coffey, J. E. Tillotson, D. E. Dewey, Velma Carson, and I. O. Moll.

The Monday-Saturday class held its tryout Saturday. E. F. Wilson, H. A. Muir and Wilma Burtis were the winners.

Miss Esther Lyons, '15, of Nickerson has returned to her home in Nickerson after several weeks in Manhattan.

PROFESSOR LEWIS RESIGNS.

Horticulturist Will Superintend Production for Minneapolis Firm.

D. E. Lewis, assistant professor of horticulture and a graduate of the college, has tendered his resignation to take effect April 1. He will enter the field of commercial fruit growing, becoming a member of the firm of Goldstein, Yager and Company, Minneapolis, Minn., though he will continue to make his home in Manhattan for the present.

Professor Lewis will have entire charge of the production phase of the business, superintending the setting out of young orchards, the care of old ones, and the production of fruit.

Professor Lewis leaves a brilliant record behind him, especially in his investigative work. His development of methods of fruit storage will, it is said, practically revolutionize storage systems. Men in all parts of the United States have written to him asking for advice on storage questions. Last summer he installed an apple storage plant for an orchardist in Michigan, putting into practice theories which he had developed but which had never been fully tested. The results have been most encouraging. The fruit has kept almost perfectly and during January there was a variation in temperature of but four degrees.

Professor Lewis is also a recognized authority on means of combating disease and insect pests. The teaching methods that he has worked out in his spraying laboratory classes are commended most highly.

MISSOURI VALLEY ART CONTEST OFFERS CASH

Prizes Will be Given to Persons Submitting Best Designs for Trophies of Inter-collegiate Affairs.

The faculty representatives of the Missouri Valley Conference at a recent meeting decided to offer three cash prizes to be awarded to the person or persons submitting to the conference a sketch of a design which might be engraved or embossed on trophies awarded at inter-collegiate contests in track and tennis held under the supervision of the conference.

The prizes offered are $25 for the best design, $15 for the second and $10 for the third.

The design should be one that in some way is emblematic of Missouri Valley or Missouri Valley athletics, and be of such a nature as to show clearly when used to emblazon cups or plaques.

Sketches submitted for competition should be sent under the following rules:

1. Sketches to be made in India ink on drawing paper 8 1/2 by 11.
2. The name of the designer must not appear on the sketch but the address be placed on a separate piece of paper and fastened with a paper clip to the design.
3. More than one design may be submitted by the contestant.
4. The conference reserves the right to reject all designs submitted if it is found that none of them are of such merit as to warrant the adoption of a design.
5. All sketches must be mailed to the chairman of the committee, J. O. Hamilton, Manhattan, Kan., not later than May 15, 1916.

Prizes will be awarded May 27, 1916.

BAGHDIGIAN LEADING

Race for Space in Industrialist Will Probably Go to Armenian

A race is being staged at present by 26 Students who are enrolled in journalism work. Prizes have been offered to the three students getting the greatest amount of material in the Industrialist. The five leading contestants in order are: B. K. Baghdigian, Wellington Brink, Leo C. Moser, Arthur Boyer, and Miss Dora Otto.

This standing may change considerably before the end of the contest, as the time limit has been extended to take in the first two issues of the paper next term. This extension of time over the original plan is due to the fact that many students have already written valuable articles which, due to lack of space, will not be published until early in the spring term.

Speaks at Salina.

Professor J. E. Kammeyer of the economics department spoke before a large crowd in the convention hall at Salina last Sunday night on the subject, "Limitations of Arment."

Mr. Glendon Allvine, a senior in law in Kansas university, visited Manhattan friends over Sunday.

ROUGH NECK DAY BEING OBSERVED BY EVERYONE

Both Students and Faculty Members Show Their Fear of the "Ides of March" by Donning Old and Curious Costumes.

MANY PADDLES IN EVIDENCE.

Today is the "Ides of March" and many and varied are the costumes to be seen on the hill. One may see every kind from the fellow dressed up like a co-ed or in a Kurdish suit to the girl who is trying to impersonate Topsy of Uncle Tom's Cabin.

It is supposed to be "rough neck day" and truly that name applies. A stranger, coming on the hill today and having had no previous knowledge of the occasion, might judge that the students had gone wild.

Something else besides special costumes are in order too. Many of the "ex-students" have begun carrying paddles since they have become so rough and it is woe unto the poor chaps—and even professors in some cases—who appear without clothes suitable to the day.

The rough neck time started early for one serious minded student. This fellow had been out studying with a friend and started home shortly after midnight. As he was passing through Aggieville he was accosted by several of about the roughest looking personage one could imagine. The brigands remarked that it was after midnight, it must surely be the dreaded "Ides of March" and that the student had no business appearing on the streets unless he was dressed rough. Quite naturally the student protested most vigorously but his pleadings were of no avail. The wrath of the conspirators could not be appeased. He was seized and blindfolded after which he was taken to some house, but is not able today to tell just where the place is. Here he was dressed in a pair of tennis trousers, a sheep skin lined vest, one boot and one carpet slipper.

After the stude had been thus fitted out he was asked where he lived and told that his real clothes would be sent to his room. He was then dispatched to the College Inn while the ruffians strolled along some distance behind him. He was made to enter and stay five minutes without purchasing anything in every restaurant and depot down town. After these visits he was allowed to go home with the provision that he wear the "fancy" garb on the hill today and—here he may be seen.

Many of the students and faculty are taking advantage of the day in order to get some pictures of their friends when the fancy clothes and powder are not so much in evidence. The snaps will be fine for the memory book and also for the Royal Purple.

TRAVELOGUE SATURDAY NIGHT

Pictures and Lecture Will Tell of Glacier National Park.

Mr. Laurence D. Mitchell will lecture to the students and faculty of the college and the people of Manhattan in the college auditorium Saturday night on the subject, "Glacier National Park and the Blackfoot Indians."

Not the smallest part of the evening's entertainment will be the moving pictures and colored stereoscopic views which Mr. Mitchell uses to illustrate his subjects. Some of the slides shown are nothing short of wonderful and are no doubt the best pictures ever produced here.

Mr. Mitchell is such an interesting talker that he captivates his crowd and holds the attention every second. He is different from the usual lecturer, for he has personality, a handsome presence, a delightful voice, and a real love of his theme.

The college has had the travelogue event scheduled since last fall, and it is hoped that as many of the students, faculty, and town people will attend as possible.

There will be no admission fee charged.

School of Ag. Track Meet.

The school of ag held a track meet in the gymnasium Monday afternoon. The third year men cleaned up, and easily won on points. There was but little interest in the meet, judging from the attendance.

Don't forget to send the Collegian home this week.

AGGIES TO TRI-SCHOOL GYM MEET AT EMPORIA

Will Compete There With Gymnasium Teams from Kansas University, and Kansas State Normal School.

HOLD MEET ON FRIDAY NIGHT.

Tumbling, wrestling, and apparatus work will be the order of the day at the gymnasium meet held at the Kansas State Normal gymnasium at Emporia Friday night when Kansas University, Kansas State Normal, and the Aggie teams meet in the annual gymnasium meet.

Twelve men from the local team will leave for Emporia Friday morning by way of Topeka where Coach Lowman will join them and accompany them to Emporia. Coach Lowman goes to Springfield, Mo., for Thursday night where he will officiate at the championship game of the Missouri State conference between Drury college and Springfield Normal.

Papez, Stuart, and Prock will enter in the apparatus work, George Hinds, J. B. Hinds, Cook, and Roesan will contest in the tumbling; and four contestants will enter in the wrestling. Gilmore and Franz will enter in the heavyweight wrestling. C. E. Long and Gherke will meet the middleweight entries.

The Normals have the jump on the other teams since they have had the advantage of two other gymnasium meets in which they have contested this year.

The gymnasium meet between these three teams will be held in Manhattan next year on Nichols court.

SPEAKS TO JOURNALISTS.

U. S. Is Journalist Center of the World Says Head of Department.

"The United States is the journalistic center of the world," Professor N. A. Crawford, head of the department of industrial journalism, told a class of journalists at the college yesterday in a special address.

"There are nearly twice as many papers in proportion to population in the United States, as in any other country in the world," said Professor Crawford. "There are approximately 25,000 periodicals published in the United States, and they employ some 34,000 people in editorial and reportorial capacities."

Professor Crawford stated that there are immense opportunities for journalism students planning to go into active work at present. There are fifty journalism schools in the United States, and some 2,500 students in the fifty schools. The relative proportion of students to the number of people employed in the work, is very small. Professor Crawford explains this by the fact that journalism, as a profession, is comparatively new, and college training for the work has not yet become general.

Professor Crawford divided periodicals into six classes; country weeklies, small dailies, metropolitan dailies, business papers, agricultural journals and magazines.

In many ways, Professor Crawford believes that the field of country weeklies offers the best opportunities and the most pleasant work. Small dailies, dailies in towns of less than 100,000 population, are the best training schools for efficient journalists. Metropolitan papers offer certain advantages, but the work is exceedingly circumscribed, and offers little variety or training.

Business and agricultural journals pay high wages, and require specific qualifications from people whom they employ. A knowledge of agriculture, engineering, manufacturing, or business, is essential. A knowledge of printing is highly desirable.

Magazines, according to Professor Crawford, choose their editors largely from college teachers and newspaper men.

Women have as good or better opportunities for success in journalism as the men, and their work is apt to be largely of the same nature.

"Choose your work," said Professor Crawford, "with regard to your special qualifications, but do not forget that you may increase and better your qualifications."

Miss Helene Anderson, who has been at her home in Lewis for three weeks on account of the illness of her mother, returned to college Friday.

CO-EDS ARE INTERESTED.

Tennis, Swimming, and Lawn Ball Makes Spring Term Attractive.

The girls enrolled in physical training look forward to the spring term's work as the most enjoyable of the year. The class work will include swimming, tennis and other outdoor sports.

"Playground games will form an important part of the physical training work the spring term," said Miss Blanche Enyart, director. "The indoor base ball is always popular with the girls. Lawn ball, german ball, and playground ball, all variations of baseball, will be used in the class work. There will be competitive games of some sort, probably inter-class games but these have not been definitely decided upon as yet."

Tennis is another popular part of the schedule for the spring term. The six new courts now under construction will give entire classes practice at the same time. Later in the spring a tennis tournament, open to all college girls as well as physical training girls, will be played.

Swimming is becoming popular with the college girls. This term the beginners and expert swimmers will form separate classes, and will be distinguished by cap. The beginners wear tan caps, earn a red cap and finally by expert swimming win their red cap. The girls who won red caps fall term will work now for the blue.

"We expect to turn out every girl a good swimmer," says Miss Enyart.

WALTER JOHNSON SPEAKS AT CHAPEL THIS MORNING

Managing Editor of Topeka Daily Capital Will Also Address Journalism Students Third Hour.

Walter Johnson, managing editor of the Topeka Daily Capital, will speak at chapel this morning, on "The Newspaper and the School." He will also speak to the students in industrial journalism, during the third hour in the auditorium.

Mr. Johnson was scheduled to make two addresses at the college, several weeks ago, but was unable to meet the appointment at that time. He was in Manhattan yesterday to attend the Republican Fifth District convention held at the court house.

ENGINEERS ARE ACTIVE.

Would Enforce Attendance at Meetings of Their Societies.

At a recent meeting of the Civil Engineering society resolutions were adopted suggesting that the attendance of all members of the different engineering societies of the college should be enforced the same as the attendance at regular classes. The resolutions adopted were as follows:

WHEREAS, The habitual inattendance of the members of the various Engineering Societies in this College upon the meetings of their respective Societies is a humiliating evil and a disgraceful fact, and

WHEREAS, It is manifestly impossible for an Engineer to reach the highest limits of his possible attainments by remaining away from the association of his fellow men, wherefore

BE IT RESOLVED, by the Civil Engineering Society of the Kansas State Agricultural College in this meeting assembled, that the Society believes the above mentioned evils would be removed by placing the attendance of the various societies on the basis as the attendance upon the scheduled classes in the Division of Mechanic Arts, and

BE IT RESOLVED that this Society respectfully urges that the above action be taken, and

BE IT FURTHER RESOLVED that a copy of these resolutions be spread upon the minutes of the Society, and that the secretary be instructed to prepare and send other copies to the following individuals and societies at the Kansas State Agricultural College:

The Dean of the Division of Mechanic Arts.

The Professor of Civil Engineering.

The Professor of Mechanical Engineering.

The Professor of Electrical Engineering.

The Professor of Architecture.

The K. S. A. C. Engineering Association.

DICKINSON COUNTY HOLDS CHAMPIONSHIP

High School Trophy Goes to Five From Chapman After Some of the Fastest High School Games Ever Seen Here.

CLAY CENTER WAS SECOND

Dickinson County High School carried off the cup in the Fifth District Basketball tournament, which was held in Nichols Gymnasium last Friday and Saturday, when they defeated Clay Center in the finals by a score of 41 to 19. Clay Center by these results took second honors.

In the consolation series, Salina defeated the School of Agriculture of the college 21 to 4 and was determined the better of the losing teams for which the teams was awarded the consolation banner.

LACK OF FUNDS CAUSE FAMINE.

Student From India Says Lack of Rainfall Not at Fault.

Famine in India is attributed more to lack of funds to purchase grain than to lack of rainfall by C. V. Sane, a graduate student from India, who is studying dairying under dry farming conditions, in the Kansas Agricultural College.

"The reason for lack of funds is deeper than can be observed by those who are not familiar with the conditions of our country," says Mr. Sane. "When one speaks of the economic conditions in India he must take into consideration caste customs, for they are closely connected with the farm practices of the country. If I am a Brahman I cannot raise poultry because it does not conform to my caste etiquette. Not only this, I cannot eat meat of any kind, nor can I indulge in alcoholic drinks. I cannot do the former because it means that I take life or, in other words, commit sin, and I cannot do the latter because alcohol makes one a brute."

HONOR GUEST ABSENT

Dinner Given in Honor of Canary Bell Very Delightful Affair

Professor O. E. Reed, of the dairy department, delightfully entertained some of the departments' employees Saturday night with a dinner at the cafeteria. The occasion was in honor of Canary Bell, an Ayshire cow owned by the dairy department, that is producing over eighty pounds of milk per day. Although Canary was not present, a toast was drunk to her. Those present were Professors Reed, Fitch, and Instructor Wilson, of the dairy department, Charles C. Wilson, Ben Meyer, A. E. Schattenburg, R. E. Terrill, J. R. Dawson, A. L. Cade, R. Campbell, G. M. Pickeral, and G. R. Stahl. After dinner some of those present were the guests of Charles C. Wilson at the Warehouse theater.

MARCH 15, 1916.

WEARIN' O' THE GREEN

A bit of green ribbon, a glistening shamrock, a tiny clay pipe, or a diminutive golden harp may serve as symbols of an Irishman's loyalty and love for the Emerald Isle on the seventeenth of March. The Irish, however, are not the only ones who adorn their breasts with some marks of Irish glory and fidelity on St. Patrick's Day. Men of all nationalities display their respect and esteem for the Irish and their beloved Saint by "Wearin' o' the Green."

Of all such days St. Patrick's is the most unique and interesting. Many are the quaint and noble sentiments of Irish glory, love, success, sufferings and sorrows which linger fondly about this celebrated day. The Irish, a true, honest, persevering and grateful race, endeavor on St. Patrick's Day to prove to the world their undying loyalty to the Sod and its noblest personage, St. Patrick. Not alone in external expression but in silent prayers of the heart they remember the land where the grass grows greenest, the skies are bluest and hearts truest. Their honor extends beyond the land, its romantic and war-scarred history, to the noble work of St. Patrick. They exalt Ireland that the world may know that they think with their prayers and lives St. Patrick, their Apostle, for their cherished faith, their imperishable religion. It enabled them to bear up manfully beneath centuries of persecution and oppression. They suffered for that faith, but God rewarded them with Heaven's grace.

With that spirit to sustain them the persecution only tempered, sharpened and developed their natural virtues of mind and heart. The history of nations bears testimony to the success of the Irish. From the humblest laborer to the highest rank of statesman, from the private soldier shedding his blood on the battlefield to the Signers of the Declaration of Independence are found ample proofs of Irish loyalty and tenacity. Whenever they have been scattered over the earth by the storms of persecution their sterling qualities have triumphed. To-day, after England's many years of stern refusal of Home Rule to Ireland, thousands of her noblest sons have rallied quickly, even more quickly than Englishmen, to Britain's colors. Eagerly, though, would they lay at the foot of the altar all their glorious conquests and achievements to honor St. Patrick and praise his Master. They glorify Ireland not for Ireland's sake alone but for the sake of her Evangelist who gave them that religion which has elevated them and empowered them to make themselves what they are.

An old legend tells us that the love of the Irish for the immortal shamrock came when St. Patrick, trying to explain and impress those pure and simple souls with the beauty and mystery of the Holy Trinity, plucked a shamrock and holding it before them, pointed out the three petals on the one stock as symbolical of the Unity of the Three Divine Persons. The beautiful simplicity of those people who express so well such lofty sentiments by "Wearin' o' the Green" is manifested to all when they behold them proudly wearing the green on St. Patrick's Day.

Men of other nationalities also wear a bit of green on St. Patrick's Day to share their glory, to express their admiration for their Irish friends, and for their high ideals of liberty, justice and integrity of life. The history of our own United States is intimately related to Irish chivalry. It is no wonder, then, that on St. Patrick's Day the people of this nation heartily unite with the Irish to pay a tribute to Ireland and reverence her Saint by "Wearin' o' the Green."—The Dial.

The question has been recently asked in these columns, Why is debate not open to the whole college? Probably the main reason is because the entire expense of debate, amounting to between four and five hundred dollars annually, has been and is being borne by the literary societies. Up to the time of the discussion of the student activity fee last year, as far as we can discover, no organization ever requested the debate council for admission to debate. It is somewhat interesting to learn that the first request that outsiders be admitted to debate came from one of the literary societies themselves; and proceeded to consider ways and means of bringing this about. The plan first proposed was abandoned for another which failed to receive the approval of the societies.

The situation this year is in a state of suspense from the fact that it is not as yet known if the student activity fee will go into effect for the next year. If it does, debate will necessarily be open to the whole college. In case it does not, the debate council has a committee at work on a plan whereby the activity may be thrown open. It is probable that requests coming from college organizations to share in this plan and in the expense of debate would receive serious consideration from the council. In any case the literary societies are entitled to much credit for the support which they have given to this activity in the past.

The issue of the Spot Light which appeared on the campus yesterday morning is nothing short of slanderous in some of its articles. The editor is laying himself liable to prosecution. Certainly the person who wrote the article regarding Professor White of the mathematics department does not possess enough brains to elevate himself to the position which Mr. White now occupies or the article would never have appeared. Professor White is one of the best and hardest working of the faculty members, and no one who knows him would for a minute think such things about him as were in the infamous pink sheet yesterday. The references to other members of the faculty are equally as scurrilous, contemptible, and indicative of a failing or absent mentality on the part of the perpetrators of the publication.

Today the college bids farewell to some 300 of the short course students, who have made their abode with us since the beginning of the winter term. One supercilious sophomore explains that since spring was on us, and the campus would presently behold the green grass growing all around, the short course students had served their verdant purpose, and in accordance with the economical principles of Dame Nature, were being eliminated. The faculty has another explanation. The short course men have fulfilled their educational destiny for the present, by absorbing all the surplus information on the hill, and departing, leave behind them an exhausted staff of instructors, with absolutely no ideas left in their brains. Be that as it may, after ten weeks spent on the hill, where they have been enrolled in courses particularly designed to give the greatest benefit in the least time, they are returning to their homes in all parts of the state, some of them having finished the courses offered in engineering and agriculture; others to return next year for their second installment. Their efforts toward education are commendable and the energy and application they display in college worthy of emulation by the "regulars."

OPEN COLUMN.

I think that the person who wrote the article entitled "The Woman Hater" which appeared in the Collegian some time ago was alright in every way but one. He was mighty foolish for telling what was in his own mind. I have made about such a study as the writer of that article said he had (I am taking it that a boy really wrote the article) and have come to about the same conclusions on the matter. The only difference is that I did not tell to the public what I thought. The first person advancing some new idea is always the one to get the blame or the credit for the failure or success so now that some one else has advanced the ideas, I simply wish to second the motion. Why can't girls show that they have some sense? They seem to have the idea that it takes foolishness to "get away with" the opposite sex. That is true to a limited extent but by no means to any marked degree. Of course there are fellows who cannot or at least never will, talk any thing but foolishness but there are so many more the other way that the girls should begin to realize the mistake they are making pretty soon.

I am through experimenting now and hope that I can find some young lady who likes to talk about something sensible.—Junior.

Peaceful Isolation

The Easterner is frantic lest some foe should cross the "Lantic, And bombard him with a forty-centimeter gun; While the Californians quake as with nervous chills they shake, For fear the Japs their land will overrun.

The "Greaser" keeps the Texan in state of mind most vexing, By his bloody raids across the line; And in case of war with England the Canadian sword is jingling, Just across the parallel Forty-nine. Does the Kansas farmer shiver in excitement all quiver, At the thought of cannons booming in his land?

No, 'tis naught but northern blizzard that can shake the Kansan's gizzard For he is far removed from meeting point of wave and sand. Put, this is not an indication that we care not for our nation, And would shirk a patriot's duty—No, not much!

If we ever have occasion, we will help repel invasion, Be it "Greaser," Briton, Jap or Dutch. —H. E. S.

A LITTLE BIRD TOLD ME THAT—

A certain sorority house in Manhattan has a back door that can be opened by a skeleton key and that a certain couple are in the habit of using one if they only happen to stay later than 10:30 on their date.

The library has two regular visitors during the week nights. One, a rather auburn haired personage, another of a very dignified and scholarly bearing. The auburn haired creature arrives about 8:00 and the scholarly person at 8:10. It seems that after the arrival at 8:10, that the library is forgotten and about 8:30 the couple leave with two hearts beating as one.

The above mentioned couple had a very serious case. Would you think so? Watch for them.

"The man with the car would be the man of the hour, this spring."

A couple that enjoy hiking very much, always take an extra sandwich for the ever present (?) chaperone. This couple was never known to take any other couples on their hikes. Hence the chaperone.

A pretty colored from the senior class stated: "I certainly like to see (a prominent senior) in his military uniform because he looks so—well—so heroic—you know what I mean."

Some people might think that she meant one thing while others might think differently.

But Did the Professor Shave Again?

His Alarm Clock Got Too Ambitious and the Professor Got up Early, Much to his grief Later.

"Did you ever eat breakfast at two o'clock in the morning so that you would be on time for a first hour? Well, for Heaven's sake! Just how big an idiot do you think I am? Of course I haven't and no one else ever will, if they take my advice," stated Marion.

"A college professor did that? Say, quit trying to spoof me like that. I've got some sense and no professor or any one else on earth loves his work so well he'd get up at 2 a. m. just so he'd be on time for an eight o'clock Nuhuh! You can't get that by me. What's that? One of the professors here did that stunt? Well, I'll be joined! I always thought some of them were sort of loose above but I did give them credit for having enough sense to sleep when they had a perfectly good chance. Hum! Wonders will never cease, as some one has often remarked."

Marion chewed her gum reflectively for a few minutes. Then—"How'd it happen, Gwen?" she demanded.

"Well, last week one of the profs on the hill pulled off the stunt," Gwen confided. "He gets up to an alarm clock, it seems, and when he wound it one night he forgot to look at the hour it was set for. Next morning old alarm goes off, Zip! Prof. gets up, shaves, and gets all ready for school. Mrs. Prof. gets breakfast all ready and they sat down and started eating. Both remark on the darkness of the morning but never look at the clock. Mr. Prof. wondering if he has time to peruse last night's Star before hurrying to class, pulls out his watch, and—there you are," Gwen concluded. "Breakfast all eaten, dishes to do, no more bacon in the house and six hours till time for school."

ALL MISSOURI VALLEY SQUAD.

It is with considerable degree of confidence that the Collegian chooses the following ten men as the best ten players in the Missouri Valley Conference. The quintets in the valley this year have many good men and it is only by close comparisons that a Missouri Valley team of five men can be chosen.

Forwards.—

Adams, Kansas Aggies.
Reynolds, Kansas Aggies.
Campbell, Missouri.
Gibben, Kansas University.

Center.—

Williams, Missouri.
Cole, Kansas University.

Guards.—

Ramsey, Kansas Aggies.
MacMillan, Kansas Aggies.
Aldrich, Ames.
Hugg, Nebraska.

At the tipoff, Williams is rivaled by Cole of Kansas University who was able to put up a good clean, scrappy game. Cole was the only man in the conference, whom "Big" Leonard could not outreach and outplay.

At the forward position, Adams, the Aggie Captain, and his team mate, Reynolds, are easily the pick of the conference. It was their co-operative playing which made it possible for the Aggie team to almost double the score of their opponents in the season's games. "Gibbens," says the Daily Nebraskan, "has an accurate eye for baskets and passes and receives the ball well. In team work, however he is weak. Campbell of Missouri was one of the big factors in the success of the Missourians."

No better guarding was seen in action in the Valley this year, is the statement of the basketball followers, than that of Ramsey and MacMillan. Aldrich of Ames and Captain Hugg of the Nebraska five must also be considered for fairly consistent playing.

A team chosen from these players would no doubt be captained by the little midget captain of the Kansas Aggies, Raymond Adams. That wonderful floor work which was a feature in almost every game he played, his consistent playing which was in evidence throughout the season, together with his ability on field and free goals makes him a competent man for the leadership of such a team.

The track men were out for a cross country run Tuesday afternoon with Coach Merner.

Under sanction of the Athletic Board the election of the basketball captaincy for 1917 will be held in Coach Bender's office, March 17 from 10:00 to 10:30 o'clock.

The board voted "K's" to nine of the squad at its last meeting, as follows: R. V. Adams, F. R. Reynolds, L. A. Leonard, E. L. Ramsey, R. I. MacMillan, Ralph Van Trine, Harry Gunning, J. H. Cushman, C. F. McIlraith.

Some Three Hundred Will Finish Their Examinations Today and Go Back to the Farms to put Their Knowledge into Practice.

SOME HAVE HAD TWO YEARS.

The short course students are leaving the college today, the courses in agriculture and engineering for the year 1916 having been finished. Examinations in the work of the short course men have been in progress for several days.

Some 300 from all parts of the state, were enrolled in the short courses this year. The agricultural courses had the larger number, although the engineering courses have been steadily growing in numbers and interest since they were started a year ago.

Some of the homeward bound short course men have seen two years of the work here, and have received the certificates to that effect. Others have completed only one term of work, and will return next year for the final work. The short course lasts ten weeks.

Keep 'em On

One balmy day in early March,
So it was told to me,
A simple stude climbed out of wool
And into B. V. D.
Now, B. V. D. is rather thin,
The weather turned in cold,
So you see the fix this stude was in
When he became so bold.
He fell before the wintry blast,
He had to take his bed;
And now at peace he rests at last,
A tombstone at his head.
The moral of this little verse
Is: Keep 'em on till May appears,
Lest you go riding in a hearse,
Unmindful of your loved one's tears.

The Old College Bell

In a Most Interesting Way the Ancient Voice of the College Tells of the Many Trials and Tribulations Through Which It has Passed.

"I wonder you weren't afraid to come to visit me, there are so many squirrels up here," said the college bell to the journalist student, who, after a long hard climb, emerged from the darkness brushing the cobwebs and dust from his clothes. "I don't have many visitors any more," the old bell continued, "except the squirrels which climb up the ivy covered walls of the tower and come in at the broken windows."

"They used to flock up here when I first moved. You can form an idea of how many came up by the names written and carved on the walls. You can see too, by the dates under the names that there has not been many visitors since 1905."

"You want to hear my story? Well, I was, as my inscription reads, cast in West Troy, New York. The bell maker who cast me was an honest man and used good material or I wouldn't have stood the long journey and the hard work following. I was presented to old Bluemont college by Joseph Ingalls of Swampscott, Mass., in 1861."

"It was a great day for me when after my long journey I was elevated with much ceremony into my place in main hall on what is now the college farm."

"When the dormitories burned I was brought to the present campus and placed in what is now the old armory. I called the boys and girls to chapel in the north end of that building for ten years when I was placed in my present location in Anderson hall."

"Did the students ever play pranks on me? I should say so. I used to shed my clapper at intervals to scare that young drawing teacher named Walters. Many times in the night I have had visitors who left my clapper so wrapped in rags that I could not make a sound. Some students thought it fun to wire me in position so I could not be rung and often they tied my clapper down."

"Once in the seventies I was turned upside down and filled with water. A great deal of chopping and many bad words did not remove the ice case that formed during the cold night. All next day curious students gazed up at me as the smoke from the fire used to thaw me out floated up from the tower."

"In 1905 some visitors came and carried away my clapper, the one I brought from New York in 1861. I heard the custodian say it was made into souvenirs. He also said it would n't happen again."

"It hasn't happened since either. You're the first one who's been up for a long time."

"But it's time to work," said the old bell by way of closing the interview, and began to proclaim to the students that it was chapel time.

THE KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN.

VOLUME 22. NO. 48.

KANSAS STATE AGRICULTURAL COLLEGE, MANHATTAN, SATURDAY, MARCH 18, 1916.

PRICE FIVE CENTS.

GIRLS FORM PERMANENT ATHLETIC ASSOCIATION

Fifty Co-eds Have Formed an Organization to Further the Interest in Athletics and Physical Training

MEMBERSHIP NOT RESTRICTED.

The first permanent athletic organization for women was formed Thursday afternoon when more than fifty co-eds met in the gymnasium and organized what is to be known as the Girls Athletic association.

Membership is in no restricted as any girl in the college, including the school of agriculture, may become a member. The primary aim will be to promote interest among the girls in all forms of college athletics and Miss Blanche Enyart, head of the girls' physical training department, says that judging from what similar organizations have accomplished in other institutions there is little doubt but that the new association will do much toward furthering interest in athletics and physical training.

The constitution adopted by the girls Thursday was drawn up by a special council after consideration of the constitutions of similar associations in other colleges. In addition to the head of the physical training department the organization will have two advisors chosen from the women instructors.

It is required that the president each term be chosen from the junior class while all other officers may be elected from the members of any class.

As is so near the end of the present term no definite action will be taken by the organization until the first regular meeting which will be called in the spring term. At this meeting membership cards will be given to those wishing to join.

Miss Emma Taylor was acting chairman at the meeting Thursday. The following officers were elected: president, Francis Hildebrand; vice-president, Ruth Thomas; secretary-treasurer, Sibyl Blackburn.

A CREDIBLE EXHIBITION.

First Regimental Review Satisfies Lieutenant Mathews.

Regimental parade was held on the college parade grounds yesterday afternoon by the cadet corps for the first time this year and was witnessed by two or three hundred people.

"Being the first performance, it was a creditable exhibition, although a few errors were made," said Lieutenant L. O. Mathews, commandant of cadets.

"One thing I would like to say is that while I am not here to educate the general public in military courtesy, I would like to suggest that in the service we make it a rule, when in civilian clothes, and the national air is played, to stand and uncover. In the case of ladies they may rise and show their respect in this way. This also should be done when the national color is displayed."

THE HUMAN CALLIOPE.

Program of Websters in Chapel Yesterday Morning was Unique.

"The Human Calliope" was the unique musical feature of the Webster special program which was presented in chapel Friday morning.

The "calliope" was composed of a quartet whose feet served as keys to a large pipe organ which was painted on canvas. "Heinie" Bayer impersonated "prexy" and read the announcements, while "Hank" Borland impersonated Professor Westbrook and introduced the French (?) musician who played the "calliope" and who possessed an incomprehensible name.

The first selection played was "Sixteen after Lucile," which was followed by "My Nursery" by Kent. The third selection was entitled "Rough-neck Day." W. G. Bruce opened the program by reading "Laska."

Isn't It Queer?

An instructor in German told his class that he thought there might be no class next Tuesday the fifth hour on account of the Bryan speech. Looks of horror came over the faces of the students. One even said, "Can't we have class anyway?" A month ago a smaller man than Mr. Bryan might have induced the student to "cut."

APARTMENT IS ELEGANT.

New Music Studio is Most Artistic on the Campus.

The studio of Professor Westbrook, in the auditorium, with its newly decorated interior, has been developed into one of the most tasteful and beautiful apartments on the hill. Mrs. Cora G. Lewis' exquisite taste was involved in the selection of the furnishings for the studio, and the decorations.

The walls are finished in tan, the ceiling in cream color. The woodwork and furniture is done in Kaiser grey, while persimmon red cushions and varicolored hangings lend tone to the apartment. A beautiful closed book and music cabinet occupies a portion of the east wall of the room, an antique lamp, and a hammered brass loving cup, rest upon the cabinet. Original sketches, specially framed to match the room, and an elegant gold framed mirror, form a part of the wall decorations. The rug which covers the floor completes a color scheme in tan and brown of most artistic effect.

WEDNESDAY WAS SURELY REAL ROUGH-NECK DAY

Hundreds of Students—Both Boys and Girls Donned Old and Curious Costumes for First Annual.

Probably no more motley crowd was ever gathered together in Manhattan than that which passed in review before the battery of cameras lined up outside of the college auditorium Wednesday to snap the students in their celebration of the first annual "rough neck day" ever held at the college. Tramps, capitalists, old women, young women, farmers and dudes were there. Every conceivable costume that could possibly distinguish a "rough neck" was to be found.

College students were surely "rough necks for a day" and the disregard for conventionalities even went so far as to apply the paddle to those who failed to live up to the motions passed in the various class meetings two weeks ago, that March 15, the Tues of March, be a day of motley and ragged attire.

According to old students and professors who have been with the college for a number of years, the chapel crowd Wednesday morning broke all records. Every seat in the building was filled by the revelers and many had to stand in order to hear the talk given by Walter Johnson, managing editor of the Topeka Capital.

THIEVES STEAL VALUABLES AS STUDES PLAY ROUGH NECK

Some clever thieves took advantage of Rough Neck day, which was held at the college Wednesday, and got away with three watches, some stick pins, a jewel case and a razor.

The thefts were reported to the sheriff's office this morning. It is supposed that on account of the numerous ragged costumes seen on the Aggieville streets Wednesday the hoboes, who are just beginning their spring travels on the railroads, felt that they could roam around the residence district unmolested. The sheriff is on the lookout for the thieves but has found no traces yet.

MANY STORIES COMING IN.

Unusual Interest is Being Shown in Annual Quill Club Contest.

Unusual interest is being taken in the annual short story contest of Beta chapter of the American College Quill club. The stories must be submitted before May 1.

Any college student who has not previously taken first place in this contest may submit a story. It may be a love story, a detective story, a nature story—any kind just so it is a short story. That is, it must not be over 3500 words long.

The stories will be graded by three judges—a faculty member of Quill, one other faculty member, and an outside person.

The prize for the best story is a gold medal suitably engraved. Last year the winner of the contest was Mrs. Ethel Strother. Tom Blackburn ranked second, and Harold Snell third.

Attend Topeka Meeting.

Dr. J. G. Emerson, in charge of the department of public speaking, and Leo C. Moser went to Topeka yesterday afternoon where they attended the State Peace Oratorical contest which was held there last night. Mr. Moser represented the college oratorical board at the business session which was held in the afternoon.

TO STAGE PENTANGULAR DEBATE FRIDAY NIGHT

K. S. A. C. Will Tangle With Teams From Baker University and Ottawa University—Biggest Debate of Season.

ANOTHER SERIES COMES LATER.

The great pentangular debate will be held in the college auditorium on Friday evening, March 24. This is the biggest debate of the season, and the only men who are allowed to debate more than once in the season are the men on this pentangular team.

On next Friday evening the negative team composed of J. V. Quigley, captain, Athenian; W. K. Charles, Hamilton, and W. A. Gillespie, Athenian, will go to Baldwin to debate the Baker affirmative team. The Aggie affirmative team composed of J. B. Sweet, captain, Athenian; M. W. Converse, Franklin; and J. H. Flora, Athenian, will remain at home to defend the question against a team from Ottawa.

The question for debate is: Resolved, That the Monroe Doctrine as developed and applied by the United States should be abandoned as a part of her foreign policy. This is the same question as that used by the girls in the last debate between K. S. A. C. and Washburn. Three judges will judge the debate.

On the same evening two teams from each of the five following schools will be debating this same question: Ottawa university, Baker university, College of Emporia, Washburn, and Kansas State Agricultural college.

Three weeks from the evening of this debate a second series will be held in which the negative team of each school will stay at home to debate against a different school than in the first series. Each team will have had some training and practice on the question and should make things lively.

TWO DEPARTMENTS COOPERATE.

Physics and Music Departments Find Much Work in Common.

A healthy spirit of cooperation exists between the physics and the music departments, asserts E. V. Floyd, assistant professor of physics. An effort is being made to present the physical basis of music to the music students in their own terms and not simply from the physicists point of view.

Arrangements have been made for a series of lectures on the physical basis of music, to be given to Miss Fairman's class in harmony, said Mr. Floyd. The physical reasons for harmony and discord were discussed in the first lecture. "The Origin and Development of the Equal Tempered Scale," was the subject of a talk given by Mr. Floyd, Friday afternoon. Prof. Harry Brown played an octave of the true scale on the 'cello to illustrate the difference between it and the Bach scale, now universally used.

"The music department plans to have a course in the theory of music based on the physical facts," said Miss Fairman, assistant in music. "This course will give students aid in tuning instruments, recognizing kinds of scales and quality of tones. In general it will give all the scientific reasons for all the rules of music. Knowing the physical basis of music will broaden the appreciation and enhance the comprehension of this art."

DR. SHAW HERE SATURDAY.

Will Deliver Address at College on Saturday Night.

Dr. William Shaw of Boston, general sec. of the Interdenominational Christian Endeavor movement, will speak to the people of Manhattan at 7 o'clock tomorrow evening in the old chapel in Anderson hall at the college on the subject, "The Challenge of Christian Endeavor." Dr. Shaw comes to the city under the direction of the Manhattan local union of the young people's societies.

Dr. Shaw is a layman. He has an honorary degree of doctor of laws which was granted to him by Occidental college, Los Angeles, not long ago. He was formerly treasurer of the organization which he comes to Manhattan to represent.

Following his address tonight Dr. Shaw will conduct a conference in methods in young people's work in the churches.

Don't forget to send the Collegian home this week.

EX-SECRETARY BRYAN TO ADDRESS STUDENTS

Will Address People of City and College Students at College Auditorium on War and Its Meaning.

TUESDAY AFTERNOON AT 1:30.

William Jennings Bryan will address the students of the college and the people of Manhattan in the college auditorium at 1:30 o'clock Tuesday afternoon March 21, according to an announcement made at the college Wednesday. The subject of Mr. Bryan's address will be "War and Its Meaning to Us."

C. H. Zimmerman, chairman of the Society Lyceum course received a telegram late Tuesday afternoon from Chas. F. Homer, of the Redpath Lyceum bureau, saying that Mr. Bryan would be in Manhattan next Tuesday and that he would like to have arrangements made so that he could address the students of the college and the town people.

After conferring with President Waters, Mr. Zimmerman telegraphed Mr. Homer that everything had been arranged for Mr. Bryan's coming. Dr. Waters consented to dismiss the fifth hour on Tuesday, March 21, in order to give Mr. Bryan an opportunity to present his argument for peace before the students.

Mr. Bryan will arrive in the city at 12:40 o'clock Tuesday afternoon and will speak at the college at 1:30 o'clock. He will leave Manhattan at 3:10 o'clock. It is expected that local democrats will make arrangements to entertain Mr. Bryan while he is in the city.

TO LECTURE ON GLACIER PARK.

L. D. Kitchell at College Auditorium Saturday Night.

Lawrence D. Kitchell of the bureau of commercial economics, Washington, D. C., will lecture on Glacier National Park in the college auditorium at 8:15 o'clock tomorrow evening. The lecture will be illustrated with colored slides and moving pictures. Admission will be free and all students and citizens are invited.

Thirty-eight Entered.

The dairy judging contest held last Saturday was the most successful event of the kind ever held at the college. There were 38 enrolled. Those winning were: First, M. L. Berror with a score of 680; second, J. L. Wood, score 665; third, A. G. Van Horn, score 660; L. H. Fairchild and W. H. Medill placing fourth and fifth respectively.

FINAL TRY-OUTS FOR EXTEMPORARIES TUESDAY

Nine Students Will Contest for Honors in Public Speaking Department to be Close.

Tuesday during the seventh and eighth hours will occur the final try-outs in the series of contests being held in the public speaking department. The contest will be held in G-56, and will start promptly at 3:30 o'clock. Judges will be chosen from among the faculty members and prominent down town personages.

Nine contestants will compete in this final contest, three from each of the sections in the course in Extemporaneous Speaking. These nine speakers are the picked representatives of some sixty public speaking students. They have been chosen through a series of preliminaries which have been running in the department during the last few weeks. In most of these preliminaries the competition for places was very close, the winners having but a shade of advantage over many of those who lost out. A lively fight for first honors is confidently expected to develop in the contest to be held Tuesday.

The speeches in this contest will be but six minutes long. They will be purely extemporaneous. Outsiders who care to hear the contest are invited to attend.

The representatives from the three classes are as follows: E. F. Wilson, H. A. Muir, Wilma Burtis, Monday-Saturday section; Velma Carson, James J. Huey, I. O. Moll, Tuesday-Thursday section; P. R. Pharr, J. L. Garlough, H. B. Dudley, Wednesday-Friday section.

HAVE YOU LOST IT?

If You Have It May be at the College Postoffice.

Have you lost anything on the campus lately? If so, call at the college postoffice, for the chances are that you'll find it there, whether it is an opal ring or a brass stick pin, a muff or a pair of shoes. Such an array of jewelry! There are rings, pins of all descriptions including a gold Masonic pin, a friendship bracelet, and a watch fob. Fifteen pocketbooks—some containing money—are awaiting their rightful owners, as well as several vanity cases, and a mesh bag. Knives, four spectacle cases, bank books, parasols, two fountain pens, coat buttons, and lecture course tickets are included in the collection. Among the articles of clothing are two muffs, two pairs of shoes, a pair of rubbers, and several side combs, which might be useful to those who lost them.

"I wish people would call for their property, because some of it is really valuable," said Miss Nellie May, the college postmistress.

ARMENIAN STUDENT TELLS OF HIS COUNTRY'S PLIGHT

B. K. Baghdigian Writes of the Hardships Encountered by Armenian Orphans Under Turks.

Bagdasar K. Baghdigian, an Armenian student who is taking journalism at the college, keeps in close touch with the situation in his native country, not only by means of the newspapers and magazines, but by letters received from relatives there. He has written the following article which gives an idea of the life the Armenian people are being forced to live.

Their Homes of Today.

An altruistic heart cannot understand the villainy of a fanatical and a brutal mind. There is no reason, however, why the civilized world should not know of the impositions forced upon the children of Armenia by the Turkish government.

When the systematic extermination of the Armenians was started last April by the Ottoman government the male population—those above 10 to 12 years of age—were put to the sword. The rest were "taken into Turkish orphanages so that they may grow as Islam," while the women and girls were subjected to experiences conceivable only by the brutalized Turkish minds.

Idea of Orphan Asylum Ridiculous.

The idea of Turkish orphan asylums is ridiculous. In times of peace and comparative prosperity Turkey has not been able to attend to the needs of its foundlings and how, in a crisis like the present, can she feed, clothe and meet the needs of the Armenian children whose experiences of a home or anything like it cannot be duplicated by the Turk?

"Kuel kahns—ash inns—are the only Turkish orphan asylums in one of the principal cities of Asia Minor. Kuel kahns are the stone buildings where the ashes of the fuel from the public bath houses are thrown. On these ash piles the Mohammedan orphans find shelter from the cold and the rain. They are dirty, clad in rags and filth, and find sustenance only in begging. They are comparatively happy because they know no other life.

Torn From Christian Homes.

Think of Armenian orphans thrust aside by side with these wretches! Children who are used to the atmosphere of Christian homes, the affections of parents, the advantages of innocent associations and the dreams of childhood aspirations!

All these are gone and a degrading, debasing atmosphere hovers over the Armenian orphans who are trying to shelter themselves from the cold and the rain in their homes of today.

ST. PATRICK'S DAY PARTY.

Students from Marshall County Enjoy Friday Night Meeting.

A St. Patrick's day party was held by the Marshall county club at the home of Professor M. G. Kirkpatrick, 1009 Kearney street Friday night.

There are 47 students in college from Marshall county. Several members of the faculty also call that county their home.

The evening was spent in playing games and telling Irish stories. It is the purpose of the club to get better acquainted, and thus help to advertise the college in their home county. It is hoped that the club can have some summer meetings in Marshall county and invite prospective students to join them.

BENDER WILL SACRIFICE EVERYTHING TO HITTING

Prospects are Excellent for a 1916 Nine that Will be Devils Wid th' Club—Practice Starting Now in Deadly Earnest.

IS WEEDING OUT THE SQUAD.

The simmering process has begun in the baseball squad and Coach Bender is putting out dope that has many qualifying "possibles" and "probables." He has said, however, that the candidates for this year's team will be picked for their aggressiveness, their nerve and their mental attitude. "We will have a better bunting team this year than last and, in all, in all probabilities, as good if not a better hitting team," said Coach Bender last night. "Everything will be sacrificed for a hitting and a bunting team."

Out of the six catchers that have been on trial, three have been partially dropped. The three fighting it out are Sherwood, "Don" Gordon, and "Cosmopolitan" Sullivan. First base is being fought for by "Lefty" Williams and "Beany" Frank. Coach Bender says that it will be a toss up as to who will get the place, but that Williams seems to be a little more aggressive.

Second base lies between Newton and Harvey. Both are good men. Newton has had more experience, while Harvey seems to be a little better fielder.

The shortstop position lies between "Father Dick" Richardson and Griffiths. The race is a keen one as both men appear to be good hitters and clever fielders. "Father Dick" has had considerable more experience which will be in his favor. There is a possibility of Griffiths being swung to second base.

At third base, Denman, last year's regular, appears to have the call over Grubb, a new man. Harvey is also a candidate for third base. In the outfield, Captain Reynolds will no doubt hold his own on account of heavy hitting ability and clever fielding. Other promising candidates for the outfield are "Pussy-foot" MacGilliard, "Don" McCleod, Du Bois, and Harvey. And there is a possibility, too, that some of the pitchers will be worked in the outfield because of their hitting ability.

Pitchers are quite plentiful this year. Hodson and Ferrier, the old heads of last year, and the new Walter Johnson, "Dutch" Howey, "Southpaw" Scott, and "Dutch" Breckheiser, are all trying out for the position.

MARCH 18, 1916.

The cry of the multitude, et cetera, is "get into more activities, girls. It will do you good! What you put into a thing you get out again! Broaden yourselves."

But I wonder how many of the multitude under the same conditions would be able to get into more activities.

Compute the hours work done by one girl in one day! Usually eight hours—an average of six, say! Preparation time for each study is supposed to take two hours. College classes close at five and if studying is started at seven o'clock it would take until one to half way prepare a two hour assignment! Half way prepare the next day's work—and how many instructors limit their assignments to two hours?—they assign "reading" and a lesson beside. The reading is supposed to be done in "extra time."

Then our laboratory work! The H. E. course as described by one of the faculty has "lots of lab. hours—yes—but no outside preparation for it." But still we have lab. exams in zoology and reading assignments. We have more work in E. lab. than we can do. They ask us to run up between classes to chemistry and botany laboratories and start some little thing that has to stand for twenty-four hours.

And then they say "Get into more activities, girls."

It is the busy girl who always has time to do something more and do it well—otherwise where would we be?—to a State Student.

A POSSIBILITY.

The spectacle the "rough necks" presented in military drill Wednesday is about what will be seen in every little town in this land when war breaks out and the farmers and village folks go to preparing for fighting.

All of the boys that came to drill in their rough neck clothes were put in the awkward squads and given some thorough work in squad movements. The sight of that motley bunch made onlookers think that war had been declared and the whole country side had volunteered for service.

A few fellows about the college found that it is poor policy to "monkey" with the military department. The "rough neck" bandits came over into military territory and "padded" some of the boys in uniform as they came up on the hill for classes after dinner. After drill the whole cadet corps stormed Aggieville and captured the waiting "rough necks." Some of them were served to the paddle in reparation for their raid earlier in the day.

Every one laughs at "Good Resolutions" and then no doubt goes ahead and makes a few for themselves. Now might be a good time to start. By far too many flunks were recorded during the fall and winter terms, and now would be about the best time in the world to get busy and settle with your self just what you are going to do with the coming term.

Mr. Johnson undoubtedly used judgment the other day when he said that he knew a hobo day would have to be especially set aside here if one was to be observed. However there are a few "students" who seem to think that they can "hobo" through.

Those planning on entering the debating field for next year should not fail to enter the pentagonal debates. In all probabilities debate will be open to the whole college next year so now is the time for all to hear a real "A No. 1" college debate.

Speaking of her "steady" who is to leave school soon, a pretty co-ed said, "Yes he has been awfully good and nice to me but I guess there will be another one along when he leaves. There usually is." Wonder if that is what they all think?

It sure is hard to study these nice days but wouldn't it be still harder to face an irate father after he had learned that the faculty had requested you not to return for a term because of low grades.

Did you see the car of people Sunday evening who turned a spot light on every one they passed? Evidently some people think that every one else is like they are.

We wonder if some people do not simply have heads for the purpose of keeping their collars from slipping off.

Improvements at Greenhouses.

The plants at the green house will be protected from the summer sun by a sheet of white lead this year. Heretofore whitewash has been used but at a small extra expense a more durable coating may be applied. The white lead will give better results. As the white lead will peel off when cold weather comes it will be an advantage as the whitewash had to be scraped off.

A refrigerator has recently been added to the equipment of the green house for the safe keeping of cut flowers.

Just like new is the way we always return your garment after cleaning, pressing and rearing. We wait your command to call for your clothes. We call for and deliver. E. Hamblet, Merchant tailor. 1218 Moro, Phone 561.

OPEN COLUMN.

It seems that the occupants of the automobile that was going west at the corner of Fourth and Poyntz Friday, Mar. 17, at 8:55 p. m. have a very peculiar sense of humor to deliberately throw a poor defenseless possum out of the machine in such a manner as to run over his head and to break one of his front legs. If they wished to get rid of him why didn't they do it in a humane manner?—An Onlooker.

To the Editor: It seems that the occupants of the automobile that was going west at 4th and Poyntz last night about 8:55 had a very badly distorted and much degraded sense of humor that would cause them to deliberately throw a poor defenseless possum out of the machine in such a manner as to run over his head and break one of his front legs. If the had wished to kill the animal they might well have adopted some other method, and if they were courting publicity they should have selected some more humane act. The deed did not in any way raise them in the estimation of those who saw the act. —Disgusted.

Editor of the Collegian: I wish to protest, through your valued column, against what I feel is getting to be one of the most colossal wastes and extravagances ever seen on the hill. I refer to the wasted talent which is secured, sometimes at a very high figure, for chapel programs, lectures, concerts and college entertainments generally. I am not a student at the college, but I frequently attend the chapel exercises and the entertainments given, and I am kicking in with the necessary long green to keep a young husky in this institution; supporting him, if I do say it, in a style to which he has not been accustomed at home. I have no quarrel or complaint of any sort against the school or its management, except in the one thing, the aforementioned waste. By observation I have come to the conclusion that at least 25 per cent of the effect of the high priced talent is a total loss, because at least twelve and a half per cent of the audience find their own conversation more interesting than the program, and consequently talk and laugh, and have no attention to give to the speaker, singer, or performer.

The other twelve and a half per cent are unable to hear the speakers, on account of the conversational stunts of the uninterested ones.

I am no tightwad, I hope, but I have often been appalled at the tremendous waste of time and money which is incurred when these students pay out their dad's hard earned pesos for tickets to some entertainment, and then devote their time to talking which could be much better and more effectively done in some sheltered porch swing, or in a parlor.

While admitting that some of the talk between the students and co-eds has its interesting points, yet an outsider feels embarrassed to a degree, and if he has paid money to see the entertainment, and if he be an old fogey like myself, sometimes feels cheated when regaled with a substitute in the form of billing and cooing and giggling.

"A Dresscessional."

Girl of the future, feared of all,
Chasing the far-flung Fashion line,
What awful things may yet appal,
Hung on your human form divine!
Girl of Today, stay with us yet,
Lest we regret! Lest we regret!

The tunic and the pepum dies,
The plaiting and the flare depart;
Oh, what must we next sacrifice
To future of a fearful art?
Girl of Today, stay with us all,
Lest worse befall! Lest worse befall!

The blouse and bodice melt away,
Forever fades the silhouette;
Lo! all the mode of yesterday
Is one with puff and pantalette.
Girl of Today, stay with us all,
Lest worse ensue! Lest worse ensue.

If drunk with mad designs we loose
Wild styles that hold no art in awe
Such clothing as the Fijis use,
Or lesser breeds without the law—
Girl of Today, stay here with we,
Lest worse may be! Lest worse may be!

For foolish maid who put her trust
In French tailleor or smart modiste
In valiant men of mien august,
Without discernment in the least—
For frantic lads of Fashion's whirl,
Have mercy on us, Future Girl.

U. S. TROOPS HAVE BIG JOB.

No Easy Job to Capture Villa, Says Texan.

That the United States government has not a job of two or three weeks' duration on its hands in capturing Pancho Villa, the Mexican bandit, but that it will take months is the general belief among the people of Texas and other border states, according to a statement made last night to a representative of the Mercury by S. B. Marshall of Dallas, Tex., a large land owner, who is in the city for a few days.

Mr. Marshall is the father of S. B. Marshall, Jr., a freshman student in agriculture at the college, and is here visiting his son for a time.

Army of 500,000 Needed.

"It seems to be the general belief among men with whom I have talked who are familiar with the condition of things along the border and in Mexico," said Mr. Marshall, "that it will take a force of 500,000 men to capture Villa and withdraw from Mexico with honor to the American government. The capture of Villa is the smallest part of the job and doubtless will be accomplished within a few weeks. It is the firm belief of the people of Texas, the men who are acquainted with the situation and who have come in contact with the Mexican people, that the Mexicans will rise up against the American soldiers.

"The first thing that will happen will be the firing upon American troops by a small band of discontented Carranza soldiers. Then the entire country will burst into flames and the fight will be a grand free-for-all. America will have not a small band of bandits to deal with, but the hordes of Mexicans, a people which is easily led, superstitious, ignorant, and which hates the Americans with a thirst for revenge which has been cherished in the treacherous Mexican heart since 1848."

Vast Preparations Being Made.

Mr. Marshall emphatically asserted that the government had full idea of the nature of the proposition which it was running up against. That military officials are planning to send a large force into Mexico, which necessarily must remain there for many months, is evidenced by the vast preparations that are being made to supply the troops and horses, says Mr. Marshall.

"When concentration of troops along the border first began 500 carloads of forage for the cavalry horses passed through Dallas in long trains," said Mr. Marshall. "Trainload after trainload of troops poured through the city, many of them from Georgia and Nebraska. This fact alone shows that the government realizes that it is undertaking no small job."

Mexicans Thirst for Revenge.

That the present movement into Mexico can but end in American interference and restoration of order is the belief of every Texan and other American who has been closely associated with conditions in Mexico, asserted Mr. Marshall. "The Mexicans will unite to repel American troops, not merely because it is an invasion of their country, but because of the feeling which has existed against Americans since the Mexican war of 1848." To enforce this point Mr. Marshall told of an incident in which two Mexican military officers were concerned and in which they manifested the desire for revenge which has been smoldering in the Mexican breast for nearly 70 years.

When asked concerning the attitude of the people of Texas and other border states towards President Wilson, Mr. Marshall said he heard little criticism now of Mr. Wilson. He asserted, however, that the people did think Mr. Wilson had waited a little too long.

Mr. Marshall has several thousand acres of hay land and was making a deal to furnish hay to the allies of Europe when the present Mexican difficulty broke out. He has broken off these negotiations and now plans to furnish the American government with forage for the cavalry sent into Mexico.

The Story of "Fritz the Dog"

Being the Tale of the Regeneration Worked in the Manners and Customs of a Former Denizen of the West, by a College Education.

Fritz is a senior now. He came to K. S. A. C. more than five years ago. When he came, he could be readily recognized as an agriculturist direct from the western plains.

His hair was always awry, which gave him the appearance of being frightened; he was so exceedingly poor that even the short horns passed by him with only a contemptuous glance; he wrinkled his nose very queerly in keeping with the worried expression on his face, his finger nails were always decorated in mourning—in short his whole appearance was rather a sorry sight.

But with his four years stay in College Hill, he has become willing to learn the new ways and adapt himself as best he can. Truly Fritz has profited wonderfully by his educational training despite a bit of self-conceit which you will notice. But that is permissible since he is a senior.

The greatest difficulty which he had to overcome was that of his diet. In western Kansas, Fritz had always been accustomed to tearing the earth away from alfalfa and other plants and eating the roots. It was rather a sudden change to a diet which was restricted to the cereals of the department grain bin with his favorite dish only served on Sundays and holidays.

Fritz has recognized the wisdom of the new bill of fare long ago, however, and his fat round sides are significant of his lazy content.

Fritz's parents are just common folk out west—Prairie dog is the name. That is the explanation of his nickname, "Fritz the Dog." Since Fritz has attained the dignity of a senior, in keeping with his biological studies, he has "kultured" his family name to Sciturdos Rodentia.

Fritz will be glad to see you almost any time when you are in the museum. The morning are so cool for sleeping nowadays, though, that he would prefer not to be awakened before nine—his breakfast hour.

The oratorio, Elijah, which was given here last Monday evening will be given in Clay Center next Monday given by the Clay Center chorists under the direction of A. E. Westbrook, professor of music. The chorists will be assisted by a stringed quartet from here and Miss Mae Carley, instructor in music, who will sing the contralto part.

NOTES OF INTEREST TO ENGINEERS

A. A. Potter, dean of the engineering division, is out of town on college business.

The road exhibit that has been at the college for the last three weeks has been shipped to Iowa by the engineering department.

A new indicator has been placed upon the large prony brake at the college traction shed, this will make the brake tests more accurate.

Mr. G. A. Hopp, B. S. C. E., '15, has recently formed a partnership with Mr. J. P. Rickard. They expect to engage in municipal engineering work.

Mr. M. W. Parrish, a former civil engineering student, was at the college Saturday. He is at present employed with the Illinois State Highway Commission.

The short course students left the traction engines in better shape this year than ever before, and with a few exceptions they are in perfect condition.

The engine from the old Avery tractor, has been set up by the gas engines department and will be used to instruct students in this type of automobile engine.

H. M. McClelland, captain, and H. W. McClelland, lieutenant, of the signal company, are giving practical lectures on wireless telegraphy to the students of physics in the school of agriculture.

H. B. Walker, assistant professor in irrigation and drainage, division of college extension, has been connected with the work in controlling the chinch bug, Hessian fly and alfalfa weevil in Idaho. He is a graduate of the Ohio State university, and has been successful in extension work.

Mr. J. Clarence Jones, B. S. C. E., '13, has accepted a position in the valuation department of the Chicago and Northwestern railway. During the past couple of years he has been city engineer at Edgerton, Wisconsin.

W. J. King, assistant drainage engineer, division of college extension, has been assisting the city engineer of Salina with some new tile work that the city is expecting to place in the suburbs during the next summer.

H. D. Beidler, a factory expert from the Emerson-Brandingham company at Kansas City is overhauling the Reeves "40" that has just been received from Topeka preparatory to placing the machine on the brake test.

William Allan, expert mechanic from the Emerson-Brandingham company of Kansas City, will be present at the testing of the Reeves engine next week. He will supervise the running of the engine during the tests.

The master gear of the Emerson-tractor that was broken during the short course has been placed back in to the machine by the advanced students in traction engines. The gear was moulded in the college machine shops.

Fred Brunken, '11, assisted with the demonstration of the Case Threshing Machine company at the traction shed this week. Mr. Brunken is considered one of the best factory experts that the Case company has in its employ.

A Reeves "40-65" has been received from the Emerson-Brandingham implement company of Kansas City. The machine was shipped from Topeka where it has been threshing for two years. The college is to run a test on the engine for its rated horsepower. It is rated at 65 horsepower on the belt.

"THE TRAIL OF THE LONESOME PINE."

Jesse L. Lasky presents one of the favorite stars of the screen, Charlotte Walker, in this wonderful play by Eugene Walters. Released on the Paramount Program, at the Wareham theatre, Tuesday, Mar. 21.

New Extension Expert.

L. H. Parks of Ashley, Ohio, is a new specialist in entomology in the extension division of the Kansas State Agricultural college.

Mr. Park has had six years experience in federal and state work and was connected with the work in controlling the chinch bug, Hessian fly and alfalfa weevil in Idaho. He is a graduate of the Ohio State university, and has been successful in extension work.

Miss Florence Cook, of Clay Center attended the oratorio "Elijah" and visited friends until Wednesday. Miss Cook is accompanist for the Clay Center choral union.

First Call for Lunch

All senior boys desiring to take their dinners in the domestic science dining room spring term are requested to meet in room 27 of the domestic science building Wednesday, March 29, at 7 o'clock. Special instruction will be given then by Miss Margaret Haggart, professor of domestic science.

She Tells It Herself

Elizabeth Theorizes a Little on What "Is" and Then Goes on With What Might Have Been if—Yes, but It Wasn't That Way.

Every spring when the weather man gets tired of giving the students colds and rheumatism he turns around and gives them a malady fully as bad—the hiking fever.

There isn't anything that marks a teacher's grade books with red ink and sends a student a yellow envelope more quickly than hiking fever. It is always in the spring when the student gets it and it's "just awful" to go to the postoffice at three weeks quiz time and get a yellow envelope.

But it happened just this way. It was Friday night and three weeks quiz in bacteriology was due Saturday. Elizabeth had planned to study all the evening because she wanted an "E."

The telephone rang. It wasn't a girl wanting to borrow a notebook either. It was Bob.

"What are you doing tonight Elizabeth?" he sang out over the wire.

"Nothing only—Elizabeth's heart beat rapidly. She liked Bob and he dated so much with that Jones girl. "Well, I intended to write up a notebook, but it's such a nice evening that a bunch of us have got a champeron—"

"Oh, yes-s-s," of course hikers must have champerons, Elizabeth knew that.

"Well will you go?" Bob asked and Elizabeth didn't want to seem anxious.

"I intended to study bac—"

"Let that go 'till later," Bob interrupted. And off they went to Wild Cat. And they both got those terrible yellow envelopes the next Tuesday.

Now suppose the bacteriology professor made a date with the instructor who told Bob to hand in his notebook. Suppose they had taken the hiking fever and had gone to Wild Cat, before they had gone suppose they had quickly graded the quiz papers and looked over the notebooks and had given the student an "E" or a "G."

Wouldn't the grade books look better and wouldn't the faculty have a clearer conscience and wouldn't the students have a better time.

Our Little Sunday Sermon

A Vital Discourse Upon the Relation of Man's Raiment to the Man

By A. D. RYTER, D. D.
Doctor of Dressology

"And so ye shall be judged."

Today, tomorrow, and every day, as YOU go forth in this busy world, whether leisurely on pleasure bent, or earnestly in pursuit of daily bread, YOU are the object of most critical scrutiny and stern judgment by your fellow men, the men with whom you are thrown in contact and those strange to you, who are not yet cognizant of your name and fame.

And these men all pass judgment.

In their minds and their memories, YOU are given a place, and that place is determined by the verdict of their eyes.

The first impression, the thing that counts.

Have YOU ever thought of it that way?

Do you realize that YOUR appearance is a key to the hearts of men? Do you realize that a good "FRONT" is an "Open Sesame" to the esteem of your brothers?

YOUR Clothes reflect the spirit within. They indicate your state of mind, your disposition, and they turn the balance for or against you.

YOUR dress is the barometer of YOUR life, that indicates unerringly your journey on the high road of Success and social esteem, or your decline into slovenliness and failure.

And appearance is not wholly dependent upon quality.

YOU should apply the utmost means at your command, but no more.

If silks and broadcloth be within your easy reach, by all means have them, but if not, even lowly cottons applied with neatness and good taste, will do as much for you as the royal raiment of your more fortunate brother.

So heed well: IT'S UP TO YOU, and I urge you, for YOUR sake and the sake of those dear to you, WONDERFUL!

Every Prof on the Hill Just Gushed Over the Beautiful Costumes Which Appeared on the Campus Rough Neck Day.

OUTRAGEOUS AND INDECENT!

So Said the Dean of the Women but Still She Admitted That She would Like to be One of Them

"Roughneck day" excited quite an amount of comment among the faculty members both adversely and constructively. Here is what some of the most prominent profs. on the hill have to say about the affair:

Mike Ahearn: "Great! Best thing I ever saw! I didn't know there were so many pretty girls in school. I wanted to get out and be one of them."

H. W. Davis, as he gazed longingly at a pair of bright colored ribbon anklets which flashed by on the shins of a fair young damsel groaned: "Oh! that I were single again."

J. W. Searson: "Fine! fine! I takes me back to the days when I used to get out and mix up a little."

Bessie Birdsall: "Aren't the boys too cute for anything! The little dears! I do wish I had one of them." Dean Van Zile: "Outrageous! Indecent! The girls should be more modest. I shall see that this is taken up at the next faculty meeting. I don't see why the girls want to tempt us older women, when they know that we can't get out and do the same thing."

Dean C. M. Brink: "There are too many rough-necks around here now. Wouldn't I have a beautiful form, if I dressed for such an occasion?"

J. O. Hamilton: "While I longed to participate in the occasion, I felt that I must, for the sake of my dignity, stand aloof as an interested on-looker. The stockings that the girls wore were some of the most attractive combinations I ever saw."

Fanchion Easter: "Oh! the boys are the dearest things! Some of them put me so much in mind of Mr. Beach. I had half a notion to be a 'rough neck' myself."

Arthur Westbrook: "Oh, Lord! If I were only able to recruit a couple hundred chorus girls out of the bunch, I would be satisfied."

N. A. Crawford: "The costumes are very becoming to some of them, but I feel that for me to attire myself in such an epigrammatical, vicious manner would be the height of moroseful idiosyncrasy, and I would endure incomprehensible compunction as well as appear unscrupulously inflexible in the liquid orbs of the fairy-like beings whom I view with intoxicating approbation. Its all right for those who like it, but never for a lady's man."

Ray Gatewood: "Oh! lovely, magnificent, superb, heavenly beings! I wish my Pi Phi would be a 'rough-neck'!"

Miss Abernathy: "It's a fine thing, but I don't see how I could improve any. I wear my skirts as short as I dare."

H. H. King: "I couldn't teach my chemistry classes. The colors and combinations blinded me. I forgot the formula for hydrogen peroxide and called C17H35COOH nitroglycerin. I enjoyed it though."

Magazines in Willard's Office.

On the recommendation of a committee appointed from the faculty of the English department, the English language department, the journalism department, and the physical education department, with Librarian Smith as chairman, it has been decided to place current copies of Vanity Fair, Snappy Stories, The Argosy, The Police Gazette, Le Parisienne, the Smart Set, and the War Cry in Dean Willard's office, so that students awaiting their turn for an interview with the head of the general science department, may have somewhat to while away the weary hours of anticipation and apprehension.

And Spike Blushed.

"Spike" Baker, of the architects, encountered an embarrassing situation last week when he tried to hurry through the main hall during the chapel hour. Spike was strolling up the hall at about a 2:40 gait, when he spied a girl going up the stairs to the second floor. Naturally Spike directed his gaze upward. As he did so, he stumbled over something, and looking down, discovered that he had walked into one of the prettiest co-eds on the hill, who is about four feet and ten inches tall. Spike had the grace to blush.

CAFETERIA IS INVOLVED IN AN AWFUL SCANDAL

Revelations of Methods Employed by the Eating Joint in Securing Food Stuff, Nauseating to Say Least.

One of the most unsavory scandals on the hill in many years past developed today when it became known that the zoology department was furnishing the cafeteria with much of the "foodstuff" used in the preparation of the toothsome viands dealt out to the trusting students over the counters of the latter institution.

It was found that when the cafeteria ran short of the essential materials for "baked beef hash," the zoology lab department was called on for some of the extra specimens which are kept on hand for the classes, and that was the reason why so much care was urged on the zoology students, to be sparing of the material issued to them to be dissected. The zoology department is able to secure cats at a rate which places the cost of meat far below that demanded by the local butcher shops. Guinea pigs also, as they are raised by the department, furnish a maximum amount of "nourishment" at a minimum of cost.

During only a part of the year are cod fish balls in season at the cafeteria. By a strange coincidence, this time is coincident with the period devoted by the zoology classes to the study and dissection of the fish family.

While it has been admitted by the college authorities that the practices aforementioned indicate a commendable desire to save expense, they are nevertheless to be discontinued.

Investigation of the condition of affairs resulted in the further discovery that the veterinary hospital dissecting classes had also been contributing to the support of the cafeteria some very cheap meat being available in their department, by reason of the nature of their work.

In fact, the discovery was made indirectly because of the participation of the vet department. A farmer living near Manhattan, with a son in college here, recently sent a sick horse to the hospital, to be treated. The department later notified the farmer that the horse had died. The notification came much to his surprise, as he had not believed that the animal was suffering from serious.

The farmer in question visited his son at the college this week, and the two took dinner at the cafeteria. While consuming a dish of frappe'd salad, the farmer happened to glance out the window, and there discovered the hide of his horse, which had been thrown out. He was able to recognize it by the collar scar on the shoulder, and immediately became aware that the roast beef sandwich which he had just consumed, had been furnished by his faithful plow horse. More in sorrow than in anger, he went immediately to the authorities and demanded an explanation.

GOT BANDIT? 2 PLOTTERS

Collegian Reporter Uncovered Clever Scheme for Mulcting Students of the English Language Department of Earnings.

DEPARTMENT HEAD IS GUILTY

Caught After Long Chase He Confesses to Fraud in Connection With Text Book Work.

Detective work done by a reporter on the Collegian staff during the past few weeks resulted in a series of startling discoveries which were made public today.

Two months ago Professor J. W. Searson, read of the English language department, "accepted" the work of compiling two textbooks for the use of the public schools of Kansas, at the request of the state text book commission.

Certain circumstances connected with the deal aroused suspicion and a reporter began to pick up such clues in regard to all the details of the transaction as were available.

It was discovered that the price to be paid for the textbooks was in reality far larger than the sum announced, being, in fact, $35,000. The discovery of this fact was made by a fortunate coincidence. The reporter happened to be in a downtown cigar store, when Searson gave the check in payment for a carton of Egyptian Diety cigarettes, and stood near enough to count the change which was handed over the counter. Later it was noticed that Searson, who had been placed under surveillance, then made frequent trips out of town, in connection with the work, and that for a time before each trip, there were many examination papers, themes, and English exercises which were handed in to Searson's classes, which were not returned. Usually some flimsy excuse was offered in "explanation" of the non-returning of the papers.

The reporter hesitated to call on the officers of the law for assistance, but determined to make a more careful investigation. Discovering in advance the date on which Searson was to make one of his trips, the reporter disguised himself in a cadet uniform, carrying one of the swagster sticks formerly affected by the senior vets.

The suspect boarded an afternoon Rock Island train, shortly before midnight, and the reporter, who had clung to his trail for five hours without rest or sleep, mounted the cab of the engine, offering to work for his passage. The engineer posted him on the rear of the tender to hold the cover on the water tank when the engine rounded sharp curves.

The reporter maintained his position until the train left town, when he crept back into the baggage car. He intimidated the baggage man by his appearance in uniform, asserting that he was a special representative of the United States marine corps. Selecting the suitcase which he had seen Searson check at the station, he quickly pried it open with the aid of a set of zoology dissecting tools which he had brought for the purpose.

Instantly the details of the plot were clear. In the suitcase were the accumulated themes, practice papers, and essays which had been handed in by the students in the bandit's classes.

It was evident that class assignments had been given, calling for work which could be used in the readers, and the papers when handed in, were stolen and were being turned in as "copy" for the textbooks.

The reporter hurried through the train, and dragged the swindler from his berth in the Pullman. When confronted with the details of his crime, the criminal broke down and made a full confession, taking it down himself in shorthand. The reporter brought the captured man back to Manhattan the same night, and turned him over to Custodian Wagner. He was placed in one of the dairy barn silos for safe keeping during the night, as Custodian Wagner had mislaid the keys to the college buildings.

He was placed on trial at a called meeting of the Student Council this morning, and except for the fact that he repudiated the confession that he made the night before, told a straight story.

Sentence has not yet been passed.

That's What Burtis and Ferrier are According to Information Received by the Collegian Recently. —Great Plot.

WICKED DESIGNS ON MEXICO

Burtis was Going to Capture Mexico and Ferrier was Going to Rule It. —Childhood Ambition.

One of the most heinous, blood-thirsty, and atrocious plots that was ever conceived by the human mind in modern times has been unearthed through the activities of the energetic Collegian cub reporter, Dean C. M. Brink.

This highly commendable, vivacious and sprightly reporter intercepted a wireless code message at the college wireless station recently, the message being addressed to Hon. George Ferrier.

After many sleepless hours, lots of hard work, and much burning of midnight oil, this laurel-crowned cub was able to decipher the message which gave him the clue to this audacious and execrable scheme which involves two of the most prominent seniors in college.

Through pursuing a patient watchful waiting policy, this highly intelligent and classical reporter, managed by an extremely clever method (which we will not disclose) to unearth the whole highly complex and complicated scheme.

From the evidence which our animated cub was able to secure, it evolved that Geo. Ferrier has entered into a compact with Colonel O. B. Burtis to establish an absolute monarchy in Mexico.

Mr. Ferrier has been appropriating funds from the present Royal Purple account, with which he has been buying guns, horses, artillery, 42-centimeters, machine guns, aeroplanes and all manner of munitions of war. He has been keeping hundreds of agents actively employed in Mexico to stir up turmoil and strife, and winning as many as possible of the poor peons to look upon him as a God-sent saviour to deliver them from the hands of Villa and Carranza.

All these munitions of war are cached somewhere on the shores of the gulf of Lower California. It was planned that when the time was ripe, Colonel Burtis would go to Mexico, distribute these munitions among the Mexicans, who had been won over to their dastardly way of thinking, and then with this howling, cut-throat mob back of him, overthrow every semblance of any government, establish himself as dictator, and eventually declare Hon. (?) George Ferrier as the absolute monarch of the Empire of Mexico.

Colonel Burtis would then lower his dignity enough to descend to the position of Military Chieftain of the Empire. It was then planned to whip the forces in Mexico into a powerful military machine, and with the aid of Japan immediately take possession of the United States and Canada. It was thought that this could be easily done due to the present unpreparedness of this country.

Japan was to receive as her compensation all of South America and a half interest in the Panama Canal. Beyond this there were no plans outlined so far as our untiring cub was able to ascertain, but what plans they have in their minds no one can tell.

The timely intervention of the United States into Mexico stopped this astounding and horrifying contrivance. The authorities at Washington have been notified and secret service men are now actively at work on the case, and it is believed that these malefactors will be apprehended before they discover that their maleficance has been found out.

The Collegian cannot profoundly enough express its thanks, and cannot shower enough praises and blessings on the most estimable and praiseworthy cub, Dean Brink for his tireless activity on this case. We owe our lives, our homes and our country to his superhuman efforts to protect the native land from one of the foulest, most incomprehensible and damnable plots ever conceived by man or beast. As a result of his extreme energy, ineffable mental activity, and efficacious determination, he has become partly bald-headed, the remainder of his hair has turned gray, and he is obliged to wear spectacles the rest of his life.

STRATTON WINS BABY PRIZE.

Prominent Aggie Student Wins Over All Other Contestants.

The Collegian must admit that some time ago they missed a most important item of news. It was on March 16 when the baby show was held in Manhattan.

One of the highest ranking babies exhibited at the contest was Jay Stratton, a most prominent man on the hill and president of the Collegian board. While the ranking of the babies in the contest was not made public, Jay was so proud of himself that he could not help but tell some of his friends about his wonderful properties as discovered by the judges.

This is a great honor to have conferred upon one of our own number and it is hoped that now that the item is public property none of his friends will be slow in congratulating Mr. Stratton.

W. C. Calvert, senior in the horticultural department, has accepted an engagement with one of the Manhattan churches, as teacher of the senior Bible class. Mr. Calvert's qualifications, as demonstrated in a competitive examination, were of the highest character.

THE COLLEGE SUDDENLY LOSES ITS PRESIDENT

Swiped Juice From Rooky Wireless Plant, and Got Into Trouble With the Authorities—Rhine Is President Now.

For some time past, the cadets in the signal squad have had difficulty in manipulating the wireless apparatus which they have installed back of the Chemistry building.

The trouble evidently arose from a lack of sufficient current to operate the instruments, and the rooky engineers have been puzzled to discover the leak in their system.

Matters came to such a pass finally that it was impossible to operate the station, and it was realized that the situation was desperate. Sentries were placed over the station, day and night, but failed to detect anything out of the ordinary. Nevertheless, when the plant was operated, only a very feeble spark could be produced.

Then another tack was tried. The members of the squad were detailed as detectives, and went on a still hunt all over the town, looking for other wireless installations.

Cleverly concealed in a tree in front of President Waters' house on Park Road, an aerial was finally discovered by a keen eyed cadet. He reported the matter to his commanding officer, and received orders to return, station himself in the park, and await developments.

In the still hours of the evening, at the time at which the wireless operators tuned up to get the time from the big naval station at Arlington, Virginia, the shivering cadet saw President Waters slip from the house, go to the garage, and presently emerge, pushing before him his wife's electric car. He pushed the car to the foot of the tree in which the aerial was placed, and worked for a moment with some connecting wires. Then seating himself on the running board, he calmly waited while the batteries on the car were recharged by the current emanating from the college wireless.

The cadet hurried to the nearest phone, and notified headquarters. Martial law was immediately declared by Lieutenant Mathews, and a file of cadets sent to arrest the president.

When the latter saw the cadets approaching, he sprang into the car, severed the connections, and drove off at a furious rate. The cadets returned to the armory. The motor truck belonging to the farm mechanics department was commandeered, one of the machine guns mounted thereon, and a hot pursuit instituted immediately.

The chase lasted for several hours, but the lightly laden electric outstripped the heavy truck, and was finally lost to view. L. V. Rhine was later appointed acting president of the college, until order has been restored, and a new head can be regularly selected by the board of administration.

His inaugural ball was given last night at Harrison's hall.

POLICE RAID COLLEGE INSTRUCTOR'S HOUSE

Terrible and Unwanted Noise in Brink Home Arouses Suspicion Which Were Later Found to be Unsubstantiated.

Neighbors of Dean Brink, on Park Road, were wrought up to the highest state of excitement last night, by the belief that a tragedy was being enacted in the Brink home.

The sounds emanating from the residence were weird and dreadful. There were sounds of scuffling and heavy falls, mingled with occasional groans.

Horror-stricken, the neighbors called the police. The assistant chief of police himself answered the call, and rushed to the spot in a jitney. Depicting the jitney driver, who, like all his sort, was a man of nerve, the officer went to the front porch to investigate. At his second thunderous rap on the door, the portal was opened, and Dean Brink himself, in a dressing gown, and flushed as if he had been taking strenuous exercise, appeared.

He seemed ill at ease, and protested against allowing the forces of law and order to enter the building. He was unable to give a satisfactory explanation of the noises, and the house was forcibly entered. Nothing incriminating was discovered, but the dean of the college was arrested and taken to the city jail, where the third degree was administered with unction.

Under pressure of the methods used, it developed that the college instructor had become worried about his fast increasing avoirdupois, and had adopted the suggestion of the Physical Culture magazine, to "roll on the floor twenty minutes each evening," in order to reduce.

AN EXPLANATION.

The editors of the Scandal issue of the Collegian have tried to be fair with every one and in no way hit one person more than another. We have tried to keep entirely away from the truth and if anything which appears herein is the truth you are the only one who knows it. We have heard of a great amount of real scandal since the coming of this issue was announced but we have tried to forget it as this issue is put out simply because it has been the custom to get out such a number each year and because the stuff is much easier to write than would be real news.

This issue of the Collegian is respectfully dedicated to those persons whose names appear herein. It is through these people that the issue was possible so to them belongs all the praise. If the sheet does not suit you, tells the subjects and not the editors about it. The latter have done all in their power and if failure is the result then it is not their fault.

Further we wish to thank every one who has been thoughtful enough to commit acts that might be suitable for this special issue.

If we have forgotten or neglected any item that any one thinks should be printed in this number then your communication will be given space in the next regular issue of the Collegian.

ESPECIALLY FOR FAT ONES.

Although it is said that the finances of the college are not in the best of condition the authorities have gone to the expense of putting extensions on all the door knobs in the buildings on the hill. This was for the especial benefit of Professor Lipincott and others who before this improvements have had to back up to all the doors in order to reach the knob.

CHAWS AND CIGARETTES WILL BUILD MEMORIAL

Junior Class Will be Economical and Save the Tobacco the Naughty Students Throw Away.

The junior class has decided that there shall not be like some other classes of the past have been and leave this institution without first erecting a suitable memorial.

For some time this subject has been one of heated discussion in the class meetings and the main question was in regard to where the funds for the memorial were to come from. At the meeting last Thursday this question was settled by Joe Sweet who put forward a plan which met with the most hearty approval of every member of the class.

It is Mr. Sweet's idea that a suitable receptacle should be placed at each of the entrances to the campus wherein the cigar and cigarette stubs might be placed. Incidentally the ends of chewing tobacco might be thrown in with the old butts. This seemingly useless tobacco has long been going to waste because there has never before been a means of saving it. Now it is to be taken and after dried and refined, it will be made into a most excellent brand of chewing and cigarette tobacco.

As every man in the 1917 class already chews there is no doubt but that there will be plenty of sale for this product. A rule was made that every lady member of the class was to begin smoking cigarettes so insuring a good sale for the smoking tobacco.

As after each junior chews or smokes will throw the leavings back into one of the cans the product is practically inexhaustible and no doubt will bring much pleasure besides economic gain to the class.

Those planning to debate next year should hear the Great Pentangular Friday night. The coach of debating says this is the big debate of the season.

PROMISING YOUNG MAN GOES WRONG FOR GIRL

Popular Musician Commits Robbery In Order to Please His Lately Sweetheart.

One of the most surprising discoveries of the age was made by the city police and college authorities late last night when it came to light that one of the most prominent men of the college was guilty of robbing of several rooms. Rough-neck day.

Suspicion was first drawn toward Fred Korsmeier when it was found that he had sent a registered package to a large jewelry house in St. George the night after the robbery and Friday he cashed a large check from the jewelry house.

After this surprising amount of evidence had been collected the young man in question was called before the supreme judge and after a profound denial of having any part in the notorious business broke down and confessed to the entire affair.

The popular musician gave as his reason for committing the crime something which can not help but arouse the most heartfelt sympathy of every one who knows him. For many months Fred's girl, who now exists at Lansing, has been begging him for some fraternity jewelry and, being desperate to satisfy his dear one's desires the young man resorted to this great length which has now brought shame on both himself and the lady besides sending our fellow student to prison for life.

In Society

Attend Dance.

The Occidental lodge gave a dancing party last Monday evening in Woodman hall which was most artistically decorated with many of the society notables of the college. Among the most popular guests we noted Mr. Lee Randells, Mr. Wilbur Lane, Mr. Zane Fairchild, Mr. Wilson Means, Mr. Monty McGinnis, Mr. Homer Sharpe, Mr. Jack Kramer, and Mr. Duby DuBols. These young gentlemen escorted some of the most pleasing and best known telephone operators of the city. Miss Claudine Kathman was exquisitely gowned in her party dress of pale green and with her pleasing manners and sprightly talk was quite the belle of the ball. Miss Evelyn Logerman wore her pink dress which as usual matched perfectly the tint of her cheeks. Miss Magdelyn Logerman and Mr. Wilbur Lane had a lovely time. Miss Mary Van was there of course, she being one of the most loved girls in college, especially popular with the Betas. You know she is the girl who said that she wouldn't go with anyone but a Beta, but she would go with any of them—at any time.

Pajama Shower.

One of the most deliciously charming social events of the season just closing, was a pajama shower given for one of the college's most charming debutantes, Mr. Ralph Erskine, last Thursday night. The occasion for the shower was the announcement of Mr. Erskine's engagement as chaperone to a large agricultural project in South Africa. Mr. Erskine who is known to most of his college admirers as "Erskie," received his guests in a pale mauve creation of shimmer and tucked tulle, in the "Pajama" mode. He wore bedroom slippers of soft scarlet felt, and carried a bouquet of the flowers of the wild oat plant. The rooms were decorated with blue and pink tissue paper, artistically cut to resemble masculine lingerie. Refreshments of Hershey's and milk were served throughout the evening. Out-of-town guests included Governor Arthur Capper, one of Mr. Erskine's fraternity brothers.

Announcement Party.

The Pi Kappa Alpha fraternity surprised Mr. Wilson Means with an informal dinner party last week, the occasion being his graduation from the short horn course and also the announcement of the engagement of Uncle Tom and Little Eva.

Following the dinner Father Gatewood made a presentation speech and gave Mr. Means his diploma. Many beautiful and wonderful presents were received by the guests of honor. A whop of exquisite workmanship was presented by the guests, and the following announcement was attached: "Here's to the whip that strengthens the bonds that ties Little Eva to Uncle Tom."

The guests were Miss Eva Lawson, Miss Evelyn Logerman, Miss Onetta Harrison, Miss Corinne Myers, and Miss Adelaide Updegraff.

Following the dinner, the game of "Hot-Hands" was played out. Mr. Means acquiring high score.

Keg Fest.

Among the social affairs of the past week was an all night keg fest given by one of the sororities Saturday night. The rooms were handsomely and tastefully decorated with imported blue grapes and fresh straw. One of the novelties of the evening was a guessing contest of the names of the various posters of liquor houses of Kansas City. Many beautiful and artistic costumes were worn by the guests, among whom were: Mr. Stiff Randells, Mr. Malcolm Aye, Mr.

Extra Invitation Race.

John D. Cooke is the startling new "find" on the gridiron. Athletic Director Winship has announced that aggressiveness will be the fundamental qualification of all men on the team. Cooke came on the field at 3 o'clock yesterday afternoon and it was not only necessary to remove three men on a stretcher before evening but the football suits of several of the men are sadly in need of repair.

Coach P. J. Newman who is putting the baseball squad through the elimination tryouts has been quite discouraged with the prospects. However, the addition of several new men this week has brought new promise and the coach says that there is bright prospects for one of the fastest teams ever produced in the valley. The new entries are as follows.

DANCING SCHOOL.

Every Saturday night, Young amp Hall, Aggieville. School from 7:15 to 10:30.

"The Great Divide," the tremendous success which served as a starring vehicle for Henry Miller and Margaret Anglin for many seasons has been adapted and produced in motion pictures by the Lubin Company with House Peters as Steve Ghent and Ethel Clayton as Ruth Jordan. The picture was produced on the identical spot which inspired Vaughan Moody in his writing and abounds with a wealth of marvelous scenic value as well as dramatic acting. "The Great Divide" will be the attraction at the Marshall theatre on Thursday next.

SPECIAL ANNOUNCEMENTS.

Wellington Brink announces that owing to the fact that he can find no more tobacco of his favorite variety he has quit chewing and washed his teeth.

Miss Gertrude Conroy wishes to announce that as she does not live at her sorority house she can have a date "just any night."

Miss Hildagrade Mense wishes it to be known that she has fully recovered from her recent illness and is again able—yes, even crazy—to dance.

Miss Ruth Adams, winner in the Royal Purple beauty contest, states that she has sold one of her photographs to the Ford automobile concern for the handsome sum of three dollars. The picture will be used on a small advertising button put out by the company.

The Keen Spitters announce the pledging of the following men: Ralph Erskine, Howard Ghiespie, Everett Stevenson, Waldo Heppie T. K. Vincent, and Harlan Sumner.

Those taking part in the services of the Bible class next Sunday are: "Duroc" Frizzell, L. V. Rhine, Earl Ramsey, L. B. Mann, and B. F. Griffin.

Arthur Boyer announces that he has refused to accept the position recently offered him as head of the women's physical training department as he has found it more profitable to solicit subscriptions for the "Snappy Stories" magazine.

Jaunita Reynolds has withdrawn from the Lambda sorority as she finds that since she now has a case and wishes to date every night it is mighty inconvenient to live where the rules relative to nights for dates, and getting-in hour, are enforced.

Have No More Dates.

Elwyn BuBois, Ollie Barnhart, Ebenezer Englesby, and Joe Sweet wish it to be distinctly understood that they are not going to have any more mid-week dates. They state that it does not make any difference how many girls ask them they will stand by their resolutions.

Announcement was made today of the closing of a contract between Miss Emma Taylor, a student in the home economics course, and the Paramount Picture company, whereby Miss Taylor is to star in the productions of the company for the coming season.

It was only after long and persistent effort that the movie organization was able to persuade Miss Taylor to accept their offer, and go on the "camera stage." She still asserts that she does not expect to act before the camera permanently, and that she will retire at the expiration of her contract.

It is stated by the press agent of the company that Miss Taylor is to receive $11,000 a week, $1,000 more than Charlie Chaplin, for her work.

E. N. Wentworth and H. J. Waters are in close contest for first place in the broad jumping event. A crowd of enthusiastic rooters witness their tryouts every afternoon from 1:30 until 4:00.

Those planning to debate next year should hear the Great Pentangular Friday night. The coach of debating says this is the big debate of the season.

Price Wheeler Tried to Desert a Missouri Damsel but Got Caught—Old Gal Got All Peeved About his Pickles.

The was once a YOUNG SQUIRREL, who came to this INSTITUTION from the PREACHERS HANGOUT, called WILLIAM JEWELL, and this SPECIMEN had a CASE on a FAIR DAMSEL there. Now this FELLOW RUN ACROSS another CUTE ONE after arriving in this BURG and sure FELL for her. THE YOUNG SQUIRREL, who went by the HANDLE of Price Wheeler, was WISE TO THE FACT that the SKIRT from the Missouri VILLAGE was an ONLY CHILD, and that her FOND PARENTS were AGED and had a STAKE WORTH GOING AFTER.

While LITTLE PRICE was MADLY IN LOVE with the DAME here, who's COGNOMEN was Ethel Loring, he was a good POLITICIAN and was TAKING NO CHANCES ON LETTING LOOSE A SURE THING until he had the DOPE and whole FAMILY TREE of his new FLAME. WELL, he MANAGED TO KEEP THINGS DARK from the GYM TEACHER here about his AFFAIR in OLD MISSOURI and STEPPING RIGHT ALONG with the RUNNING DOWN of the NEW ONE'S HISTORY, when the GREAT UNLOOKED FOR HAPPENED. The MEMBER OF THE FAIR SEX in some way GOT IT INTO HER HEAD that HER DEAR PRICE was NEGLECTING HER and DECIDED that the only cause FOR HIM DOING THIS was that there was ANOTHER WOMAN IN THE CASE. So the FIRST CASE TOOK IT UPON HERSELF to INVESTIGATE the MATTER and to do she JOURNEYED to Manhattan. For SOME TIME she MADE HER ABODE among the INHABITANTS of this FAIR CITY and watched her LOVING MAN as he NEGLECTED HIS STUDIES for his NEWLY ACQUIRED STEADY.

Now the rest of this TALE is SHORT. OUR HERO, or VILLAIN as he might be TERMED did not GET TO FINISH his SEARCH of the Loring FAMILY TREE and STATE OF FINANCES. BEFORE HE KNEW IT his FIRST LOVE had SUE'd him for BREACH OF PROMISE and now he SPENDS HIS TIME PLAYING WITH THE RATS in the COUNTY JAIL instead of WITH WOMEN'S HEARTS.

Woes of a Popular Frosh

One Fair Boy has a — of a Time Evading the Attention of Women Who Fall for His Charms.

This popularity is terrible sometimes—just scandalous. If you say it isn't that is because you haven't had enough yet. Really, I know of the most popular boys! Usually a freshman, isn't so well known but this one is an exception—why even he says so and he ought to know.

His great and perplexing trouble is that the girls possess such great admiration for him. Why he just can't get away from them. They follow him around and actually nearly bore him to death and distraction, sometimes. Isn't that just too pitiful—such a nice fellow, too!

On the campus or off the campus he is pursued just the same. You know every time he passes the post office in main hall a perfect bevy of girls fly after him—pretty ones, too, but shoot—he does hate to be bothered all the time. He tries to look as unconcerned as possible. And every time he leaves main hall he is simply carried along—and he can't leave any other building on the campus without being entrapped by some young lady.

And when he starts for the house—my goodness two or three are sure to come rushing up to him. Why, they even go past his house, he says, out of their way, with strong hopes of coming upon him. Now wouldn't that bewilder you too?

If they just knew how dreadfully tired they made him! But not being a rude boy he really can't say anything. But he just decided that he would have to do something. Take some step for protection.

Everyone has heard of the little girl that "took her doggie along to scare the boys away"—well that little ditty gave him the most daring idea! You know he is awfully apt—"Bah Jove!" He'd get him a little dog! Then he would select a little chain, on the end of this chain a little ring to slip over the little finger of his right hand and then put the little dog on the other end of this chain. The little doggie will know how to bark and you can just decide before hand that it will terrify those girls to death!

The other day this popular one was noticed laboring up the street with a perfect armload of catalogs, and a desperate determined look upon his brow. He was going to order that dog immediately—and then he just had time to dash into the Sig Alph house before all those girls overtook him. The girls are all just wild to know what kind of a dog Branham will get.

"HE FELL IN LOVE WITH HIS WIFE."

The Palace Pictures Co. presents the beautiful and talented actress Florence Rockwell, in a strong drama of slowly awakening love, with a thrilling fight and a powerful finish. At the Wareham theatre, Thursday, Mar. 23rd.

In a Distressing Fix.

Jack Richards, '15, is in a dilemma which is embarrassing to say the least. Jack is still hanging around Manhattan, and is one of the leading lights in the Kansas National guard. Recently disturbing rumors came to the organization, of the trouble on the Mexican border, and it was said on good authority, that the K. N. G. had best be ready for an instant call to service on the border. Ay, there's the rub. Jack loves a damsel. And the damsel is a PACIFICIST. She swears that if Jack goes down to shoot the p-o-o-r dear Mexicans, he may just as well kiss himself good-bye, for she won't. And the Federal laws say that if Jack don't go to shoot Mexicans as per instructions, he will spend the next seventeen years in jail. Jack would appreciate suggestions as to what is to be done in the predicament.

In Trouble With the Law.

Ralph H. Heppie, junior in industrial journalism, and closely connected with one of the local papers, has been confined in the Riley County jail, on a charge of conspiracy to defraud in the recent city elections. It appears from the testimony of Federal agents, that Ralph took advantage of his position on the local paper, to intimidate one of the faculty members vitally interested in the election. The young journalist was able, by virtue of his official position to acquire early knowledge of the results of the election, and it is charged that he retailed the information to one of the amateur faculty politicians, at a price. It is not the retailing of the information that has aroused the ire of the faculty and the officers, but the price that Ralph exacted, a passing grade. The remuneration is regarded as exorbitant. "Outrageous," said Ralph's victim.

In Tangle With Police.

The private life of one of K. S. A. C.'s leading students has been subjected to grave and soliloquous scrutiny recently, by the city police. The sleuths were attracted to the object of their attentions, by suspicious actions on his own part. It was observed that each night, a light was to be seen burning, very late, in his apartments, which consist of one furnished room on the second floor of a house on Blumont. Every night a patient policeman was stationed at the corner across from the room, and every night it became evident, the student in question either refrained from retirement until a late hour, or went to bed and left the light burning. The latter, needless to state, is the most heinous crime in the criminal calendar of the species Landlady, and worthy of death, failing of a worse penalty. Investigation proved that the worst suspicions of the officers were correct. The student was studying late. It is believed that the devilish ingenuity and originality of the crime will result in dire consequences for the guilty party. The faculty has appointed itself as chief witness for the prosecution, and such procedure on the part of a student calling for, (and eliciting) the gravest censure from that body. The faculty is particularly good at censuring.

BASKET BALL MEN GET AWAY CLEAN

Their Table Manners Might be Somewhat Improved but Nothing Was Missed Except the Silverware.

Despite the many inconsistencies of the evening, the entertainment accorded the men of the basketball team by the senior basketball girls last Friday evening was a decided success.

The feature of the evening was "Stiff" Ramsey's method of eating the noodles which were served as a prologue to the more entertaining course. Ramsey had seen them eaten in Chinatown last summer in San Francisco and tried their method of absorbing them with surprising success. He was fouled twice for dribbling.

"Wamego" Leonard became aware as soon as he took his seat at the table that entirely too much silverware had been placed at his plate and, to save his pretty hosts any discomfiture, he slipped the extra knife, fork, and spoon in "Mac" MacMillan's pocket.

Reynolds and Adams needed no coaching except when Coach "Carl Jaw" kicked all the skin off their shins to stop the onslaughts on the salad garnishing, since he knew that it was needed to serve the next course.

A third foul on Van Trine for holding, when he bade the fair senior captain good night, completed the fouling record of the evening—easily the cleanest contest of the season.

Latest song catches. Kipp's.

SIGMA KAPPA TAU IS GRANTED A CHARTER

New Social Fraternity Recently Established Starts With Twenty Members—Three Prominent Faculty Men as Patrons.

TEMPORARY HOME 1000 LARAMIE

A new fraternity came into existence at Kansas State Agricultural college recently when a group of some twenty men students of the college were granted a charter and given corporate character by the State of Kansas. The name of the new fraternity is Sigma Kappa Tau.

Sigma Kappa Tau is a social fraternity and is the eighth of its kind to be established at this institution. It is local in character having no national affiliations of any sort. It was organized and constituted through the efforts of local students.

The temporary home of the new organization is to be at 1000 Laramie street. The twenty members whose names appear on the charter are: L. C. Allis, S. E. Barnes, H. B. Bayer, J. M. Dorrill, Homer Cross, V. L. Durland, C. H. Enlow, J. A. Hull, A. E. Jones, J. R. Mingle, L. N. Moody, E. I. Maris, T. E. Moore, R. H. Parsons, Claude Prock, B. Q. Shields, C. J. Speck, Oscar Steanson, R. H. White-nack, A. H. Van Horn.

The faculty members are: President H. J. Waters, Professor J. E. Kam-meyer, and J. G. Emmerson.

WHY TAKE CURRENT HISTORY?

Professor Iles Mentions Good Points of the Course.

To increase ones capacity for pleasure and to know what is going on in the world, are the benefits derived by taking a course in current history, according to I. V. Iles, associate professor of history and civics in the Kansas State Agricultural college.

"A course in current history gives a student a chance to become acquainted with many new magazines, and the different subjects taken up by them. He not only receives pleasure while reading them, but also is increasing his scope of knowledge. He is given a proper perspective and receives at least a faint knowledge of where his college and his country belong in the world.

"A knowledge of current events breaks down provincialism and one realizes that his locality is not the only thing in existence. It aids one to judge the coming events, and thus he may profit by a sudden decline or increase in the world of commerce.

"Students who have taken this course agree that it gives a person a chance to get acquainted with the working of the government and gives one a desire to know what is happening in the political world. It increases ones knowledge of the magazines and he knows just where to look for any information that he may desire on various subjects."

SCREENS ON KEDZIE HALL.

Cafeteria Leads in Health Measure—Change Serving Hours.

To the college cafeteria apparently belongs the leadership in what has been recommended by physicians and health officers as one of the most important steps toward health, screens.

Workmen have been employed for several days in putting screens on all the available entrances through which the flies might possibly gain entrance to the food, either before or after cooking. The measure necessitates the opening of a screen door every time any one passes through the main entrance, but it is regarded as necessary to the proper taking of precautions for the health of those who eat on the hill.

The hours for serving dinner and supper, or lunch and dinner, whichever it pleases the reader to designate them, have been altered to meet the change in the arrangement of the class hours.

Publish Searson-Martin Readers.

It has been announced from Topeka that work has been started in the state printing plant on the readers which have been prepared in part by J. W. Searson, formerly head of the department of the English language, and now on a year's leave of absence working on other books of a similar nature.

The cost of printing the readers will be some 14 or 15 cents each, it has been said, and 400,000 of them are to be published.

FRESHMEN WEAR CAPS.

As it is nice warm weather now and the time of year when all green things come out it has been decreed both proper and fitting that the freshmen of this institution shall again don the purple and white caps as was the custom last fall term. It is the custom that all freshmen boys wear these caps not only in the fall but that they again make themselves conspicuous by the use of the ink spots not later than the day of the first baseball game of the spring and thence forth until the end of the term.

By request of committee.

Mr. Con M. Buck, a graduate of the college and former city engineer of Manhattan, has made application for a C. E. degree, to be conferred by the college the coming June. The first draft of his thesis, "A Description of the Construction of the Guthrie Reservoir," has been submitted to the civil engineering department for approval.

STUDY HABITS OF STUDENTS SUBJECT OF RESEARCH

The class in Educational Psychology under Professor Reiser has undertaken a "study of the study habits of students of the college." Those carrying on the investigation wish to answer with figures from as large a number of cases as possible, a few questions that are continually coming up, such as the following: Does the amount of time that a student spends at his work have any definite correlation with his academic ranking? Is there any basis of practice for the common expectation that a student should spend at least an hour and a half upon preparation for an hour's recitation? Would he have time to do so if he wanted to? What is the relative amount of time put upon different studies of the curriculum?

Related topics will be taken up, such as the student's reading rate and the bearing of the amount of his assignment upon his academic performance. Each member of the class in Educational Psychology will try to secure twenty students who will agree to fill out blanks provided for the purpose. The records of the students will be compiled from blanks by number and then presented for further discussion and classification.

A conscientious report of study, including reference reading, will not prejudice any one's standing, as the student members of the class will be the sole repositories of the identity of the persons handing in reports.

As many students of the college as are willing to keep a study record and a reading rate record will be provided with blanks and assigned to a member of the class in Educational Psychology upon application to Professor Reiser. Records should begin with April 2.

HOLD FIRST GENERAL ASSEMBLY

Dr. J. F. Harmon of Salina Wesleyan the Speaker—Change Chapel Hour.

The first general assembly exercises of the term were held at 9 o'clock Thursday morning, when Dr. John F. Harmon, president of Salina Wesleyan, addressed the students on "Possibilities." The description of Dr. Harmon as a forceful and interesting speaker was well substantiated by his pleasing appearance at the college.

The usual system of time arrangement for the spring term will be in force this term. General assemblies will be held from 9 to 10 o'clock on either Tuesday or Thursday, the other days being open for student meetings.

GOING AFTER PUBLICITY.

City Commercial Club Will Work Through High Schools and Colleges.

The Manhattan Commercial club is to begin immediately a campaign of publicity in the high schools of every town in the state, for the college, and the city schools. The action was decided at a meeting of the directors of the club held Thursday evening.

Illustrated literature descriptive of the college and the city schools is to be the medium of the campaign. The object of the club is to stimulate immigration into Manhattan, by bringing to the city families consisting both of children of college age and of common school age.

TRACK MEN HAVE HEAVY SCHEDULE THIS SEASON

Will Meet K. U., M. U., Oklahoma, Emporia Normals and Enter in Drake Relay—K. U. and M. U. Will come Here for Meets.

THE NORMALS SHOULD BE EASY.

Merner's lightly clad athletes have the heaviest track schedule ahead of them that the Aggies have ever faced. They will meet Missouri University, Kansas University, Emporia Normals, Oklahoma, and in addition to these contests a team will be sent to the Drake Relay games.

K. U. and M. U. will both come here for their meets with the Aggies and each has the strongest team that they have had in years. The Normals should be easy for the Aggies. Last year the Normals were allowed but one first and a few seconds.

Coach Merner is directing all of his time and expert coaching ability, which he is displayed in turning out the successful basketball quintet, to developing the track material for these meets.

The Aggie track team is still suffering in silence over the defeat handed them by K. U. in the indoor meet. But now that they have had time to figure out just how it happened they are of the opinion that it does not look so bad after all. The records show that K. U. had a wonderfully well balanced team which consisted of two good men for almost every place.

In the outdoor meets of the season, Captain Frizzell, "the auburn pated high jumper," will lead the Aggies in his two events, the high hurdles and the high jump. Frizzell's performance in the high jumps and leaps are watched with much concern by his opponents throughout the Valley. Wilder is a close second in the hurdles. Wilder will also make Vandenberg step some for first honors in the "low sticks." These two men are also developing no mean ability in broad jumping and there will be no weakness in this event.

The weight events are not being neglected. The reports are that Doderill, Enlow, Schafer, and Wilder are all throwing the discus out of sight. Schafer and Doderill are both showing a great deal of improvement in putting the shot.

Holroyd with a record of 10 flat in the century event is also trying in the 220, with competition in these events furnished by Crumbaker, Turner, Essick, Grandfield, and others.

There should be some keen competition in the quarter mile to find who will be Holroyd's running mate. There is good material from the dash men for a first class relay team, but more quarter milers are needed. "Holly" is getting rid of his sprints and the old confidence and fight are returning to him.

Kromer and Keys, who won second in the Kansas City meet, will probably take care of the half mile although Chaffee, Bixby, and Forsman are good runners and giving them all the competition needed. Secher, Bixby, and Eggman are capable of running a good mile race, but they will find some hard races on the cinder track this season.

And last but not least, Teeter is settling back into his old stride in the two mile. This stride won for Teeter the championship of the Missouri valley last year and he has good chances to retain that place this year. Teeter is an outdoor man and despite his luck in the indoor meet against K. U., it must be remembered that "Teeter" has the faculty of coming strong and it is unlikely that the Valley championship will change hands this year.

FACULTY REVISE SYSTEM OF GRADING

System Which Will go Into Effect Next Fall is not Radically Different from the One now in use—Four Passing Grades Given.

E TO BE EXCEPTIONAL GRADE

At the last faculty meeting a revision in the system of grading was proposed and passed after the plan submitted by the committee was intended. The reason for the instituting of the new system is that many of the newer instructors and even some heads of departments did not understand just what was meant by the old method of grading. The system, as it appeared after being amended and as it will go into force at the beginning of next fall term follows:

We suggest that student's grades be designated by the letters E, G, M, P, C, U, and F.

Grade E, meaning excellent, is intended to designate really distinguished achievement and will probably be the net resultant of exceptionally good mental ability in conjunction with serious application. The student who receives this grade should exhibit mastery of principles and details, an ability to use his information with some originality, and an interest in the course which leads him to undertake more than the minimum assignment. It should represent the ability usually exhibited by from one of ten to one out of one hundred students among all those who come under the instruction of a teacher. It is to be expected that this grade will not include more than ten per cent of all grades given and will in the long run fall around five per cent.

Grade G, meaning good, is intended to represent superior achievement, better than that exhibited by the general run of students, but not distinguished. It is to be recognized as a mark of considerable honor and will probably be the resultant of high ability and fair application, or of fair ability and serious application. The percentage of this grade assigned students will depend somewhat upon the number assigned grade E, but the sum of grades E and G will approximate twenty-five per cent of all grades assigned.

Grade M, meaning medium, is intended to represent the standing of about half of all students in the college. When the work of a course has been wisely chosen, it is within the ability of the majority of the class to profit by it; and when the students are conscientiously and accurately marked on their achievement in the course, they may be expected to be grouped rather numerously about the central tendency. If, say, seventy per cent of all students that come under a given instructor receive marks of superior achievement (E and G) or even fifty per cent do so, it is an indication either that the course is not sufficiently extensive nor sufficiently rigorous to allow detection of the superior students, or that the teacher is undiscriminating in his awards of merit. If, on the other hand, say seventy per cent or even fifty per cent of all students are graded as exhibiting inferior achievement (P or below) it is, except under unusual circumstances that may be specifically described, an indication either that the subject matter of the course is too difficult for the class, or that it has not been clearly presented, or that the instructor has failed in securing application on the part of the class. Grade M should be taken then, to mean achievement equal to that of the general run of students and should include about half of all students' grades. It indicates neither superior nor inferior accomplishment. To it is attached only such honor as may come from being considered as good as the average of the class and from knowing that one's work is accepted at par value.

Grade P, meaning poor, is intended to represent achievement of a grade below that of the general run of students. It indicates a student's position as being, in the upper part of the lower fourth of the class and his work as being such as may be described as poor, or inferior. If as much as half of all a student's work for a term is in this classification, he should be forbidden by the dean to take out a full assignment for the term succeeding. The percentage of this grade to be awarded, together with the grades C and F, should not, in the long run, exceed twenty-five per cent of all grades, but the three grades mentioned may be expected to include about that proportion.

The letter C, meaning conditioned, is the symbol to be used to represent two types of decidedly inferior work: (a) work that is deficient in quality, and (b) work that is satisfactory as to quality but inadequate as to quantity. In the case of deficiency in quality of work, the student will, upon consultation with the head of the department to which the condition is received, be given an opportunity to remove his condition by an examination to be taken on the fourth Saturday of the following term. In case there is a deficiency in quantity of work, it must be made up to the satisfaction of the instructor in charge by the fourth Saturday of the following term. In both cases, upon satisfactory completion of the work, the student's grade will be changed to P. If the work should not be satisfactorily completed, the grade will be changed to F.

AGGIES SHOWED UP WELL AT MISSOURI TRACK MEET

Frizzell Held Chicago Man Even on High Jump for Many Trials—Collier Scratch Man.

When the best track men of the country assembled at St. Louis last Saturday night to compete in the Annual Indoor Track meet of the Missouri Athletic association, two Aggie men were there, in response to invitations, to fight for honors and to win them.

Captain Herbert Frizzell, who has won the name of "The Oklahoma Kangaroo" in his high jumping events, and "Mat" Collier, the speedy freshman, represented the Aggies against some of the best athletes in the United States.

Frizzell jumped true to form and cleared the rope at six feet and two inches in the high jump. His opponent, Joe Loomis of Chicago, also cleared the rope at the same height but both failed at six feet three.

The St. Louis papers tell of the game fight between Frizzell and Loomis in the contest which followed in jumping off the tie. Frizzell had not lost the event until the two men had contested for more than thirty minutes. The rope was lowered an inch at a time until Loomis got over at six feet, Frizzell failing. Treweeke of Kansas won third place at 5 feet 11 inches.

Although Collier did not win points it is no indication that he was not running fast. To show their respect for "Mat's" ability, the officials in charge made him "scratch" man. The man who won Collier's place had a five yard handicap. And five yards is a big handicap in a fifty yard race.

Frizzell's performance easily ranks him as the best high jumper in the Missouri Valley. He holds four or five college records now in hurdles and high jump and with the habit of breaking records which he has formed, his friends expect him to break this record when he gets started on outdoor practice.

OFFERS RELIGIOUS COURSES.

Congregational Church Has Many Classes for Benefit of Students.

The Congregational church offers to K. S. A. C. students the following spring term courses: A course in Teacher Training at 9 a. m. under the leadership of the college pastor, W. J. Jones. This class will use Weigle's "Pupil and Teacher" as text. This book is officially recognized as textbook by the International Sunday School association. The class is open to both men and women.

A course in "The History of the Bible" at 11 a. m. This is the "Triangle Class" for men, and meets in the North Parlor. Mr. Jones is also the leader of this class.

Three classes are open to college women. A nine o'clock class led by Miss Baker studying Fosdick's "Mantle of the Master" and Miss Kellogg's 11 o'clock class studying the same text. Mrs. Newman has a class for upper class college women meeting at 11 studying "The History of the Hebrews."

Margaret and Maria Morris have been spending their spring vacations here this week with their parents. Mr. and Mrs. E. M. Morris. Maria Morris is teaching domestic art in the high school and Margaret Morris is supervising domestic art in the public schools of Hastings, Neb.

THINGS LOOK GOOD FOR BEATING THE WESLEYANS

While Seven Old Men of Last Year are Missing from the Ranks the New Material is Promising and in Excellent Form.

HODSON TO BE ON THE MOUND

With the clanging of the new bell going on the College Field next Tuesday afternoon at three o'clock, the Aggies will begin their first game of the baseball season in a contest with the Wesleyan nine.

Hodson will in all probability be wound up for twirling his deceiving curves at the Wesleyan batting staff. Hewey or Ferrier with speed and control will perhaps be reserved for the latter part of the game. The fielding and hitting staff of the team, too, is equal to the occasion. In fact the whole squad is in the best possible condition.

Coach Bender expects the first to be a very hard game inasmuch as the Wesleyans have practically the same team that they had last season and their confidence in making the Wildcat yowl is strengthened by their winning score of 7 to 1 last spring.

Seven of the Aggie players of last year are missing from the squad and must be replaced by new men. The old players were all first class and it will be hard to replace them.

Just who will play the positions is as yet a matter of speculation for Coach Bender is "mum" and the "tree" is practically undisturbed. The eligibility list has not been received by the coach and he will be unable to decide upon positions until the list is in his hands.

"Stubby" Broddle, the lead off man of last year, will be missed. Agnew the clever second baseman, will probably be represented by Newton. Captain Reynolds will play center field, the position played by Enns last year. The big men Briney, Scanlan, Hauke, and McClymond, who played a consistent game last year, must also be replaced by new men.

Kansas Wesleyan lineup: Johnny Cannon, p; Ragle, C; Stevens, 1 b; R. Boyer, 2 b; Swift, 3 b; C. Cannon, rf; O. Boyer, cf; Turaylor, lf; Edwards, ss.

Bob Cassel will umpire.

SOME RECENT GRADUATES.

Positions Secured by Most of Them Give Chance for Advancement.

Following is the list of some of the recent graduates of the college who have secured especially good positions:

Mr. F. L. Fleming, who for the last year has been taking graduate work in agronomy, has just accepted a position with the University of Wyoming as superintendent of one of their branch experiment stations.

Mr. John L. Bayles, who completed work for his degree in agronomy last December, has been appointed as assistant in crops at the Garden City Branch Experiment Station in this state. He will be interested principally in the breeding and development of varieties of dwarf milo and dwarf kafir adapted to southwestern Kansas conditions.

Four men who completed their course at the end of the winter term but who will not receive their degrees until next June, have secured positions as follows:

Mr. J. R. Mason and Mr. R. G. Rodewald have secured positions with the Great Western Sugar Company at Denver, Colo. They will serve in the capacity of agricultural advisors for this company. The opportunity for advancement in this field is excellent, as the Great Western Sugar Beet Company has a large number of factories and employs a great many men.

Mr. W. E. Lyness, who has completed his course in agronomy, has recently secured a position with the office of Dry Land Agriculture, United States Department of Agriculture, and will be located at the Akron (Colorado) Experiment Station. Mr. Lyness will study soil problems at that station.

Mr. R. J. Hanna has accepted a position with the International Harvester Company of Chicago.

Mr. W. E. Comfort, a former resident of Manhattan and a graduate of '14, is at present engaged in drainage investigations with the United States department of agriculture, Washington, D. C.

SPRING.

Unless it snows again before this appears in print, the indications point to the arrival of spring, after a period of guileful and coquettish flirtation with old man Winter. And inasmuch as it is the custom, we take our editorial typewriter in hand to comment thereon.

Spring, by all the traditions of meteorology is the most independable season of the year. It is that period which is here today and tomorrow has went. Spring is the time when you go to sleep with your windows open and the covers turned back, and awake to shake the snow from amongst your tresses and clatter your frozen toes across the floor to the register which uniformly fatheth of its purpose and giveth forth no heat whatsoever.

In the amatory category (we're not sure that's what we mean but let it ride.) spring is the delight of the poet and the rhapsodist; the chosen season of that wonder-working villain, Dan Cupid. "In the spring the young man's fancy lightly turns to thoughts of love," has been stated on the authority of a writer greater than we. Just who it was we have this moment forgotten, but he was wise to his job, as witness the immense increase in dates in the past few days. Spring is the opportunity offered by circumstance for the aforementioned Cupid to jim the works of the college in divers ways, what with chapel dates which cut down attendance, and cause Professor Kammeyer to alter the chapel program, in desperation. Cupid has caused more flunks in spring terms, more fragmentary notebooks, more wild recitations, than any of the other causes which sociologists agree cause such things. And spring fever is his lieutenant.

Wherefore, beware the spring. See to it that you are not diverted from your legitimate occupations to false gods and fancies. Be not as the light, some, slothful one, who looks upon the day and says: "It is a peach. Let us hike." But pay heed to the admonitions of the faculty, and be diligent and steadfast in thy purpose, whereby thou shalt gain merit, both in college and at home where Dad signs checks.

OPEN COLUMN.

To the Open Column.

Since reading the article in this column Wednesday about the way non-sorority girls are treated at social functions I have decided that it would be a good thing if some of the things I have learned about fraternity men were put before the whole student body. I do not believe that many of the members of the various fraternities know or at least realize how a few of their men are ruining the reputation of their entire organization by some of the most ungentlemanly brothers. Besides being one who knows from experience I have heard many of my friends tell of similar accounts of the dates they have had with fraternity men. It seems that many of these men do not in any way respect a "barb" girl and will no doubt try things with them that would be entirely out of the question if the date was a sorority girl. Not only does this practice make the girls out side of the sororities lose all respect for fraternity men but it makes the "barb" wonder what sort of girls are in the sororities.—Another Senior Girl.

DIPLOMACY.

Famous Players—Charles Frohman presents Marie Doro in a magnificent picturization of Sardou's great international drama. Released on the Paramount program at the Wareham theatre, Tuesday, April 4.

Will Tell You How to Eat.

The senior boys who plan to eat at D. S. this term are not to go into the smoke of battle altogether unprepared. Miss Margaret Haggart, of the department, will give a special lecture for their benefit in room 27, of the D. S. building at 7 o'clock Tuesday evening, whereat fernulae for the proper manipulation of the au fait feeding tools will be promulgated.

In Society

Mills-Ziegler.

The event of pre-eminent interest in social circles Tuesday was the wedding of Miss Lucille Mills and Mr. Harry Millard Ziegler of Springfield, Ohio.

The marriage was quietly solemnized at 2 o'clock Tuesday afternoon at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Mills, 1175 Clay street. The service was read by Dr. Stephen S. Estey of the First Presbyterian church. No guests outside of the family were asked, and there were no attendants and no formal wedding music.

The bride wore a black cloth suit with blouse of Georgette crepe. Her hat was of black straw, and she wore a corsage bouquet of roses and lilies of the valley.

Miss Mills has lived in Topeka all her life, and has been identified with smart society, as a member of a family of social prominence. After finishing school in Topeka, she entered the state agricultural college at Manhattan, where she became a member of the Pi Beta Phi sorority.

Mr. Ziegler is the son of Mr. and Mrs. S. F. Ziegler of Bayport, Fla. He and Miss Mills met at the Kansas State Agricultural college, where he was graduated in the class of '14. He is a Beta Theta Pi fraternity man. Mr. Ziegler is now managing editor of the publication, Farm and Fireside, one of the best known of the rural journals of the country.

The engagement of Miss Mills and Mr. Ziegler has been known to exist for some time, but the plans for the wedding have not been made public, and many of their friends will be surprised to learn of the marriage.

Mr. and Mrs. Ziegler will go at once to Springfield, Ohio, where they will make their home.—Topeka Capital.

Miss Mollie Smith, freshman in home economics, has been chosen by the local chapter of the Bethany Circle sorority as a delegate to the national convention of that organization which will be held at Ann Harbor, Michigan, April 23 to 26.

The quarterly business meeting was held at the home of Mrs. Guy S. Lowman, 319 North Sixteenth street, Tuesday evening for the nomination is the grade that should be returned for a student when, in the judgment of the instructor, the student deserves further time to complete work which has been interfered with by illness or other excusable cause of absence or disability. This grade is only a temporary report and in no way does it prejudice the student's final grade in a course.

The letter F, meaning failure, is the symbol to be used to indicate work that is so unsatisfactory as to require that the work be repeated. Only under exceptional circumstances, for which sufficient reasons may be given, is it to be expected that the failures will exceed fifteen per cent of all grades given. On the other hand, until the college population changes decidedly, it is confidently to be expected that at least two or three students out of every one hundred will fail.

The plan of grading students that is described in the foregoing is easily open to grave misunderstanding, but it offers opportunity for far fewer discrepancies in grading than does the plan now in use. For example, it might be thought that a teacher is to assign his class of forty students arbitrarily to such a ready-made classification as the following: two E's, eight G's, twenty M's, eight P's and two F's, irrespective of the fact that such a distribution does not represent the real achievement of the members of the class. Such procedure, while it may accord with the external form of the plan, will widely miss its spirit and do great injustice to the students. Rather is it intended as a guide to the teacher in selection of such subject matter for the course and in setting such examinations upon it as will give an opportunity for exceptional ability and extreme inefficiency to assert themselves and as will enable him to discover a true central tendency within the class. The system does not so much contemplate a change in the method of assigning grades as it does an improvement in the thoroughness of the instructor's knowledge of his class and in the nicety of his skill in leading and testing, to the end that he may discover in his classes the actual variation in abilities and achievements. Extensive study has shown in the case of various types of mental ability that when a great number of cases is taken, the distribution of abilities will assume the form of the normal frequency curve, which, when graphically represented, will appear as bell-shaped. Of the extremes of ability there will be relatively few cases, and of the average ability there will be relatively many cases. What is found to be true in the case of a single ability is assumed in this plan to be true of the complex of mental, moral and physical abilities which determine a student's achievement in a college subject.

There will possibly be an exception to the distribution of grades as defined in the foregoing in the case of small classes. The distribution of grades in classes of less than ten or twelve members as a matter of true chance will seldom follow the probable frequency curve as closely as it will in larger classes; but, as a general rule, when all the members of a small class show about equal ability, their accomplishment is likely to be deserving of some grade lower than E. It should be possible, even in the small classes, to discover the really distinguished members or the inferior members if there be any just as it is in the case of the larger groups. Further more, in highly specialized elective courses, chosen because of intense interest on the part of the student, there will probably be a higher percentage of grades showing merit above the average achievement of all students in the college, than in required courses. An additional question will likely be raised in the mind of the instructor as to whether the more strictly practical courses, such as woodworking, sewing and stock judging, admit of the same application of the probable frequency distribution as do courses in dietetics, applied mechanics, soils, chemistry, bacteriology, and history, for example. As no one is at present in possession of sufficient data to allow of any certain answer to the question, it is urged that the instructors in charge of the more strictly practical courses should consider the matter carefully and grade their students with the probable frequency curve in mind, to the end that some facts in the case may be made available as soon as possible.

Troubles of An Amateur

The Cub Reporter Retaileth the Grievances Which Accrue to Him Who Would Gather News Among "Hard-working" Profs.

"Good morning. Any news this morning?"

"Not a bit. I don't know anything new."

"Aren't any of your classes doing anything unusual?"

"My classes go along quietly minding their own business. They don't do anything that could be turned into news."

"Don't you know any local news? Hasn't your wife had any company, haven't you entertained, or haven't you gone anywhere?"

"No, don't know anything that would do for publication."

"All right, I'm sorry. If you come across any news, save it for me. I'll be around again in a few days."

Such conversation might be heard in almost any teacher's office on the campus when the amateur reporter, who is taking elementary journalism, is covering his beat.

At the beginning of the term, this reporter is allowed to choose his own beat. He picks out the one from which he believes he can get the most news.

He starts out on his first round full of hope. Those professors know many things which will make good news, and it will not be hard to get it. At first they cooperate with the reporter and try to help him. But this happy state of affairs does not last long.

As the reporter comes more and more frequently with larger demands, the hardworking professor loses patience and becomes as responsive as an oyster.

And then the reporter's troubles begin. He must have those news items, or perish in the attempt. Each time he sallies forth with a hopeful heart. A succession of such interviews as the foregoing one chills the bravest heart. But the news must be turned in, so the reporter goes into the highways and byways, and finds an acceptable number of items. And woe unto him who loes it not, for he receives an F grade on the assignment.

Sheep Graze on Campus.

The pastoral effect of the campus as a whole was enhanced to the nth power Thursday, when a flock of sheep from the animal husbandry department was led to the north part of the campus to graze among the shrubbery. There were some 100 sheep in the flock, ranging in age from the tender ewe lamb of tradition to the hoary and belligerent rams who guarded their harems with rare bravery. The sheep were in charge of one of the employees of the department who was commissioned to see that they came to no harm, nor did violence to the campus in any way.

It Was Cradle of K.S.A.C.

Oldest Building on the Campus was First a Barn, Then a Drill Hall, Now the Farm Machinery Department is housed There—Built in '71.

Where once the lowing kine disposed their forms to slumber, where once the horses rested, weary from their toil; in a stable, cradle of the college, plows and harrows, mills and road drags now hold sway. In other words—the building which now houses the farm machinery department of the college, was at one time the college barn, and was the first building to be erected on the present campus of the State Agricultural college.

The college had its beginning as a denominational institution, on a hill west of the college. After the civil war it was taken over by the state, to be used as an agricultural college. The land on which the college was then located was found to be unsuited to the needs of an agricultural institution, where experimental farming was to be carried on. Consequently the land which includes the present campus, was bought.

The first building to be erected, in 1871, was a barn. The structure was first planned to be decidedly pretentious, with room for housing all the college stock, and offices and classrooms. Only the west wing was ever finished, however, and in a short time the building was converted to other purposes.

Now there are at least six barns used to house the college stock, all of them as large or larger than the one which was planned by the early designers of the college equipment.

The old barn was used as a drill hall, at the time when the commandant of the cadets at the college was a general in the regular army, and when military tactics was classed as one of the four courses offered at the institution. It has since passed through many metamorphoses, and is now the repository of the machinery which is used in demonstration work before the agricultural students.

Vine covered and antique, no amount of repair work can conceal the fact that the building has withstood the vicissitudes of 45 years of collegiate turmoil. Traditional academic dignity and quietude have been denied this building, through much of its service to the state and instead of grave and reverend scholasticism, it has housed cows, and rookies, and fanning mills galore.

The Crack o' Doom.

I see a beautiful river winding downward to the sea,
While on its bank a fairy stands and waves her hand to me.
And everything is lovely, till there comes a fearful shock,
And a voice that comes from nowhere yells "Wake up; it's 8 o'clock."

Whenever skies are bluest and when- ever thing is fine.

And when Fortune heaps her blessings on this drooping head of mine,
I fall from out the clouds of bliss straight downward like a rock,
When I hear a voice exclaiming:
"Wake up; it's 8 o'clock."

I can never be so happy awake as in my dreams

And watch the sun a-smiling with a million joyful beams;
"Let me sleep a minute longer!" But the fates my prayer mock,
And all I hear forever is: "Wake up; it's eight o'clock."

"Hello there old fellow, where did you drop from?" asked the cigarette stub as one of his old store friends and box mates was chucked down beside him just outside the east campus gate. "So here's where you landed too. I see that you have lots of company." "Yes, company to burn, but life has lost all its glow for me," whined the first speaker.

"Why, it was only yesterday that I saw you the center of attention of a student," crackled the other as the wind shook his ashes.

"Times have changed and I'm getting tired of being a monument to the ashes of a student's ambition. I guess I will turn into an insecticide and help this grass to grow," was the disconsolate answer.

"Did you see that young student I came up with?" inquired the last arrival. "He knows all the fellows at the corner and on the shady side of the store. Big man too, got a date with the dean this afternoon. Golf, I suppose," and the stub winked and went out.

TARRY NOT AT THE BRIDGE.

For Chapel Hour is No More Except Twice a Week at 9 O'clock.

Hereafter don't bank too heavily on dropping down to the Sweet Shop for a bit of refreshment at 10 o'clock, or to the bridge for a whiff of the weed, if you have a third hour class. You will surely be tardy thereto, and your instructor will "kick."

The class hours have been changed this term, with the leaving out of the half hour chapel period. First hour begins at 8 o'clock, and second hour at 9 o'clock, as in days of yore. But third hour begins at 10 o'clock, and fourth hour at 11 o'clock, likewise. Two second hours each week, on Tuesday and Thursday, will be devoted either to chapel or to class meetings, and on the other days there will be no respite from class work from 8 o'clock to noon.

The simplest mathematics will reveal the fact that while the arrangement provides that the hungry student may win to his noonday refreshment at 12 o'clock, he also is fain to come once more upon the hill at 1 o'clock, if he hath a fifth hour.

BIG SUCCESS SCORED IN SYMPHONY CONCERT

Seventh Annual Program Presented by College Orchestra was a Complete Success in Every Way—
A Wonderful Production.

PROF. BROWN DESERVES CREDIT.

The college Symphony Orchestra presented their seventh annual concert before a large and appreciative audience in the auditorium Monday evening. Professor R. H. Brown, conductor of the large orchestra is deserving of much credit and praise for the wonderful musical organization he has perfected. It is both a pleasure and an education to the students and people of Manhattan to be able to hear as fine a concert as that which was given Monday evening under the direction of Mr. Brown.

The Symphony in B minor by Schubert which had second place on the program was no doubt the greatest given and displayed much preparation on the part of both the players and director.

The next to the last number of the evening was a selection of songs by Miss May Carley of the music department. Miss Carley has a marvelous contralto voice and renders her numbers in the most pleasing and charming manner. "The Last Hour" as given by Miss Carley was especially attractive.

Fred Korsmeier was concert master for the evening and filled the position in excellent style. Miss Mildred Waugh played the accompaniments for Miss Carley in accomplished and pleasant manner.

TO TALK OF ESTES PARK.

Will be the Subject of Address at Banquet Friday Night.

The Y. W. C. A. will give an Estes Park banquet on Friday evening, April 7, at the Congregational church. It is desired that every college girl attend.

Every summer there is a Y. W. C. A. conference at Estes Park, Colo. The purpose of the coming banquet is to tell the girls about Estes and to persuade them to go this year.

The toastmistress of the evening will be Miss Wilma Burtis. Misses Nell Beaubien, Stella Gould, Emma Taylor, Jaunita Reynolds, and Lucy Riggs will respond to toasts.

Tickets are on sale for the banquet at present. They may be had for 35 cents from the committee in charge of which Miss Gladys String is chairman, or from the Y. W. C. A. office.

MAYOR GOHEEN REELECTED TO OFFICE BY 20 VOTES

Won Over E. H. Davies in Closest Election Held in Manhattan for Many Years.

In the closest election in Manhattan in a score of years S. F. Goheen, the present mayor of the city, was reelected for a term of two years by a majority of 20 votes. A total of 2,382 votes was cast, 1201 ballots being for Mr. Goheen and 1181 for E. H. Davies, Mr. Goheen's opponent.

Mr. Goheen secured his election in the third ward, the one in which most of the college professors and students live. He carried this ward by 99 votes. Mr. Goheen also took the first ward by 49 votes. The second ward went to Davies by 116 votes and the fourth ward by 12 votes.

The contest occurred in the third ward. Mr. Goheen was about 30 behind in this ward early in the evening but as the count proceeded he gradually cut down the lead of his opponent. The interest grew intense when the candidates were running neck and neck. First one led and then the other. Gradually the Goheen vote piled up, however, and when the final results were announced Mr. Goheen carried the ward by 99 votes and won the election by 20 votes.

PET MONKEY PLAYS ROLE.

Adds Realism to South Sea Island Scene in "The Island of Surprise."

"Jerry" a pet monkey belonging to Miss Eleanor Woodruff, of the Vitagraph company, is by no means an unimportant factor in the success of the Blue Ribbon Feature, "The Island of Surprise," which will be at the Marshall, Thursday of this week. "Jerry" is part of the set that aids in the creating of the South Sea Island atmosphere in the film.

"Jerry" is at present a victim of the gripe epidemic, and his owner, Miss Woodruff, contracted the disease from fondling her pet. So much infatuated is she with "Jerry" that a regular practicing physician is none too good to treat the animal and Miss Woodruff is now playing trained nurse to "Jerry." Before long now, Jerry is to be permitted to see himself on the screen, and his action may be worth watching.

TENNIS COURTS POPULAR.

More Desire to Play Than can be Accommodated.

With the cool and capricious advent of spring on the campus, the tennis courts west of the gymnasium are coming into more common use both by men and women. The courts are very popular with the students who live in walking range of them, and are in use practically all day and every day at present. It is said that six more courts are to be constructed between the gymnasium and the athletic field.

Provisions for the courts were made last spring but there was no indication yet that actual work on them has commenced. The courts are to be free for the use of all students who wish to play. The annual tennis tournaments are in process of organization, and regular practice is expected to start soon.

Mr. Harry Tyrrell is working for a construction company at Newton.

THE FORTUNE HUNTER TO APPEAR TOMORROW NIGHT

Dress Rehearsals for First Annual Production by Purple Masque are In Progress—Made up of Entirely All Student Cast.

IT IS A STANDARD DRAMA.

"A regular play" is the term used by the management in describing the production to be staged by Purple Masque tomorrow evening in the college auditorium. "The Fortune Hunter" is a standard drama and takes class alongside such plays as The Man From Home, Within the Law, and The Lion and the Mouse. It is a royalty production and the Purple Masque are to be commended for choosing to present it regardless of that fact.

The cast presenting The Fortune Hunter is made up entirely of students in the college and is an exceptionally good one. In Clara Tiffany, the management has found a leading lady who will give something more than an amateur touch to the role of Betty Graham. She has had theatrical experience on the Pacific Coast and is an accomplished expressional reader. Playing with her are C. E. Adamson, as old man Graham, J. H. Branham as Nat the hero, Velma Carson as the rich country banker's daughter, Rex Kendall as Tracey, the dandy stable boy, Mildred Branson as Angie, Tracey's best girl, John Musil and R. L. Cooper as the village loafers, Oscar Steanson as the rich country banker, Chester Morse as Poto the sheriff, E. A. Herr as the small town sport, James Huey as Nat's best friend, and W. N. Caton as the financial crook.

Mr. Caton is handling the sale of seats. The college orchestra under the leadership of Professor Brown is cooperating with the cast and will furnish special music for the play.

This is the first production attempted by the Purple Masque since its organization last winter. It is unique in that it marks a departure from the old custom of choosing the players exclusively from the dramatic club. The players were chosen this year through a system of tryouts in which the entire student body was invited to take part.

In selecting the various players the coaches had access to a much larger group of material than would otherwise have been available.

MACHINE GUN CO. OUT FOR TARGET PRACTICE

Took out Both Pieces of "Artillery"— Firing at Silhouette Targets on K. N. G. Range.

The machine gun company of the cadet corps went to the K. N. G. range west of Manhattan early this week for some actual target practice. The trip was made on the interurban cars. Both machine guns which were issued to the company by the war department last fall were dismounted, and taken out to the range on the electric cars. Fifteen men were in the detachment which made the trip.

One of the squads returned to Manhattan about noon, the other remaining till late in the afternoon. The company was busy the day before the trip loading the ammunition which is used in the weapons, into belts, and manufacturing the silhouette targets which were fired upon.

The targets were of cardboard, cut to present the same surface so far as size, and shape, as the body of a soldier lying prone and facing the gunner. Between 800 and 1,000 rounds of ammunition were fired during the course of the practice, and each man in the company had an opportunity to test his marksmanship. The firing was done at a range of about 800 yards.

Yesterday the Big Sisters class of the Congregational Sunday school chose Miss Elizabeth March as their president for the spring term. The class is composed of junior and senior girls of the college.

FIRST GAME OF SEASON IS EASY FOR WINDCAT

Bender's Nine Starts the Season by Humbling the Salina Wesleyans—
Had a chance to try out Many New Men—All Looked Good.

FINAL COUNT FOUR TO ONE.

In a cold game on college field yesterday afternoon, the Aggies ushered in the baseball season by defeating the Kansas Wesleyans with a score of 4 to 1.

Interest in the strike outs had begun to lag when Griffith, Aggie left fielder, went to bat in the fourth. Griffith advanced to first on a single, went to second on Denman's single, and took third on an error by Hoskins when Denman stole second. Reynolds came to bat and Griffith registered the first score of the season on Reynold's two bagger. Denman was caught on third and Reynolds died on second when McGalliard fanned.

In the next inning, Newton drove a liner to left field gaining first, stole second while Sullivan struck out, and was in running trim when Frank, ambitiously driving a flier toward the "clouds" on the west fence, brought him home for a second point. Frank died on third while Harvey fanned.

The remaining two scores destined for the Aggie contingent were made in the sixth inning. Griffith led off at the bat only to fan out. Denman walked to first when hit with a pitched ball. Denman stole second, Reynolds put one over the plate and took second on a wild catch by the Wesleyan first baseman, while Denman ran home. Reynolds stole third on McGalliard's put out and came in on a wild pitch while Newton was at bat.

The Wesleyan lone score of the eighth was made by Margentern. Margentern went to first when Brecheisen's slow ball caught him and advanced to second when Traylor flied. He advanced to third when Traylor stole second and scored on fielder's choice when P. Cannon singled. Traylor went out, Sullivan to Denman to eFrier. P. Cannon died on third when Rothweiler fanned.

Bender began the work out for his pitching staff at the beginning of the seventh when Ferrier took Hodgson's place in the box. Brecheisen, went into the box for the eighth. Although he pitched wildly at first, with second and third filled, he tightened up with the skill of a veteran and struck out his third man. Hewey displayed coolness in pitching the last inning.

Williams substituted for Frank at first base in the sixth inning, at the bat in the eighth was exceptionally cool and decisive, picking his own ball for a clean drive to center field for a single.

A feature of the game was Newton's juggling exhibition when delivered a fly from the Wesleyan's hard hitter—just to keep them in suspense.

Summary: Strike outs, J. Cannon 12, Hodgson 8, Ferrier 2, Brecheisen 1, Hewey 1.

Two base hits, Reynolds; three base hits, Frank; hit by pitcher, E. Edwards 2, Morgentern 1, Denman 1. To first base on errors, Wesleyans 9, Aggies 1; left on bases, Wesleyans 5, Aggies 4; earned runs, Wesleyans 1, Aggies 2.

SIGMA NUS WIN FIRST.

Winners of Championship for Four years Keep on in Same Style.

In the opening game of the interfraternity series played on the college field Monday afternoon the Sigma Nu fraternity won from the Aztec fraternity by a count of four to three.

As this was the first game of the season neither team had practiced as much as they would liked and the exhibition probably was not nearly so fast as will be many of the later games.

Woods and Wells acted as batteries for the Sigma Nus while Wenn and St. John were the battery for the Aztec.

Fred Merrill was umpire.

WILL HOLD MAY FETE ON ATHLETIC FIELD MAY 20

Annual Affair to be Given Under the Auspices of Y. M. and Y. W. — to be Pageant.

The date for the 1916 May fete at the college has been announced as May 20. The fete, an annual affair, is to be held between the hours of 5 o'clock and 6 o'clock on the evening of that date, under the auspices of the Y. M. C. A. and the Y. W. C. A.

The program is to be in the nature of a pageant, with a marching procession of the months of the year, fancy dancing and marching. The details of the program have not as yet been worked out by the committee in charge.

The fete has been a feature of the spring term for several years. The selection of the co-ed who is queen of college for the day, always results in a hard fought, close contest, and the amusements which have been provided have hitherto been participated in by nearly every organization on the hill.

The manner in which the May Queen is selected this year will be announced in about a week, it is said. Final arrangements for the program will be made public later, also.

The fete is to be held on the athletic field.

MAKES OVER LITTLE HOBOES.

Walter S. Criswell, '09, is Superin- tendent of Boys Home in Florida.

Making men out of little hoboos is the mission of Walter S. Criswell, a graduate of K. S. A. C. in 1909. Mr. Criswell is superintendent of the Boys' Home in Jacksonville, Florida.

While in school here Mr. Criswell became interested in economic and social work and has been following this line since he left Kansas State. The school in Jacksonville of which Mr. Criswell is superintendent has only been in existence for a few months but the work already done by it has been of wonderful value to the boys for that part of the country who had formerly known only the street as a home.

In some articles recently received from Mr. Criswell by Professor Kammerer many interesting cases of the work done by the home were cited. Seldom is a boy found who has been neglected so long but that the home can put him "back on his feet" and help him make good.

One of the cases similar to those which come to the institution almost every day is given just it appeared in the Florida Times-Union:

About six months ago a tall, thin, ragged, skulking, country looking boy appeared at the door of the Boys' Home and asked to see the manager. The "manager" who happened to be in at that time invited the boy in and asked if he had been to supper. The lad stated that he had not—a statement that was easy to believe after watching him dispose of the liberal

BRIDGES TO UTOPIA.

Most of what we do and say dies in a week. Thus it is with what appears in the newspapers, with what is heard at the dinner table, and with what we read in the college text-book. One adjustment between this statement and the continuity of the human progress is to think that every sentence we say or write is forming the stones in a great bridge. This bridge is slowly advancing over vast seas toward the hazy shores of the ideal land to which humanity may some time come.

Thus when a university lets escape into the world a corrupt lawyer, a careless engineer or specialist, or a journalist without ideals, the whole fiber of spans, arches, railings, and buttresses of the great bridge of humanity is imperiled by inferior material.

Graduates of colleges are among the two percent which leads the opinion and holds the power of most civilized countries. Thus the college man becomes the bridge builder. He has the responsibility of a safe crossing for all mankind for all time.—Michigan Daily.

BABIES.

Who wants to adopt a baby? That is the question which is being answered by many of the fraternities at Kansas University. It is this way.

There are now in France hundreds of fatherless babies and while the mothers are doing all in their power to care for the little ones most of them are very impoverished and in no way able to do what they wish for the children. The French government has done all in its power to make provision for the care of these babies but the other expenses are so heavy that only ten cents a day could be allowed each child.

Several fraternities at Lawrence have voted to adopt war babies and pay ten cents each day toward the upkeep of the youngster. This amount together with the same from the government will keep the children in a fairly good way.

The only trouble the fraternities in our sister school have had in regard to the new babies is that when they adopt a baby each of the fellows wants it named after him. And when it is a girl the frat adopts it is said that each man in the fraternity puts the name of his favorite girl in a hat and they draw to see what the new member is christened.

THE WONDERERS.

The opening of a new college term always brings to light two classes of students—those who know what they want and those who don't. In a student body those who know what they want form the larger group, because a student body is always a picked assemblage, the inefficient having largely dropped out before reaching college at all.

Those who don't know what they want, however, are always present to some extent, and they are always interesting—they would make good subjects for the cartoonist's pen or the humorist's typewriter. They spend most of their time in wondering—wondering what will be offered in this subject or that, wondering whether it will be hot in afternoon classes in the spring, wondering whether they'll have to do much library reading if they take Professor So-and-So's work. They can do more wondering in an hour than the average man does in a week, and one can hardly understand how they can keep enough subjects on hand to wonder about. When they do run out of wondering, they ask questions—they ask the professor of English whether they'd better take stock judging or calculus, or the professor of mathematics how much reading one has to do in history. It would never do for them to ask a man anything about his own subject—they might find out something. When they finally decide what they will take for the term, the chances are that in a week they'll be around to ask the authorities if they can't change to something else.

Of course, the wonderers are not confined to colleges. (It is true they ought to be confined, but not in a college.) They're found everywhere—in business, in professional life, in clubs, in homes. It is an accident when they do anything decisive. They add to the burden of life sometimes to the gayety of humorous literature always.

THE OTHER SIDE.

We complain about professors who hold their classes after the ten-minute bell has sounded, and think that we are being imposed upon; but did you ever stop to think that maybe, after all, we are ourselves to blame? Did you ever notice on the very first stroke of the ding-dong how everybody begins to whisper and rustle around in his seat, and slam his books shut, and stretch, and shuffle his feet on the floor, and in general make so much noise that the voice of the instructor is well-nigh drowned out? Although there are some very brilliant men on the faculty of this University, we scarcely think that there is one single professor, instructor or assistant who can calculate his recitation or lecture with such extreme nicety that it will invariably end just forty-nine minutes and fifty-nine seconds after the hour, or just one second before the ten-minute bell sounds.

A teacher can hardly be expected to keep his timepiece before his eyes at all times so that he can wind up his lecture precisely on the second. Very often some abstract point or some important question is brought up just before the close of the hour, and the instructor very rightly considers it his duty to straighten out the point in question before the class is dismissed. We do not by any means seek to condone the practice some professors have of holding their classes overtime; but we do think, that in a reasonable number of cases, at least, we owe it to the professor merely as a matter of courtesy to keep order until he has finished.—Indiana Student.

remnants of the regular supper that had just been served.

ays slipped by and the lad worked into the regular scheme of things at the home and began to lose some of his painful angularity. But he seemed to have an insuperable aversion to anything that looked like steady work. A least a half dozen jobs were found for him but he was lazy and incompetent—about the only thing that he excelled in was the use of cigarettes. After the matron and superintendent had almost despaired of being able to do anything with him he began gradually to improve until he got the point of combing his hair without being told to do so. This was too much. He took sick and remained seriously so for a month. He was nursed back to health; and the sense of gratitude to those who had helped him when he was helpless began his redemption.

Found New Job.

A new job was found for him. He made good at it. He began to take a personal interest in his appearance. He quit the cigarettes and braced up in every respect, completely losing the hang dog look. He has taken the chance the Boys' Home offered him at last and is now looking forward to a hopeful future when he will save up enough money to go home and show mother and father what a man he has become.

By correspondence with the parents and by gaining the lad's complete confidence his story was finally pieced together. The father had been absolutely unable to handle him. He would not work, he would not go to school or church, but he would insist on running with the toughest gang the little town afforded. At last the father had him arrested for vagrancy. He was sentenced to the chain gang but the father relenting, begged for his release and it was granted. The father then, in desperation, gave the boy $5 and told him to leave and never return until he had made a man of himself. Can you imagine a sensitive boy's feeling at such treatment? He rode as far as the money would take him and then walked the rest of the way to Jacksonville. He wandered around for several days unable to find work or anywhere to stay. Finally someone brought him to the home and left him at the door.

Only a few days ago Superintendent Criswell learned that the meal that the lad had eaten that night as the first food he had taken for two days and a half.

OPEN COLUMN.

An incident occurred last Saturday night on Moro street which, as an index to the gentlemanly standards of conduct, good manners, and decency of the student body, was marvelous. The leading man in the little drama of "I am my brother's keeper," enacted in relation to the arrests on account of the sale of cigarettes, walked down Moro street, from the college. Some of the brightest students on the hill, surely the brightest for it is never necessary for them to study, and they may loaf in the business houses along the street whenever they have no classes, lined up outside the stores, and displayed their breeding and intelligence by hooting the object of their displeasure. As a refined and gentlemanly method of showing displeasure, the performance was highly edifying. Discretion of the purest water was displayed in that the hooters refrained from expressing themselves until the character's back was turned. It is of course impossible to believe that the gentlemen of leisure doing the hooting had huge broad streaks of yellow in their anatomies, running all up their backs, and so deep that their livers are tinged with the same saffron hue. It would never occur to the chance observer that they were lacking in the first elements of sportmanship or gameness. The performance was distinctly high class, in no wise and calculated to reflect otherwise than to the highest credit of the school. Oh never! The writer's opinion of the anti-cigarette crusaders is no higher than the opinion held by the hooters, but not from the most cavernous portion of his anatomy could he conjure a vocal expression for the lowness of his opinion of the hooters themselves. FAIR PLAY.

Editor Collegian:

The action of Mr. J. G. Stutz in causing certain arrests in an effort to suppress illegal sale of cigarettes calls for sincere criticism. That the law should be enforced is granted. The methods used were contemptible.

Common sense should have told him that a man who had to be wheeled into breaking the law was not a dangerous citizen. Failing in this, ordinary shame might have made him hesitate before arresting a man who had done him a friendly turn and who was only in a purely technical sense a violator of the law. From any point of view the arrest of Mr. Shaffer was a glaring piece of stupidity. If Mr. Stutz feels that it was his duty to act as he did he perhaps deserves our charity. His chief claim to distinction is that he is a shining example of what the mere propagandist will do in the pursuit of his one idea. E. E. D.

To the Editor of the Collegian:

I am an interested reader of the Collegian, and I want to answer the article by the "Woman Hater."

Is there truly such a notorious personage in the school there or was the column written by some one merely to call forth replies—to elicit the truth by discussion? I prefer to believe the latter, for I am loath to believe that our college is harboring such a venomous reptile as Mr. Woman Hater might prove to be.

I wonder (if there be such a person) if he ever stepped far enough away to get an impartial view of himself. Doesn't he realize how small he appears to others, and what an egotistic fool he is? I'll wager that if he were found out there would be a bevy of light-headed, indignant girls, ready to mob him,—the poor girls from whom he has gained his supernatural knowledge of woman kind. On the other hand would be a host of maidens, superior to their sisters, who would not deign to even recognize him—girls who hold themselves above such as him.

It is really foolish to pay any attention to such fanatics, but I was glad to read one response which voiced my slogan: "Girls pull up the Standard." Beware of the young man who always tries to hold your hand or who begs for "just one" good night kiss.

Girls, it doesn't pay. You can better afford to save your caresses for the one who will some day hold the largest place in your affections—or if he never comes, you will at least not have furnished material for stupid young men who have nothing apparently to do but make fools of themselves.

TO ENGINEERS

W. H. Sanders, instructor in farm motors, will leave next Sunday on institute work. He will lecture at Kingman on "power farming."

The Hart-Parr "little devil" will be placed on the brake tests during the next week. The tests will be for fuel economy and fuel efficiency.

The experts from the factory were present when the Reeves was tested and were satisfied with the tests that were carried on by W. A. Buck, fellow in engineering.

The commercial test that was being held on the Reeves engine has been completed and the engine has been taken from the brake. The engine was able to show a 16 per cent over load and on the brake tests it tested seventy one horse power.

The new Bennet Kerosene carburetor that has been furnished by the Emerson Brandingham company for their Model L tractor is one of the best and the only successful kerosene carburetor for a high speed engine that has been at the college traction department since the use of kerosene for internal combustion engines has been in use. The new carburetor is upon an all together new principle in that the air is not heated before the entrance to the mixer but the kerosene is heated to a higher temperature before it is mixed with the air and the cold air is mixed with the hot fuel. The model L is able to run on kerosene at all loads and is able to idle, something that a high speed engine has been unable to do burning kerosene under ordinary conditions.

The thing to do while you are in college is to buy what you wear at Miller's.

Buys Cattle for State.

Prof. C. E. Reed of the dairy department, returned Saturday from an extended trip to Wisconsin where he has been buying dairy cows for the various state institutions. Prof. Reed also purchased six purebred Ayreshire heifers for J. W. Linn of the class of '15. Mr. Linn is dairyming with his father on their farm eight miles north of town.

Mighty classy is what they are saying about that new line of Spring Caps at Miller's.

They Can be Humane.

Near the corner of Fremont and Thirteenth streets Monday morning a group of lady instructors were seen anxiously gazing up into a tall elm tree. On investigation it was found that a large kitten had been treed by some dogs the day before. The excitement was soon over when a young man secured a step ladder and lowered the kitten into the arms of one of the fair instructors.

Miss Mildred White of Abilene, is enrolled in college this term. Miss White went to Northwestern University at Chicago last year and intends to return there next year.

A BIG ROYALTY PLAY.

Miss Ruth Borthwick, freshman in home economics, is expected home from Kansas City Tuesday.

What's In a Name
Anyhow?

Some Startling Things are Unearthed in a Perusal of the Roster of the Faculty—Wierd Combinations.

The roster of the Kansas State Agricultural college faculty reveals some astonishing cognomens, but the institution does not seem to suffer severely therefrom. Nor have the names of the instructors seemed to influence their choice of departments. For instance:

There is Pleasant Crabtree, but not in the horticultural department. He is in the extension division, or was, till he went to work as a district agricultural agent. S. L. Simering, instead of being in the crookery class, teaches steam and gas engineering. (Miss Estella) Boot is not found in the costume designing department, but in the department of English language. W. H. Ball does not coach athletics, but is in the shop practice end of the establishment. Bower, (H. J.) is not an instructor in landscape gardening, but in the extension division. If you would hear Bray, go not to the animal husbandry department, but to the extension division again. And though the department cannot claim any "odor of sanctity," there is Christian, (R. V.), in the vet cohorts.

((Miss Jane) Cape, is, quite appropriately, in the home economics division, and there is a Cooke, (J. D.), in the department of the English language.

Incidentally there is a Cave, (H. W.), in the dairy husbandry department and though the college is supposed to be heated from the power plant, there is Fewell, (Louise), in the domestic science department. All the gears are not to be found in the machine shops, one (Birdye M.), is to be found in the executive department.

Progress in the college should not be slow. There are a Limper, a Leeper, and a Walker, on the college staff. The zoology instructors should never be lonely, for they always have Nabours. (R. K.) Royalty is present in the persons of two Kings, H. H., in the chemistry department and W. J. in the extension division. The majority of the faculty members are masculine, though there is but one Mann among them, (L. B.) in the animal husbandry department. Though there are three Millers on the list, not one of them is in the milling department. The college will never be entirely out of funds as long as it keeps Nichols on hand. R. T., college physician.) Nor will there be a famine as long as we have Rice, (Miss Ada.)

The college is not for sale, but it has two Prices, R. R., history department, and Lena, clerk in the Ag office. The engineering division will never be open to criticism as long as they keep Shutt, (J. C.) No excuse for the high price of clothes can be found when there are two Taylors on the faculty. There were formerly two Noyeses in the executive offices, but their clamor has been transferred, with the department, to Topeka.

Despite the temperature of these spring days, Snow, (F. L.) is always to be found in Eckdick hall, and there is a Poole (J. P.), in the botany department.

The calendar to the contrary notwithstanding, Easter (Miss Pancelon), has been on the campus for a long time, and May, (Miss Nellie) is in the college post office.

There are three Browns, two Greens, a Gray, and a White, on the faculty, to say nothing of a Blackman.

And the agronomy department has the (L. E.) Call.

The soft water we use is not made soft by chemicals. Your clothes will last longer when washed in genuine soft water. Manhattan Steam Laundry. Phone 157.

Almost Unbelievable.

'Twas Christmas Eve the month was May,

She wore her father's gown
The reins beyond the horses lay,
The sleigh was upside down.
They sped across the boiling snow
Above the sun's cold glare;
The little birds above, below,
Were walking through the air.

The jangling sleighbells made no sound,
The horses backward flew;
The cows were lowing underground,
The trees all downward grew.

'Twas high noon and the moonbeams played,
The clouds to dust all ran;

He was a winsome pretty maid,
She was a big strong man.
He softly said, though he did not speak

"I hate you. Marry me."
She laughed and tears ran down her cheeks;

"I love you. No," said she,
'This sad event which is, or was
Or may be, must appall.

I know it happened, just because I was not there at all.—EX.

HOLD NATIONAL CONVENTION AT TOPEKA

Pi Kappa Delta, Honorary Debating Fraternity, in Big Meeting at Washburn College—Dr. MacArthur is Secretary.

DELEGATES FROM 14 CHAPTERS.

The annual national convention of Pi Kappa Delta, honorary national debating fraternity, was held at Topeka, Friday and Saturday of last week. J. P. Loomis, senior in the animal husbandry department, was the delegate of the Kansas State Chapter of the organization at K. S. A. C. Dr. J. R. MacArthur also attended the convention.

Representatives of fourteen chapters of the fraternity, from Iowa to California and Alabama, were present. The sessions of the convention were held in the library building at Washburn college. Professor Egbert Ray Nichols, of the University of Redlands, at Redlands, California, attended the convention, bringing with him a debating team which took part in several debates on the trip, defeating several teams and finally being defeated by Southwestern, at Winfield.

A banquet was given Saturday night for the delegates by the Washburn chapter, and others members of the fraternity attending the convention. Initiation ceremonies were held by the Washburn chapter for some of their pledges. The ritual used at the initiation was based on one which has been worked out by the Kansas State chapter and it is probable that the same basis will be used in a revision of the national ritual.

E. A. Vaughn, one of the leaders in the movement of founding the fraternity, and a former student at K. S. A. C., was a delegate to the convention from an Alabama chapter. Roy Gwin, also a former student here, was also present.

Dr. MacArthur was elected national secretary of the fraternity.

KANSAS STATE AGRICULTURAL COLLEGE, MANHATTAN, SATURDAY, APRIL 8, 1916.

NEW YORK PHILHARMONIC APPEARS HERE APRIL 21

Organization of over Eighty of the World's Best Musicians will Give Concert Before the Students and People of Manhattan.

HAS ACCOMPLISHED SOLOISTS.

An aggregation of musicians who have talent enough to be distinguished soloists but who also have ability sufficient to enable them to make one of a wonderfully harmonious organization was the description given by an enthusiast of the New York Philharmonic Orchestra which is scheduled to appear here on Friday evening, April 21.

To its audience a symphony orchestra usually presents a heterogeneous mass of men and instruments, presided over by a conductor who plays upon the whole as though it were one great instrument. Little attention is given to the individual performers on all instruments.

Take, first of all, the concertmaster, who is, next to the conductor himself, the most important member of a symphony orchestra, being the leader of the various choirs in general and of the body of strings in particular—the member of the whole upon whom the conductor plays most directly. It is noteworthy that the Philharmonic, the oldest musical organization in America, has for its concertmaster, Maximilian Pilzer, who is one of the youngest musicians of note in this country. Mr. Pilzer studied here and abroad under Joachim, and made his professional debut while still in "knickers." Today, at the age of twenty-five, he is in his second season as concertmaster of one of the foremost musical organizations in the world.

Another very important member of the Philharmonic forces is Leo Schulz, who is one of the best known solo cellists before the world today, and who has for several years held the post of first cello in this orchestra. Mr. Schulz was educated at the Royal Academy in Berlin, and at the age of fifteen was invited to play before the Royal Family. He has a wide reputation as a soloist, as well as an orchestral musician, and is composer of note.

Many of the members are known as the foremost masters of their respective instruments that are known today. This is especially true of Mr. J. J. Kovarik, who leads the body of violas, and Mr. Xavier Reiter, who is the most celebrated player on the French horn in the world.

Few symphony orchestras can boast half a dozen composers of ability within their ranks. Aside from Mr. Strinsky, the eminent conductor, who is a composer of note, the Philharmonic includes within its personnel several composers of more than usual ability. Mr. Schulz has already been mentioned; he has written a great deal for his instrument, and has also composed orchestral works which have been performed by The Philharmonic Society and by famous orchestras in Europe. Among the first violins, Mr. Burck and Mr. Stahlberg, the assistant conductor, have had orchestral works played not only by the Philharmonic but by other orchestras and Mr. Laucella, who plays one of the flutes, has also received recognition. Mr. Charles Gilbert Spross, who is the organist of the Philharmonic has achieved international reputation as a composer of songs.

Josef Strinsky, Conductor.

Joseph Strinsky, the conductor of the Philharmonic Orchestra is undoubtedly a great musician. From many other candidates who applied, he was chosen to fill the position made vacant by Gustav Mahler, his predecessor. Though only forty years of age, he is today an international figure in the musical world and makes one of the great quintettes of contemporary musical directors.

He hails from Prague, in Bohemia, where he studied medicine as a boy.

Due to his interest in music, he took up this profession though it was diametrically opposed to medicine. Unexcelled records in Hamburg, Berlin, in his newly-chosen work followed, and he was called to America to assume charge of the New York Philharmonic Orchestra, America's oldest and most highly endowed musical organization and this position he has filled with credit to himself and the organization.

F. W. Byerly to Show Colored Views in Auditorium Thursday.

An illustrated travelogue is to be given in the auditorium Thursday evening under the auspices of the Y. M. C. A., the Y. W. C. A., and the college. The evening's program will consist of the display of a large number of colored views of Estes Park region, and the Y. M. and Y. W. camps there.

The address is to be given by F. W. Byerly, who is an authority on the Estes Park region, and who has gathered the views at considerable expense.

He has just returned from New York, where he spoke before the board of education. The address is to be free.

THE SCARAB CHAPTER ROLE.

Twenty-one Men Make up the Secret Organization of Graduating Class.

Probably the most secret organization in the college is that which is known as the Scarabs—the senior secret society. The names of the men making up the membership is one of the most secret parts of the society and are not made public until during the spring term. Following are the names of the present senior men who are Scarabs: P. H. Wheller, W. C. Calvert, W. H. Robinson, F. A. Kormier, J. H. Adams, G. C. Ferrier, L. H. Fairchild, E. C. Jones, T. K. Vincent, H. H. Frizzell, R. V. Adams, J. L. Garlough, J. P. Rathbun, O. B. Burtis, G. M. Schick, J. W. Stratton, J. R. Mason, H. M. McClelland, D. S. Jordan, H. B. Bayer, S. R. Vandenberg.

THE SENIOR MEMORIAL.

Will be an Ornamental, Concrete Entrance to Athletic Field.

The contract for the memorial to be left by the present graduating class has been let and work will begin at once. The plan is to erect an ornamental entrance to the athletic field and it is hoped that some class of the future will see fit to build a concrete fence about the field.

It is planned that the new concrete entrance will cost approximately $500.00.

"FORTUNE HUNTER"

SCORED BIG SUCCESS

Play Under the Auspices of the Purple Masque was no Doubt Among the Best Students Productions Ever Staged at College.

EVERY PART WAS WELL TAKEN.

A great hit was scored Thursday evening when "The Fortune Hunter" under the auspices of the Purple Masque was staged before 1800 persons in the college auditorium. There was not a role in the production which was not most excellently taken.

Jim Branham, director and player of the title role was exceptionally well chosen and played his part with professional ability throughout. His impersonation of Nat Duncan, first as the down and outer, ready to "jump in the East river or turn on the gas," to the man who made good was perfect in every detail.

The part of the leading lady, Betty Graham, the old druggist's daughter, was played by Clara Tiffany in a most meritorious style. Her ability to depict the poorest girl, working in her father's store, and then to change to the stylish young lady just home from school was wonderful.

Sam Graham, the old druggist and inventor, a part especially difficult, was taken in the most worthy manner by Charles Adams. Mr. Adams made the part so realistic that it was difficult to realize that a young man was playing the part.

Velma Carson, as Josephine Lockwood, the daughter of the rich country banker and the girl Duncan was supposed to marry, played the role in an attractive way and the delicate way in which she proposed to "the poor man" could not have been better acted.

There was no position on the large cast but that was well taken and each one of the characters showed unusual ability and ease on the stage.

Without a doubt much credit is due Mr. Branham for the directing of the playing of each role. Not only is he an exceptional actor, but a competent director as well.

Two men in the cast, have been rehearsing only a comparatively short time. Chester C. Morse, who took the parts of Pete Willings, the sheriff, and "Jim" Long, had rehearsed only three days, and James Huey, who played Henry Kellogg, had been in training for only one week.

The entire cast of characters follows:

Nat Duncan, the Fortune Hunter..... Jim Branham
Henry Kellogg, a rising financier..... James Huey
George Burnham, a promoter..... W. N. Caton
James Long, "Jim"..... Chester C. Morse
Larry Miller..... John Musil
Wall Street young men.....
Willie Bartlett, a millionaire's son..... E. A. Herr Robbins, butler to Kellogg..... Russell R. Kendall
Tom, a newsboy..... R. L. Cooper Village Characters.....
Sam Graham, druggist..... Chas. Anderson
Mr. Lockwood, the banker..... Oscar Steanson
Tracey Tanner..... Russell Kendall
Pete Willings, the sheriff.....
Chester Morse
Mr. Sperry, the drummer..... John Musil
"Watty" the tailor..... R. L. Cooper
"HF" the old inhabitant..... John Musil
Herman, the errand boy..... R. L. Cooper
Betty Graham, the druggist's daughter..... Clara Tiffany Josephine Lockwood, the banker's daughter..... Velma Carson
Angie, Josie's friend..... Mildred Branson

F. C. WINSHIP RESIGNS AS INSTRUCTOR OF ENGLISH

Has Been With the College Three Years and Now Leaves to Pursue Studies in Economics and Sociology—Expects to Teach.

HE WILL LEAVE SEPTEMBER 1.

Professor Fred C. Winship has just handed to President Waters his resignation as instructor in English in order to pursue advanced studies in economics and sociology. He will leave September 1. Professor Winship has long planned to prepare himself to take a chair in economics and sociology, and from the time when he first came to the Kansas State Agricultural college has increased ultimately to take up the other work. During his three years here, he has proved himself a most diligent and efficient instructor in the department of the English language.

Prof. J. W. Searson, when asked about the work of Professor Winship, said, "Professor Winship is one of our most diligent workers. He knows the individual pupils and their work as well as any instructor on the campus. Professor Winship's friends in the college and in the community will greatly regret to lose him. We wish him well however, in this new and broader field."

Professor Winship has been closely identified with all the student activities during his three years work as instructor in the college. He has personally visited all the literary societies, and has been in close touch with debating and oratory.

He has always been a booster for all forms of clean school athletics. His diligence, integrity, and broad outlook on life have left a permanent impression on the students of the college.

Professor Winship is planning to take advanced work in economics and under Doctor Le Rossignol, of the University of Nebraska.

HELD "ROUND-UP" AT HAYS.

Cattlemen of Western Kansas Meet at Experiment Station.

Hays, Kan., April 7.—Cattlemen from all parts of Western Kansas were here today for the annual "Round-up" at the Fort Hays branch experimental station. Officials at the station have prepared to show the 500 cattlemen, who are expected to attend, experiments in feeding. Five pens containing 20 steers each, all of the same age and kind, were inspected by the visitors. The animals in the first pen were fed kaffir silage and alfalfa hay; to the cattle in the second pen kaffir stover and alfalfa hay were fed; in the third kaffir silage and sudan hay; in the fourth feritita silage and alfalfa hay; and in the fifth the cattle were fed kaffir silage and sudan hay but were allowed to run on the range.

The cattlemen were given typewritten copies of the test and they examined the cattle to see the effect of the different feeding. Inspection of the feed lots of horses, mules, colts, sheep, and hogs also was another interesting part of today's program.

An experiment which has been started by the station is one that is expected to determine whether the increased size of the cow produced is worth the increased cost of feeding. This experiment will take five years. It was pointed out, and two pens of forty head of heifers of the same breed are being used in the test.

M. L. McClure, of Kansas City, Mo., president of the National Livestock Exchange, presided at the meeting today and discussed "The Relation of Banking to the Cattle Industry."

J. C. Hopper of Ness City, Kansas, is on the program for an address on "Breeding Pure-bred Cattle in Western Kansas." "Kansas Galowsays" is the subject assigned to R. W. Brown of Carrollton, Mo. J. H. Mercer, state livestock sanitary commissioner, is scheduled to give an address on address on "Livestock Sanitation;" A. E. DeRiegles, president of the Den-er livestock exchange, will tell of the market situation; W. A. Cochel, of the Kansas Agricultural college, Manhattan, will explain the experimental work at Hays; and C. R. Weeks, superintendent of the Fort Hays branch experiment station will give an address on the "Feed Lots and Pastures."

WORK FOR FARMER'S FAIR.

Students at Nebraska Would Make Farmer's Fair Time Popular.

Students of Nebraska University work for Farmer's Fair during vacation. Floats have been prepared for a parade and the loft of the horse barn has been cleared to accommodate about 800 dancers says the Daily Nebraskan.

Twenty students in the Agricultural college sacrificed a considerable portion of their vacation in working for the Farmer's Fair.

These floats are being planned for both educational and comic purposes. The work of the various departments performers on all instruments. will be featured insofar as it is possible to place representations on wheels. For the edification and delight of the freshmen, clowns and "hayseeds" are to be provided in abundance.

The largest dance ever held in Lincoln will be staged in the loft of the barn. This loft will afford dancing space for about eight hundred dancers, having four times the floor space of the Lincoln hotel ballroom. The fifteen piece orchestra has guaranteed more "pep" than has been found at any previous dances in Lincoln. Tickets will be obtained at the door.

A. R. Losh, assistant state engineer, left Thursday for an inspection trip over the Cloud county bridges.

TENNIS TOURNAMENT WILL BE OPEN TO ALL STUDENTS

Names of Contestants Must be Handled in not Later Than Next Friday—Loving Cup to Winner.

Official college tennis of the season is to be started the week beginning April 17 with an open tournament. The tournament is open to all college school of agriculture men and it is the desire of Professor Lowman that everyone shall enter who owns a racquet.

A silver loving cup is to be offered by Elmer Kittell and will in effect be emblematic of the college championship. Entries must be reported to Mr. McLean, general secretary of the Y. M. C. A., or Mr. Lowman before April 15. No fee will be charged.

This tournament will be followed by the varsity tryouts which will only be open to varsity eligibles. These tryouts will be held during the week which begins April 24.

Tennis promises to be a popular sport this year and according to M. P. Ahearn, father of K. S. A. C. tennis, we have great prospects for a winning team.

K. S. A. C. will no doubt be represented at Des Moines, Iowa, where the tennis tournament will be held at Drake University. Coach Lowman will have a chance to find what material is available in the Aggie camp during these tournaments and the competitive games which will follow.

Football Goes Slow.

Football practice is being slighted by some of the men who have taken out suits for regular practice says Coach Bender. Those men who were issued suits are regarded as good candidates and it is the desire of the coach that these men report with fair regularity.

Those men who do not intend to practice should turn in their suits at once says the coach for a number of men who would practice are handicapped by the shortage of outfits.

Vet. Dep't. Has Curiosity.

The hide of a freak calf was received at the college yesterday, and will be placed in the veterinary museum. The animal had two well developed heads, two spiral columns, and two tails. It was shipped to the college by a stockman in another part of the state.

BOTH AGGIE TEAMS LOSE TO BLIZZARD

Bender's Aggies and the Farmers from Ames, Iowa, are Outclassed When Strong Blizzard Visits Wildcat Camp.

FAR TOO THICK AND FAST.

It snowed Thursday night and then by noon yesterday the white flakes had entirely disappeared and the weather looked as if it might be a fairly good afternoon for the Aggies first Missouri Valley baseball contest. After losing two games to K. U. at Lawrence Wednesday and Thursday respectively, the Ames Aggies had journeyed to Manhattan in the hope of winning at least one of the two games which they had scheduled with the Wildcats.

Each team registered a score on a three base hit before Dame Nature pulled the curtain of snow and dampened the ardor of the athletes and spectators. DeForest in the box and Stewart behind the big muffer succeeded in striking out Denman in the first inning while "Dutch" Hewey and Sullivan, the Wildcat battery struck out Stewart.

With no outs on the Aggies in the second half of the second, the blizzard stopped the game when both teams had markings that were practically a tie.

Davis, the lead off man for Ames, came to the bat in the first inning and found one of "Dutch" Hewey's easy ones for a three bagger hit. By an error of Newton at second base, he registered a score for the visitors in the first minute of play.

Aldrich followed Davis to the bat and died on the path to first. Kerrigan registered a two bagger. Jones also found the ball but a swift delivery from Newton put him out at first. Kennick at the bat lifted a pretty catch to Griffiths at left field and closed the half with Kerrigan holding down second.

Griffiths led off for the Wildcats. Third to first, put out Denman struck out. Captain Reynolds, third to first, put out.

To start the second inning, Janda, right fielder, delivered a fly to McGalliard's glove. Stewart struck out. Elder singled and attempted to stretch it to a two bagger, put out. Sullivan to Newton. Three outs.

Newton to bat, a three bagger, McGalliard a single, bringing Newton home. Snow, wind and dampness. Exit.

ACACIA WINS SECOND GAME.

PI Kappa Alpha Loses by Eight to Seven Count in Good Game.

In the second game of the Interfraternity baseball series Thursday afternoon the PI Kappa Alpha and Acacia fraternities fought for six innings and at the end the Acacias held the long end of an eight to seven count.

The game was slow in many respects but developed many exciting points. Randalls for the PI Kaps and Jordon for the Acacias were easily the feature men.

Batteries: Acacia, Smith and Jordon; PI Kappa Alpha, Bates and Smith.

Umpire, Luke Guilfoil. Rooters: Remaining chapter roll of each fraternity.

OFFERS FOR PRODUCTION.

Purple Masque Asked to Stage The Fortune Hunter Again.

The Fortune Hunter as staged under the auspices of the Purple Masque is in demand. Not only did the play make a great hit with the people who attended the production in the college auditorium Thursday evening but the management has received several offers for its presentation in other places.

One of the local opera house men has made a handsome offer for playing of The Fortune Hunter at his theatre and Junction City has guaranteed more than expenses for the presentation of the comedy drama in that city.

STUDENT GOVERNMENT.

W. L. Bryan president of Indiana state university is interested in student government and has promised his support to the movement for students representation on the Committee of Student Affairs.

Writing on this point President Bryan says:

"I believe heartily in the maximum of self-government in families, schools and universities. It is true that parents, teachers and faculties have the heavy legal and moral responsibility of seeing that good habits and customs are established in case bad habits and customs are tolerated by saying that they have turned matters over to others. On the other hand, there must be a measure of self-government even in the case of little children, and as young people grow older there must be more and more. Good systems of self-government have sometimes been maintained in the high schools and even in the elementary schools. There are small colleges and great universities where excellent systems of self-government are maintained, in general, faculties are willing to turn over such matters to students as far as students are willing to become seriously responsible. I was disappointed two years ago when the plans for a system of student self-government fell through apparently because the students did not desire it. If now the students desire to take up this idea in some form, I am sure that the faculty will meet them in a spirit of hearty co-operation.

"For the information of the students, I should say that the law places the power of discipline in the hands of the faculty as a whole. The Committee on Student Affairs has simply the power to make recommendations. If the students decide to appoint a committee to consider similar questions, I am sure that the recommendations of that committee would be accorded real weight. "I shall appoint a committee of the faculty to confer with a committee of the students in regard to plans.

MANLY SPORTS.

Coming up from Day Morn Sunday afternoon we saw a sign which lends itself to parody.

"Men who chew are men who do."
"Men who smoke are never broke."
"Men who swear are always there."
"Men who sing are in the ring."
"Men who eat are always neat."
"Men who swim are full of vim."

Conversely.

"Girls who play are in the way."
"Girls who whistle need a missile."
"Girls who cook have a homely look."

"Girls who sew should be let go."
"Girls who paint are not a saint."
"Girls who die had ought to cry."

LET US HAVE MORE.

Human nature has always aspired for the things better than it has attained. These aspirations coupled with efforts have won for men things otherwise undiscovered.

The aggregate of many of these achievements is today placed within the reach of all college students—either to know something about them or have a definite knowledge concerning them. Why should we not have a general idea of the various college departments, each of which aims to present to the students things that have made life a little better than mere drudgery? And, yet, how many of us have enough information to be able to give a plain idea of the works of the college to an outsider? How many of us do really know enough to contrast the works of different departments of today with the past?

In our quest for knowledge we have too often been sent to the encyclopedias and other books of information. Like the poets of old the tendency still persists to train the students to sing of the stars when the common things of life are just waiting to unfold the secrets of existence.

Despite all this, however, there is no reason for any college student to be without some general knowledge of the works and scope of the various departments. Yes, we have a hazy idea of what is going on on the hill and through sheer force of prescribed necessity we come in contact with a few departments. As a general scheme of education it is fair that all the students know more of what was going on in college and why.

Through the presentation of the "Prince Calorie and Princess Pieta" by the members of Omicron Nu sorority we were given more information. In an hour, relative to one of the phases of domestic science and art, than we had before.

Why not make the presentation of the work of the different departments a feature of the chapel program as much as possible? The example set by the Omicron Nu is worth following.

Aggieville Business Men Give Facts of Their Recent Arrest for Technical Violation Cigarette Law.

The following statement has been made by the Aggieville business men who were arrested recently for technically violating the state anti-cigarette law:

"The undersigned feel that the public is entitled to know the following facts with regard to our recent arrest. There is a stigma attaching to the fact of arrest for a public offense, and justice to those arrested and to the community and friends demands that the public be advised of the facts on which the criminal prosecution is based. Justice also demands that the public should not make up its mind that parties charged are guilty without a full hearing of the facts.

"Two of the undersigned are engaged in business as merchants in Manhattan, and have been so engaged long enough so that there need be no statement as to the character of their business. The other is working for J. F. Harrison in his store in Aggieville, and as to whether we bear reputations as law abiding citizens we must and are willing to submit to those who know us.

Stutz Asked for 'Makin's.'

"When Mr. Stutz came into the place of business of the undersigned L. C. Shafer, he purchased a package of tobacco and paid for the same. Afterward he asked for 'the makin's,' that is, cigarette papers. He was told that they were not kept at all. He persisted, however, and after refusal the undersigned (Shafer) went to an employee of his store who uses cigarettes and from him procured a few papers which he gave to Stutz. This is absolutely the first and only time that papers were ever borrowed from an employee or in any other manner delivered to any person calling for same. Calls for these papers in the Shafer store are very rare, owing, doubtless, to the fact that it is understood that they are not handled.

"At the Dewey store Mr. Stutz bought tobacco and asked for cigarette papers, and was told that they were not handled at all. He persisted, and hung about the store insisting on getting them and even following Dewey to a building where oil was kept, to which building Dewey went for oil for a customer. Finally, to get rid of him, went to the pockets of one of his employee's coat, which was hanging in the room, and procured some papers which he delivered to Stutz. Stutz offered to pay a dime, and then a nickel, but he was told that the papers were not kept for any purpose whatsoever and payment was refused. The papers delivered to Stutz were from the private stock of one of Mr. Dewey's employees, who uses them, and were in no sense kept for distribution to customers, or otherwise than for the personal use of the said employee.

Law Not Violated Intentionally.

"With regard to the third case, Stutz purchased tobacco of the undersigned (Keller), an employee of Mr. Harrison, and was told by Keller, in response to his request for papers, that they were not kept or handled at all. Stutz followed Keller around and finally from Keller's own private stock of papers he, being to some extent a user of cigarettes, delivered some papers to Stutz.

"That none of the deliveries of said cigarette papers were made with the intention of violating the law, or for any other purpose than to accommodate a man, supposedly a gentleman, in his request for a personal favor, is shown.

"It is common knowledge that between smokers favors of this character are granted habitually and without the slightest intent on the part of either to evade the statute.

Fined for Technicality.

"Upon being brought before the magistrate, we were told that while the officers were satisfied that there was no intent to violate the law, and while they did not approve of the methods used, yet there was a technical violation of the law and that however innocent our intention we were actually guilty. For this reason we each plead guilty and the minimum sentence provided by the statute was imposed. Two of us paid our fines, the other was unable to pay his fine and the court refused to send him to jail in lieu thereof.

"We would say further merely that we were not law violators, nor do we have sympathy with such. We believe in the rigid enforcement of the anti-cigarette law and are in sympathy with all efforts to catch those engaged in its violation. We do, however, protest against any methods which result in classifying respectable citizens as law breakers and branding with the stigma of guilt those who are guiltless.

"Respectfully submitted,

"L. C. SHAFER.

"RALPH KELLER.

OPEN COLUMN.

When I was a child I used to try to catch the sun beams as they played across the floor. When I got older I tried to catch the other boys as we played "hide and seek" or "black man." Much of my life has been spent in catching trains, catching street cars, catching fish, catching the cash and catching cold, but I'll be gee whizzed gold-dusted if I can catch on to what the spring is trying to spring on us this year.—Submitted.

To the Editor:

Relief is in sight! Something that offers great possibility is reaching out before the students here.

You know that Manhattan boasts a new Country Club? In fact it has just obtained the ten thousand dollar charter. Blumont has been chosen as the site for the club ground. Of course it isn't all up there yet but there is a rudimentary golf course.

Now one-fourth of the members of this country club happen to be college professors—our own profs. Some of these profs that were skilled in this fascinating art of golfing simply couldn't wait to revive their best strokes. Accordingly the first suitable day they mounted to the links with golf clubs. Others went along as onlookers and the next time they went as golfers. (First step accomplished.)

One professor was actually heard to remark that he was "crazy about it"—that he would play every day if he could and a whole lot more about how many holes he made the first attempt at playing. He continued to say that his fellow professors were growing enthusiastic about the game too.

Now this game is capable of producing great results. You know people do just get wild about golfing. Sometimes forgetting to eat or work. If we can just get all the profs crazy about golf, (fine old game), maybe they will just become so wrapped up in it that quizzes and such disconcerting things will be forgotten. Why, who could grade papers and play golf at the same time? And these now stern profs will be more lenient in every way. Classes will no longer be held until the echo of the last stroke of the last bell because thoughts of the Blumont golf links will glimmer before the golf enthusiasts.

Every student will surely see the logic in this and cooperate to boost for golf for college professors. Now together—G-O-L-F!—E. T. W.

Dear Editor of the Collegian:

I wish to air a grievance through the "Open Column" of the Collegian. It is not a grievance confined to myself, as I know a half dozen other girls who have the same feelings. We are all fairly good looking girls; are neat and up-to-date in our dress; jolly, fond of a good time, not the "mushy" sort, and are willing to match our wits with any girl in the school. Yet we receive very few attentions from the men. We cannot understand why all the other girls have "dates" for hikes, dances, games and other amusements while we have to shift for ourselves. It seems very unfair to us. We have watched the other girls closely, and have tried hard to be attractive too, but to no avail. It is all one to the men whether we wear high heels or low heels, hair bows or no hair bows; smiles or frowns. And if one does happen to come once he never returns. What is the matter with us? We were popular girls in our home towns, and why we have to take backseats now, is what we cannot understand. We surely would like to know why we do not receive more attention, or at least to see some "reasons" printed in the Collegian.

"WHY?"

MELONS WILL GROW IN KANSAS.

Wherever the Soil Is Suitable They Are a Profitable Crop.

The climate of Kansas is adapted to successful melon culture and wherever the soil is suited to the requirements of these crops, they may be profitably grown, either for home use or on a commercial scale, declares F. S. Merrill, assistant in horticulture in the Kansas Agricultural College.

"Melons attain the highest quality on a sandy loam, or light soil containing plenty of humus, free weeds and well drained," says Mr. Merrill. "A soil of this type with a clay subsoil gives the ideal condition, especially in cases where the rainfall is likely to be deficient. A soil that is rich in nitrogen should not be selected, for although the vine growth is increased and larger fruit result, the quality is usually decreased. Such fruit is soft and rather insipid and does not keep or ship well.

"For home planting, the heavier soils may be fitted for melons by working well rotted manure into the hills. Such soils often produce good fruits. For commercial growing, melons can be more cheaply produced on the lighter soils to which they are best adapted."

A baseball game would not be complete without the little fellow on the other side of the fence who lacks the necessary "two bits." And the game is more intensely interesting to him even if he does wear out the knees of his knickerbockers, cramp his arms and splinter his hands.

But discrimination should be made between the boy—who has a legitimate right to all the knot holes, trees or grand stand free gratis if he has not the means to pay his way—and the cheap sports of the college who lack even a dollar and a half worth of loyalty. The price of a season ticket is within the reach of all, working his way or not, if the time for attendance can be spent at all. It might be possible for the blankets which were used for the initiation of freshmen last fall, to be taken out of cold storage.

COLLEGE GETS A WILD BOAR.

Queer Animal Arrived by Express From Europe Thursday.

A wild boar was one of the curious shipments received at the local office of the American Express company yesterday. The animal was shipped to E. N. Wentworth, professor of animal breeding in the college, from Newport, N. H.

The boar came from Europe with a number of others and was shipped to the college from a forest preserve in New Hampshire. It will be used for breeding purposes in the experimental department at the college.

The tusks, which usually protrude upward from the lower jaw of a wild boar, had been sawed off and the animal was shipped in a heavy wooden crate. He stood about two and a half feet tall and was covered with long black and gray hair. Unlike the domestic hog, his legs were long and more like those of a dog. The head was long and tapering and the upper teeth protruded over the lower jaw. The boar was very ferocious and snapped and growled whenever the shipping case was moved.

When asked this morning if the boar was not an unusual shipment, Mr. McCoy, the manager of the express office, said: "No indeed. We have so many shipments that in most places would be termed unusual that we have gotten used to them. Just yesterday we shipped 500 pounds of common Manhattan dirt to Howard for one of the departments at the college."

ADVERTISES THE COLLEGE.

Commercial Club to Put View of Campus on Letter Heads.

"Advertise the college—it is Manhattan's asset."

That is the slogan that the Commercial Club and the Midland Trails association will adhere to in their advertising campaigns in the future.

All Commercial club stationery will contain a panoramic view of the college buildings. A cut for the purpose of combining the pictures of the college with the letter head of the club will be ordered soon by Secretary Lewis.

If the Midland trail passes through Manhattan it must go through the grounds of the college according to E. F. Apitz, one of the local boosters of the road.

E. L. Antlis, secretary-treasurer of the National Midland Trails association, practically assured Mr. Apitz that the road would be routed out through the college grounds when he was here two weeks ago. Efforts will be made to secure a macadamized road through the college grounds.

NOTES OF INTEREST TO ENGINEERS

H. B. Walker returned Friday from a farm drainage inspection trip to Salina.

C. C. Wheeler, the district agent for the Hart-Parr plow company has been supervising the tests on the Hart-Parr "Little Devil" that have been held the past week.

Mr. I. E. Taylor, a resident of Manhattan and a civil engineering graduate of the class of '13, has recently accepted a position as superintendent with the A. Jaicks Company. This company specializes in pavement construction.

The traction classes will hold a dynamometer test on the Hart-Parr tractor at the college farm. The tractor will be pulling three plows and all the data necessary to calculate the draw bar horsepower and the amount of fuel burned will be taken by the class.

The Avery tractor that has been at the traction shed since the first of the year has been sold by the Avery company to J. J. Marshall at Zeandale. It was delivered Friday by members of the traction classes, supervised by W. L. Sanders, instructor in farm motors.

K. E. Banta, factory expert of the Hart-Parr Plow Co., from Kansas City spent Thursday inspecting the condition of the "Little Devil." He made the statement that the machine was in very good shape and well able to make a good showing on the future tests that will be made with the machine.

The contract letting for the bridge work on the Cloud county bridges was held at Concordia last week. These bridges have had the plans drawn up in the state engineer's office under the supervision of W. S. Gearhart, extension department. The state engineer's office will furnish the supervising engineer for each of these bridges.

A plowing demonstration was held at the college farm by the traction engine department last Thursday with the Hart-Parr "Little Devil." John Koerfer and Fred Pfeifer of Green, Kansas, who were present for the demonstration were well pleased with the performance of the engine.

The "Little Devil" was able to handle three 14-inch plows over some very tough ground, plowing at a depth of about 8 inches.

FARMER PROFITS BY EDUCATION

Investigations in Farm Management at College Prove Its Worth.

A college education is a valuable business asset to a farmer. While it is impossible to estimate the value of an education in dollars and cents, investigations in farm management conducted by the college indicate that the farmer with a college education makes more money than his less educated neighbor.

Labor income data were secured by Profs. W. E. Grimes and P. E. McNall from 635 farmers in Allen, Harvey, Jewell, Leavenworth, Lyon, Pottawatomie and Cowley counties. The extent of their education was also obtained.

Four hundred and ninety-eight farmers who had only a common school education made an average labor income of $499. One hundred and twenty-six had gone farther than the common school but had not completed a college course. Their labor incomes averaged $631. Eleven had completed a four-year course in college. Their labor incomes averaged $1,452, or almost $1,000 more than the men with common school education and more than $800 greater than the men who went farther than the common school but did not complete a four-year college course.

How One Feels About It.

It Has Often Been Said That Seniors are Mighty and Know All Things but Here is One Poor Fellow who Never Before Knew How to Eat in True D. S. Style.

Did you ever stop to think how you would feel if you were sentenced to die? I am not exactly sure how I would feel, but I don't believe that it would be a new experience, I have eaten at a D. S. lunch.

Even though it comes from a poor scribe, take a tip from me, that the experiences of a senior boy at a Domestic Science luncheon, will make words come readily, profane or otherwise. Since no scribe has yet told his feelings so that they fit my case I will jot down some reminiscences.

Think for a moment if you can of a mere man who has been accustomed to restaurant stools, and boarding houses, and occasionally the left overs from a sewing circle luncheon, being seduced into trying to manipulate the paraphernalia or tools, of a sedate luncheon.

I approached that stone structure over by the gymnasium with fear in my heart and my blood as dry as dust. I climbed the steps, but I know not how, because my knees were as weak as the morning after the night before. If I had been alone I would have departed without leaving my respects.

I have not the least idea what followed until I reached the dining room and from then on things are rather vague. I began shaking like a man with the ague, my knees knocked together until they were calloused, my eyes were as prominent as the ears on a donkey. I put my hand where I thought my head was, and it was wet with big drops of perspiration. My hair stood up like the fur on a scared cat, my hands seemed to be dragging on the floor my feet were numb.

In this situation I percolated over to the nearest chair, and deposited my anatomy on the outer edge, and began, with hazy eyes, taking an inventory of things around me.

By much maneuvering and some observation, I got my tools to working, and learned how to sip my soup properly, and how to steer peas to my cavity on the progs of a fork, I learned to smile prettily at stale jokes, and twice I very near laughed out loud. I learned to eat celery so that it did not sound like a horse eating corn, but the coffee went down my esophagus like a cow pulling her foot out of the mud, and I felt disgraced.

The dear little waitresses attracted my attention most, and I very near picked a wife once, when one of them presented me with some cute little biscuits. But I couldn't be a Mormon so I abandoned the idea because they were all so very dear.

After I had devoured everything in sight except one music teacher, I folded my napkin and issued forth into the open air, and thanked the God of something, that I had come out alive.

NO FADS OR EXTREMES

All makers this year, after our lead last Spring, are aiming at this feature. But these styles this season must not go to extremes, and that is where our Society Brand Clothes excel. They are individual and exclusive, but invariably correct. The master-designer of these clothes has been regarded for ten years as the young man's style authority. He is the expert, of all men in this line, in combining youthful lines with conservatism.

His models present a dignified, but warm, youthful effect. You want youthful lines, but you want correct style, and these clothes will insure it.

In Standard All-Wool Fabrics $20 and $25. In "DOUBLE SERVICE" Fabrics $30 to $35.

You will also see in Society Brand Clothes for Spring new patterns and new fabrics—special patterns and special fabrics, in line with the youthful trend—stallbridge and Ascot Stripes, Screen Checks, Seacombe, Piping Rock Flannels, and other smart effects.

You'll find special values in cloths, finish and tailoring that will win you to these clothes. You'll secure in them your ideal of smartness, plus permanency in style and shape. So be sure that you see them before you make your Spring purchases. Don't let any dealer influence you otherwise before you have made a comparison.

Only one clothes merchant in any town can show you Society Brand Clothes. We are that merchant in Manhattan. Ask us about the "DOUBLE SERVICE" label.

No garment is a genuine Society Brand model unless the inside pocket bears the label, "Society Brand Clothes."

Lawrence Students Organize For Economical Purposes.

Lawrence, Kan., April 6.—Fifteen young men in a co-operative boarding club at the University of Kansas have cut the cost of living to a minimum through hard work and rigid economy, it was asserted here. The boys claim they live on 22 cents a day for each man. Each man cooks his own breakfast, it was stated, but one of the members of the club acts as cook for the dinner and supper and for his work he receives his board free.

The menu as given out by the members of the club follows: Breakfast—Cocoa, toast and cereal; dinner at noon—meat, mashed potatoes and gravy, corn and macaroni, and pie; supper—cold meat, potatoes, stewed fruit, milk or cocoa. On Sundays the men say they have chicken or a roast with the usual "side" dishes and ice cream and cake for desert.

At the beginning of the fall term of the school 15 young men paid in $3 each for the purchase of furniture and necessary dishes, it was pointed out, and each week 13 of the members pay in $2 each for the running expenses of the club, the cook and his helper. All the members of the club are required to do their share of the house work, it was said, and in this way living expenses are cut to a minimum. Only once this year has an extra assessment been made and that was only 10 cents a person, the steward of the club declared.

COLLEGE STUDENT IS MUCH ABUSED PERSON

C. M. Harger, Editor of Abilene Reflector, Assures Students at General Assembly That They are Victims.

BUT THE WORLD NEEDS 'EM.

"The college student is a much abused person," C. M. Harger, of Abilene, editor of the Abilene Reflector, and chairman of the State Board of Corrections, told all the Aggies who attended the general assembly exercises yesterday. He referred to the general impression which seems to be tain in the minds of the cartoonists, as to the dress and deportment of the college student. Mr. Harger believes that the average student returns to his home in better mental and physical trim than when he left, and that his or her ideas on deportment are also improved.

"The world is looking now for college graduates," said Mr. Harger, "there is a steady growing appreciation of the benefits derived from college education." He illustrated his point with an account of an interview with the editor of the Kansas City Star, several years ago, when the editor said that the qualification which he most desired in a reporter was the ability to write the English language. "And no college student needs to apply to me," the editor said. "Now," Mr. Harger said, "practically everyone on the staff is a college-trained man or woman."

The subject of Mr. Harger's address was, "Getting Results." In order to get results, he told the students it is necessary to know beforehand what to be. The greatest happiness comes in earning your own living, doing that thing your heart desires to do.

That Kansas and the United States are seeing a new vision of social service and indebtedness, is the opinion of Mr. Harger. Each person in a community must realize that he must devote a part of his time, and his money and efforts to the good of the community, without hope of personal returns therefrom.

A onesided education, came in for censure from the speaker. The ability to mix with, and appreciate other people, is essential. "To be really successful, to gain the really good things of life, one must be many sided," Mr. Harger assured his hearers.

NEW YORK PHILHARMONIC CANCELS THE ENGAGEMENT

Owing to Train Service Large Musical Organization Will be Unable to Keep Engagement Here.

The New York Philharmonic orchestra will not be able to fill its engagement at the college April 21 according to a telegram received by Professor Westbrook of the music department yesterday morning. The telegram follows: "Unable to secure positive assurance that Philharmonic orchestra can be transported from Kansas City in time for Manhattan appearance. Under circumstances think it best to cancel Manhattan appearance. Rather than impose upon public by tardy arrival in communicating with you occasioned by road agent. Regret this is necessary exceedingly."

Owing to the fact that the orchestra is to appear at Lindsborg on Sunday following the date scheduled for the concert here and because the stop here would occasion a long run trip and a late appearance at the college Professor Westbrook consented to the canceling of the engagement.

MORE ENGLISH CLASSES.

Students who are Behind Will be Given Chance to Make up.

A new class is being organized in the English department of the school of agriculture, for the benefit of those students who are behind one term in their English work. The purpose of the class is to offer work which will sufficiently cover the course in Composition I, and Classics I, so that the delinquent students may be given credit for their lacking subject and be raised to the proper standard.

The work will be very interesting because it will cover a variety of subjects. Several Classics will be studied and interesting topics of conversation will be discussed, besides the technical study of the English language.

STUDY HOME PROBLEMS.

Students in Professor Holton's Class Would Learn What is Wrong.

The classes in rural education, taught by E. L. Holton, professor of education, is attempting to find out what is the real problem of the rural community. Each member of the class has been asked to submit a list of the social and economic needs of the community in which he lives.

When these lists have been submitted they will be compared and discussed by the class and instructor to determine the viewpoint of those actually living in country districts. The next step will be to read the writing of such authorities as T. N. Carver, adviser in agricultural economics, United States department of agriculture; Ellen P. Cullerly, professor of education, Leland Stanford Junior University; and others of equal ranking. By this means Professor Holton wishes the class to determine for itself the real rural community problem.

STUDENTS DIRECTORY PROBABLY BY Y. M. C. A.

Information Book Formerly put out by That Organization and Directory May be Combined.

The students directory for the college next year probably will be issued by the Y. M. C. A. Secretary W. W. McLean of that organization presented a plan before the members of the Manhattan Retailers' association Tuesday night that met with the merchants approval.

In the past the Y. M. C. A. has always published a small book of information for new students and students of the college have issued a directory of all students in attendance. Both have been good money makers for the publishers, as local merchants have advertised in both publications.

Next year it is proposed that the two booklets either be combined by the Y. M. C. A. or that the Y. M. C. A. issue the information book and also the directory, the proceeds of both to go to the Y. M. C. A., instead of to students, as in the past.

TO TEACH IN CHICAGO.

Professor Holton Will Occupy Chair There During Summer.

Edwin L. Holton, professor of education in the Kansas State Agricultural college, will teach rural education and rural sociology in the University of Chicago during the summer quarter. His work will be in the school of education and the school of arts and sciences. The University of Chicago secures each summer a number of men of special qualifications to offer courses.

Professor Holton will spend the coming year in graduate study in Columbia university, from which he expects to receive a doctor's degree in the summer of 1917. A leave of absence has just been granted to him for this purpose.

Professor Holton is a graduate of Indiana university and has already taken graduate work in Columbia university. He has been head of the department of education and director of the summer school since 1910. He has built up both to a high degree of efficiency and is recognized as a leading authority on vocational education.

A COLLEGE SHOE SHOP.

Hays Normal has Installed a Shop for use of Students.

One of the useful accommodations for students of the Hays Normal School is a small shoe repairing shop recently installed in the basement of one of the buildings. While it is not an elaborate work-shop and lacks many conveniences that a modern shoe-maker considers essential, it serves its purpose well, judging, at least, from the number of students using it each day.

If you were at school, extremely busy, and a tack begins to bury itself in your heel, wouldn't it be great if you could pull that shoe off, take out the tack and in this way take your spite out on the tack and still not be compelled to give the shoe-maker a quarter for the job?

This is what the students at Hays do. Some of them go so far as to put on half soles and it is common for them to put on rubber heels.

"The shop was installed primarily for the purpose of helping the students and not for instruction," says President Lewis. "The shoe-makers charge no higher in this town than in any other, but some students cannot afford even the most conservative prices, and it is for this reason that the repair shop was established."

During Miss Perry's absence Miss Esther Nachman will take her place on the Collegian staff.

OFFERS PRIZE TO WOMEN STUDENTS OF THE WORLD

Naples Table Association Awards $1,000 for Best Independent Scientific Thesis.

The growing movement that has brought women to the front in every line of endeavor in the past few years is the cause of a new prize which the Naples Table Association is offering to the women students of the world. This prize, which will be the eighth one offered by the association, is called the Ellen Richards Research Prize and consists of one thousand dollars. It will be awarded to the woman who writes the best thesis on a scientific subject. There are no restrictions placed on the list of subjects which may be treated, but the thesis must embody new observations and conclusions based on independent laboratory research.

Dr. Lillian Welch, of Goucher College, Baltimore, Maryland, is the chairman of the committee on the prize, and all these to be considered must be in her hands by February 25, 1917. The prize will be awarded in April, 1917. The board of examiners, with whom the decision of the contest rests, consists of three prominent scientists from American universities. Ellen Richards was formerly the chairman of the committee in charge of the prize, and the prize now bears her name in honor of her work.

The Naples Table Association for Promoting Laboratory Research by Women is maintained by annual subscriptions of fifty dollars each. Most of the subscriptions are made by American colleges.

The first two prizes which the association has given were won by American women, of Johns Hopkins and Leland Stanford universities. Requests for application blanks to enter the contest may be made to the secretary, Ada Wing Mead, 238 Wayland Avenue, Providence, R. I.

DEBATE FRIDAY NIGHT IS LAST OF THE YEAR

Aggie Negative Team Will Stay Here Against the College of Emporia While Affirmative Squad Goes Against Washburn There.

FIVE SCHOOLS ARE TO TAKE PART

The final debate this year for the boys will be held Friday night in the college auditorium when the Aggie negative team meets the College of Emporia affirmative team in the last of the great pentangular series.

The K. S. A. C. affirmative team meets the Washburn negative team at Topeka on the same night. The question is: Resolved, That the Monroe doctrine as developed and applied by the United States should be abandoned as a part of our national policy.

The five schools to meet in this pentangular series are: K. S. A. C., Ottawa University, Baker University, College of Emporia, and Washburn. Each school has two teams in the field. Each team has met one other school on this question and have tried their hand at the talking game. This series should be a battle royal, and worth while for all who like to hear a good word duel.

Debate will probably be open to the whole college next year and this is one of the finest opportunities there will be for those who expect to try their hand at it to get some pointers.

The Aggie men who will defend the question against Washburn at Topeka are: J. B. Sweet, captain; M. W. Converse, and J. H. Flora. Those who remain at home and oppose the question against the College of Emporia are: J. V. Quigley, captain; J. L. Lush, and W. A. Gillispie.

Following the debate here the Forum will entertain the debaters and coaches at an informal reception.

J. B. Sweet, captain of the Aggie affirmative, is a junior in the animal husbandry course, has been twice president president of his class, member of the debating council, Pi Kappa Delta, Forum, one of the debate scholarship men, and member of the Athenian literary society. He has won his fifth K in debate.

M. W. Converse is a sophomore in the agricultural course, member of society, and is debating this year for the first time.

J. H. Flora is a junior in the engineer's course in milling industry, and holds a scholarship in that work. He is a member of the Forum, Athenian literary society, and debates this year for the first time.

J. V. Quigley is a senior in the course in agriculture, member of the Pi Kappa Delta debating fraternity, Forum, Athenian literary society, and has won his fifth college K in debating.

Walter A. Gillispie is a sophomore in the course in agriculture, a member of the Forum, Athenian literary society, and debates for the first time this year.

J. L. Lush is a senior in the animal husbandry course, is a member of the Forum, Pi Kappa Delta, Franklin literary society, and is the present debate scholarship man. He is a five K man and is taking up the work in this debate at the last minute, as a substitute.

The men who come here from Emporia are: Carl Moore, Charles Raymond and Harris Hilsher.

SIGMA DELTA CHI INITIATES.

Four Students Taken Into National Journalism Fraternity Saturday.

The Psi chapter of Sigma Delta Chi, the national honorary journalism fraternity, initiated four of the journalism students of the college Saturday night. The new members of the local chapter are B. K. Baghdigian, Topeka; Wellington Brink, Manhattan; J. M. Boring, Spring Hill, and L. C. Moser, Courtland.

Only students who intend to take up some form of journalistic work after they are graduated are initiated into Sigma Delta Chi. The organization is strictly a professional and honorary one. It has 24 active chapters, located in the larger colleges and universities of the country.

E. D. Kellman, news editor of the Manhattan Nationalist, has been voted an honorary member of Psi chapter of Sigma Delta Chi.

Don't forget to send the Collegian home this week.

HOLD INTER-SOCIETY DEBATES.

New System Will be First Tried Saturday Evening over Mex. Question.

A new feature is being introduced into the literary societies in the way of inter-society debates. The first debate will be held April 15. Each of the societies entered, will have two teams, one for the negative and one for the affirmative side of the question. The question to be debated is: Resolved: That the United States should establish a protectorate over Mexico.

There will be a short series of debates, to determine which society has the best team. This will be the first time in this college, that the societies have gotten together and made out a program of inter-society debates.

It is hoped that these debates will create more interest in this line of work, and bring the societies closer together, and also put more enthusiasm into them by creating competition.

COMPANIES WORKING HARD PREPARING FOR INSPECTION

Double ePeriods of Drill are the Order of the Day—Each Company has a Special Problem.

April 21 and 22 are the dates set for inspection of the military department. As this time is rapidly approaching the companies are being drilled two hours each period in order to get into the desired form. The companies are all being made efficient in close order drill, the manual of arms and extended order, but in addition to this each company has a practical problem to work out. These problems will consist of bridge building, trenching, advanced guard, patrolling, attacks and other tactics of this nature.

The special work is introduced for several reasons, namely because each company will not have the time to become efficient in all these tactics in the allotted time. Also the inspection will be much more successful if each company specializes in one different movement. The spectators will be pleased much more if a series of movements are executed instead of a repetition of one movement.

EVERYONE HAS THEM.

Nematodes are Very Popular Although few People Realize It.

There is a minute animal of considerable economic importance which inhabits every part of this earth but of which the majority of the people know nothing. These are the nematodes, a small, unsegmented worm which is found in the soil, the water, the air, living in plants and animals as parasites, and often causing diseases and sometimes death.

Man himself is not free from the attacks of these organisms, and it may be a surprising fact to learn that no less than 50 kinds of these organisms are known to infect the human body.

Our domesticated animals suffer even more severely. N. A. Cobb, technologist in charge of agricultural technology, bureau of plant industry, says, "The monetary loss caused by the nematodes in stock raising countries is always considerable and sometimes very great. To every person, therefore, and especially to medical men and veterinarians, these parasitic nematodes should possess no common interest."

"Nor are the crops of the farmer free from the attacks of these creatures. Wheat, the sugar beet, coffee and scores of other crops are frequently decimated or even ruined by diseases caused by the attacks of microscopic nematodes."

"Beyond a doubt a complete knowledge of nematodes, if properly applied, would enable us to save a vast amount of life and treasure, and prevent a vast amount of suffering."

CADETS GET FIELD TELEPHONE.

Latest in Field Signal Equipment Received at the College.

A new telephone apparatus has been received by the cadet corps of the college. This instrument is the latest in field signal equipment. It can be used to communicate over a maximum distance of about 30 miles. Ordinarily, however, it is used for distances of a mile or less.

The apparatus consists of telephone arrangements which may be hooked to the single line wire at any place in the circuit. The single wire is small end of a grayish color that makes it almost impossible to discover it. The wire is merely strung along the ground.

DUAL TRACK MEET WITH TIGERS IS CALLED OFF

After Being Postponed From April 29 to the 18th to Accommodate Missouri There was not Time to Get Ready.

CAN NOT BE HELD AT ALL NOW.

The dual track meet between Missouri University and the Kansas Aggies, which was scheduled for April 18, has been called off.

This announcement was made yesterday by Professor J. O. Hamilton, chairman of the Athletic board.

"This meeting was originally scheduled for April 29," said Prof. Hamilton, "and was later changed to April 18 on the urgent request of the M. U. officials who desired to send LOB SIMPSON, their crack hurdler, and their relay team to the Pennsylvania relay games on the 29th. However Coach Merner felt that if the meet were held on the 18th that he would not have time to get his athletes in condition. As M. U. has no other open dates it will be impossible for the Aggies to have a meet with Missouri this year."

This announcement will be a keen disappointment to the Aggie track men and track followers in general. M. U. has a track team which won the Missouri Valley championship last year and many track enthusiasts have been looking forward to seeing them in action. Simpson, M. U.'s great hurdler, has equalled the world's record in the high hurdles and their relay team won first at the Penn. relay games last year.

The vacancy left in the track schedule will be filled by some school in the Kansas conference or it is possible that the Aggies may be able to get a meet with Nebraska University.

GIRL ATHLETES TO MEET.

First Meeting of the New Organization Will be Held Tuesday Eight Hour.

The first meeting of the Girl's Athletic association organized last term will be held Tuesday, April 18, in the gymnasium during the eighth hour.

At this meeting the numerals won by girls last term will be awarded and the membership cards will be given out for signing. Members of the association have many plans for the work this spring and at the meeting Tuesday these will be discussed.

All college girls are eligible for membership in the Girls' Athletic association.

ENGINEERS GO TO K. C. ON INSPECTION TRIP

Thirty Seniors Will Leave Tomorrow on Annual Inspection Trip of Big Plants—Special Train.

Thirty senior mechanical and electrical engineering students of the college will go to Kansas City April 13, 14 and 15 on their annual inspection trip. They will be chaperoned by Professor Clarence E. Reid of the electrical engineering department and Professor S. L. Shimmering of the mechanical engineering department.

The party will visit the Kansas side Municipal Light and Power plant, Armour Packing plant, the Missouri Water plant, the Kansas City Railway's plant, the Loose-Wiles Biscuit company, Witte Iron works, the Ford Motor Car company's works, the Kansas City Star, some of the office buildings, power plants, and other places of interest to engineering students.

The present plans are that they will stop on the Kansas side first and then visit the Municipal plant before going to Kansas City, Mo.

Arrangements have been made to have a special car for the party. The train will leave Manhattan via the Rock Island on Thursday morning, April 13 at 5:45 o'clock and is scheduled to reach Kansas City at 9:25 o'clock.

Winship Arranges Course.

Fred C. Winship, instructor of the English language, who recently resigned his position in order that he might take up advanced study in social science work, returned from Lincoln, Nebraska, Saturday night. While in Lincoln Mr. Winship arranged for his study there under Dr. James E. Rossignol of the University of Nebraska next winter.

Mr. Winship has also secured a position for part time in the rhetorical department of the university.

THE QUANTITATIVE LAB.

The quantitative analysis laboratory is too small to accommodate both the advanced and elementary students. The faculty is using every means possible to get along and have added cupboards for containing chemicals rooms. Every nook and corner of the entire laboratory is utilized.

It is the opinion of men in the department that unless a new building is furnished soon the number of students assigned to quantitative analysis will have to be reduced. As the courses are now arranged there is a multitude of students each year who must pass this work if they are to graduate.

New gas ovens for convenience have been put in and miniature store rooms have been placed over the various parts of the laboratory so that students can get chemicals unassisted instead of having to crowd around the store room window to have their wants supplied individually.

GO DOWN FRONT.

"If you were near me I would feel comfortable, but you are so far away that I feel distressed," said Dr. John F. Harman president of the Kansas Wesleyan university, as the opening words of his address before the student body. Such words as these should create in the student mind a question. It is obvious that something is wrong and should be remedied. What is the remedy? That students going to the auditorium early should comply with the wishes of those who have so often admonished them for filling the back seats first; go further forward and leave the back seats for the late comers. This would bring the student body closer to the speaker and in a great measure overcome the usual disturbance that occurs. Further this system would benefit the student not only to get the opening words himself but be courteous to those who attend the program for serious reasons.

TROUBLE OF REPEATING.

Mike was the janitor of an office building in the city of Boston. He was a young, slim looking fellow—apparently a hard worker. Some time ago Mike was missed by the occupants of the building for they had not seen him doing the usual cleaning, nor they had been greeted by the smile with which Mike was in the habit of saluting his friends.

After many days of absence Mike again took up the duster and the pan. He was more serious than he had ever been. One of the occupants of the building noticing this remarked, "I hope everything is well with you Mike. I missed you in the last few days."

"Yes, Mr. Gibson I have been away." As he uttered these words his lips drew together, his eyes filled with tears while he related the story of his wife's suffering and the operation that was performed without her consent, from which she never recovered.

"The last thing my wife told me was, 'Mike be good to John.' Now my little boy and I are left alone and when I am here there is no one to take care of him."

The sympathetic listener felt that it was time to say a word of cheer. "Mike that's awfully sad my boy, I am sorry, but never mind you will be finding a new mother to your John."

Tears began to roll down over Mike's face as he sobbingly said: "Yes, Mr. Gibson, but just think I have to start everything all over again!"

A NEW METHOD.

Herding sheep on a bicycle. That is the degree to which the science of shepherding has progressed at the Kansas State Agricultural college.

In Biblical times the Bible teaches us that the wise men of the East watched their flocks on foot. In the Alps and in the Andes of South America today the shepherds walk and take care of their flocks.

In Mexico and in the foothills of the Rockies where sheep are kept on the ranges, the herders ride a pony and use a dog. But at this institution the shepherd of the college flocks has disregarded all traditions and customs for the watching of sheep. Almost any time of any day when the flock is grazing on the campus and a ewe or lamb strays out on Blue-mont street or to Aggieville you can see the shepherd mount his wheel and proceed to round up the stray and herd it back on the flock.

SHEEP AS LAWN MOWERS.

Though Surprising to Many Students the Custom is Old.

Sheep have taken the place of the lawn mower and the army of dandelion diggers which have been in evidence on the college campus heretofore during the spring months. Although this method of keeping down the weeds and grass on the campus has never been practiced at the college before it is an old idea. The English nobility, who in the seventeenth and eighteenth centuries bred sheep very extensively, kept their lawns in shape by grazing sheep on the lawns. The most beautiful sheep were selected to turn onto the lawns thus they became ornamental as well as useful.

The sheep not only keep down the grass and weeds, but they also add fertility to the soil. Furthermore the gain produced by the grass is a clear profit to the owner because if cut with a mower the grass would be a waste. Thus grazing the sheep on the campus is an effective method of keeping down the grass and the weeds as well as an economical method of producing mutton.

NEW PLAN IN JUDGING.

Students do not now have to place Stock Name as Instructor.

"Do not place your sheep the way you think the professor is going to place it, but place it the way you think is right," Dr. C. W. McCampbell of the animal husbandry department instructed his advanced judging class. Students in judging stock will place it in the order they think the instructor is going to place it. They must do so in order to obtain a grade. They are graded on the nearness of their placing to that of the instructor. This encourages working for a grade rather than for the good that can be obtained from the course.

Doctor McCampbell is trying a new plan in his judging classes this term. The boys work out their own placings and their own reasons but are not graded on these. The term's grade is based on a series of examinations which will come at intervals throughout the term, one examination on each kind of live stock studied.

It is hoped that this will develop stock judges who will be more independent and more individualistic in their work.

INTERESTING EXPERIMENTS.

Class in Genetics II has Curious Way of Marking and Protecting.

"What are those white sacks on those plants for?" asked a freshman girl to her junior companion as they passed the botanical greenhouse. "Those are experiments being conducted by the plant genetics II class," explained her friend who is a member of the class.

The genetics II class has already made over one hundred crosses and close pollination. Over twenty-five reciprocal crosses being made between the Narcissus Jonquill, the Narcissus Golden Spur, and the Narcissus Empress. These three plants also being self-fertilized.

Reciprocal crosses were made between the White and Red Double Geranium. Also among the Geranium Fair Ellen and Nini Peitler were crossed reciprocally.

Red tags are used when seld. Yellow when crossed and blue ones when the pollen is removed before the stigma is ready to be pollinated.

ANOTHER ANCIENT BUILDING.

Chemistry Annex has had Many Experiences Since 1876.

The chemistry annex, the cross with vines, that stands by the physics building was erected in 1876. On the present campus it is surpassed in age by only one building (the armory) which was erected in 1871.

At first this building was used for a chemical laboratory. But in 1900 it had the misfortune of having its interior destroyed by fire. In 1902 the interior was reconstructed and remodelled for use. It was then used for the ladies gymnasium until the completion of the Nichols gymnasium in 1911. When the ladies gym was moved from the annex it was reconverted into a chemical laboratory.

Within its walls many an unlucky student has met his or her fate. It is here where the little freshman first begin their study of the science of chemistry.

Estes Park Banquet.

Plates were laid for 135 guests at the banquet held by the Estes Park club at the Congregational church Friday evening. The dining room was decorated with large pine boughs and imitation bonfires. The dining tables were decorated as miniature Estes Parks, with small mountains, tents and rustic bridges. Pine cones were strewn on the cloth. The table was lighted by candles and the electric lights were covered with green. An orchestra furnished music during the evening, and the girls sang Estes Park songs between the courses. The theme for the toasts for the evening was taken from Doctor Cabot's book "What We Live By." The subject being "What We Live By—Estes Park." The toasts were names from the chapters in his book. Miss Wilma Burtis acted as toastmistress. The following toasts were given: Introduction, Nell Deaubien; "Work," Emma Taylor; "Play," Jaunita Reynolds; "Love," Stella Gould; "Worship," Miss Lucy Riggs of Denver, Colo.

The toasts given were: "Johnny Jump Up," Ruth Taylor; "Thistle," Viola Styles; "Rambling Roses," Margaret Mann; "Bleeding Heart," Marie Story; and "Forget-Me-Not," Dr. Mary Harmon. Each toast was to represent a class and one for the alumni. Miss Mary Collins of the Nebraska chapter and Miss Marcia Story were the only guests. TELLS OF MAGAZINE GAME.

C. M. Harger of Abilene Talks to the Journalism Students.

"Merely a newspaper reporter magnified and expanded," was the characterization given the magazine writer by C. M. Harger, editor of the Abilene Reflector, in a talk before the journalism students of the college Tuesday morning on the subject, "The Magazine Game."

"The magazine contributor informs himself on the things about him. After he has obtained a good grasp on conditions he picks out some feature that is timely and is interesting to a large circle of readers, writes it up, sends it in, and that's all there is to it."

Mr. Harger, who is a candidate for the republican nomination for congressman, made a talk that was both instructive and interesting. Interspersed throughout his words of advice to the aspiring authors were humorous stories and remarks.

Mr. Harger spoke at the chapel exercises at 9 o'clock on the subject, "Getting Results." He urged the students to apply themselves diligently while they had the opportunity to attend college as that was the only way in which to get results.

Mr. Harger is strongly in favor of college education, partly because he had a graduate of this school on the staff of his paper who more than made a name both for himself and K. S. A. C.

The trouble with the man who knows but little is that he continually tells more.—Leavenworth Post.

MANHATTAN TYPEWRITER EMPORIUM

Suits are being issued to the freshman football men. The squad will probably be coached by Dick Richardson, ex-varsity short stop.

Nebraska has asked for a three man team. This proposition will perhaps be accepted but it will have to be passed upon by the athletic board.

An effort is being made to obtain a game with the Haskell Indians or with Kansas Wesleyans for Friday or Saturday of this week. The announcement will appear in this issue if arranged by that time.

Athletic Director Bender states that the department will attempt interest in inter collegiate tennis. An offer of a two year contract has been received from the University of Nebraska. The terms of the contract are that Nebraska will send a team here this year and the Aggie team will play at Lincoln next year.

If enough interest is shown in tennis in the early part of the season, representatives of the Aggie team will be sent to the Tennis Tournament of the conference some time in May. If a complete team of good players cannot be produced, only one man may be sent.

The Tennis Tournament will not be held at Ames, Iowa but at Drake University. This revision was made at the December meeting when Ames, who had the tournament last year, recommended that the tournament be given to Drake.

Track Meet With Baker.

A dual track meet between the Aggies and Baker University has been arranged for April 29, the date on which the Missouri Track meet was scheduled.

The Tigers will enter the Pennsylvania relay races which will be held the same week so that they could not fill their date here. The original schedule provided for two Missouri Valley track meets this year, Missouri and Kansas. The meet with K. U. in May will be the only Missouri Valley this year under the present arrangement.

"This gives us a better balanced schedule," says Athletic Director Bender. "Instead of having two meets at home this year and none at all next year, we will now have one meet at home each year."

Baseball Uncertain.

The attempt to secure a game with the Kansas Wesleyans or the Haskell Indians to fill in one of the open dates occasioned by the Ames games being called off was unsuccessful.

The Athletic Board is now endeavoring to get a game with Baker University to be played on College field Saturday or Monday. Professor Hamilton, chairman of the board, talked to the manager of the team at Emporia last evening, where they had just finished an eleven inning game with the College of Emporia. The manager was eager to make such an engagement but could not answer until he returned to Baker last evening and received instructions from his faculty.

In case there is no chance to get the Methodists here for either of those dates, an exhibition game will be played Saturday afternoon between the first and second teams. Coach Bender says that if such a game is played, Brecheisen and Hewey will be pitted against each other and the local fans will have a chance to get a line on the comparative excellence of the work done by the two twirlers.

"We are doing our very best to give the holders of season tickets, the entire worth of their money," said Coach Bender yesterday. "Right now it is a mighty hard proposition to get games to fill in the holes in our schedule. All of the colleges of the state are filled up with the maximum number of playing dates and it will be a matter of luck if we get the games when we want them. We thought that we could get Bethany college for one of the dates left open but found that it was impossible."

OPEN COLUMN.

Being surprised that any lady in K. S. A. C. was so frivolous, as to utilize her precious time, in grieving over those immoral human beings; they call men. To this special lady and to the half dozen others of whom she speaks; I wish to present a man's ideas.

Your description as was stated in the Collegian: "Fairly good looking, neat and up to date in our dress, jolly, fond of a good time, not that 'mushy' sort, and are willing to match our wits with any girl in school."

Girls, you have some most attractive features, however you lack some that are just as important from a man's view point. It is true that a man likes a good good looking woman, although some men differ as to what they call a pretty girl.

The woman who thinks she is making herself pretty, by using powder and paint on that portion of her anatomy she calls her face, is often mistaken. Neither powder nor paint will cover up character and personality, which every woman carries with her at all times. Those two most striking features of a pretty woman, should not be handicapped with many hours decoration with chemical compounds. Precious hours could be spent to a much better advantage in improving character and personality; and so to hide the misfortune of a bad looking face, of which mother nature has given out so many. As to the powder, use it in a limited supply, and it will serve the purpose for which it was intended. Men look on a woman's pretty face somewhat as did the Irishman, when he said beauty is only skin deep and the skin on some women's faces is very thin. Girls you must have more than merely pretty faces if you are going to attract men. It is true, a pretty face will go a long ways with some men who are looking for that "mushy" sort of whom you have spoken. The average college man is going to require more than a pretty face if you are going to attract him.

You stated that you were neat in your dress. This is very desirable whether in class room, in your home, or on the street or at some public function.

Men admire a jolly woman and one who enjoys a good time. No man likes a sarcastic or grouchy woman any more than a woman likes that kind of a man. Do not misinterpret that word "jolly" to mean that frivolous, silly kind. Be jolly and have something to go with it, and show the man that you are a thinking woman. Do not sit up and laugh at a stale joke by a man, and think you are making yourself attractive to him. Men admire a woman's laugh provided she has a reason for it.

Wit is a most striking feature in every person, whether man or woman. Too many of us think ourselves witty and it proves to be a feeling all our own. Such wits become very irritating to our associates. It is better to be sure we are blessed with the gift of wit before practicing it to any great extent.

Those "other" girls of whom you have spoken, are the girls that men admire. Those are the girls you should study. Find out if men admire them, because of that pretty face, "mushyness," and tommy-rot, which they term wit. For the ones you consider ugly; see if they do not have grey matter combined with a personality, which shines much brighter in the presence of a man, than the misfortune of her bad looking face.

Because we have been attractive, popular, and leaders, in our home community, does not mean we are going to be in college. We have a vast amount of competition in every thing we undertake. That is the thing in our college career that is going to make us worth while in after life. If we are not interested in any thing ourselves it is certainly true we can not interest any one else. Opportunity never comes to those who wait, but does come to those who prepare to meet it.

Every man admires a Christian woman; this does not necessarily mean a Christian man. Men admire women for the good things they do, not only to them individually, but the good they do to other people. If a woman criticizes other men and women severely in our presence, she is going to do us likewise in the presence of other men and women.

Selfishness is an undesirable feature in any person, and is a disease with which many of us are afflicted. It is the opinion of the writer, that the disease has developed into an acute stage in this particular lady. If you are selfish with yourself and friends it is evident you are not going to attract very many men. Selfishness in a woman is one thing that a man cannot tolerate, no matter what other attractive features she may have.

Reasons why men never come back. She is a true woman and I feel out of place. She is selfish, grouchy, slouchy, poor, (exception) "mushy," ignorant, ugly, particular, frivolous, opposes my profession or my means of getting an education.

Why men do come back.
She is a true woman.

She thinks for herself, not selfish, neat and attractive; is industrious, has a personality worth while, and is willing to utilize her time and knowledge to the best advantage.

Henry M. Hyde has said of a man and it will hold equally true for a woman: "Be a real man not a shoddy sport or sham aristocrat. Be sincere with yourself, your friends, and your work. With sincerity a few talents and little strength may go far. Without it genius itself may fail."

A professor in the University of Chicago told his pupils he would consider them educated for service when they could say yes to the following questions.

1. Has your education given you sympathy with all good causes, and made you espouse them?
2. Has it made you public spirited?
3. Has it made you a brother to the weak?
4. Have you learned how to make friends and keep them?
5. Do you know what it is to be a friend yourself?
6. Can you look an honest man or pure woman straight in the eye?
7. Do you see anything to love in a little child?
8. Will a lonely dog follow you in the street?
9. Can you be high minded, and happy in the meaner drudgeries of life?
10. Do you think washing dishes, and hoeing corn just as compatible to high thinking as piano playing and golf?
11. Are you good for anything to yourself?
12. Can you be happy alone?
13. Can you look in the sky at night and see beyond the stars?
14. Can your soul proclaim relationship with the Creator?

Girls, spend your weary hours in pondering over those questions. When you can answer yes to each of them, you will not only have a date once in a while, but instead you will have a date for life with a man your equal, regardless of the misfortune of a bad looking face.

A. R. Losh, assistant state engineer left Monday for Jewell county on bridge inspection work for the state.

W. S. Gearhart, state engineer, spoke before the Commercial club of Junction City last Tuesday evening on "Good Roads."

H. B. Walker, asst. state engineer, spent the last week end consulting with the members of the Wichita drainage board on some farm drainage work that will be installed there this summer.

A competition between members of gas engines classes is being held during the week on the "Muncie hot ball" engine and the I. H. C. Mogul "6" to determine the maximum horsepower that can be obtained from engines burning kerosene. The students will try to see which group can run the engines with the most efficiency.

Next Saturday, the class in traction engines will operate three of the engines from the college on the farm of Tom Davies on Hunters Island. The I. H. C. Mogul, the Hart-Parr "Little Devil," and the Case 10-20 will be used in the tests. They will operate with the Emerson three bottom and the Janesville two bottom plow. The plowing will be done on sandy and gumbo soil at a depth of about seven inches. The dynamometer will be used between the engines and the plows and the date will be registered on permanent sheets, from this data will be determined the horsepower efficiency and the fuel efficiency as well as the speed and the draw bar horsepower required to pull the plows. All members of the Saturday class will meet at the traction shed and will go out with the "Little Devil." The other machines will be taken out to the farm on Friday by the members of the Friday classes. The entire experiment will be under the supervision of W. H. Sanders, instructor in Farm Motors.

MANY GIFTS FOR GOVERNOR.

His $5,000 Salary is Small Part of Emoluments.

The $5,000 a year that the state pays the governor as salary and the honor that is attached to being chief executive of the state are by no means all the emoluments and privileges appertaining to the office. In fact, these form but a small part as may be noted by glancing over the list of gifts that Governor Capper received from admirers last week.

Girls in the domestic science department of the Manual Training Normal school at Pittsburg began the week by a demonstration of the value of domestic science courses in the shape of a gift of a 10-pound sponge cake. A Missouri man paid his compliments to the governor by presenting him a combination buggy whip and fishing rod. A crate of breakfast food arrived from Michigan, the happy habitat of the pre-digested dish. A box of salmon from a Kansan now in Washington was the next contribution. A violin made by an inmate of the state hospital at Osawatimic, a cane carved by a prisoner at Lansing and an oil painting by a Neosho county man were other remembrances received by the governor in the course of the week.

So much for the emoluments, now for the honors: A mother at Herington named her baby Arthur Capper in honor of the governor. A Lawrence man discovered a new variety of pumpkin which he calls the Capper pumpkin. In the same mail telling of these honors came word from the Hutchinson reformatory that the ball team of the institution has been named "The Cappers." Being governor has its compensations.

THE FRATERNITY GAMES.

Monday was a Lucky Day for Sig
Alphas and Sigma Nus, each winning.

In two closely contested inter-fraternity baseball games Monday afternoon at five o'clock, the Sigma Alpha Epsilon and Sigma Nu fraternities, respectively defeated the Aztec and Pi Kappa Alpha fraternity nines.

The Sigma Alpha Epsilon played their first game of the season yesterday, the Aztec playing their second, but the Sig Alpha's carried off the honors with a score of 4 to 1. The winners scored two home runs in the second and third innings, the Aztec making their lone point in the fourth. The batteries: Curtis and Guilfoyle, Sigma Alpha Epsilon; Winn and St. John, Aztec.

The Sigma Nu's registered their second victory yesterday when they defeated the Pi Kappa Alphas with a 5 to 0 score. Four of their five points were made in the fourth inning, when an error on first started the Sigma Nus to warming up the cinder path. "Mike" Emerson referred the game. Batteries: Pi Kap's, Smith and Bates; Sigma Nu, Wood and Wells.

held yesterday half of the amount was promised.

Senior Agronomists do Work Similar to That of Government.

The campus is receiving its annual soil survey by the senior agronomy students enrolled in this course, under the direction of R. I. Throckmorton, assistant professor of soils.

Several field trips to different localities will be taken and contour maps of the topography and the different soil areas will be made.

This work is similar to the type of surveys made by the United States bureau of soils.

The course also includes class studies of the different soil series of the United States and particular attention is paid to the soils of Kansas in regard to physical characteristics, such as mode of origin, color, topographical position, location and the crops best adapted to them.

TRACK MEN HOLD INTEREST.

Big Season is Expected in the Eastern Universities.

New York, April 11.—Interest in college track and field athletics continues to increase among the eastern universities and the coming season promises to surpass all previous records both in number of meets and stars who will compete. While there is no unusual incentive for special training, as would have been the case had not the European war caused the abandoning of the Olympic Games, larger squads of candidates are trying for places on the teams than in many years.

Reports from the coaches of a number of the leading eastern institutions all agree that the material both in quality and quantity is considerably above the average standard and that a number of records are likely to be broken during the coming competitive season. While the belated winter has delayed the beginning of outdoor training in some cases, the coaches expect to overcome this handicap and send their charges to the mark in the big meets, prepared for the hardest kind of competition.

That the struggle for points and prizes will be unusually keen this season is shown by the number and class of entries already assured for the principal meets. The University of Pennsylvania relay games, which really open the Easter track season, has attracted a larger entry than ever before, many teams coming from the south and west. More colleges will compete in the intercollegiate championship meet at Cambridge late in May than in any year since the association was formed in 1876. Stanford and California will represent the far west and Michigan the middlewest. Between the Pennsylvania relay meet and the I. C. A. A. championships, dual and triangular meets are scheduled for almost every Saturday.

When the announcement of an engagement is made a long time in advance of the date of the expected wedding you can figure that the girl's folks are afraid he will get away.
And he sometimes does even at that.

RACKET SWINGERS ARE OUT FOR TOURNAMENT

Many Men Have Entered in the All College Series to be Played Next Week—Drawings Announced.

ENROLLMENT CLOSED LAST NIGHT

Thirty-seven men had entered for the open tennis tournament last evening when the lists at Professor Lowman's and Secretary McLean's office were closed and the drawing made for the games which will decide K. S. A. C's champion tennis player.

Owing to the fact that the games must be played in series of four, it was necessary to insert blank numbers before the drawings were made. The men whose names are listed with the "byes" will not play the first drawing but will play the winner of the first drawing with which he is coupled.

The places of play will be arranged for by the committee but it is planned to have the competitors use their own courts so far as possible. No umpire will be required for the preliminary rounds. The time for all matches will be arranged for each day and the contestants are urged to keep in touch with the lists which will be posted in Coach Lowman's office and at the Secretary's window in the Y. M. C.

"All of the matches must be played and the results reported to the Y. M. C. A. within the time limits," says Mr. McLean, "or the whole brackets playing will be forfeited. The matches will be the best two out of three sets for the preliminaries and three out of five for the finals."

The winning dub of the first set numbers one and two, will play the winner of the second set. The winning man of these games will then be declared the winner of the first bracket of four, who will play the winner of the second bracket of four. This winner will then be the champion of the first bracket of eight and so forth until the final games will be played between the champions of each bracket of 16 players, thus choosing the champion of the series.

Nebraska university's invitation for a dual tennis meet early in May with the Aggies has been accepted by the college athletic board. Three matches of singles and one match of doubles will be played.

Registration for the tryouts for the intercollegiate team will be from April 17 to April 22 at the office of the athletic director and at the Y. M. C. A. The tryouts will be held the last week in April. Candidates for the team are being shown the fine points of the game by Coach Bender, Prof. "Mike" Ahearn, Prof. H. H. King and W. W. McLean of the Y. M. C. A., all of whom are experts at the game.

Athletic Director Bender is highly elated over the match and is of the opinion that the Wildcats will give a good account of themselves.

"Tennis is a most popular outdoor college sport," he said, "and a meet like that with Nebraska should draw a large crowd and put tennis on a permanent basis at the college."

TAYLOR WOULD LIFT FARMERS FROM RUTS

Wisconsin Economist Says Farmer Should Be More Than Mere Producer of Crops.

"An agricultural course should be as broad as a liberal education and something more," stated Prof. J. L. Taylor of Wisconsin, at an open meeting of the Gamma Sigma Delta yesterday afternoon.

"The farmer should be more than a mere producer of live stock and farm crops. It is worth while to produce to live, but not to live to produce."

The vital argument for a better agriculture, Prof. Taylor showed to be the possibilities afforded for securing the better things in life, the gaining of time to devote to family and friends. "The debt paying craze," he stated, means the sacrifice of community and family.

"The true measure of a useful life," he continued, "is not the amount of money saved or spent, but the service rendered to the community."

In the "education of the educators," Prof. Taylor sees the true function of the agricultural college. The education of the great masses will eventually be accomplished, he said, through the rural schools which receive the fundamental principles through agricultural graduates.

Slides were shown by the speaker showing the relation of prices of product to the organization of the farm.

CO-EDS TAKE TO WATER

More Than a Hundred are Mastering Natatorial Art in Gymnasium.

More than a hundred co-eds have signed up for swimming lessons this term, and the gymnasium swimming pool is filled to the brim, each afternoon, with kicking, splashing, squirming, squealing, struggling femininity going the crawl stroke, the breast stroke, the scissors stroke, and all the other aquatic acrobatics of which the lore of the swimming instructor is full.

Twenty minutes is allowed to each class, and there is usually a waiting line of girls ready to splash into the water when the previous occupants are called thence by the sound of the instructor's bell. Miss Ethel Loring, assistant instructor in physical training, is in charge of the class.

Mr. L. D. Champs will be a guest at the Sigma Phi Delta fraternity house for the next two weeks.

STAGE BAYONET EXERCISE.

Company C Will put on New Feature of Inspections Here.

Company C of the First Battalion of the cadet corps of the college will put on bayonet exercise (a tactical problem) which has not been previously used by the cadet corps here. It is to take the place of Butts manual in the annual military inspection which comes on April 24 and 25.

The purpose of all military training is success in battle. In order that they may be successful, the training must be thorough and effective.

In actual military encounters the infantry soldier relies mainly on the fire action to disable the enemy, but he must know that personal combat is necessary to obtain success.

The object of instruction in bayonet exercise is to teach the cadet how to make effective use of his rifle and bayonet in personal combats. It will make him quick and proficient in the handling of his rifle, gives him an accurate eye, steady hand and confidence in his bayonet and rifle in defense and in offense.

Miss Perry is Recovering.

Miss Annette Perry, who was operated on for appendicitis Tuesday, is recovering rapidly. She will be able to leave the Park View hospital Tuesday or Wednesday.

Miss Lucille Haleck will spend the week end with her parents at her home in Abilene.

AGGIE DEBATERS WIN HERE, LOSE AT TOPEKA

Unanimous Decision in Favor of the Negative at Manhattan—Washburn Was Too Strong for the Aggies.

IS THE LAST MEN'S DEBATE.

The Aggies own and lost in the two debates staged simultaneously at Topeka and Manhattan last night. A unanimous decision was awarded to the debaters at Manhattan but the decision at Topeka was unfavorable. The score at Topeka is not yet known.

The debate was the last of the season in which the men of the college will participate. It was in the second series of the Pentangular debate, which was regarded by the debating fans as the greatest event of the season, because of the fact that all the institutions represented were Kansas institutions. Baker University, Ottawa University, the College of Emporia, Washburn College, and K. S. A. C., are the schools which comprise the league.

Both the debates of the first series were lost by the Aggies. The first series was held three weeks ago.

The men taking part in the debate last night against the College of Emporia, at Manhattan, were, J. V. Quigley, of Blaine, captain, Jay L. Lush, of Altamont, and W. A. Gillespie, of Fowler. Lush substituted in the last few days, for another member of the squad. He is a seasoned and dependable debater and his work last night was well up to standard.

The affirmative team, which debated with Washburn college team at Topeka, was composed of, J. B. Sweet, of Manhattan, captain, M. W. Converse of Eskridge, and J. H. Flora of Manhattan.

The judges were Professor S. T. Walker, of Kansas University, Judge A. W. Dana, of Topeka, and Dean H. P. Stephens of University of Kansas City, at Kansas City, Kansas.

The Webster and Eurodelphian literary societies staged a stunt before the debate, and following the announcement of the decision, the college forum gave a reception for the two teams, in the Athenian hall.

The result of all the debates in the second series have not been received and the placing of the five institutions in the league has not yet been announced.

Dr. J. R. MacArthur, debating coach, accompanied the affirmative team to Topeka, and Professor J. G. Emerson, of the public speaking department coached the negative team at Manhattan.

WILL ASSIST IN SURVEY.

College to Cooperate With State and Federal Hygiene Departments.

Under the joint direction of the college authorities, the hygiene department of the state board of health, and the federal government, a complete social survey of the rural life of Washington county is to be undertaken in the near future. Students of the college will assist in the collection of the data on the district.

The plan was decided upon this week at a meeting of Mrs. Mary Pierce Van Zile, dean of the division of home economics, Dr. Lydia DeVilliers, of the state hygiene department, and Dr. Grace Melgs, of the federal department.

Y. M. C. A. MORE THAN PAYS FOR EXPENSES

During Fiscal Year Just Closed Expenses Were Over Six Thousand—and Faculty Helps Much.

Six thousand fifteen dollars and sixty cents represents the total expenditures of the Y. M. C. A. for the fiscal year closing April 1. The past year the organization has been exceptionally well supported by the faculty and students, there being a balance of $72.09 on hand above that needed for the paying of bills.

The faculty members have been especially active in regard to Y. M. C. A. work this year and their help has meant much to the organization. Plans for the financing of the organization for the coming year have resulted in the obtaining of $572.50 from 135 faculty men solicited. This means that 89 per cent of the faculty men have subscribed an average of almost five dollars each. Ten teams composed of two faculty men each secured pledges of almost $200.00.

IS RUN BY A MOTOR.

Sewing Machine in Domestic Art Department Uses Electric Power.

That simple and unpretentious things are sometimes of great value is demonstrated by a simple electric device owned by the domestic art department. It is a small sewing machine motor put out by the Western Electric company. It is in two parts and weights five pounds. Its cost is $14.

The small motor is placed on the sewing machine near the balance wheel and is operated by a 220 volt current. The machine is run smoothly and evenly and can be started and stopped easily and readily. Since the motor is not attached to the machine it can be put away when not in use, thus keeping it free from dust and out of the way.

If the sewing machine is kept in good condition it does not work the motor so hard. Also a machine run by a motor lasts longer than one run by the less even and regular foot power.

DEPENDS ON FERTILITY.

Soil Has Much to Do With Number of Students at Educational Institution.

"The number of students, a county sends to colleges and universities, is determined by the fertility of its soil," says L. E. Call, professor of agronomy, "providing we except those counties in which the institutions are located."

Proof of this statement may be obtained by the comparison of two maps of Kansas, one showing the distribution of college students, and the other the distribution of the most fertile soils. Such maps would be practically identical.

We find the poorest soils in the southeastern portion of the state, from where we receive few students. Rainfall, however, limits the number of students from the extreme western counties.

Soil fertility also determines the distribution of the colleges and universities of the Middle West. We find the largest institutions in the northern and central states, while those in the south are small and not numerous.

MEETING OF JOURNALISM SEMINAR MONDAY MORNING

Will be the First of the Kind Ever Held at the College—Popular Questions Discussed.

With the meeting of all of the students of journalism at 11 o'clock Monday morning the first seminar ever held by the department of journalism will take place.

At a meeting of one of the journalism classes some time ago the last few minutes of the meeting was thrown open to the discussion of different subjects relative to journalism and in which the students were especially interested. The questions brought up at this meeting seemed to prove so profitable to the members of the class that several of them suggested that such meetings be held at regular intervals and when ever possible have some well known newspaper or magazine man to meet with them.

Professor Crawford was very enthusiastic about the plans and at once began doing all in his power to make the affair a success.

DAIRYING IS PROFITABLE.

One Student Supports Self and Wife With Income From Three Cows.

Mark L. Borror, student in agriculture, supports himself and wife by keeping dairy cows. He arrived in Manhattan with $249 in cash with which he bought two cows. Late in December he purchased a third. The three now give enough milk to net him an income of $65 per month.

Besides earning his way he has made excellent grades in his school work. A total of three E's are to his credit for the fall term besides the honor of taking first place in the dairy judging contest in the winter term. He is carrying 18 hours of work this term and contemplates getting along as well as usual.

Although enrolled in the course of agriculture he is specializing in dairying. Having had previous work on a dairy farm he came here with a clear idea of what he intended to do.

Mr. Borror graduated from Montgomery county high school at Independence work from here last winter and was so pleased with the work that he came here to live, that he might be in closer touch with the college.

SEASON WILL START IN EARNEST MONDAY

Wildcats to Meet Baker U. Then—Not Much Dope Available—Baker Rumored to Have Hard Hitting Team.

BENDER EXPECTS A HARD GAME.

A hard game is expected on College field at 4 o'clock Monday afternoon when Baker university meets the Aggies in the second game of the season.

"I expect a hard game," said Athletic Director Bender last evening, "but I am sure the Wildcats will give a good account of themselves. It is hard to say who will start the twirling, but as many men as possible will be used."

The game with Baker was definitely announced Thursday morning, too late a date to obtain authoritative dope from the Baker squad. It is rumored, however, that Baker has a hard hitting team and a battery that is not unacquainted with the science of fanning out the unwary ones.

The recent changes give the Aggies several dates with the Baker university during this year. The Aggies will meet Baker university in baseball April 17, track meet April 29, and football September 30.

The baseball season will start in earnest for the Aggies with the Baker game. The Chinese university will play a week from today and then the Aggie squad will have but one day rest until the two games with Missouri on the following Monday and Tuesday.

NO UNIFORM GRADING STANDARD

Tests in Faculty Show That There are Variations in Prof's Method of Making out Grades.

"There is no fixed standard for grading in the college," said J. E. Kammeyer, professor of economics, speaking of the experiments carried on in college by one of the professors upon grading.

The experiments carried on were of different character. In one case five duplicates of a certain paper were made and these were distributed among a set of test papers of one of the professors without his knowledge. After he had graded the papers these five duplicates were separated and no two had the same grade. Between the highest and the lowest grade was a variation of 25 per cent.

At another time duplicate papers were given to different professors to grade and there was a still greater variation in this case. As a result of many trials it was found that the way in which a question was asked had much to do with the accuracy with which it was answered. Short direct questions give the best results.

One system which was tried out was to let the professor grade the papers first and keep a record of the grades without placing them on the papers. The papers were then returned to the students and they were allowed to grade the papers themselves, and the grades of the students and professor were compared. In the majority if cases the difference was not over 10 per cent and in a few cases they agreed exactly.

PURPLE MASQUE TO JUNCTION.

Dramatic Club Will Stage "The Fortune Hunter" in That City.

The Purple Masque dramatic club has accepted an invitation to produce "The Fortune Hunter" in Junction City some time next week, the exact date to be decided later.

This offer for the production of the comedy drama at Junction City was only one of the many received by the organization but owing to the heavy assignments which some of the members of the cast are carrying this term it is not probable that the performance will be staged but once besides the time at Junction City.

Jess Marshall of the local opera house of that name has made the management of the production an attractive offer and if every thing goes well in the staging next week no doubt the people of Manhattan will again be given a chance to see the well rendered show.

Among the donations to the poultry department of the college this year, have been five incubators. These give an additional hatching capacity of 1150 chicks. This donation was made by the Stork Incubator company of Manhattan.

A FAMILIAR TYPE.

Often when you are having an interesting talk with a friend, somebody butts you out of the way and begins to talk. Your first impulse is to return the bump, but when you see who it is the desire vanishes. For the "loud one," strange to say, is sacred, as certain dangerous animals are sacred to savage tribes. He seems to be without the pale of men; so you resignedly listen.

This species of human kind is ignorant, woefully, darkly ignorant. And the pity of it is that as he advances in age his ignorance grows more profound. The prize jewel in this diadem though is arrogance. When he is made to realize, with a spike and hammer, that he is not wanted, arrogance comes to his rescue. Off he saunters with his head high, and in a few days a rumor floats around to you of your snobbishness.

Some time, while listening to the "loud one," count the number of times he uses the pronoun "I." It begins every sentence; the experiences and doings of others are subordinated to his own. He tries to give the impression that he is the north and south poles, the axis and the earth itself. You merely exist by his sufferance, and his opinions are laws to be universally obeyed. His gait is a swagger, taking in the greater part of the walk. The railroad that passes through his town, buys up all his discarded neckties to be used as headlights.

People wonder at him, but emphatically do not, as he thinks, admire him. When the "loud one" dies, he casts a pitying glance of farewell upon the world with the conviction that it has profited by his stay and is suffering an incalculable loss by his departure. Some of his kindred and near kindred call him a mixer and a good sport, but the others who have had the misfortune to encounter him, label him "loud" and try to forget him.—The Dial.

SERVICE THE TEST.

A question has arisen in the city of Manhattan which more than usually affects the students of the college, and in which they are entitled to take an interest and, if possible, an active part.

According to the jitney operators, the passage last Tuesday of a regulatory ordinance spells ruin for them, and they are now circulating petitions for the putting of the matter in the hands of the citizens, through the initiative and referendum law. The street car company, in a counter petition and statement, say that the ordinance does not mean the death of the jitneys, but life for both parties. The street car company presents the statement of a local dealer in automobiles, who says that he is ready at any minute to establish a jitney service under the provisions of the ordinance, if the present operators go out of business. The dealer does not state that he will do so, nor does he state why he did not do so when his field of operations would not have been hampered by the ordinance, or by the competition of the jitneys, which are of comparatively recent origin. Whatever be his intentions, the notion of the street car company that they have proven themselves innocent of attempting to absolutely eliminate the jitney from the field of transportation, seems to be erroneous, unless they can produce a more convincing evidence than the statement.

The students have no quarrel with the street car company. It has served after a fashion a good purpose. But the question of which gives the better service, which is the more convenient, on which can the greater reliance be placed is paramount. Service is the test of the right to exist, in corporations and in men. Economics nows no sentiment, and that institution or that man who does not "deliver the goods," whatever his excuse, forfeits his right to consideration. The support of the student body is due to that party in the present controversy, giving the better results. Which is it?

A NEEDED ADJUSTMENT.

Over the telephone a worried voice addressed the proprietor of a small hardware store.

"Say," the speaker began, "I come in your place today and bought one of them dollar alarm clocks; and you set her to go off at five o'clock in the mornin'. D'ye remember?"

"Yes," said the hardware man, "I remember."

"Well," went on the other, "I've just found out that I don't have to get up at five o'clock in the mornin'."

"Glad to hear it," said the hardware man, "but what do you want to do about it?"

"I want you," said the customer, "to tell me how to unlarm this clock."—Arizona Wildcat.

WHO WOULDN'T FALL FOR IT?

Students at State Manual Training Normal Quit for $100 Per.

According to reports from Pittsburg, Kansas, the lure of a salary of $100 a month is proving too strong for many of the students of the State Manual Training Normal school.

Many of the students, it is said have been offered teaching positions at a salary of $100 per month or better, and are quitting school in order to accept. The habit has been particularly noticeable among those students who are working their way through school, and who have trouble in making both ends meet at the task.

"THE MARBLE HEART."

OPEN COLUMN.

To the Open Column:

"Think before you act" is a subject worthy of thought. Members of the freshmen class did not think on Thursday morning. In fact they acted real thoughtlessly as some say benefits the first year people.

A member of the sophomore class came in to pay the freshmen members a visit and incidentally advised the masculine portion that it might be to their advantage to wear the customary little cap which is a distinguishing mark of the freshman boy. He was nice about it and went into the history of this head-gear.

Various members of the abused class aired their views regarding this custom. Some of them went so far as to say that they would do as they pleased regardless of the threats of the esteemed upperclassmen. All these remarks were made in the presence of a visiting representative. He was finally told emphatically that his services were dispensed with.

If some of the students carry out all the plans one of the freshmen heard them discuss later in the day the freshmen boys should have a lively time dodging paddles.

I wonder what the outcome will be?—A Freshman Girl.

To the Open Column:

"Why" wrote to this column some time ago and wanted to know why she and some of her friends never had more than one date with the same fellow. You may be good looking, have some wit and some good sense besides, but some time you will learn that there is something more than to make one popular. Have you ever studied your friends and noted that characteristic called personality? Perhaps you are just as pretty as some of the most popular girls you know of. Perhaps you have just as keen wit. And again you may have just as much "grey matter" but, have you that something else which distinguishes you from all other people—that personality of which you yourself are the sole possessor? Certainly you have not. If you did you would not be asking for dates through a newspaper. Did you ever laugh at the person who puts his name in the matrimonial columns? Analyze your own case.—Just a Fellow.

"FOR THE DEFENSE."

Jesse L. Lasky presents Fannie Ward as a little French girl in a detective story of engrossing interest. Released on the Paramount Program, at the Wareham theatre, Tuesday, April 18.

Demonstration Orchard.

A sort of demonstration orchard has been developed at the college poultry farm by the department of horticulture. A year ago apple, plum, cherry, and peach trees were set out by students in horticulture, who were taking allied courses in orcharding. This year they are using these trees for practice in the pruning. Incidentally the poultry department is making use of the trees to provide shade for the poultry in the various yards.

At Last we Find a Professor Confessing to Something—How Much He Would Rather Play Golf, go Fishing or Attend the Ball Game, but—Wife Says Nay.

A man is in a desperate condition, especially a prof when he begins to make confessions. Women will make confessions about as fast as a toad can pick up flies, but that is another story.

When a man begins to make confessions he is down and out and his remembrances are those of a thug, revolutionist, politician, or other degraded character.

My remembrances are not far gone, but they were sufficient to bring forth a confession. I was sitting in the porch swing yesterday just after lunch and I felt that the life of a prof was more or less manatous, and that one must have some recreation. As I sat there dreaming of the golf links over on Bluemont, and the ball game to be played that afternoon, and also of the good fishing at the dam, my wife came to me and said that she had decided to make a garden, and that today was the proper time.

Let em stop a moment to give you regular daters, that you should never get married until the comforts of the world are below par with the inconvenience of having a wife.

Think of a man attempting to make a garden with golf balls flying before his eyes and rah, rah, rah, or the ripple of water sounding in his ears. Never-the-less that is what I attempted to do, just to please my betters half and make a good showing with my affinity.

I went to the basement and got the spade, rake, and hoe, and put on the look of a son of toil. I hadn't done this garden making stunt since I was back on the farm, before I went to college, so I decided to start in easy; like a fish floating with the current.

I spat on my hands and mopped my face for about five hours, my wife having decided to have a late dinner

She would appear at the kitchen door or a window every fifteen minutes and direct the work, that being a characteristic of the species. On each occasion it was necessary for me to smile and thank heaven that I was a man, and therefore could control my temper.

When the sun was dropping over the horizon and I was about ready to drop, I decided the work was completed. It seemed to me that I had spaded and raked a whole township but my wife said, we could finish the flower beds some later time, so I have something to look forward to.

The next day I felt just like Jonah must have felt after he got out of that whale.

NEW BROODERS ARE BEST.

Colony Type Proves much More Successful Than the Old Style.

"This system of brooding is way ahead of any small unit system," said N. L. Harris, superintendent of the college poultry farm, in speaking of three new colony house brooders, two of which have been in use this spring and the other just received as a donation from the Hall Incubator company of Eastwood, New York.

The chick capacity of these brooders is rated at 1500 each. "This capacity will not always hold true," explained Mr. Harris. "It depends upon the kind of chicks and the size of house is used for the brooding." These brooders are heated by means of a small coal stove, which is placed in the center of and under a large galvanized hood.

The two brooders that have been in use are of the latest design of the Prairie State Incubator company, of Homer City, Penn. These brooders are some of the latest equipment of the poultry department.

D. S. GIRLS WEAR PEDOMETERS.

Will Determine Number of Unnecessary Steps Taken in Kitchen.

Pedometers worn by the senior girls in the domestic science department of the college is the latest plan of the department to determine how many unnecessary steps the girls take in the kitchen while preparing meals, it was announced today. The girls who serve in the dining room also will wear pedometers, it was stated.

It has been said often that women take too many unnecessary steps in doing their household duties and the purpose of the experiment is to train girls to save as many steps as possible.

WAS A MIGHTY BATTLE.

Ten Round Bout Between Two Students Proves Real Exciting.

What a bull fight does for the average Mexican citizen, two upperclassmen of the college did for a group of admiring student on-lookers last Saturday afternoon when they put on a ten-round boxing bout.

For the past three months each of the contestants has been boasting of what he could do for the other fellow if he only had the opportunity and wasn't afraid of hurting him. All in a perfectly congenial and friendly way, of course. Finally, these revered scholastic gentlemen wearied of verbal superiority, and decided upon a ten-round bout with the gloves. In order to put their claims for superiority upon a more substantial basis. Then followed a number of long drawn out delays which were finally terminated by a definite date being set and penalties prescribed for non-appearance. And then it happened. The bout was fast and full of blunders. One of the most laughable features of the occasion occurred when the more lithe contestant accidentally allowed his right boxing glove to rest firmly in the optic of his short, stubby friend.

The tenth round finished as a draw, but the general impression gained from observing the comparative damages done to the respective contestants indicated that the short, stubby gentleman suffered a slight disadvantage, at least from the physical standpoint.

Now here is the "dope."

Of Course You Will not Wish to Read This "Dope" Because—Well—Because That Is All It Is—Just a Bunch of "Dope."

What is "dope?" Well, "dope" is what this story is to be made of. "Dope" is the general utility word of the English language. This favorite word automatically changes its meaning according to the profession or special interest of the person using it.

"Dope" to the newspaper man is copy for his paper. It makes no difference whether the story is about a fancy dress ball or the death of a friends it is "dope."

We all like to have the "dope" on the baseball team and some of the fair sex like to have "dope" on their faces. Before going to the game the man gets all the "dope" possible on the event and before going to the dance the girls get all the "dope" possible on their cheeks. Another difference enters in here besides the fact that the men get the "dope" in their heads while the ladies get the "dope" on their heads. The man is willing for every one to know that he wants to get all the "dope" he can while the member of the fair sex will confide the fact only to her mirror.

Druggists, who are not nice, law abiding druggists, sell "dope" to people. The people who buy this "dope" want it because it helps them dream and see things which are not. It is not the same kind of "dope" that girls use on their faces but it has the same effect that the "face dope" is supposed to have—it fools people.

Some things are right; they are correct; they are just what the people want. In fact they are "just the dope."

Much of the "dope" we hear about is not paid for. It costs nothing to get it although it may cost something if you give out the wrong kind of "dope." Maybe it is because he has a perfect right to use "dope" and uses it in the proper way that the farmer uses so much "dope." You see this "dope" down on the farm is commercially known as axle grease.

STUDENTS TO HAVE LOAN FUND.

Dr. H. J. Waters Will Give Revenues From His Text Book as Nucleus.

In the future students who wish to attend the Kansas Agricultural College but cannot do so on account of lack of funds will be able to receive aid from a loan fund, to be available in a short time, according to an announcement made by Dr. H. J. Waters.

The nucleus for the loan fund will come from the royalties on President Waters' new text book, "Essentials of Agriculture." Dr. Waters has arranged with the state text book commission for the distribution of the author's royalties which he ordinarily would receive. The revenues for the fund from this source will amount to about $450 a year, it is said.

It is expected that the alumni association of the college also will support the loan fund. This matter was brought up at the recent meeting of the association in Kansas City and was received enthusiastically.

It is announced that Governor Arthur Capper has made a subscription of $100 to the fund.

A STATEMENT.

Having been asked to give in full the evidence secured against J. E. Dewey and L. C. Shafer, Aggieville grocermen, and Ralph Keller, clerk in J. F. Harrison's store in Aggieville, and the method of securing such evidence, I present to the public the following, which is identical in fact with that evidence written out and placed in the county attorney's safe several days before the complaints were sworn out against the three above mentioned men. This statement may be verified by applying at the County Attorney's office.

On my way to literary society about seven o'clock on Saturday evening, March 18, 1916, I, having been previously told by another student that cigarette papers could be gotten at Dewey's grocery store, stopped in at the store, there being only J. E. Dewey and another person, a customer, I presumed, in the store I approached Mr. Dewey, who was in his cashier booth, and when I was asked what I wanted I said, "I want a package of Bull Durham smoking tobacco." Then I asked Mr. Dewey, who was by that time coming out of the cashier's booth and was not closer than two and a half feet to me, if he had any "makin's," and he said, "I don't know. I'll see. Mr. Dewey then said, 'Why, Godfrey, I didn't know you smoked cigarette.' I replied, 'A man doesn't always know all about another man.' By that time he was across the store and behind the counter, and upon opening a carton of smoking tobacco at both ends and not finding any papers, he pushed a little curtain aside and reached in under the shelf and brought out four Bull Durham and six Tuxedo books of cigarette papers and handed them to me. He also handed me the five cent package of smoking tobacco, and I handed him a dime and turned to leave the store when Mr. Dewey said, 'Hold on you have some change coming. I don't sell cigarette papers, not me.' He then handed me back a nickel.

On Saturday, March 25, 1916, I went into J. E. Dewey's grocery store at about 2:40 in the afternoon. I was followed a minute later by my witness. I went to the meat counter in the rear of the store and asked for some meat scraps which I had been in the habit of buying from the Dewey firm for several months. I was waited on first by Mr. Moore, and finally Mr. Dewey finished getting the scraps. I said to Mr. Dewey, who was not closer than two feet to me, "I want a package of Bull Durham tobacco; the boys have robbed me of my papers, and I would like to get some more." Mr. Dewey said, "All right," and after handing me the scraps of meat, he went behind the counter where he keeps his tobacco and reached under the counter and brought out four books of Bull Durham and two books of Tuxedo cigarette papers, laid them on the end of the counter in front of me and walked away. Mr. Dewey did this in the presence of my witness.

On Monday morning, March 20, 1916, I went into L. C. Shafer's grocery store in Aggieville and when asked what I wanted, by a man who I supposed to be a clerk since I did not learn to know this man until after I had gotten the evidence, I said, "Give me a package of Bull Durham smoking tobacco." I handed him the money and asked if he had any "makin's." He, who I afterwards found to be L. C. Shafer, said, "No, we turned them all Saturday evening." Having heard all kinds of excuses I took it as a "put off," and I asked him if he could save me some, whereupon he seemed to consent by shaking his head and saying, yes, when I suggested calling around later in the week for them.

On Saturday, March 25, 1916, I stepped into L. C. Shafer's grocery store, followed a minute later, by my witness. I was approached by the same man as before. I told him I wanted a package of Bull Durham tobacco, and when he handed it to me I gave him a dollar bill and asked him if he had any "makin's." He said, "No, I have not had a chance to buy any." I said, "Did you save me any?" He said, "Yes." It is possible that he misunderstood me although he was within three feet of me.

L. C. Shafer took my money to the cashier's booth and then he disappeared from me and when I saw him next he was coming from the back of the store. When he came close I saw a book of Stag cigarette papers in his left hand. These he handed me with my change in the presence of my witness.

On Monday morning, March 20, 1916, I stepped into J. F. Harrison's cafe in Aggieville, and as I went up to the counter I was approached by a man who I had no recollection of ever having seen before. I told him I wanted some Bull Durham smoking tobacco, and as there was none in the show case I took some Velvet tobacco. I handed him a coin and asked him if he had any "makin's," and he who I afterwards learned to be Ralph Keller, said, "No, but if you will wait a minute I can get you some." He then went to the cash register, deposited the coin, and then went out of the door to the street where he went east. I supposed to the grocery store, which he said he did, and that he got the papers out of a carton of tobacco which had just come in. When he returned he had several packages of tobacco. He came up to me, reached his hand into his inside coat pocket and pulled out a package of Tuxedo cigarette papers which he handed to me.

On Monday, March 27, 1916, about 10:40 in the morning, I went into J. F. Harrison's cafe, preceded a minute or so by my witness. I was approached by a lady waiter from whom I excused myself, and stepping aside I beckoned to the man who had waited on me before and who was at this time standing behind the soda fountain counter, and who I afterwards learned to be Ralph Keller. He came to me and I bought a package of smoking tobacco, and as I handed him the money I asked him if he had any "makin's." He reached his hand into his pocket and pulled out a book of Stag cigarette papers and handed it to me while standing beside the tobacco case in J. F. Harrison's cafe in the presence of my witness.

POULTRY DEPT. HAS 2400 CHICKS

Some of Them were Hatched at the Plant, Others Were Not.

"We the expecting 600 chicks to come off with the next hatch, some time next week" said N. L. Harris, manager of the poultry farm, when asked about the number of spring chicks at the farm.

As there are at present 1800 spring chicks at the plant the addition will mean that visitors will be able to see 300 dozen little chickens ranging in size from a day or two old weighing two or three ounces, to those six and eight weeks old weighing one and one-half to two pounds each.

Not all of these 2400 chicks were hatched at the plant. So many of the incubators are needed for the use of the classes in incubation and brooding, and are in the hands of amateurs in nearly every instance, they cannot be expected to bring off a high percentage of chicks with their first efforts. For this reason it is necessary to purchase baby chicks from firms or private individuals who make a business of hatching for others. Nearly 600 of the 2400 chicks were obtained in this way.

The college is unable to supply the demand for eggs, spring "frys," and mature hens or cockerels, and even with the addition of the new chicks they will be unable to meet the demand.

APPETITE LOST TO TENNIS.

Meals Forgotten When Girl Wants to Play Tennis.

"Don't you know it's time for dinner?" asked a freshman as he stepped into the room of a junior Wednesday afternoon. The person addressed was rocking easily in an arm chair staring into a book.

"You don't mean it," returned the other. "I've been wanting to get at something to eat for the last hour. Besides I've arranged to play tennis after lunch."

"That reminds me," began the freshman. "I just came by the court and noticed that nobody was playing, though I did see a girl standing there holding a racket who seemed to be waiting for someone."

The freshman had said quite enough before he had finished his remarks the junior was slipping on his tennis shoes. "There goes the bell," exclaimed the freshman. "Let's go." "Not this evening," returned the other. "I'm not hungry." "Now come on," the other protested. "You just said you were." "Maybe I was yesterday, I would rather play tennis than eat anyway." Seizing a tennis racket the junior hurried from the room.

"What a fool," murmured the freshman. "These juniors don't know what they want. I would not miss a meal to play tennis with a king."

No doubt that is true, but how many meals would the freshman miss to play tennis with a "Miss" whom he thought was a "queen."

THREE HUNDRED DEGREES TO BE AWARDED IN JUNE

As not all the Applicants are yet in the Exact List the Entire List is not Completed—Majority for Bachelor of Science.

APPLICANTS—NOT GRADUATES.

Nearly 300 degrees will be awarded at the Commencement exercises next June, according to the number of applicants for degrees which have reached the office of Miss Jessie McDowell Machir, the college registrar.

Not all the applicants are in yet, either, from all the indications. Most of them are for the bachelor's degree, but there are also a very considerable number of persons aspiring to higher professional degrees. The latter applicants are now in the hands of President Waters.

Not all the applicants for degrees will be successful, and it is not known at present how many there will be in the graduating class. The number of applicants is an index, not a duplication, of the number of diplomas to be given out.

The list of names of the persons who have turned in applications is now being prepared in the office of Miss Machir's office, and will be ready in a few days. The grades and work of the applicants are being checked over before the applications come up for consideration. The list will shortly be ready for publication, but Miss Machir is insistent on the fact that it is a list of applicants not graduates.

IS A THRILLER.

A Motion Picture With a $50,000.00 Climax.

In this day and age it is no uncommon thing to hear of high salaried actors or actresses in the motion picture companies, also great sums spent on productions but the Selig Company is unique, to say the least, when they advertise a Photoplay with "a $50,000 Climax."

The climax referred to is one in "Thou Shalt Not Covet," a Selig Red Seal Play which will be at the Marshall theatre on Thursday of this week, matinee and night, and is the scene depicted a gigantic ocean liner striking a derelict in the dark and sinking with a thousand or more men, women and children struggling in the water. The photoplay also shows bona fide scenes in Egypt and Darkest Africa, a fight to death between a Royal Bengal Tiger and a hyena, Kathryn Williams battling with a leopard and a few more little things like that.

REASONS OF THE CASE.

Screen About Tree Is Part of Experiment made by Entomology Dept.

Many people wonder why there is a screen about the elm tree on the campus south of the branching of the walks. It was placed there by the entomology department to determine the life cycle of the "Elm Tree Borer."

The department is now arranging to place similar cages around some elm trees in the park. The insects are collected every day and records kept of their emergence. At the present time entomologists are in doubt as to whether it takes three or more years for the borer to complete its life cycle.

OMICRON NU PLEDGES TWELVE NEW MEMBERS

Women's Honorary Will Take Twelve Girls From Junior and Senior Classes—National Convention.

Omicron Nu, honorary sorority of junior and senior girls in the division of home economics, have pledged the following girls: Stella Blain, Myrtle Bauern, Beula McNall, Hazel Brown, Stella Gould, Myrtle Beeman, Elizabeth Quinlan Mary Weble, Hazel Beeson, Vera McCoy, Verda Harris and Mae Sweet.

This honorary sorority is one of the most exclusive organizations on the hill. No one is pledged before the spring term of her junior year and most have had no failures, conditions or other deficiency besides making a grade of 90 or higher in at least one third of their work while in college.

The national convention of Omicron Nu will be held at Ames next week. Mrs. Mary Pierce Van Zile and Miss Josephine Allis will attend as delegates from this chapter.

PREPARE FOR INSPECTION.

College Band Will Keep up High Standard of Past.

The band is working hard to get in shape for inspection. B. H. Oment, director of the band, is taking personal charge of the drilling. The organization is larger this year than ever before, and it is rather a difficult task to drill so many men.

In the past the band has done good work. They have never fallen short on inspection, and are determined to keep up this year the good record made in the past.

Inspection comes earlier in the term this year than usual, for this reason some good faithful work will be needed while it lasts. All concerned in the military department are anxious that this college should maintain its present standard, as having one of the best military departments in any of the colleges of this country.

DR. AGAR IN CHAPEL.

Noted Speaker and Traveler Will Address Assembly Thursday.

Doctor Frederic A. Agar of New York will address the chapel assembly in the auditorium Thursday at nine o'clock.

Doctor Agar is one of the leading divines of the Baptist church and has spent much time in travel and study. It is said that he is one of the most eloquent speakers and brightest men of the day.

The subject of his address Thursday morning will be: "The Sunny Side of Darkest Africa."

JOURNALISM STUDENTS HAD MOST SUCCESSFUL SEMINAR

Committee to Make Plans for Subsequent Meetings was Appointed—Meetings Open to All Students.

The first journalism seminar ever held in the college, met Monday, fourth hour, in K 55, with ten persons in attendance.

It was decided to make the seminar a practical get-together affair, and a committee consisting of B. K. Bagdigian, Floyd Hawkins, and Wellington Brink was appointed to draw up a program and assign a series of papers to be read at subsequent meetings. It is planned that one or two of these papers be read at each meeting and that they be thrown open for discussion by the rest of the seminar.

It is urged that all students interested send possible subjects for discussion or for papers to the committee in charge. Some already suggested are: Characteristics of Agricultural Papers, College Newspapers, Characteristics of Foreign Journalism, Newspaper Humor, Newspaper Verse, Newspaper Paragraphing, Literary and Dramatic Criticism, Elective courses valuable in connection with Journalism.

Everyone interested, whether enrolled in a journalism course or not, is cordially invited to be present at the seminar next Monday.

TEACHERS' INSTITUTE JUNE 5-30.

Two Instructors From the College Will Teach at Session.

The annual Riley County Teachers' Institute will be held in Manhattan from June 5 to June 30, according to an announcement by Miss Reppie Carey, county superintendent of schools.

Professor J. E. Edgerton will conduct the institute. J. H. Sawtell, principal of the Manhattan schools, A. R. Felba, assistant instructor in mathematics at the college, and Miss Marie Bardwell of the city schools, will be the institute instructors. Examinations for teachers' certificates will be given at the close of the institute, Friday, June 30 and on July 1.

In the past, many of the students of the college who plan to take up teaching have attended these institutes, and taken the teachers' examinations, and it is expected that a large part of the attendance this year will be made up of students.

PRACTICE "SAFETY FIRST."

Shops of the College Have Guards on All Machines Students Use.

"Safety First" is the slogan adopted by the department of shop practice of the college. Guards have been placed on all dangerous pieces of machinery so as to reduce the liability of accidents to the minimum. The most recent protective device of this kind to be installed is a guard over the circle saw in the woodworking room. With this device it is practically impossible for the operator to come in contact with the revolving saw.

STUDENTS MAY EASILY SECURE COMMISSIONS

Lieutenant Mathews has Received Instructions to Recommend any Likely Cadets From This Institution for Regular Army.

MAY GET IN MARINE CORPS.

Aggie students interested in military work have excellent chances to secure commissions in the United States army, upon graduation, according to Lieutenant L. O. Mathews, commandant of the college cadets.

Lieutenant Mathews has received instructions to watch for cadet officers who might be available for service in the regular army, and eligible for commissions on graduation. The instructions have come from the war department, and a letter from the commandant of the marine corps has indicated a similar course.

Lieutenant Mathews is sure that the increase in the regular army and the probability of an increase in the marine corps, will cause a great demand for officers in both organizations. "More officers, particularly second lieutenants than can be supplied from West Point and from the ranks will be needed. The civil life is the next source of supply for a few years, and the schools with military departments where a regular officer is stationed have the best chance of landing their cadets," says the commandant.

At the national convention of the Scabbard and Blade, national military fraternity, a movement was started to have the cadet officers of the different military departments, file their names with the war department, as available for volunteer officers in case of war. The movement has met with considerable success, 1921 officers having already given their names to the department.

"I do not know how many officers I could recommend at present," says Lieutenant Mathews. The fact that no record of the physical fitness of the cadets has been kept by the department here, would be a drawback. "If I recommend past officers, who have their records here, probably nine-tenths of them would be turned down by an examining physician," said Lieutenant Mathews. This year, however, an attempt is being made to include the data on the physical examinations, included in the records of the cadet officers.

Student officers recommended to the regular service would be exempted from all or part of the examinations which are given to other civilians who apply for commissions. They would, however, be required to pass the physical examination.

WEEK AS A LAMB NO JOKE.

Sheep in Shearing Pens are as Quiet as Reputations Asserts.

"He was led as sheep to the slaughter and as a lamb before his shearer is dumb so he opened not his mouth."

And such is true of the sheep as they go before the class in live stock management almost every afternoon. The instruction given the class is of the most practical kind. At the opening of each class period Assistant Patterson shears one sheep as an example to those who are altogether unfamiliar with the art and then turns the work over to the students for the rest of the period. The shearing is not done with scissors in the good old fashioned way but with a new Stewart sheep shearing machine.

The first efforts of a student are usually crude. He handles the sheep with such surprising tenderness and consideration that little progress is made. After a little experience the shearer begins to pay less attention to the safety of the animal entrusted to his care and more attention to getting the wool off so the work proceeds with more rapidity. As a rule the students shear the animals at the rate of one about every half hour.

Instruction is also given in the care of the wool after it is shorn. It is essential that the fleece be wrapped in the proper manner, tied with the right kind of a cord, and shipped in the right kind of a sack if it is to command the highest market price. All of these facts are brought out in the class work. The boys taking the course in live stock management are pleased with the work being offered and say that it gives promise of being one of the most practical courses that they have had.

SPECIAL ASSEMBLY IN INTEREST OF CHINESE

Members of Each Class Dr. H. E. House and President Waters Make Short Talks in Regard to Canton Christian College.

WOULD SEND REPRESENTATIVES.

Five hundred students and faculty members attended the special chapel assembly which was held in the interest of Canton Christian College yesterday morning. Short talks were made by representatives from each class outlining what action the different divisions hoped to take in regard to the college in China.

Dr. H. E. House special representative of Canton Christian College made a short address setting forth what the object of the college was and what the sending of a representative from this school would mean.

Dr. H. J. Waters, president of the college, made a brief address to the assembly. "I am very much pleased to see the interest manifested by your presence here in the project which we are going to launch definitely this morning," said Dr. Waters.

"We should give our time and money and take interest in such a project as this in proportion to our blessing and I know of no people or any people as a whole which has greater blessings than Kansas."

"Were you in China at the Canton Christian college as I was you would be impressed with the Chinese honesty and the strength of their industry and mentality. It is a great nation and it needs to be developed and used for the good of the world."

"They need to be educated so that all will not have to live on the land as at present. Not that all who can live on the land should not do so but every time that a man is released from the land so that he can do something else of service to his country, but requiring more preparation, it is a distinct gain to his country."

"We propose to send an agricultural representative there who will represent us and help in this great work. And let us bear in mind that every time we contribute or help in a worthy thing, it strengthens us."

"Far above the salary of this representative is the definite connection which will be established between this institution and China," said Dr. House. "The value of the backing of this institution is many times more valuable to have the ideals, inspiration, and interest of an institution like this helping us. * * * I would suggest that a book of remembrances be kept in which will be listed the names of all those who gave at least a dollar and that it be known as the charter and that it be known as the charter arries to China."

Steps are now being taken to carry forward the movement started last autumn to establish a K. S. A. C. agricultural mission to China similar to missions being established by other American colleges and universities in foreign lands. We are asked to join the Penn State Agricultural college in the further development of an agricultural mission which it has been conducting with Canton Christian College for the past seven years. It is proposed that an alumnus of K. S. A. C. be chosen to represent this institution and that his support be provided by voluntary contributions of students, faculty and friends of this institution. Canton Christian College is a non-sectarian school. It was visited by President Waters who considers that the conditions at Canton, the character and work of the college and the work already done by Penn State unite to make an unsurpassed opportunity for this institution to share in the great welfare work for the world at large.

The following interesting mention of similar work being done by Yale at Changsha is taken from an article on Changsha and the Chinese in the Scientific Monthly for March: "Of the 13 missions in Changsha there is one which represents a unique and typically American movement, whose spirit and idea is engaging the interest and active support of a rapidly widening group. This is the Yale mission, a movement founded and supported by an incorporated society of Yale, and established on certain fundamental principles whose recognition in university circles is distinctly modern. These principles take account, on the one hand, of the critical need in China today of certain qualities and the type of men which Christian western civilization can produce, and, on the other hand, there is due recognition of the unique opportunity of a great American university to supply this need in a most practical and statesmanlike manner. The movement gathers enthusiastic support from a widening circle of men and women of large philanthropy and missionary zeal in the broadest sense of the word.

"Yale-in-China has no evangelistic activities. It is not entering on the field of the established missionary organization. It is not in rivalry with the church movement. It is not isolated from the spirit of modern missions. It is contrivance, in most cordial agreement and sympathy seeking the moral, physical, and spiritual betterment of the Chinese, and it has the cooperation and support of the established societies. It is not duplicating the work of others nor crowding an old field of activity. It is entering a field previously untouched and giving to the Chinese of Hunan province the best spirit, methods, and Christian culture of the best type of American universities, and giving to a number of American university men and women an opportunity for practical benevolence with no restriction of creed, dogma, or self interest. So attractive is the idea of this movement that it has already been copied in other universities and is forming a recognized form of modern social service and benevolence."

THE BAKER SLUGGERS POUND AGGIE PITCHERS FOR 11 RUNS

Aggie Lose Second Game of the Season to Baldwin Methodists by a Score of 11 to 3—Wildcats all off Form.

BAKER GOT FIFTEEN SAFE HITS.

In the second game of the baseball season played on College Field Monday the Aggie Wildcats lost to the Baker University nine by the count of 11 to 3.

From the first ball tossed until the final "You're out" it was plain that the Aggies were not in their usual form. Hewey allowed the visitors 13 hits in seven innings and not often were the batters able to run them down in anything like good form.

In the first inning, Jaggard, the second man up for Baker, lifted out a single and went to second a moment later on an error by Harvey, went to third when Majors, on another fumble by Harvey, took the first sack, Dalton fanned, Nevins singled and Jaggard scored, Nevins going to second on the throw in. Kerns singled, Nevins advancing, Leach singled, scoring Nevins. Kerns scored on the throw in.

In the second inning, Stuckey, the first man up, lined out a double. Foster followed with a single and Jaggard singled scoring Stuckey. Majors singled scoring Jaggard. Dalton went out Derman to Newton. Nevins whiffed and Kerns went out Derman to Frank.

In the third inning Leach made first on an error by Newton, stole second, took third on error by Harvey and scored on the throw in. Banta and Stuckey fanned. Foster was hit by a pitched ball and took first but was thrown out at second, Sullivan to Newton.

In the fourth inning Dalton, third man up, singled and was advanced on a single by Nevins who stole second, Dalton scoring on the throw in Nevins going to third and scoring a moment later on a single by Kerns who died on first when Leach whiffed.

Baker made two more in the seventh inning. Kerns went out Newton to Frank. Leach singled and took second on an error by Reynolds. Banta drew a pass. Leach scored on an error by Harvey, Stuckey taking first, Banta advancing to second, Foster singled, Stuckey and Banta went out on a double, Frank to Harvey to Denman.

The only scores made by the Aggies were made in the second inning when Newton, first man up lined out a single, was advanced by Frank who singled, both advancing on the throw in. Newton scored when Harvey singled and Frank went to third, both scoring when Griffiths doubled, Hewey and Sullivan fanned and Denman went out, Leach to Foster.

SPRING CUSTOM.

It seems to be developing into a spring custom for the young wife to stroll to the hill of an afternoon to walk home with her husband. The students are even benefitted by it. In discussing different professors at the rooming houses some one wonders what kind of a wife this or that professor has at home. It may be that some day the students will know the whole family.

The results of the custom are already quite noticeable. As the end of the eighth hour draws near a certain professor quietly side steps to the window to see—if there is a storm approaching or if the sheep are keeping the campus mowed.

Nevertheless the custom leads the students to believe that they are not the only ones who love their professors. Since it is not a case of safety first, it should be known that any woman who will push a baby buggy eight or ten blocks to cheer up papa after a hard day's work is worthy of mention in this column.

CHANGE F TO E.

By careful organization of class work every student in college could utilize his time to the best advantage.

Many students due to a misunderstanding between themselves and their class work, waste several hours daily. This time if properly applied could be turned to profit instead of waste, and in many cases change the term's grade from F to some grade more desirable.

All students attend college for some purpose and if that purpose is to get the most from a college education, class room work should be organized.

Many students do not realize that the subject of paying attention in class is of any special importance. Many of the best graders on the hill tell you that more often than not it is this attention in class which permits them to make the good grades with which they are credited each term. It is in the class discussion that many points are cleared up and new facts cited.

There is not a student in this college today who is not intelligent enough to make at least fairly good grades. What is the reason for flunks and conditions then?

LET'S QUIT CHEWING.

I don't know whether dates are the most popular things in college or not. I think chewing gum receives about as much attention. Chewing gum may be all right in its place. If it will help you play any better in football or other athletics—then chew, but chewing gum in the class rooms and corridors of F. U. has got to be quite an annoying habit. Would you think of eating before any one without offering them some of your eats? Even if you were not very offensive to most people, what excuse is there for chewing? Since you do not know who might take offense at your offer and besides, it would be very expensive for some of our "chewers" to treat everyone they came in contact with chewing, let's quit it while it's in order.—University Life.

FIRST PRELIMINARY MEET.

Results Not as Good as Had Been Expected by Coach.

Owing to the strong wind yesterday and the cold weather which kept the Aggie tracksters from much practice of late, many of the records made in the first preliminary meet yesterday were not as good as had been expected.

The best times recorded were those of Collier and Frizzell on the 100 yds and 120 yard hurdles respectively. Collier went the hundred in ten flat, while "Duroc" made the high sticks in 16 seconds flat—beating his old mark of 16-2.

Summary of the meet:

100 yds dash, won by Collier; Holroyd second; Osborn third; time 10 flat.

One mile run, won by Seeber; Bixby second; Glover third; time 4 min. 37 sec.

120 yard hurdles, won by Frizzell;

Beatty second; Tatten third; time 16 seconds flat.

220 yard dash, won by Collier; Holroyd second; Osborn third; time 24 min. 4 sec.

Half mile, won by Keys, Chaffee second; time 2 min. 7 sec.

440 yard run, won by Holroyd; Turner second; Granfield third; time, 53-2.

Two-mile run won by Teeter; Foreman second; Wulfkehl third; time 10-34 2-5.

Shot put, won by Schaper; Billings second; Dodderill third; distance 37 feet 3 inches.

Discus, won by Wilder; Enlow second; Billings, third; distance 108 feet 7 inches.

Broad jump, won by Benard; Van Trine second; distance 21 feet.

Pole vault, Enlow and Knostman tied for first; Hutto third; height 10 feet.

High jump, won by Frizzell; Weiner second, Tatten third; height 5 feet and 10 inches.

TWO MORE FRATERNITY GAMES.

Betas Win Over Sig Alphas—Aztex From Acacias.

In two fast games of the national pastime played yesterday afternoon the Betas defeated the Sig Alphas by a count of 3 to 1 and the Aztex took the long end of a 9 to 3 count from the Acacias.

The feature of the first battle was when Ptacek hit out a home run for the Betas in the second inning.

Gunning was responsible for several of the Aztex scores when he swung on the ball for a home run with all the bases full during the third inning. Batteries: Beta—Hargis and Small; S. A. E. Curtis and Guilfoyle; Aztex, Wenn and St. John; Acacia, Smith and Jordan.

Every College a World.

Each college, each university, is a world in itself, with problems as rare and vital to the student as those of the outside world are to those who live in it. To expect college students to be vitally interested in the affairs of two worlds at once is expecting too much. Only in affairs where the two worlds touch and interlock is the student interested. He cares only for the affairs of the world, at which he looks with the eye of the student of research, affairs which illustrate the points of theory in which he has familiarized himself.

The inhabitants of the earth are not actively interested in the affairs of the inhabitants of Mars—if such there be—nor are the inhabitants of Mars interested in the affairs of the men toiling on the earth. Each world is interested in those affairs which touch and concern it. If the affairs of the two worlds interlock for a moment, all well and good.

So it is with the college student. His world is not the world of other men. And to expect his interests to be wholly the same is folly.—Daily Kansan.

SPORT

"We expect the track team to get revenge on Baker for the drubbing handed the baseball team in Monday's game," says Athletic Director Bender.

The sophomores and freshman will play the second inter-class game in the city park Thursday afternoon. The third game of the series will be on Thursday next in which the seniors will meet the sophomores.

Tennis.

The men who expect to try out for the tennis team which will meet Nebraska must register this week. Only those who have had a year's residence work in the college and have completed 36 credit hours of work in the school are eligible. These try-outs are of course separate and distinct from the college open tennis tournament games that are being played now.

Class Baseball.

The senior-junior baseball game this afternoon will start the inter-class baseball games. Baird, senior baseball manager, and Luhnaw, junior baseball manager, will start their teams with about equal disorganization due to the short time which the had to get their teams together. However, it is expected to have fairly good teams to represent each of the classes within a short time.

County Clubs! Attention!

When the Sixth Annual State Kansas High School Track and Field meet is held at Manhattan May 13, under the supervision of the department of physical education, it should be the desire of all country club members to see that the representatives from their counties are given a royal good welcome and properly entertained. It is with this in mind that Professor Lowman wishes to co-operate with the country club officials and asks that each county club president to send or leave his name at the department office some time in the near future.

CHATTINGS.

From now on there is going to be a new column, "Chattings," in this sheet. If it is to be as great a success as I would like it must have your most hearty support. When you write a little verse—no matter if it is somewhat worse—send it in. When you can think of something you think would amuse the other students or faculty, send it in. In short, just about every time you think of anything at all, send that in. Thank you.

CHAT.

Down a pretty, shady lane,
A cood took a walk.

The moon was high, a man was high;

Well, what's the use to talk?

Isn't it queer that some people are so far sighted that they can never see themselves the way other people do?

Ten minutes with the Collegian society editor who recently underwent an operation and is now in the hospital:

"Hello, Annette. How are you?"

"O, hello Chat. I'm just fine. How is everything on the hill?"

"Just the same as usual. Not anything special I guess."

"Gee, don't say that. It is just what everyone tells me and you know I am just dying for some gossip. The kind that is almost scandal, you know."

"Guess I don't know a bit."

"Well I must know more than you do then. I heard that Professor So-and-So and Miss (naming a lady member of the faculty), were engaged. Really I think it is the limit. He is real nice and I guess she is too, but they are not at all suited to each other. I believe that I could have picked out some one better than that for either of them."

"I hadn't heard anything about it, but you sure do not believe it is true. What is the difference though? You don't look like you had ever been sick at all."

"To tell the truth I don't feel like I had either. Every body here just treats me fine too. I'm going home Wednesday."

"Honest? Why, it has only been a week since you were operated on. Guess it will not be long before you get back to school either, will it?"

"I'm going to start back to school in about ten days. Sure will seem good."

"Imagine you will have to gain a good deal of strength before then. You are probably not half as strong as you feel while you are just lying there in bed."

"O I should be pretty strong. I've been feeding strong for several days."

"Well, I must beat it to class. If I hear of any gossip I'll let you know. Sure hope that you get along fine. Good by."

"Goodby. Tell everyone hello for me."

A headline in the last issue of the Collegian says, "Taylor would lift Farmers from Pits." I didn't know that the farmers were especially in need of lifting but what I do know is that I wish some one would lift me from the "three weeks."

The maiden wears her skirts so short, The man his B. V. D's.
What a shame it stays so cold;
I'd think they both would freeze.

Manhattan is having a lot of trouble trying to settle the Jitney question. That same subject, of JITNEYS has been an awful big question with me all my life and I haven't figured any way of settlement yet.

Why is it that faculty men seem so nice to strangers and so brutal to students who would like so much to please them?

Think of it. Only eight more weeks and three more periods of quizzes and then—it's all over.

-shear facts

Shear facts are important facts in your appearance—hand tailored, made-to-measure clothes are cut from the cloth one at a time—by a shears in the hands of a clever cutter—from the "plans and specifications" of your own body.

Quite naturally, clothes so made have very distinct advantages—personality, is a very apparent characteristic of them—they truly and accurately fit you.

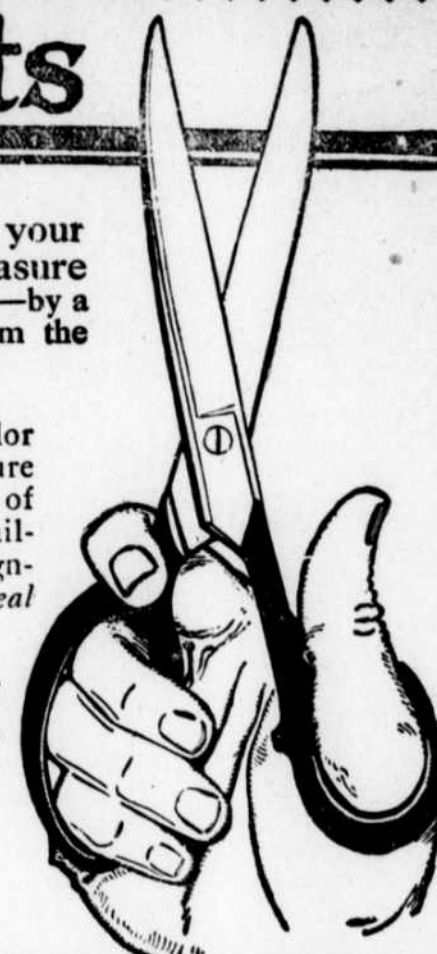

When you let us tailor a suit to your measure you get the advantage of shear cutting, hand tailoring, attractive designing, fine fabrics and real fit.

CADET REGIMENT READY FOR ANNUAL INSPECTION

Dress Rehearsal of Inspection Ceremonies Finishes Preparation—"Practically Complete," says Mathews.

BOARD WILL ATTEND CEREMONY.

The First Cadet Infantry, Kansas State Agricultural college, is on its toes, collectively and individually, for the annual inspection which is to occur Monday and Tuesday, April 24 and 25. "The preparations are practically complete," says Lieutenant Mathews.

A dress rehearsal of the actual inspection, was held yesterday on the parade grounds. This afternoon Company G and the machine gun company will have a final tryout in the field work assigned to them, using ball cartridges, on the regular target range north of the college.

The board of administration plans to be here for the event, and will hold a short meeting Monday or Tuesday. The band has been doing extra practice, and there has been some double drill by the entire regiment in preparation for the event.

The engineering company has constructed a bridge, out of rough logs, tied together with ropes, on the college grounds north of the animal husbandry department's barn. The signal corps has also been doing some extra work.

Special efforts have been made to have all the company and inter-company rifle matches shot off, and the results recorded, before the date of the inspection. The completion of these matches will be an advantage toward securing a high grade.

The college has held the grade of "Distinguished Institution," two successive years, and effort is being made by the military department to attain the same grade again this year. The designation is given to the ten colleges or universities in the United States, who have the best military departments, and its possession is an honor not lightly won by any institution.

A complete program of the inspection exercises was published in a recent number of the Collegian. The time of the inspection officer, Major Munroe McFarland, of the general staff, will be completely filled during the two days.

SADDLE AND SIRLOIN MEETS.

Change Time to Seven O'Clock—Meet in Chemistry Building.

Because of the military ball Monday evening the time of meeting of the Saddle and Sirloin club has been changed to seven o'clock. The installation of the new officers for the spring term will take place at this time in C 26.

"College Experiments—Their Value and Results," will be the subject of the program for the meeting. Professor Cochel will tell of the shorthorn experiment and A. M. Paterson will give the details of the sheep experiment conducted last winter with Western lambs.

"Why we bought a Wild Boar," is the topic of C. E. Aubel's talk. Many questions have arisen over this new acquisition and it is expected that Mr. Aubel will settle the "Whys" in the matter.

The new officers to be installed are: President, P. B. Quinn; vice president, I. J. Truman; secretary, R. B. Keyes; treasurer, B. M. Anderson; reporter, J. E. Taylor.

The new board is composed of G. F. Wallace, chairman; S. L. Sweet and D. E. Hull. The program committee consists of S. L. Sweet, chairman, S. B. Replogle, and C. L. McFadden.

Y. W. C. A. CABINET SELECTED.

Miss Stella Gould, President, Announces Cabinet and Committee.

The cabinet for the new year of the Y. W. C. A. has been announced by Stella Gould, president of the local organization. Mary Weible is vice president, Katharine MacFarland is secretary and Vilona Cutler is treasurer.

The following committees have for their chairmen: religious meetings, Rose Farquar; bible study, Elizabeth Barnham; missionary, Beulah MacNall; membership, Margaret Robinson; social, Hazel Beeson; social service, Martha Webb; big sister, Stella Blain; association news, Laura Mueller; music, Pearl Woods; finance, Ross Baker; and conferences, Hattie Droll.

This is an especially high honor to be conferred upon Mr. Sumner since he graduates under the old course and such fellowships are with few exceptions extended to students with the fifteen credit entrance standard.

Mr. Sumner is a popular man in class and college organization circles. As president of the Athenian literary society, member of the Alpha Zeta, honorary agricultural fraternity, member of the Lyceum course committee and Oratorical board, he has a large circle of friends. Mr. Sumner will leave for the university and take up his work there soon after commencement in June and expects to continue his work there for at least a year and a half.

TEACHERS OF JOURNALISM ARE MEETING AT LAWRENCE

Crawford and Snow of College Department are in Attendance at National Meeting.

Teachers of journalism from 42 colleges and universities are at K. U. this week, attending the sixth annual conference of the American Association of Journalism Teachers. N. A. Crawford, professor of journalism at the college, and F. L. Snow, assistant in the journalism department, are attending the meeting. The conference opened yesterday and will be finished tonight.

During the sessions, a complete and comprehensive study of the whole field of journalism teaching, is being made. Study and discussion is being carried on along the lines of the three main functions of a university, namely teaching, directing service, and research. Under these divisions have come the treatment and handling of a large number of subjects related to journalism and the teaching of the profession.

The officers of the association are as follows: president, Merle Thorpe, University of Kansas; vice-president, Franklin Matthews, Columbia University; and secretary-treasurer, H. M. Blain, University of Louisiana. The executive committee is composed of James Melvin Lee, New York university and Frank L. Martin, University of Missouri.

GIRLS INTERESTED IN TENNIS.

Thirty-one Coeds Have Registered for the Open Tournament.

Thirty-one girls have registered with Miss Enyart, head of the girls' physical training department, for the all college open tennis tournament. The entries will all be listed at Miss Enyart's office Saturday evening when the drawings will be made.

The rules governing the girls' tennis tournament will be practically the same as those now in practice in the men's all college tournament, according to Miss Enyart. About three good days will be allowed to play each round.

This tournament will in effect determine the best girl tennis player in college. Elmer Kittell, Aggieville's clothier, has the championship cup which will be awarded to the winner on display in his window.

EXPERIMENTAL FARMING.

Class in Farm Mechanics Get Data on Different Methods.

To determine the depth and width of a furrow, draft and time required to move 200 feet, was the purpose of an experiment performed Tuesday afternoon by the class in farm mechanics.

F. A. Wirt, instructor in farm mechanics, has charge of this work and had made arrangements for the experiment to be carried on at the agronomy farm where two plows, a J. I. Case and Jameson were available.

Each of these was tested four times, twice with the coulters and twice without, in order that the effect of the coulters might be determined.

In making these tests data was taken every 20 feet as well as at the end of the test so that the results could be checked and thus be made more accurate.

The experiment was successful and Professor Wirt was well pleased with the results.

DR. AGAR OF NEW YORK

ADDRESSES ASSEMBLY

Noted Lecturer and Missionary to Africa Gives Credit of Much Advancement to Spreading of Christianity.

ANCESTORS GNAWED BONES.

In promoting foreign missions, civilized nations are only returning the favors extended to their ancestors by some civilized race in the past, is the opinion of Dr. Frederick A. Agar of New York and former missionary to Africa, who spoke to the students of the college Thursday morning at chapel exercises on the subject, "The Sunny Side of Darkest Africa."

"Before the dawn of Christianity your ancestors may have been gnawing bones," the students were told. "Religion worked a wonderful change in them, and it will do the same with the uncivilized nations of today."

"Civilization is merely protecting itself in extending aid to un-Christian nations. Civilization through moral and religious teachings is the only way to solve the problem of the human race. China and Africa are undergoing an awakening and it is important that religion play an important part in that awakening."

Doctor Agar narrated many of his experiences in Southern Africa to his listeners. His talk was interspersed with interesting anecdotes that served to clarify his statements.

Preceding Doctor Agar's address, H. F. Roberts, professor of botany, made a strong plea for the adoption of President H. J. Waters' plan of sending a missionary to China from the college. The cost would be approximately $2,000, estimated Professor Roberts.

GIRLS HOLD FIRST MEETING.

Ninety Coeds Present at Athletic Association Meeting.

The first meeting of the girls Athletic Association was held Thursday evening with an attendance of 90 girls from all divisions of the college.

Every girl present signed the membership cards. These cards also have lists of athletic activities which are to be marked as those in which the member has taken interest and those in which instruction is desired. In this way the most generally liked games can be classified and plans made for work. Baseball, tennis, swimming, track are among the activities offered for the present term.

Action was taken to have numerals engraved on the Askren cup won by the Sophomores this term in interclass basketball.

Announcement was made that no girls would be admitted as entrants in any college athletic events unless members of the Association. The girls who wish to enter the tennis tournament will have to become members this week.

The association has no fees and any college girl may become a member.

PUBLIC SPEAKING POPULAR.

Almost Three Times as Many in Work This Term as in Fall.

There are 90 more students enrolled in public speaking work this term than were taking work there during the fall period. At present the enrollment in all seven divisions together totals 145 with a good percent of these taking advanced work.

Since coming here last fall Professor Emerson has done much toward making this course popular among the students and so getting them to realize the real worth of the work. He announces that there will be two classes in this division during the summer school this year. One of them will be in extempore work while the other will be known as "Public School Public Speaking."

The fraternity expects to make extensive improvements before moving into the house. It plans to take possession about the middle of May. At present the fraternity is located at 611 Poyntz avenue.

MR. C. O. LAVINE MAY GET

APPOINTMENT TO CHINA

Graduate of the College in 1914 Take up Work at Canton Christian College if Funds are Secured.

EVERY STUDENT MAY HELP

The committee of the Kansas State Agricultural College having in charge the development and financing of an agricultural mission at Canton Christian College, has been considering the matter of securing the services of a suitable young man to fill this mission. After looking over the field very carefully it has been decided that Mr. C. O. Lavine, who graduated from this institution with the class of 1914, possesses the desired qualifications.

Since his graduation, Mr. Lavine has been closely identified with Y. M. C. A. work in Marshall county, Kansas, in which section he owns and operates a farm. He has also taken a keen interest in other kinds of public work, having organized a county agricultural farm bureau in Marshall county of which organization he is now vice-president.

Mr. Lavine seems to possess the practical experience, organizing ability and the attitude essential to fill the position in question, and he has accepted an invitation to fill the mission in case the necessary funds are provided.

An opportunity will be given, during the coming week, for every one connected with the institution here to have a part in the sending of Mr. Lavine. Dr. House says that the money for the sending of an agricultural agent to the school in China could be much more easily secured from some private individual than from the students and faculty here alone but that would not bring the same success as will the financing of the proposition by the persons in the college itself.

It means a more intimate relationship between the schools and between the Chinese people as a whole and the people of the United States than it is just one person was financing the proposition.

SIGMA TAU FRATERNITY OPENS CONCLAVE HERE

Delegates From Eight Chapters of National Engineering Fraternity Present to Hear Welcome Address.

The opening season of the biennial convocation of Sigma Tau, a students' national engineering fraternity, was held yesterday at the college. In the absence of Dr. H. J. Waters, Dean A. A. Potter gave the address of welcome. W. J. Wohlenberg, grand councillor of the fraternity, of the University of Oklahoma, replied.

Committees were appointed and the business session then adjourned. The delegates were entertained at lunch at the domestic science building. Between 1 and 2 o'clock P. M. afternoon the visitors were taken on a motor tour of the city by the Commercial Club. A business meeting was held this afternoon. The local chapter of the fraternity will put on an initiation tonight for the benefit of the delegates.

Eight of the nine chapters of the fraternity were represented at the opening meeting this morning. The ninth delegate, the one from the University of Oregon, was expected to arrive today. All of the national officers with the exception of the president were present. He will arrive tonight.

Business meetings will be held both Saturday morning and afternoon. The convocation will close Saturday evening with a banquet at Harrison's hall. It is expected that about 60 persons will be present.

Captain Boice, some years ago was stationed in Manhattan as commandant of cadets, and he and family are well known here, where they still have many friends. The above story is reprinted from the April 4 issue of the Long Beach Press, sent to Manhattan by Helen Day Henderson, formerly of K. S. A. C.

Miss Gladys Jones, assistant in domestic art, spoke at the Y. W. C. A. Thursday evening on Women Working Together.

W. E. Adair '16, will teach agriculture in the Kimball county high school, at Kimball, Nebraska, this coming year.

ELECT OFFICERS FOR LIFE.

Present Senior Class Is Working for Better Alumni Organization.

The senior class at a recent class meeting elected officers who are to hold the positions through life. This system is an entirely new one at this college although it has been found most successful in other institutions.

This new step has as its object the keeping of the different members of the class in more close touch with each other after they have left college. Each year the different members of the class will send their names and addresses to the secretary-treasurer who files them and sends out a bulletin to each one of the members. In this way it is hoped that a stronger alumni organization may be brought about.

The officers elected are: President, H. M. McClelland; vice president, J. L. Garlough; secretary-treasurer, P. H. Wheeler.

FRIZZELL TO TAKE PART IN PENNSYLVANIA MEET

Captain of Aggie Track Team Will go to Philadelphia a Week From Today—Great Chance.

Herbert H. Frizzell, senior in agriculture, captain of the Aggie track team, and the victor over the best high jumper in the west, Jo Loomis of Chicago, in the K. C. A. C. meet, will represent the Aggies in the high jump in the Pennsylvania relay games at Philadelphia Saturday, April 29.

This announcement was made Wednesday by Professor Hamilton, chairman of the athletic board, after receiving a telegram from the authorities in charge of the meet.

Frizzell's entry is a recognition of his ability as a high jumper. He has defeated the best high jumper in the west, Jo Loomis, and was defeated once by the same man in the indoor meets this winter. Loomis will not enter the high jump in this meet however and unless the eastern universities are able to put out an exceptionally good man, Frizzell should have a clear field.

In speaking of the Pennsylvania meet, Coach Carl J. Merner, who has trained Captain Frizzell for the last four years, said, "I believe 'Duroc' will have a good chance of winning. The high jump last year was won at 6.1 and Frizzell has made 6.2 on different occasions."

This is the first time that the Aggies have ever entered a man in such a big meet. The relay games at Philadelphia is one of the classic track events of the year. A first or second place means national prominence to a man and his school.

The Aggie-Baker meet is on the same date that Frizzell is at Philadelphia. However, Coach Merner has no fears but what his team will easily take the meet. "Duroc" is good for ten points but the Aggies should win for a goodly margin without him.

That the Aggie alumni have plenty of pep was evidenced by the fact that two of last year's men started the subscription fund to cover Frizzell's expenses to Philadelphia, which will be almost one hundred dollars. Joe Weaver of Concordia, last year's miler, and Howard Edwards of Jewell City, last year's pole vaulter, sent a five each to Coach Bender to be applied to a subscription fund. One of the track men obtained three-fourths of the remainder in less than three hours the first day. The track men and Coaches Lowman, Bender, and Merner, and the track men especially giving their liberal support.

K. U. TO HAVE ATHLETIC FRAT.

Lawrence, Kan., April 20.—A branch of Sigma Delta Psi, a national athletic fraternity, is being organized at the University of Kansas by Dr. James Naismith, director of physical education at the university, it has been announced. Membership in this organization is based on records of candidates made in actual competition. The members must be able to show skill in more than one event in track work before they are admitted. Some of the requirements are: 100-yard dash in 11 3-5 seconds; 220-yard low hurdles in 31 seconds; high jump, 5 feet; broad jump, 17 feet; pole vault, 8 feet 6 inches; throw baseball 250 feet; kick a football 120 feet; 2-mile run in 12 minutes 30 seconds; 10-mile walk in 2 hours and 45 minutes; swim 100 yards.

CHINESE UNIVERSITY

NINE HERE THIS P. M.

After Contest This Afternoon Bender's Nine will Have Sunday to Rest up Before Coming of Tigers Monday.

TEAM IN BETTER CONDITION.

The Chinese University nine who defeated the Aggies 18 to 0 last year will no doubt enter the game at 4 o'clock this afternoon on College field with a good deal of confidence. They are fast players and last season's game, they showed up especially strong in fielding and hitting.

However, the Aggie team has been recast and the regular lineup will be started in this game and it is the opinion of Coach Bender that the Aggies will give them a much better game than they had with us last year.

The Chinese team is on its annual tour which is made through the United States every year under the management of Nat C. Strong, an old Wisconsin star, now located at New York City. It is understood that he realizes ten per cent commission on their guarantees.

The Chinese team is to the Hawaiian Islands and Honolulu what the American league teams are to the United States. Most of the men are graduates of the American universities who have gone back to their country and entered the professional game. Every fall they play the American League teams which tour the Orient.

Thursday afternoon, the Chinese nine defeated the Southwestern Normals 3 to 0. Yesterday afternoon they played at Wichita.

Missouri University, under the direct charge of Athletic Director Brewer, Missouri's popular coach, will show here next Monday and Tuesday. The Tigers, thirteen strong, left Columbia last Tuesday in a special car to meet a series of six games with Oklahoma University, A. M. college and the Aggies.

The Tigers, with only two new men on the team this year, are playing ball in great form. While their first conference games will be on College field, Monday and Tuesday, they have won all their games to date. They defeated Benny Owens' Oklahoma bunch Wednesday in a 7 to 0 game.

Missouri took both games from the Aggies in last season's contests with respective scores of 12-3, 9-3. The Missourians special car will leave Oklahoma Saturday for Manhattan. Missouri's line up against the Wild Cats will be as follows: Farmer, ss; Woody, rf (captain); Hogg, 1st base; Giltner, lf; Bumgarner, c; Davis, 3rd; Dippold, rf; McMillen, 2nd; Bryant, Morgan and Taylor, pitchers.

The poor showing in Monday's game was largely due to the adverse circumstances under which the Aggie team has been in getting under way. The loss of Richardson at shortstop position, because of ineligibility, weakened that position which has been temporarily filled by Harvey. The loss of the two games with Ames which would have served to take off roughness and started the team off well for the season's work, is a most serious handicap.

Weather conditions have also prevented practice and these two factors have greatly retarded the playing qualities of the team which showed up so badly in Monday's contest. The game with Baker, however, was undoubtedly a sacrifice game in which Coach Bender found several of his men by substitutions which will be in evidence when the real games of this week end begin.

Easter Music.

Easter music will be a feature of the services Easter Sunday at the Congregational Church. In the morning service, Mr. Wentworth will sing Knapp's "Open the Gates of the Temple" and Miss Carley will sing, "O Divine Redeemer" by Gounod. Miss Carley will be accompanied by Mrs. R. H. Brown on the harp, and by Mr. Fred Korsemeier on the violin. The choir will sing Granier's anthem, "Hosanna."

The whole evening service will be taken up with an Easter Cantata, "The Risen King," by Schmecker. The Cantata is made up of chorus, quartette and solo parts. The choir has been working at it for weeks under the direction of Miss Carley.

FULL FOR THE REGIMENT.

The annual inspection of the college cadet corps is to be staged Monday and Tuesday of next week. On this inspection hinges the decision of whether K. S. A. C. will again be awarded the rank of "Distinguished Institution."

The rank of "D. I." means something to every one of the students here, whether a cadet or not. It means that the college is ranked by the war department as among the ten best in the United States, as regards military departments. This rank has been awarded to K. S. A. C. on two successive years, and every cadet has been working hard for it again this year.

The department has been steadily growing, both in size and efficiency, and should retain the rank. But competition is growing too.

The war department is depending greatly on just such military departments as this for officers for volunteer organizations in time of war, and is spending a very respectable sum of money with K. S. A. C. in order to insure the efficiency of the college cadet regiment.

The spirit of the regiment in putting in the extra work preparing for the inspection, is worthy of commendation and encouragement.

The students and the people of the town have been invited to be present at the inspection ceremonies, and in order to show that the college is a unit, that the achievement of the D. I. means something to every one on the hill, the invitation should be accepted. There should be a crowd around the edge of the parade ground Monday, every member pulling for the regiment.

FUNCTION OF THE PRESS.

All students in school should read newspapers and magazines sufficiently to keep in touch with the realities of life. College life should not be a retirement from the practical, every day world. The primary function of the college is to supply study rooms, lectures, libraries, laboratories, and personal conferences with persons mutually interested in research work for the betterment of the social, industrial, religious, artistic, political and economic interests of the general public. If this function is lost sight of, as it frequently is, by individuals in their eagerness for personal acquisition; if students forget their relationship to society and neglect to inform themselves regarding current events; if they fail to keep in readiness to take part in politics for the maintenance of democratic institutions and in efforts for social reform, they are prostituting the college to personal uses for which it was never designed.

Even if the patriotic and altruistic appeal does not lead students to consider public questions, self interest will lead them to study the newspapers and magazines because newspapers and magazines are among the greatest educators. The press ranks along side of the school and the church as an effective educator, and surpasses them for some practical purposes. The press is a reflection of humanity. It represents in a concrete way the thoughts of the people and the thoughts of the people certainly must be taken into consideration by all men and women who expect to make money or fame by dealing with other people. The public pulse must be felt by all who can hope either to reform people or to exploit themselves. Therefore whatever be your purpose, you should read the newspapers and magazines.

Out of the "HELL BOX"

Contributed by Sigma Delta Chi, National Journalistic Fraternity.

No Angeline, the faculty will never expell the little college lambkins for gambling on the green.

Kind sufferers and fellow friends, please do not get excited. The "Hell Box" in this case is not so bad, in fact it is not even naughty. You see just as the Salvation Army and Helping Hand organizations are places of refuge for the human cast-offs and down-and-outs, so is the "Hell Box" in the printing shop the depository of all type which is not thought to be of much value. Some of this type is blurred, more of it is "poor stuff" in general.

The printer always wants to get the sheet filled up as quickly as possible, so he is rather disgusted when a piece of copy come back from the proof reader marked "kill." He pitches the no account type into a big box and says, "O Goodness." Hence the term "Hell Box."

This space is always expected to be fairly windy but the climate the last few days accounts for the excess this time.

Professor Taylor: "Mr. Huey, tell us about the monasteries and what they were started for."

CHERRIES.

Such a delightful and altogether pleasing picture she made as she slowly slipped through two straws, her plain water limeade. We—this exquisite picture of femininity and myself—were seated at one of the little booth tables in the confectionery.

What a contrast between the fair creature near me and myself. She so frail looking and still with an air of stability about her which made me feel myself for below her.

The prettiest scene was when she began trying to get one of the bright red cherries resting at the bottom of the glass. She would stab at the poor cherry with one of the straws in the most wicked way imaginable and then, after several unsuccessful attempts she coyly smiled, "The mean thing. How can I get it?" across the table at me and I saw something new. Her lips were just the color of the cherries in the glass.

At last she succeeded in capturing one of the little red spheres and as she lifted it to her lips and smiled at me again, I had to look close to distinguish which was the red cherry and which was lip.

I was not real sure even then but I learned afterward when she told me goodbye.

STUDY SOILS OF MANHATTAN.

Class in Soil Fertility Would Learn What Soil Needs.

The classes in soil fertility laboratory with M. C. Sewell in charge, are studying the soils of Manhattan and the surrounding country to determine the origin of the different soils.

For this purpose many field trips have been planned and armed with two-inch augers with four foot shake, the students start for the fields. The soil is obtained at various depths and the subsoil as well as the surface soil studied. Color, texture, and plasticity are the distinguishing characteristics of a soil, and these factors determine its mode of origin.

Experiments are also conducted in the laboratory for determining the elements necessary for maximum plant growth. For this purpose jars of washed sand are used and a record kept of all plant food added. To some of these jars one or more of the necessary food elements are omitted and its effect upon the growing plant, noted.

Weekly data is kept showing the growth and appearance of the plants. The experiment will run three months and the final results noted.

The knowledge gained in this course will enable the student to analyze the soil of his home farm and choose crops suited for that particular soil.

OPEN COLUMN.

I would like to express my opinion in regard to Miss Why's sad fate. I call it fate because I think such must be the predicament of any girl who cannot be supplied with all the dates she would like to have. I have refrained from answering your question sooner because I wanted to study different types of girls and see if I would not fit you in among a class.

I fear that you are in a class by your lonesome. Girls answering your description are popular; also girls not half as good looking as you are, are popular and not a week end passes but what they have chances for six and sometimes eight dates. Of course if a girl has a steady, she is hopelessly out of the question.

If you will pardon my boldness, I think I can tell you what is wrong with you. You like to gossip—now don't you? A young man likes it as well as he enjoys talking about women's styles—for a while, but for a while only. In my opinion, few young men of the day kind carry on serious conversations, but they do like a variety. Give him something to think about. Nothing will disgust a man more (the kind of man you should go with) than "filthy" jokes told by a girl. He can hear all he wants from his men friends and in all probabilities they tell them more successfully.

Another thing, I have known girls who acted plum daffy about a man the first time they were out with him. If a girl is so easily afflicted she should display her "lovely" disposition after she has been out with him a third or fourth time. Don't act as if you have known a man all your life if he wanted to sell himself, he would go to some one he knew better, so don't act as if you owned him, especially if he was nice enough to take you to the picture show the first time—some of them wear out their vest pockets by pulling their watches out every five minutes. That, too, is a girl's fault. She should proffer better amusement.

Be a little bit proud and independent. Don't give in to every thing a man tells you. Half the time it isn't true. If he talks about something big elaborate on it. He will think you are a "good sport" because he won't know any better. And lastly, don't urge a man too violently to come back after his first call. He will think you are too anxious.

If you find any of what I have said timely—if the shoe I have just tried on you fits, change your ways and I promise you some dates before you are many years older.—One Who Knows.

NOTES OF INTEREST TO ENGINEERS

The members of the Saturday classes held a brake test on the Titan that developed very satisfactory.

The classes in tractor plowing will discontinue this week and work of another type will be taken up for the rest of the term.

W. H. Saunders, instructor in farm motors, returned Sunday from Kingman, where he has been on some extension department lectures.

A new steam turbine is being installed in the steam and gas engine laboratory. It tests ten brake horsepower running at 3000 revolutions per minute.

The plowing on Hunters Island has proven that the "spud lugs" on the drive wheels of a tractor are not efficient in the soft or sandy land. It was found that the extension grouters of the Mogul offered the best traction of any of the types of lugs that were used.

The Mogul, the Case 19-20, and the Hart-Parr "Little Devil," are being used by the classes in the plowing on Hunters Island. The machines are left on the island. All of the transportation of the fuel and the students will be by the use of the Parrett tractor and the wagon.

The traction engine department will furnish the engines for the Franklin Engine Ride that will take place in the next few weeks. One tractor will be used because the steam machines have proven inefficient for this type of road work. The engine that will probably be used will be the Emerson Big Four. It will be required to haul the three wagons.

A new Denning tractor has been shipped to the traction department by the Denning Tractor company of Cedar Rapids, Iowa. The machine will be delivered this week. The company will place the tractor on brake and dynamometer tests to determine the horse power rating that will be given the machine. It is a new model for the Denning company and the test that will be carried on by the members of the advanced traction classes will be taken as the official test by the company.

PESTS OF KANSAS ARE A PICNIC SAYS SNOW

Instructor of Journalism Relates
Some of the Observations Made While Working on Paper in South Africa.

NATIVES ENJOY EATING BUGS.

Talk about insect and other pests in Kansas! They are a picnic compared to those with which the South Central African farmers have to contend. Grasshopper days made Kansas famous, but they belong to the dim past. In Africa huge grasshoppers or locusts often fly in swarms so dense that the light of day is dimmed, asserted Frank L. Snow, instructor in industrial journalism in a talk before students in elementary journalism, who are being trained in methods of reporting speeches.

"Getting a glimpse of big baboons with melons tucked under their arms, and marching single file out of a garden on a moonlight night, is nothing uncommon," said Mr. Snow, "and yet despite these slight (?) annoyances vegetation grows luxuriantly in many sections of South-Central Africa. The pests are generally unable to 'down' the growing crops, and consequently a harvest is reaped.

"Locusts and wild honey are eaten by natives as in Bible times. When locusts rest on the trees at night the limbs are bent by their weight. The natives often go in bands and gather a large supply of grasshoppers which are later boiled and dried on rocks. When fried the hoppers are eaten with as much relish as are potato chips in Kansas. This delicacy (?) is often eaten with wild honey.

"The process of gathering wild honey is interesting. A native goes out into the woods and whistles to attract the attention of a honey bird or guile. This bird does not come close to the native but flies forward to a bee tree. When the proper spot is reached it circles around the tree at a distance of 75 or 100 yards. The native then smokes the bees and extracts the honey. The larvae are eaten on the spot, and the honey is carried to the village on pieces of bark.

"When the English settled Rhodesia, South Africa in 1890 lemons grow wild along the streams. The citizens of the province claim it to be the site of the historic Garden of Eden and they say that Eve's forbidden fruit was plucked from a lemon tree.

"The soil of Rhodesia is fertile, and the province offers great farming possibilities. Cereals, tobacco, vegetables and many other crops are easily grown. Cattle may be cheaply maintained the year around. Cape Boer goats and Persian and Cape fat-tailed sheep thrive remarkably well. In the eastern part of the province Merino sheep are raised. The fruit industry is still in its infancy although oranges, lemons, plums, plantain, and other fruits are now offered for sale on the local markets. Indian corn and kafir are important farm crops.

"There are three types of farmers in Rhodesia—the natives, who are poor farmers, the Boers who plow a little and cultivate crops to a limited extent, and the English and Scotch settlers who use American-made machinery and operate their farms in an up-to-date and profitable manner.

"The natives do all their work by hand with home-made hoes of their own design, and 'everybody works but father.' A man may have as many wives as he can afford—some of the more prosperous men have 12 or more. The women grind meal and cook breakfast. The men arise late in the morning.

"A sunrise scene in a Kraal or village is interesting—a veritable stream of calves, pigs, chickens, goats, and women issue forth from the native huts.

The men like to bask in the sun and occasionally delight in hunting wild game. They also sometimes condescend to help the women in the fields. For instance, they go out and dig field mice in their 'lands.' These are considered a rare delicacy when properly served. The natives pluck caterpillars from the trees, mash them into a juicy pulp and eat as a relish with their 'sodza,' a dish made of kafir meal. The natives grow pumpkins, tasteless melons, rice, tobacco, and many other crops.

"Occasionally a kraal becomes so filthy due to the pigs, chickens, and vermin, that it is necessary to move and build an entirely new village. Sometimes, moreover, the soil becomes so poor that it is necessary to find new lands.

"The Boers are a hospitable and ignorant people. They are inveterate Bible readers but are also sharp traders. They make a special point never to get 'stung.' They 'trek' and plow with oxen. The Boers scatter Indian corn or other grain on the veld, plow it under, and then go to the house and read the old family Bible and trust to the Lord to bring the harvest.

"The Scotch and English are enterprising. They make use of the latest modern farm machinery and equipment and use up-to-date methods. The future of the farming industry in Rhodesia is largely in the hands of these people.

"On some of the farms far from town wild wart hogs are a great pest. When cooked in true native style, however, they are delicious. A fire is built, a bed of coals obtained, and a hole dug nearby. The hog is rolled into the hole and covered with a thin layer of dirt or ashes, and then with coals. After a few hours the hog is temptingly baked, and ready to serve."—L. R. H.

Important Senior Business.

It is not known just what important business is to take place in senior class meeting next week but it must be especially momentous as every effort is being made to have all members of the 1916 class present.

Some of the most interested in the class even put forth the proposition that the members might as well bring their dates to the meeting as there will probably be thirty minutes left them in which to 'play around.'

The only question asked is, "what if the senior has a date with a member of some other class?"

INSPECTOR ALTERS REGIMENT'S PROGRAM

Cadets Were Assigned to Work Which was Comparatively Unfamiliar but Got Away Well Anyhow.

INSPECTOR IS WELL PLEASED.

The program for the annual inspection of the college cadets, by Major Munroe McFarland of the general staff of the United States army, was considerably upset when the inspector arrived. A detailed program had been made out, by the officers and commandant of the regiment.

The inspection was opened with the reception of Major McFarland, by the president and the board of deans at the office of President Waters, at 8 o'clock Monday morning. At 9 o'clock the regimental review and inspection was held, according to the program. Then Major McFarland took command of the regiment, and supervised the remainder of the movements.

The field work and special exercises were staged by units of his own selection and at the time he suggested. The most of the time Monday afternoon and Tuesday was devoted to exercises by special units and to the inspection of the work which has been done by the cadet engineers and signal corps in the past. The signal company demonstrated their work by getting into communication with Fort Riley by way of their field set, and their manipulation of the signal system at the rifle range north of the college. The engineers had built a bridge on the north side of the campus, which was inspected on a special trip. The machine gun platoon and two companies of infantry were taken to the range Tuesday morning and did some very creditable rapid firing.

"Everything went off very well," said Cadet Colonel O. B. Burtis, in speaking of the inspection. "We did less showy work but more real practical stuff this year than ever before. All the men have done well, even though they were assigned to comparatively new work."

The inspection of the corps proper closed Tuesday with a meeting of the officers in the commandant's office, where they were questioned and instructed by Major McFarland. Later he inspected the property and papers of the regiment and left 3:15 o'clock Tuesday afternoon.

He was entertained by the officers of the regiment at the Aztec house for lunch Tuesday, and at the military ball Monday night in the gymnasium.

He expressed himself as well pleased with the way the cadets had gone through the inspection, and thanked President Waters for permitting them to be excused from classes for the event. He especially mentioned the cadet band which he said was the best he had yet encountered on the tour.

"Of course many errors were made in the technicalities of the drill," said Major McFarland, "but what pleases me is the fine soldierly bearing of the young men and the splendid discipline observed."

The inspector's official report will be transmitted to the war department at Washington, and a copy will be sent to the college from there. "The report is not expected here before some time next June," says Sergeant Claeren, assistant to the commandant.

GOVERNMENT PRINTS $100.00.

Potter's Explanation of Engineering Experiment Bill is Being Distributed.

One hundred thousand copies of the United States senate bill for establishing engineering experiment stations in state colleges, together with an explanation of the plan by A. A. Potter, dean of engineering in the Kansas State Agricultural college and secretary of the Land Grant College Engineering association, have been printed by the federal government and distributed. Professor Potter's explanation is entitled "Engineering Experiment Stations as Aids to Industrial Preparedness."

Dean Potter spoke on the same subject before the second conference of a committee on engineering cooperation in Chicago and obtained promises of extensive cooperation from various engineering organizations.

Some of the students in the course in farm motors were sent out to Hunter's Island Monday afternoon to bring in the Hart-Parr tractor.

PURPLE MASQUE TO JUNCTION.

Dramatic Club Will Play Fortune Hunter There Friday Evening.

Friday evening, April 28, is the date set for the presentation of the Purple Masque play, "The Fortune Hunter," at Junction City. The contract has been signed, the guarantee is assured, President Waters has given his hearty approval, and all plans for the trip have been completed.

The members of the cast will leave Friday afternoon for Junction City and will return on a special car after the performance. Another special car will take care of the students and other people of Manhattan who attend the show.

"If the players measure up Friday night to the standard set here at home April 6 they may well feel confident of the result," says Professor Emerson who is coaching the production. "The Fortune Hunter is a splendid, modern play and should score well with a popular audience."

CANKER WORM INVASION DUE.

Spring Pests Will Soon Make Walking a Nuisance—Ready to Hatch.

Europe's barbed wire entanglements will soon have their prototypes in Manhattan. With the early spring rain and warm days, the young spring canker worms will be hatching, ready to attack the tender green leaflets as they emerge from their winter casements. Just as an army chooses the coming of spring to begin active operations, so the canker worm army comes with the end of winter to prey on and destroy the young leaves as they withdraw from their winter quarters.

Walks, streets and paths will soon be canopied with a flying mass of web entanglements. Here and there pedestrians will be seen dodging about to escape, if possible, the annoying little threads that float about in the air and make walking anything but a pleasure.

Disturbed in their quarters, the pests will spin their silken webs, and apparently slide down to the ground. Left to their peace again, they will return to their haunts by the same tiny threads.

Treetops will soon be a mass of silvery threads that cross and recross and even extend from tree to tree, until they seem like some vast telegraph system.

WATERS IN AUTHORS' CLUB.

Professors Crawford and Davis and Mrs. C. A. Kimball Also Elected.

Dr. Henry Jackson Waters, president of the college, was elected to membership in the Kansas Authors' club at the annual meeting in Topeka. Doctor Waters is the author of "The Essentials of Agriculture," which is having brilliant success as a school text, and of many articles on agricultural and educational subjects including an elaborate report to the government on the Philippine Islands.

Other Manhattan people elected to the club were Prof. H. W. Davis, Mrs. C. A. Kimball, and Prof. N. A. Crawford.

Prof. J. W. Searson was re-elected vice-president of the club, with general charge of work in the Fifth district. Mr. Searson gave an attractive address before the club on "The New Equality of Authorship."

The Hamp-In egg race will take place on the 13th of May.

ABBIE SWAFFORD WINS ORATORICAL CONTEST

Philomathian Orator Takes First Place in Schol of Agriculture Inter-Society Event—Giles Is Second.

IS TO BE STAGED ANNUALLY.

Miss Abbie Swafford of Manhattan, took first place in the first annual inter-society oratorical contest between the literary societies of the School of Ag, Saturday night.

Miss Swafford represented the Philomathian society, George Giles, representing the Lincoln society, took second place, and W. G. Oehrie, of the Hesperian society, took third place.

The judges were selected from the members of the faculty. H. L. Kent, principal of the school, presided at the contest. The auditorium was decorated by the societies in honor of the event.

Each society staged an original skit before the appearance of its orator, and following the contest, each society held a celebration.

Miss Swafford's oration was entitled, "A Modern Cinderella," and dealt with the possibilities opening before immigrants to the United States. Miss Swafford spoke of what has been accomplished in the past by immigrants. She pleaded for the betterment of their condition, and the offering of greater opportunities for their education.

Mr. Giles spoke on "A Modern Ibsen," and Mr. Oehrie on "Farm Life the Ideal."

The Reverend Robert Lehigh offered the invocation.

The contest is to become a regular event between the organizations of the preparatory school.

TEST SANDS OF KANSAS.

Engineers Obtain Data Never Before Available—Of Great Value.

Tests of sand from all parts of Kansas have been made by the Kansas Engineering Experiment station and will be, it is expected, of great value to users of mortar and concrete in building operations. Results of the tests in detail are given in a bulletin—the first on the subject ever published in the state—by R. A. Seaton, professor of applied mechanics and machine designs, and I. I. Taylor, instructor in applied mechanics in the agricultural college. The bulletin is illustrated with numerous charts and halftones.

More than 50 representative samples were tested, having been obtained from city engineers and other officials in various parts of the state. The tests covered sieve analysis, percentage of silt, weight per cubic foot, specific gravity, percentage of voids, and tensile tests of mortar.

"It is a generally recognized fact," say the authors of the bulletin, "that the quality of the sand used has considerable effect on the strength and impermeability of mortar and concrete. Tests have repeatedly shown that with some sands much more cement is required to make a concrete or mortar of a certain strength or of a given degree of water tightness than with other sands."

"As cement is the most expensive ingredient of concrete, it will therefore not always be economical to use the cheapest sand which can be obtained. The necessity of testing sands proposed for use in concrete is now being generally recognized by concrete engineers."

"The present extensive and rapidly growing use of concrete throughout the state makes the subject of the quality of sands found in Kansas of great importance. The object of the tests has been to determine the value of representative samples of sand from various sections of the state for use in concrete and mortar, and, as far as possible, the factors affecting the value of these sands."

"It is recognized that the sand in any one bank or stream channel will vary considerably from time to time, and that for important structures tests should be made of the particular lots of sand used; yet it is believed that the results given in this bulletin will be of value in indicating approximately what may be expected of sand from any of the various sources from which samples were tested."

Mrs. R. G. Lamberson and daughter Virginia Rae, of Chicago are spending a few days with Miss Amy Lamberson, a junior in home economics.

"DUD" HAS A TWIN.

So It Would seem to Hear a Certain Blonde Talking.

Has anyone seen Byron Dudley's twin brother about the campus? A tall blonde thinks she has found him.

A day or so ago one of the gravest and most modest seniors known to Kansas soil was standing in a right angled and helpless position, looking up some references in the card index filing case in the college library. Utterly oblivious of any outward attack upon his dignity, he was astounded to feel a finger describing a half moon on his back, beginning at the third cervical vertebrae and ending with a vigorous oscillation in the midst of his permanent ribs.

Filled with alarm he turned suddenly and to his lasting surprise a tall, laughing blonde stood towering over his helpless form. Her look of astonishment was not a whit less than his however as she wildly exclaimed, amidst a generous effusion of blushes: "Why, why,—er,—er, I thought you were Byron Dudley."

SELECT TENNIS TEAM

TO MEET NEBRASKA

Meet Will be Held at Manhattan on May 3—Announce Team Friday.

Just who will represent the Aggies against the Cornhuskers in inter-collegiate tennis will be determined in the inter-collegiate Tennis tryouts which are being played this week.

The two best men who come to light in the tryouts will be given a place on the team with T. R. Knowles, the winner of the Open Tennis tournament, making the team of three men. Two substitutes will also be determined in these contests.

Knowles, the winner of the tournament, also stands open to challenge, and should a dark horse appear at so late a date it is possible for him to loose his place on the team. Any of the losers in the respective rounds will have the right of challenge to the winners of the last round, but Coach Bender has ruled that all such challenges must be in by Thursday evening.

The seconds rounds must have been played by this evening. The matches follow:

1—Laurence.
2—Wood.

3—Sparrow.
4—Rimback.

5—Snell.
6—Bird.

7—Chapman.
8—McGraw.

FRIZZELL OFF FOR PENN.

"Okla-Ham Kangaroo" on Way to East to Compete in Big Meet.

H. H. Frizzell, the Aggie track captain, left this morning for Philadelphia, Penn., where he will take part in the Penn. relay games to be held at Philadelphia Saturday, April 23. Frizzell will go first to St. Louis, where he will meet Bob Shapson, M. U.'s entry in the big meet and the two will make the long journey to Philadelphia together. "Friz" is going early in order to take part in the preliminaries which will be held Friday afternoon.

Frizzell and Simpson are probably the only entries in the meet from Kansas or Missouri. The Jayhawkers were going to send their relay team but it failed to show up to any advantage at the Drake relay games so that they will probably not go.

The Aggie followers of track have a good deal of confidence in Frizzell's ability to win. "Duroc" has been the most consistent point winner the Aggies ever had, having never been in a meet but what he has won some points for his school. He has been jumping about three inches higher each year that he has competed for the Aggies. His best mark so far is 6 feet 2 inches, and that height ought to get him something in the Penn. meet.

The Aggies have a track meet with Baker Saturday of this week but should win easily without Frizzell. Welmer and Wilder will take his place in the high jump and Vandenberg will fill his shoes in the high hurdles.

Otis Hall, of the extension division of the college, has been asked to deliver an address at the closing exercises of the Zeandale school Friday.

AGGIES OFF AND TIGERS TAKE TWO IN SUCCESSION

First Game was a Walk Away for the Missouri Team Aggies Losing 12 to 2—Second Closer with Count of 3 to 1.

ERRORS WERE COSTLY TO AGGIES

In tragedy of errors, aided and abetted by poor hitting on the part of the Aggie contingent, the Missourians won a 12 to 2 score in a ragged game Monday afternoon and then the Aggies came back yesterday displaying better form and closer played to hold the Tigers to a lesser victory of 3 to 1.

Inability to connect with the ball combined with ragged fielding were the two main causes of the Aggies dropping the first two games of the conference series to the Tigers Monday and Tuesday.

The series also developed the fact that Hewey is the only member of the Bender pitching staff who can be depended upon in a pinch. Hodgson went off edge in Monday's game and backed by ragged fielding soon went into the hole so deep that Ferrier followed suit and started his end of the game by handing out passes to first.

Hewey yesterday established his claim to the title of being the only real twirler of the staff by his control and head work. His rapid fire cross cut delivery, which clipped the corners of the plate at a puzzling angle, had the heavy hitting Tigers fooled so that they garnered only eight hits off him.

NATURALNESS VS. RESPECTABILITY.

Last night at an extemporaneous speaking contest one of the contestants took as her subject, Why Girls Wish They Were Boys. In her speech she discussed the relative freedom in action of boys and girls. The former could whistle or eat an apple in public; he could gambol on the green, he could laugh out loud. A girl could not do all these things, she must be conventional or else she is classified as masculine or "uncultured."

It is not the first time that such a charge has been made and the speaker stated that of all the girls she asked, only one answered that she preferred to be a girl than a boy. It indicates that college women are not enjoying their own presence and all because they fear the charge of being unconventional, thus losing respectability. Is there any wonder then that young folks enjoy themselves more when alone than in the presence of a chaperone? Or at a picnic rather than a reception? College women who are themselves and break the "canons of propriety" always will be more interesting. Their personality is allowed to develop for they have greater opportunity in finding what their personality is when they are themselves. Babies and children are interesting because the outer evidences reveal truly that which is within.

The reason why the "tom-boy" gets married first is because she is interesting; the sedate and conventional must wait.—Iowa State.

MONEY VS. MAKING GOOD.

In an address made before the Kansas City alumni of the Kansas State Agricultural college, Dr. H. J. Waters, president of the college, made the surprising statement that plenty of money was a curse to the average college student and that it was a blessing for the student to be in debt at time of graduation.

Of course this is much to the contrary to the belief of the average student but, should not President Waters be better prepared to answer such a question as this than would the student who is almost sure to look at it from a one-sided viewpoint? President Waters has the opportunity to see the question from both the standpoint of the student and from his position as head of this great institution.

Look over your friends who have made at least part of their own way through college and over those who have had all the money they wanted while in college. Of which is the greater percent making good?

THE WRONG SPIRIT.

"Cheer, cheer, the crowd's all here," used to be a favorite song with the Aggies when they were out on a pep meeting. In speaking of the actions of some of the rooters at the baseball games Saturday and Monday the little song would probably change to something like this: "Jeer, jeer, the crowd's all here." Once during the football season of 1915 some Aggie rooters wished so much that their team might win that they began "raw-hiding" the officials. The story of the action of those students went all over the country and the taint of those thoughtless actions still clings to this institution. It was not only the umpire in the games just over that some Aggies hooted at but when some Chinese or Tiger made a poor play did just anything that some Aggie did not think was just the thing under circumstances, a howl would go up from the bleachers. The men on the visiting teams said nothing but just the same this action of the few fellows who are hard losers and will try to bluff the other fellow if possible, has had its effect and the sportsmanship reputation of the K. S. A. C. has received the starting of a big black eye unless things change.

THE SARCASTIC PROFESSOR.

The Wisconsin Daily Cardinal, considering different types of faculty members, starts with the sarcastic professor, the kind that makes every slip of a student the butt for a stinging remark.

Sarcasm is not a part of constructive pedagogy. Some men have risen high in the profession of teaching endowed with a caustic use of words, but their success has been in spite of this. And they, too, have their toll of students who were afraid to extend themselves for fear of leaving an opening for an attack.

The sarcastic professor enjoys holding the center of the stage. He revels in his own humor, which many times has left a deep scar on the heart of his victim. He is at home in other's discomforts and he appreciates the setbacks of his students.

The Cardinal describes this type as follows:

"He apparently labors under the impression that students are a legitimate object of his caustic wit. He seldom misses an opportunity to turn the laugh upon some luckless individual. He listens to a recitation with supercilious impatience and then turns upon the student a series of questions and comments which would do credit to a clever attorney upon cross-examination. He seizes upon the timid little idea which the student has advanced, rends it to shreds, and leaves it to an ignominious death while its unhappy progenitor lapses into abashed silence."—Ohio State Lantern.

MID-TERM WEEK.

"Oh, what a happy world," he said, When he arose at break of day; "No cares to bow my noble head, No work to do, no bills to pay." And then he heard within the room A far-off something rise and speak: "Beware, beware of coming doom! Remember, it is mid-term week!"

Like some poor soul without a staff That turns bewildered, worn and sad, He heard, then gave a horrid laugh, Such laughter as bespeaks the mad, And with a scream went back to bed And shut, so that he might not see, His eyes, and covered up his head, Yet heard the fatal prophecy.

"Tomorrow's your exam in Math; The one in English comes next day; You dare not keep the primrose path; Get to your work without delay. On Thursday, French; on Friday Dutch;

Be thankful that you've none in Greek; And if you think you know too much, Remember that it's mid-term week!"

The voice spoke low and speaking died;

The student slowly raised his head, And seeing no one, rose in pride; "Twas but a dream," he softly said, Alas, how vain is mortal hope! It was no dream, he quickly found; Professors soon upset the dope, And then the smoke-ups came around.

And when he cast his eyes upon Those little missives from the dean, He felt, indeed, that hope was gone; That fact, at least, was plainly seen, Future events, before they come, Cast shadows deep on strong and meek;

And eyes see not, and lips are dumb, And all because it's mid-term week. —Exchange.

INTERESTING RELICS MOVED.

Office of Commandant Will be Home of the Curiosities.

Many relics removed from the library last week and now on display in the office of Lieutenant L. O. Mathews, commandant of the college cadet corps, are of historic importance. "Most of the collection was placed there when Lieutenant R. P. Harbord was commandant here. Neither he nor Roy A. Hill, his successor, could find any certain records of their origin," said Lieutenant Mathews. "In digging in what records we have, I found that the metal faced wooden shield was used by the Moros in the Philippines and was brought here by someone who was in the 20th Kansas regiment."

Besides this we have other relics from the Philippines such as an unexploded three inch shrapnel used by the U. S. artillery taken from the battle field of Calocan, and a ten pounder taken from the hull of the Santa Maria, Spanish ship, sank by George Dewey's squadron in Manila bay. A lantern off the old battleship Maine and a hat worn at Santiago, which has been labeled as Colonel Roosevelt's though it is not certain that he wore it.

"The Boxer revolution also contributed a Chinese suitcase which is made up of several sections. These articles will be labeled and remain on exhibition in the office of the commandant. Other relics have been promised by officers now in the U. S. service and the collection will be added to from time to time.

Pail the Cows Every Six Hours

All the Time is Chore Time at the Dairy Department's Barn—The College Hired Hand Gets Lots of Grief.

Heaven would seem a far distant place to the average farm hand of Kansas, if he were employed at the K. S. A. C. dairy barn; chore times comes four times a day there.

Every six hours some of the cows have to be milked. The boys that do the milking wear white clothes, and during the winter changing was a frigid process.

The horses belonging to the department are also taken care of by some of the students. They must be fed and gotten ready for work every morning. Hogs and sheep are likewise among the wards of the student employees. Each morning and evening some of the students who are working their way through college like to the barns to care for the stock. Most of the work which is available in this line is given to the students in the animal husbandry department. It faces the students some of the real problems of the stockman, and helps him to solve them for himself later. The rate of payment for this sort of work is from 15 to 20 cents an hour.

The experiments carried on by the department are performed by students. In one case three young men are entrusted with the milking of 20 cows that are being used in a 20-year breeding test. They care for the calves, weigh the milk, and measure the feed for the cows, and have full charge of the work.

During the winter the three students in charge of the same experiment carried on a hog feeding experiment, with a view to determining the value of a balanced ration.

All the hogs in the test were kept in cement pens in order to keep them from getting any feed whatever, except that which had been weighed out and measured. They were given distilled water, so that there might be absolutely no weight-producing material introduced into their anatomies without the knowledge of the experimenters.

So the life of the self supporting student at K. S. A. C. is not so far different from the existence down on the farm, after all. There is hog feeding as well as fox-trotting, milking as well as football, and verily the currycomb is part of the curriculum.

According to Kansas Teacher There the Life is Most Interesting.

Ray E. Baber, one of the four Kansans on the staff of the Canton Christian college, in a letter to his brother makes the following interesting comment on his life and experience there:

"But about the school itself; it is great. The finest bunch of fellows you ever saw. Fine, serious-minded, eager to please you, and anxious to learn. There is scarcely any problem of discipline, although they sometimes need a little talk, but never in class have I had to speak one word during the three weeks I have taught. They are not thinking of mischief. They are too crazy to learn, to be trying to hatch up mischief. I love the whole bunch already and know I will like them better the longer I know them. Of course I don't have many names learned yet, but I know a great many faces. I have sixty fellows under me for instruction, and they are a fine class, too, the second-year middle school, and one of the best classes in the school. If you like teaching at all, you would like teaching here, for you are with a fine class of people all the time. The faculty is a fine, hearty bunch who make you welcome from the first, and make you feel at home. They are all deeply interested in education or they would not be here; and Christian education too. You feel very keenly the friendly and sympathetic atmosphere. It is great to feel that you are working with people who all have the same motives, and are all working toward one end. If you like teaching at all you will like it here."

CHINESE TAKE HARD GAME BY SCORE OF 2 TO 1

Aggies Make Hawaiians Hustle for the Winning Point—Weather Ideal.

Chinese University defeated the Wildcats, 2 to 1, in a closely contested game, Saturday afternoon, on College field. The weather was near ideal and the bleachers and grand stand were filled with students and townspeople.

Bobbie Cassel called the game promptly at 4 o'clock and Hewey, Bender's curve scientist, started the bombardment against Sullivan's big mitt. Bo and Mark constituted the battery for the foreigners.

In the general change in the sixth, Suan, third baseman for the Chinese, took to the pitcher's mound. Hewey pitched all nine innings with a total of 7 strikeouts to his credit while only nine Aggies went down before Suan and Bo.

Sullivan and Suan registered the two three-base hits and Mark caught another one of Hewey's lax ones for the lone two-base hit of the game.

"Lefty" Williams on first base for his first full game arrested 10 travelers on the cinder path and his performance throughout elicited admiration from the rooters.

With McGalliard on second by errors in the last of the ninth, and Newton at the bat, the Aggies for a moment believed that a ninth inning rally would at least tie the score, but Newton flied out to the Chinese left-fielder who whipped the ball into third for a double put out.

The summary follows:

First: J. Chin to bat. Walked on balls. Ayan sacrificed. Newton to Williams, putting J. Chin on second. Yen Shin sacrificed grounder to Williams, J. Chin to third. Mark flied out to Williams.

Griffiths, lead off man, out short to first; Denman out second to first; Reynolds with a pass to first on balls followed by McGalliard, out, grounder to first.

Second: Suan struck out; Dot a fly to Oliver's glove; Inman struck out.

Newton out, shortstop to first; Oliver singled; Williams bunted; Oliver out, pitcher to short at second; Williams out, short to first.

Third: Ako bunted, out, Hewey to Williams; Bo tagged out by Hewey; J. Chin flied out to Griffiths.

Sullivan three bagger; Hewey singled over second base bringing Sullivan home; Griffiths sacrificed second to first putting Hewey on second; Denman sacrificed a grounder to first, Hewey to third; Reynolds flied out to third.

Fourth: Ayan out Denman to Williams; Yen Chin out Denman to Williams; Mark out Hewey to Williams.

McGalliard fanned out; Newton flied out to third; Oliver flied out to short.

Fifth: Suan three bagger; Dot flied out to Newton; Inman fanned out; Ako fanned out.

Williams out short to first; Sullivan out short to first; Hewey to second on centerfielder's error. Griffiths fanned out.

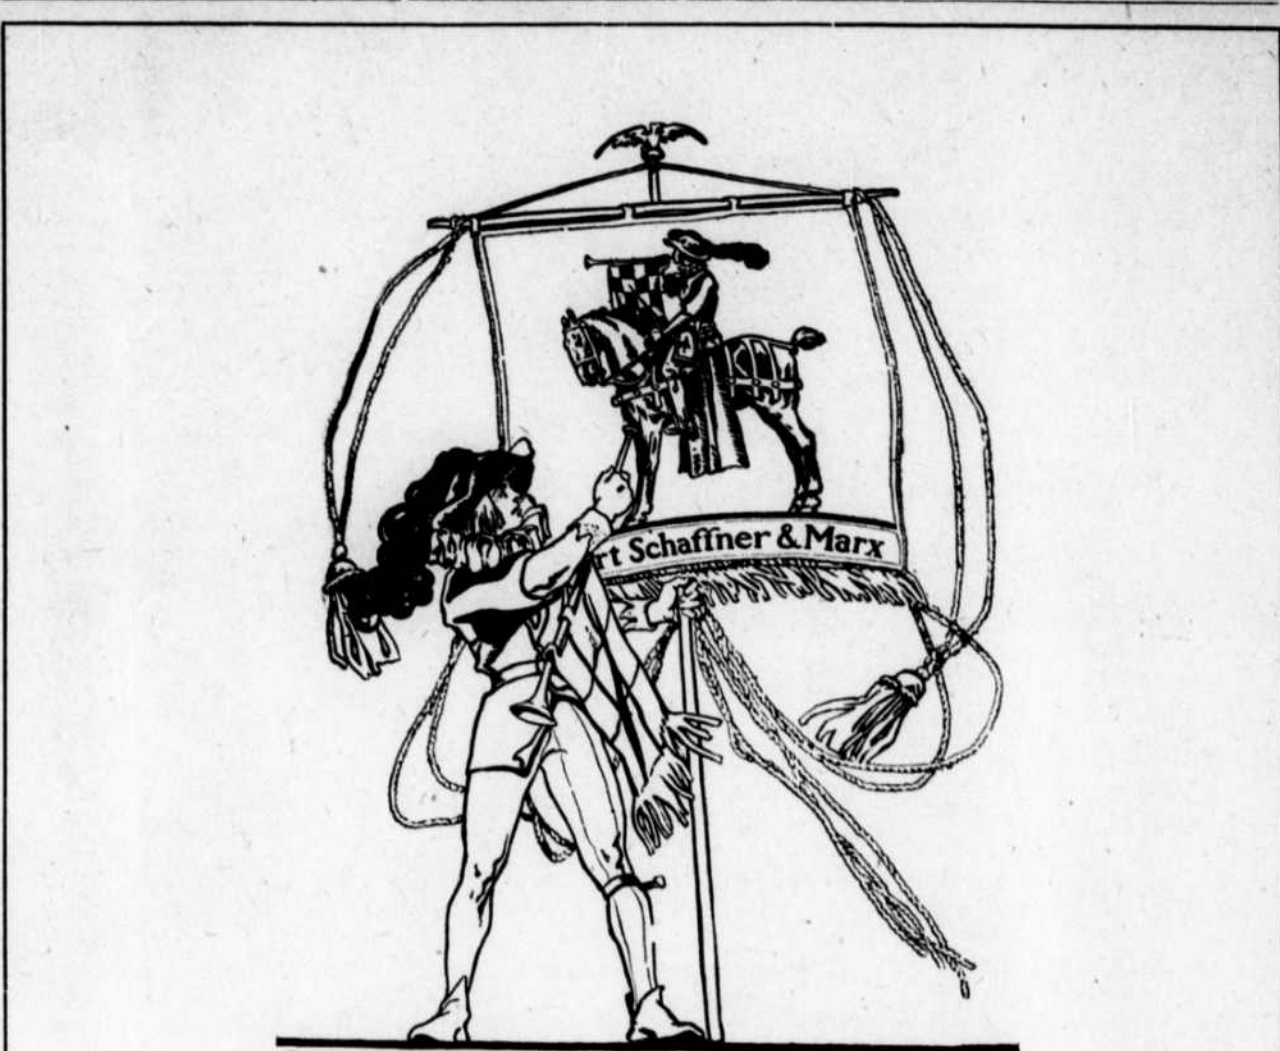

Sixth: Bo struck out; J. Chin to third on Denman's error; Ayan out Hewey to Newton; Yen Chin to first on fielder's choice; stole second; wild throw by Sullivan, J. Chin scoring; Yen Chin advancing to third. Mark a two bagger scoring Yen Chin; Suan put out Hewey to Williams.

Denman to first on a wild pitch; put out pitcher to short; Reynolds out short to third; McGalliard flied out to right field.

Seventh: Dot flied out to Newton; Inman out, Newton to Williams; Ako fanned out.

Newton singled; Oliver singled; Williams flied out to shortstop; Oliver out, left field to third base to second base; Sullivan struck out.

Eighth: Suan flied out to Hewey; J. Chin flied out to McGalliard; Ayan singled; Yen Chin flied out to Griffiths.

YOUNG men know perfectly well that every clothing store wants their trade; we do.

The reason is, if a man's young he's particular about his clothes, for style, for looks; appearances help young men. And if a man isn't young he likes to dress that way; he watches where the young fellows go; and goes there.

There's only one way we know of to get the young men's clothing business; that is, have the style they like.

NO FOR INDEPENDENCE.

Speaker at Y. M. Who Has Visited Islands Speaks Against Freedom.

"Philippine Islands" was the subject on which C. G. Farnsworth, a student enrolled in postgraduate work here, spoke at the Young Men's Christian Association building recently. Mr. Farnsworth has been in the civil service of the Philippine government for several years. His work enabled him to come in contact with the life of the common people, of whom he gave some interesting accounts.

"Politics has much to do with the governing of the islands," said Mr. Farnsworth. "In regard to Philippine independence, I believe that it should not be granted for at least fifty years as it will take that long to educate the people up to the American standard of living, and until then they will not be able to take care of themselves."

"The common people have no definite convictions on independence but the political leaders tell them it is best and of course they follow, not knowing why. These leaders also tell them there will be no taxes when they have their freedom, which is of course a fallacy."

"The business men, principally Chinese, are in favor of the United States retaining the islands."

QUEEN OF THE MAY WILL BE SELECTED ON MAY 9

One Member of Each Class Will Be Elected to Act as Attendant On
The Queen—Election in Same Way as For May Queen

FETE ON CAMPUS MAY 20.

Plans for the election of the May Queen for 1916 have been completed by the committee in charge. At the senior class meeting next Tuesday the class will elect four of its most popular coeds as candidates for the honor this year. On May 9, a week from next Tuesday, tickets for the May Fete, May 20, will be sold and the senior girl who receives the most votes will be declared Queen of the May.

A new feature this year will be the electing of three girls as attendants on the Queen. At the meeting of the junior, sophomore, and freshman classes Tuesday four of the most popular girls from each division will be elected and then in a way similar to that used in the selection of the Queen the most popular woman from each of the classes will be determined. This will make one attendant from each of the classes.

The purchase of a May Fete ticket carries with it the right of a vote for May Queen and also a vote for the attendant from the class of which the purchaser is a member.

The Crown Bearer and Maid of Honor will be selected by the May Queen from among her friends.

Much discussion came up as to whether the May Fete should be held on the athletic field or the campus and resulted in the selection of the latter as the most suitable place for the affair.

At present the plan is to start the affair with a faculty baseball game. Other prominent features will be the processional the crowning of the May Queen, and the passing of 1916—twelve stunts by way of pantomime, solo dances and burlesque. All costumes are to be designed by Miss Hunt and the Domestic Art department.

Miss Mary Weible is chairman of the Y. W. C. A. committee in charge and Henry Borland is chairman of the Y. M. C. A. committee.

Other committee chairmen are: Ella Craft, costume; Vilona Cutler, tickets; Pauline Richards, procession; Josephine Allis, Vert McCoy, Goldie Mitchell, Margaret King, and Sadie Maud Douglas make up a special committee.

TO BUY CATTLE AT COLLEGE.

Former Instructor Would Purchase
Herefords For Experiment Station.

J. D. Lewis, former instructor in animal husbandry at the college is on the hill buying pure bred hereford cattle from the animal husbandry department.

Mr. Lewis also purchased four brood mares in Missouri recently and will take them to the Iberia Live Stock Experiment farm at Iberia, Louisiana, where a test is being run to determine what are the best types of live stock to raise in that region.

"Mules and horses are put on an efficiency test and an attempt is made to determine which is more profitable for the sugar cane section," says Mr. Lewis.

"Herefords and other types of cattle are being similarly tested. They have just completed a test on the feeding value of silage cane tops which were formerly an entire waste. The cattle did excellently.

The northern type of hog is being tried out on the experiment farm. The average native hog of that section weighs about 200 pounds at one year of age, providing it has had plenty to eat."

The farm includes about 525 acres and has been in operation since last year when Congress and the State legislature appropriated money to make the experiment station possible.

The Hon. W. P. Lamberton, State Senator, of Fairview, has agreed to deliver the commencement address for the School of Agriculture. The School of Agriculture commencement exercises will be held Friday evening, June the ninth. There are eight candidates for graduation—One boy from the Mechanic Arts Course, three girls from the Home Economics Course, and four boys from the Course in Agriculture.

AGGIES WIN LAST DEBATE FROM WARRENSBURG HERE

Co-eds Win Over Teachers from Missouri in Last Debate of this Season in Question of Literacy Test.

NEGATIVE TEAM AT MISSOURI

The Aggie co-ed debating team won over the Missouri State Normal girls in the college auditorium last night. The question debated was the restriction of immigration by a further literacy test. The affirmative of the question was upheld here by the K. S. A. C. team, and at Warrensburg, Missouri, by the Normal.

C. E. Persinger, professor of American History at State University of Nebraska was judge of the debate here.

The Aggie team here was composed of: Hazel Crabbs, Lola Sloop, and Mae Sweet, captain. Those from Warrensburg were: Gladys Brown, Mary Jane Carmichael, and Myrtle Walker. They were accompanied by Miss Youngs, assistant of English in the Missouri Normal.

Following the debate the Zeta Kappa Psi debating sorority entertained the Pi Kappa Delta debating fraternity, the debaters, the judge, and the coaches.

The Aggie team to go to Warrensburg was composed of: Lillian Jeter, Hazel Merrillat, and Florence Justin, captain. They were accompanied by Miss Boot of the English department.

Before the starting of the debate last night the Browning literary society gave a very much appreciated trio.

No word had as yet been received from Warrensburg at the time the Collegian went to press.

Head of Engineering Department Is Chairman of Board of Preparedness

A. A. Potter, dean of engineering in the Kansas State Agricultural college, has been made chairman of the board of directors of the Organization for Industrial Preparedness for Kansas and an associate member of the Naval Consulting board. Dean Potter's appointment to the boards came from: Josephus Daniels, secretary of the navy, to whom the dean was recommended by the American Society for Mechanical Engineers.

It is the purpose of the Organization for Industrial Preparedness to make a careful inventory of the industrial resources of each state in the union. This will insure to the federal government the backing of the full industrial strength of the country in case of emergency.

STUDY RHETORIC OF PAPERS.

Class in Rhetoric Studies Life, Judge
And Chicago Tribune

Rhetoric as it is used in newspapers and magazines is being illustrated by one of the instructors in the department of English.

The editorial matter of Judge, The New Republic, and the Chicago Tribune is some of the material used as practical application of a phase of rhetoric now being studied in some of the English classes. One of the magazines was used to show that suggestions and advice need not be in the preacher form to convey the meaning with emphasis. Another was used to illustrate that a paragraph may either be a unit by itself or be connected to the comment of a preceding paragraph.

"I believe these practice illustrations fix more firmly the theory of rhetoric in the mind of the student," said the instructor. "The connecting up of the theory with the practical creates an interest and shows the value of the subject."

AMO, AMAS—AND PROFS TOO

Seniors Will Stage "A Professor's
Love Story" June 13th.

The Senior class recently chose "A Professor's Love Story" as the play which they will present as the annual senior play. This was played at K. U. last year with wonderful success and was a paying proposition on a royalty basis.

All seniors who wish to tryout for the play should see Dr. Emerson, head of the public speaking department, at an early date and make arrangements to try out for some part.

CHICKEN - CHICKEN - CHICKEN.

And There Are Almost Three Thousand at the Poultry Farm.

"Chickens by the thousands" is what a visitor would say if he went out to the poultry farm and saw what they have there. They are not the artificial kind that parade with rooster tails and preserved bird wings and all that sort of stuff but little downy, fuzzy, woolly chicks from "just hatched" to "the two pounder ready for the frying pan."

It is expected that if some student doesn't happen to forget, and let the little fellows get too cold or too warm, there will be 3000 or more by Saturday night.

AGGIES HARD AT WORK PREPARING FOR K. U.

Battling Eyes Must Be Brushed Up
And Warmer Weather Come If Aggies Are to Show Good.

After playing "hang-up" ball against the aggregation from Honolulu in last Saturday's contest, the Aggies showed a complete reversal of form in the first Missouri game losing by a top heavy score. They came back strong in the second M. U. game losing by a very narrow margin. The pitching department of the game was all that could be asked for, but the home team showed an inability to connect with the ball at the right time and the support given the pitcher was very ragged in spots.

The Aggies will have to brush up their batting eyes before the coming contests with K. U., May 4 and 5, and no one realizes this any more than Coach Bender, who is working hard every afternoon to remedy this weakness by putting the whole team through batting practice.

Cool weather the last few days has prevented good workouts but with a few days of warm weather of the July variety the team will have an opportunity to loosen up and cut loose with all their stuff.

Everybody is working hard in preparation for the coming series with K. U. The infield is working together in big league style and the pitchers are rounding into shape in a manner that bodes no good for the Kansas contingent when the Aggies tangle with the former next week.

WITH FRATERNITY PASTIMERS.

With the Result of the Acacia-Sig-
Nu Game Things Look Different.

In a game marked by heavy hitting, fast fielding, and miscellaneous errors the rejuvenated Acacia aggregation of diamond stars romped away from the hitherto undefeated Sigma Nu team Thursday afternoon to the tune of 8 to 4. For four long years the Sigma Nus have battled without tasting the bitter dregs of defeat, but "you can't tell."

Fairchild was sent in as pinch hitter in the last inning—he just missed. Batteries, Sigma Nu: Husted, Woods, and Wells.

Acacia, Jordan, and Bondurant.

Beta-Aztec

Beta Theta Pi baseball stock soared away above par when they trimmed by long drives and wild fielding. The score was 12 to 8 in favor of the Betas.

Batteries: Beta, Hargis and Small. Aztec: Wenn and St. John.

Acacia—College Club.

Professor "Mike" Emerson failed to stop the hard hitting Acacia team in the game between the latter team and the Profs. from the college Club. Jordan featured the game with a home run in the fifth inning. Emerson was relieved by Burke in the sixth.

Batteries—Emerson, Burke, and Aubel for College Club. Reed and Smith for Acacia.

SEARSON ON SHAKESPEARE.

English Professor Will Deliver
Address at Congregational Church.

Prof. J. W. Searson of the English Department speaks Sunday evening at the Congregational Church on "The Social Contribution of Shakespeare." This month the world is commemorating the three hundredth anniversary of the death of Shakespeare. Hundreds of magazine articles, historical sketches, addresses, and poems are appearing in honor of the immortal bard. Professor Searson is the best qualified in Manhattan to speak upon the subject, and no doubt will have a good hearing Sunday evening. The choir will repeat some of the Easter Anthems at the Sunday services.

BAKER TRACK ARTISTS HERE THIS AFTERNOON

Little Known of the Preachers But Judging from the Way They Came Out With Lawrence the Meet
Will Be Interesting.

FRIZZELL'S ABSENCE FELT.

With Captain Frizzell absent on account of his trip to Philadelphia and Wilder and Vandenberg's possible loss due to injuries and sore tendons the Aggie cinder path artists will have to extend themselves to the limit if they hope to bring home the bacon, in the meet today with the Baker track contingent.

Baker and Haskell tangled at Lawrence last week and from the reports that waited their way to Aggieville the team from Baldwin will make life interesting for Merner's men.

Two Bakerites tied for first place in the century dash clipping off the hundred in ten seconds flat. In the shot event the Baker contestant hurled the chunk of metal for better than 41 feet. The time made in the track events was good but with the Aggies going good we should place better than second in the majority of the events.

In the hundred yard dash Merner has three speed merchants from which to choose. Holroyd, Turner and Crumbaker are all in good shape to do the century distance in good time.

Grandfield, Holroyd and Osborn are available for the 220 and for the 440 Merner expects to start Crumbaker and Holroyd, either of these two should finish first with the other close up.

Keys, and Seebor or Chaffee will run the half. Probably to first two named. In the one mile event Merner will start Seebor and Bixby and in the two mile Teeter and Forman will start or the Aggies. All these men have made better time in their tryouts than did the Baker distance men in their recent meet at Lawrence.

In the 220 hurdles Wilder and Welmer will try to fill the vacancy left by Frizzell. Wilder will also try to negotiate the high sticks with Turner or Vandenberg assisting. Bernard, and possibly Drumm, should place in the broad jump. These two have been chosen to do the big leap for the Aggies.

In the weight events Shaper and Billing will push the "big pill" for the Aggies while Wilder and Dodd-rill expect to garner their share of the afternoon's points for the Aggies in the discus.

Enlow and King will try for the pole vault. Baker didn't show much in this event at Lawrence and we ought to place.

Merner has the following men from which to choose the relay squad: Holroyd, Osborn, Grandfield, Crumbaker, Turner and Essick. Any four of these men will make the visitors "set up an' git" if the hope to cop this event.

The squad was given a light workout yesterday and practically all the men are in good condition for this afternoon's meet, with the exception of Wilder and Vandenberg, who have been on the hospital list for the last few days.

AEROPLANE CORPS AT ILL.

Will Be in Connection With Aero Club of America.

The University of Illinois may have an aero club and company in connection with the battery recently organized. This company will probably be composed of men now in the battery and signal corps.

Augustus Post, holder of United States distance and duration records for balloon flying, conferred with national guard officials at the University, recently, in regard to the immediate organization of a club. He has promised the aid of the Aero Club of America, of which he is a member, in establishing such a corps.

Whether the division under consideration will be officially connected with the University or the national guard is not known.

Mr. George Alexander, a former student here and a member of the Acacia fraternity, was in town Thursday. He was a guest of Mr. A. C. Berry of the Sig Alph house for dinner Thursday evening. Mr. Alexander is in the lumber business at Everest.

APRIL 29, 1916.

SHALL WE DO IT?

The campaign for the support of the proposed agricultural mission in China has been progressing during the week but a little less than one-third of the $1,000 needed has thus far been subscribed. It is now proposed to ask the organizations of the college to take part in the movement. A contribution of say seventy-five cents per member from each person in these organizations would mean the great success of the project. No doubt the subscriptions could be arranged to be paid in installments. President Waters has been on the field and has put it before us with the strongest kind of endorsement which makes it certain that any of us who support this movement will not be making a mistake. Certainly such an institution as this should have some part in the great welfare work of the world. Ames supports a man in the Philippines, Penn. State supports three missionaries, one in the south and two in China, and a large proportion of the larger educational institutions and many of the smaller are doing something of the kind. The value to this institution of the world contact afforded by the supporting of a man in China would be of great value not only to China but to our institution as a whole and to each one of us. Is K. S. A. C. going to do her part to make a success of this important project?

FRESHMAN CAPS.

You freshmen who say that you will not wear the purple caps, are you helping to build up the traditions of your Alma Mater to be? Some of you are proud to wear the insignia of the freshman class and others of you seem to think that it lowers your own respect of your exceedingly fastidious nature. To those who object and to those who will be proud let it be called to mind that in these last few weeks of your freshman year that you should become united; you should organize; your athletes should prepare for fall activities; your strong men will begin to step ahead of the weaker; you should begin to exert yourselves as an organization; you are the college men in the making and should be glad that you are here. You freshmen are "preps" only as long as you are willing to recognize the fact that K. S. A. C. was not made in a day—and that day in the year 1916. No one is asking you to be meek. We believe that the meek will inherit the earth but we don't believe that it will be tomorrow. We want you to be united and strong so that you can fight and boost for the KANSAS STATE AGRICULTURAL COLLEGE. That can best be accomplished if you, by some common insignia, are able to greet every man of that organization and get acquainted—you have mutual interests. That is the "why" of the freshman caps.

"The students should watch the bulletin boards more closely for chapel announcements," declares Prof. J. E. Kammeyer, who has charge of the chapel programs.

Prof. Kammeyer insists that everyone should attend chapel exercises, and in order to know what is going on, the bulletin boards at each end of Anderson should be watched closely. Chapel is held on Tuesdays or Thursdays, according to the convenience of the speaker. No meetings can be held during chapel hours without directly violating the college rules.

All notices are posted in ample time for everyone to see them, and because chapel exercises only come once a week, it is the duty of every one to attend if possible.

WHERE KANSAS PIONEERS.

The claim is made for Kansas, and it is not likely to be disputed, that it is the only state in the American Union spending money to increase the business of eastern manufacturing concerns, and of its own local merchants and newspapers. This is to be done through the medium of a news bureau to the maintenance of which the state contributes $10,000, conditional upon the contribution of a similar amount by the newspaper proprietors. The bureau, it appears, is to be operated by the school of journalism of the University of Kansas, its object being to furnish eastern manufacturers with information as to the needs of Kansas people, so that these will give more advertising space to the Kansas newspapers and help to increase the business of the local merchants. It will be seen that the plan is arranged in accordance with the endless chain idea. The bureau supported by the state and the newspapers give valuable information to eastern manufacturers; acting on that information the eastern manufacturers advertise finished products required by the Kansas trade, and the business of the newspapers and the local merchants is increased.

The point of greatest interest here, however, regarded from the viewpoint of the other forty-seven states. Is that Kansas in this matter is doing something which was regarded as entirely out of the province of state government a short time ago. It simply makes plain, for the millionth time or so, that whatever the people of a state or a country want to do in advancement of the interests of their people they can do.

We should not be surprised if, one of these days, Kansas would prohibit within its borders all forms of monopolistic imposition quite as effectively as it now prohibits the traffic in liquor. Kansas, indeed, disregarding all precedent, may be the first state of the Union to fix the price of gasoline and other commodities, and the first to force from the trusts and combines the admission that a state can do such things successfully.—Christian Science Monitor.

SHORT CUTS INTO THE COUNTY BUSINESS URGED BY HACKNEY

President of Board of Administration Believes County Business Could be Reduced Half.

Give counties a large amount of self government and put business short cuts into county business, urges Ed. T. Hackney, president of the board of administration, who was here Tuesday. The cost of county and township business can be reduced more than half and the work be made at the same time much more efficient. Mr. Hackney believes, by transferring from the legislature to county tribunals the detailed problems of local government.

"The tribunal," said Mr. Hackney, "should consist of the five constitutional officers of the county and all other county offices should be abolished, except the probate judge, also a constitutional officer, whose duties should be extended to a general civil jurisdiction up to $1,000, and the number of judicial districts decreased. This would make a tribunal composed of two members elected at large and three by districts.

"The county superintendent should be chairman and be in direct touch with the schools. The district clerk should be secretary and keep all the records of the courts and the county, being ex-officio county clerk and registrar of deeds. One of the commissioners should have the public safety department and should be ex-officio sheriff, coroner, and surveyor and should have charge of the roads, health, and the enforcement of all laws, state or county. Another commissioner should have charge of assessments, taxation and finances, and ex-officio treasurer and assessor. The other commissioner should have charge of the public buildings and the poor, and should do all purchasing for the county, the township and school districts. This service alone would many times pay his expenses in saving on goods purchased.

"This tribunal should be given full power to manage and control taxation, finance, school systems, or propositions, subject to an adequate initiative and referendum by the people."

CLAIM THE TALLEST PITCHERS.

Kansas State Normal and College of Emporia Have Giants.

Emporia, Kan., April 28.—The baseball teams of the Kansas State Normal and the College of Emporia here claim the distinction of having the tallest pitchers of any college team in the state. Of the six pitchers in the two schools four are more than six foot tall, and will weigh within a few pounds of 200, it was stated. Jones, of the college pitching staff, stands six feet one inch, while Crosswhite, Shupe, and Cooper, of the Normal team, all are above the six foot mark.

NOTES OF INTEREST TO ENGINEERS

H. B. Walker, state engineer, left Wednesday for Fort Scott where he will carry on some farm drainage work for the college.

C. I. Phelps of the state engineers office left Thursday for Phillipsburg. He will meet with the county officials to supervise the placing of some of the new county bridges for the coming summer.

The Parret tractor has been ordered to be shipped to the Coats, Kaufman Parret traction company. They will place the machine on demonstration work during the summer. The machine is being prepared for shipment and will be shipped today.

The Denning tractor that has been shipped from Cedar Rapids, Iowa, has not been received by the traction engine department but will be here this week according to reports from the railroad company.

The traction engine department has completed the plowing on Hunters Island field.

W. E. Woolsey, student in traction engines, has been plowing on the Fry farm, three miles west of the college. He is using the Emerson Big "4" and the Emerson five bottom self lift plow.

The Emerson Big "4" will be used on the Franklin engine ride Saturday. The electric lighting plant that will be used to light the wagons will be run by the Cushman high speed farm engine. It will be on the first wagon.

A LAMENT.

When Winter's snows first went away,
And Spring brought out the bees,
My heaves I did cast aside,
And donned my beeevedees.

And now the winter winds return
And blow and blast and freeze;
And though I'm cold where'er I go,
I'll keep my beeevedees.

For woe to him who gets too fresh,
And deems that Spring for good is here;
His friends all stand aside and laugh
And hoot and shout and jeer.

But I will be quite brave and bold,
And sit around and freeze,
Though my limbs do quake, I'll ne'er forsake (gosh-darn!)
My (dear old) beeevedees,
(blithsome)

But when a year from now, my friends
On Spring's advances do rely,
I'll sadly smile, and shake my head,
Wearing my heaves till late July.

HELPED CONVICT NO. 27,440.

Completed College Work While He Was Breaking Rock.

Convict 27,440 at the California state prison at San Quentin, is one of those who have been helped by the Oregon University Extension Department, according to letters recently received from him by Dr. W. D. Smith.

The man took a course in geology and his returned lessons were frequently accompanied by interesting letters to his instructor. The last came a few days ago when the course ended.

"No. 27,440" was a prospector before being placed in confinement. The prison authorities allowed him the chance of working on the state highways with the honor squad, and during the time he was engaged in this he did most of his studying, often under difficulties.

Hard to Find Time to Study.

"My lessons are not sent regularly," he said one time, "but out here on the highway we find plenty of work and after supper the only place to study is our tent where there are fourteen men sleeping, so a fellow has not got much place to study. However, I intend to do my best." In another letter he says, "I am somewhat tired in the evenings and my hands are getting horny, but I am in possession of perseverance and as you are kind enough to instruct me, I shall continue."

Will Be Prospector.

The final letter received from the convict reads as follows:

"In time to come I would very much like to prospect in Mexico and South America, principally for precious stones. As I stand alone in this world as far as relatives go, I have nothing to hinder me only lack of liberty, which in course of time will come my way.

"By submitting the enclosed report of my work in the field of geology, my labors are concluded, in so far as the questions on the instruction sheet sent to me from the University of Oregon.

"I will therefore thank you, doctor, for favors extended to me for something which has been beneficial to me and has given me the opportunity to use up idle hours while otherwise would necessarily be more of a torture to me than moments of pleasure."—Oregon Emerald.

"AUDREY"

Daniel Frohman presents Pauline Frederick in a picturization of Mary Johnston's celebrated novel and play. Released on the Paramount Program at the Wareham theater, Tuesday, May 2nd.

Football practice is progressing fairly well and quite a gang is out every evening booting the pigskin around. Both Bender and Merner find a little spare time each day to give the bunch something to do and with the assistance of Capt. Barnes the gridiron warriors are kept busy. Enough men show up every day to have a light signal practice.

We are selling the class and fraternity baseball teams their balls, bats and other equipment. Who's we? Why Kittell's of course.

A Flunker Why?

Many Students Enter as Freshman But Never Get to Be Seniors—Surely Courses Are Not Too Stiff—Then Why Is It?

Why is it that so many of the students who enter any one of our universities and colleges as freshmen never leave that particular institution of learning as seniors? Is it on account of financial troubles; can it be that the curriculum is too difficult, or is it because the man or woman in question does not realize the seriousness of the problem that must necessarily be solved, until it is too late?

Statistics show that in some of the larger institutions of learning nearly 50 per cent disappear before graduation arrives. In almost every case these young people enter upon their university careers full of hope and confidence; they leave at the end of a year or two possessed of a spirit of discouragement and dejection. Many reasons have been advanced relative to the cause of the failures, but among the different influences there is probably no one that stands out any clearer than the fact that the average student is "unprepared."

William H. Faunce, president of Brown university, recently wrote a short article which he has chosen to style, "Are you prepared to stay in college?" A few of the facts as gleaned by President Faunce, after a careful study of this question are presented at this time for your consideration:

"The trouble with many boys when they enter college is not that they have bad habits, but that they have no habits at all. Not that they are going wrong, but that they are not going anywhere.

"They are versatile, attractive and aimless."

"They cannot focus their minds for an hour on any object or subject.

"They are distracted minds, bundles of scattered energies.

"They know a hundred things on the surface, nothing down to the roots.

"They have ten times as much information as their fathers had at the same age, and yet do not know the meaning of work.

"They are dazzled by a constantly changing world.

"They can tell the name of every automobile that whizzes by the front door, but cannot solve any problem that demands twenty minutes of honest thinking.

"They are charming young fellows to know, but nearly useless in any college or in any business office.

"They are not 'self-starters'; they must be cranked constantly by some employer or teacher, or they cannot move.

To be prepared means to have acquired a real ambition. It means the power to say 'no' to foolish things and 'yes' to the big things of life.

"It means to possess a backbone that is more than a 'chocolate éclair.' It means getting done without 'kiddishness' and resolving to play the man. He who is still a child—in fickle purpose and flabby will—should stay out of the college which will treat him as a man."—Purdue Exponent.

Girls Cook, Write and Act as Stenographers to Get Education

Thirty-one per cent of the girls enrolled at the college earn all or part of their college expenses and 24 per cent are entirely self-supporting, according to figures announced today by college authorities. Among the occupations at which the girls earn money, the report gives: housework, cooking, stenography, china painting, dancing teachers, magazine writers, newspaper writers, proof readers, tutoring specialists, and nursing.

Many girls pay for their room and board by cooking and doing general housework, it was pointed out. The girls prefer to do this kind of work, they say, because it requires only a minimum amount of mental strain, is a rest from study and the exercise refreshing. A number of girls are employed as stenographers and office assistants by the college, it was stated.

The tutoring specialists sell their work by the yard, it was pointed out, and the girls who earn money as nurses and taking care of small children have the most varied experience. "Some nights when the children are sick we sit up all night," explained one of the girls who earns her way through school by taking care of children "and other times they are no trouble at all."

BASEBALL IS POPULAR AT K. U.

More Than 500 Men Try Out for the Varsity Teams.

Lawrence, Kan., April 28.—Baseball has become such a popular sport at the University of Kansas that more than 500 men are competing for places on teams at the school, it was reported. Coach McCarty has a squad of 40 players working out with the 'varsity' team and there is an equal number of the freshman squad, it was stated. Added to these players are those who are playing with the 25 fraternity teams and with the 16 teams that compose an organization known as the "Hash-House" league. Every day that the weather is favorable some of these teams play, it was stated, and all available open space in Lawrence is being utilized by the teams, who play regulation games just or the fun of it.

PHYSICAL TRAINING NEEDED BY THE FARM BOYS OF KANSAS

Changed Conditions of Rural Life Have Resulted in Awkwardness of Movement Says Prof. Lowman.

Physical training for farm boys of Kansas either competitive or other, is advocated by Guy S. Lowman, professor of physical education in the college. This training should be given prominence in every country school.

Changed conditions of rural life have resulted in an awkwardness in movement on the part of farm boys, according to Professor Lowman. The change has been largely from heavy physical labor on the part of the individual to the present type of work which is essentially that of operating machinery, and is causing boys to assume incorrect postures, which are likely to become more or less permanent.

"Farm boys have developed the larger muscle groups to the exclusion of the finer accessory muscles," says Professor Lowman. "The result is that the motory nerves of the brain controlling the finer muscles are undeveloped."

"Gymnastics, educational freehand for the development of the finer muscle groups, plays and games, and competitive athletics are the correctives that should be employed. The competitive athletics should be for the older boys."

WILL MAKE POTATO FLOUR

Milling Department Has Received 15 Barrels of Desiccated Spuds.

If because of war or for any other reason the people of the United States ever have to eat potato bread the Kansas State Agricultural college will have been one of the factors in making it practicable. The department of milling industry has just received from the United States department of agricultural 15 barrels of desiccated potatoes to be milled. This product has never been milled before in a mill which was equipped with purifiers.

"It is only a question of time until at least a part of the people in this country will have to eat other bread than that made exclusively from wheat flour," commented L. A. Fitz, professor of milling industry. "That has been the case in every other country when population has become dense."

The department of milling industry has also a shipment of kafir to be milled. Kafir is now used to some extent in the manufacture of starch. The milling department plans to work upon the grain with the idea of widening its field of use.

MAKES INSPECTION TRIPS

Class in Livestock Management Studies Different Methods Used

The classes in livestock management, and advance farm management expect to make several trips together this spring.

One of these trips will be to the Fort Hays experiment station to study the nature of the experiments that are being conducted there, also the methods of livestock and farm management that are proving the most successful and practical.

An inventory of several farms near Hays will be taken by the farm management class in order to get an idea of the different types of farming that are practical in the state.

Later in the term these classes will go to Kansas City and make a study of the market conditions. Attention will be given especially to the classes of livestock that are in demand, why they are in demand and the importance of supply and demand upon market conditions.

These trips should give the men in the classes some valuable practical information in regard to the livestock and farm management problems they will soon be called upon to help solve, as most of these men will graduate this spring.

Ancient Farming

Herodotus, in the year 450 B. C., said that good cultivation yielded two-hundredfold in the Valley of the Euphrates. Ever in that land of Eden, poor cultivation yielded but fiftyfold.

In 1898, the average Wheat yield per acre in New York State was 21.2 bushels; in 1907, 17.3 bushels per acre; in 1912, but 16 bushels. This does not speak very highly for our Fertilizers.

Average American yield per acre of Agricultural Produce is at present about Eleven Dollars. European yields are more than double.

STANDARDIZING CREDITS DEMAND BETTER WORK

Council of Deans Decide That All K. S. A. C. Courses Must Meet the Requirements of the Best Institutions.

21 HOURS A WEEK FOR PLAY.

Considerable interest and a certain amount of alarm have been created among students by the reports that have reached them of the greater requirements for which they will be held in connection with their college work. The basis for this seems to be the recent action of President Waters and the deans, notice of which has been sent to the teachers of the Divisions of General Science and Agriculture by Deans Willard and Jardine. This information was given through the following letter:

"The Council of Deans, which includes President Waters, has under discussion recently the question of the amount of time that students should be expected to give to study in preparation for recitations. It was unanimously held that three hours per week of actual work, including time spent in attending lectures and recitations and in laboratories, should be the normal requirement for each credit hour. This means two hours of preparation for each lecture and recitation, and also provides for a certain amount of required work outside the laboratory in connection with that duty.

"This view is in accordance with the policy which has been announced and reiterated by President Waters of stiffening our courses. There is no doubt that our students do not give the time that they should to study. The failures recorded are in most instances no indication that the department is expecting too much. It is expected that there shall be a gradual elevation of standards and consequent increase in the work required in many of the departments. It is possible that a few teachers in a few departments may be already exacting a sufficient amount of home study.

"At the meeting of the Deans the fact was brought out that not infrequently work is assigned to students and no further attention is paid to it; it is never referred to in the class or otherwise. Apparently no effort is made to ascertain that the student does the work or actually to make this exercise an integral part of the term's study in the sense that it is incorporated with the remainder of the work and is vital to it. In certain subjects stiffening the requirements upon the students may consist in assignments to reading and study outside the textbook or lectures. When this is done the plan of the teacher should include adequate means for testing what the student does in this way, in order that it may be conscientiously performed and the intended benefit thus attained.

"I also take this opportunity to advise you that the revised provision concerning the grades to be reported for students will not be in effect until next September, and that the significance of the different letters will be published in the Hand Book soon to be issued and in the college catalogue. It is expected that all teachers will be guided by these provisions. The rule concerning exemptions and final examinations is unchanged, that is, only students receiving a grade of "E" are eligible to exemption."

From the foregoing it will be seen that there is ground for alarm on the part of those who do not wish their studies to interfere with college life. However, these requirements are only those which are general throughout the country in standard colleges and universities. On the other hand, in many of these institutions fifteen or sixteen credit hours, instead of nineteen, is regarded as normal work, but in technical courses a larger number of hours is usually demanded. Many feel that it is impossible to give a total of three hours per week for each hour of college credit. A little figuring shows that it can be done, but that students will be obliged to develop foresight and industry.

Leaving Sunday for the student to use as he chooses, the six remaining days contain 144 hours. Counting military science or physical training the normal assignment in most courses would be 19 hours. Allowing three hours for the entire time given to each credit hour makes a demand for 57 hours for his college work. 48 hours allowed for sleep would give eight hours a day; three hours a day for meals would call for 18 hours; the total for these three features of a student's life would be 123 hours per week. Subtracting these from 144, there would remain 21 hours, or three and one-half hours per day, besides all of Sunday, which are available to the student for recreation and activities other than those required by the college courses. This not a great deal, and students will need to plan carefully their hours of study, library reading, etc., in order to find the desired time for other college activities.

In respect to time in which students may now work their way, the Faculty and others have always held that the college courses are formulated so as to occupy profitably the time of the average student. The student who works his way has always been held in high esteem; at the same time it is believed that for one to carry a college course, and at the same time to earn any considerable fraction of the means necessary for his current expenses, he must be unusually strong mentally or physically or both, and must deny himself to a large extent the outside activities, opportunities and pleasures which the college environment offers. These activities and opportunities include much of that which makes college life really valuable, and a period to be remembered throughout life as filled with pleasure never to be duplicated, and the best advisers of students who are working their way urge them to take less than a full assignment of the required college work. While this plan results in prolonging the student's time in college, it enables him to profit by these important sources of culture, development, inspiration and pleasure without which a college student will have missed much of the best of his life.

One of the most imperative problems coming before a student for consideration is that of choosing wisely among the numerous things available to him. No one can expect to be prominent in more than a few extra features of college life, or even to attend all of the public programs offered.

ROYAL PURPLE VOLUME VIII WILL BE OUT ABOUT MAY 20

Publishers Say That the Book is as Good if not Better Than the Books of Other Schools.

Royal Purple Volume VIII, the official publication of the senior class of 1916, will appear on the campus some time between May 20 and May 25. All copy for the book has been sent in for some time and the engravers will have all of their work done in a few days. The most difficult part in the printing of the book is the color work and all of that will be completed this week. It is expected that the entire first one hundred pages will also be finished this week.

From the reports reaching here from the Union Bank Note Co. of Kansas City who have charge of the printing of the 1916 Royal Purple it seems probable that the annual this year will be one of the best ever put out here. This company is also putting out the books of several of the other large universities and colleges in the middle west and say that the K. S. A. C. annual compares most favorably with the publications from these other institutions.

WOULD OPEN DEBATE TO ALL.

Debating Council Seeks Arrangements to Include All College Organizations.

The college debating council, composed of representatives from each of the college literary societies, is seeking an arrangement which will throw forensic activities open to the entire school. At present the budget to pay the debate's expenses is subscribed exclusively by the literary societies and the debaters are recruited from the literary societies.

An arrangement is sought which will divide the expense equally among the various college organizations and will also open the eligibility for the student activity fee passes for next year to these organizations. If the student activity fee passes for next year no such arrangement will be needed, according to J. R. McArthur, head of the English department and debate coach.

Four Pretty Co-eds from Senior Class as Candidates for May Queen and Representatives from Each Class as Attendants Selected.

ELECTION UNTIL MAY 9th.

At class meeting Tuesday, the senior class nominated the following girls for May Queen: Ruth Adams, Mary Polson, Wilma Burtis, and Juanita Reynolds. Tickets are now being sold for the May Fete and voting for the May Queen will be conducted at the window opposite the post office part of the time each day until May 9.

All four of these co-eds were selected by popular vote as four of the six prettiest girls in school during the beauty contest for the Vanity Fair section of the Royal Purple which was held sometime ago. These senior girls are also active in student affairs and are well known by the student body.

The following girls were nominated by the other three classes as attendants on the May Queen: Junior, Meta Brookshire, Mae Sweet, and Laura Ramsey; sophomore, Donna Faye Wilson, Margaret King, and Pauline Richards; freshman, Nellie Yantis, Sarah Drake, and Miss Dietz.

The attendants, of whom there will be one from each class, will be selected by popular vote at the same time the Queen is chosen.

WITH THE CADETS.

No Line Other Than the Department is Doing Excellent Work.

Twenty men have been grouped into a company and will be the nucleus around which the engineering corps will be built in the fall term. These men are "picked" from those cadets enrolled in the courses of mechanics arts.

In the recent inspection impetus was given the engineering company by the inspector, Major Monroe McFarland, who expressed himself as greatly pleased by the machine gun firing and the bridge work.

"All work of the military department in the future will take the form of field exercises and actual war conditions simulated," said Lieutenant L. O. Matthews.

The inspector expressed himself as greatly pleased with all the work but was more particularly interested in the field training than any other accomplishment exhibited.

"This is the only college that has a target range and is doing field firing with ball cartridges. I was only allowed one hour to inspect the entire cadet corps at Iowa State college, while here I have been allowed sufficient time to make a thorough inspection," stated Inspector McFarland.

All energies in the future will be spent training for the special event put on during graduation exercises. This is an annual feature and every cadet will be required to attend drill during these exercises as this is considered as the final test in the military department. Absence will be punishable by a failure for the term.

REUNION OF CLASS OF '11.

Will Come Together Again at Time of Commencement.

A special home coming at commencement or the class of 1911 has been arranged. At a meeting of the class Miss Mildred Huse was elected president and Elmer Kittell secretary. It is planned to have a day's picnic as a part of the reunion, with a baseball game between the married and unmarried men as a feature. Out of 205 members of the class of 1911, 29 are married.

The class of 1911 is hoping that other classes will arrange for reunions the fifth year after graduation and every five years thereafter.

The next meeting of the 1911 class will be held Saturday evening, May 6, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Kittell, 508 North Juliette avenue.

COLLEGIAN BOARD MAY CHANGE CONSTITUTION

Because of Little Interest Shown by Present Members New Constitution and By-Laws Will Be Voted On.

Because it is impossible for as large a body as now composes the Kansas State Collegian board to be as efficient as this board should be it is proposed to make several changes in the present constitution and by-laws.

Under the new constitution there will be but five members on the board and so allow the board to be composed of persons who are actually interested in newspaper work and so insuring better government and more progressive principles to be put into practice by the Kansas State Collegian board.

The new constitution follows:

BIG SALARIES TO ENGINEERS.

Average Graduate of Department Draws $2,000 Each Year.

The average engineering graduate of the college draws $2,600 a year 10 years after he receives his diploma, according to data collected by A. A. Potter, dean.

Through a well organized follow-up system, Dean Potter has in his office information as to the work and salary of practically all graduates of his division. From the standpoint of salary he has divided them into three groups—maximum, average, and minimum. The maximum salaries average $1,800 two years after graduation and gradually run up to $3,400 10 years afterward. The average group begins at $1,200 two years after graduation, rising to $2,600 in 10 years. The graduates in the minimum group get $500 in their second year and $1,400 in their tenth year.

Some of the salaries run high. A man who has been out of college but eight years but who distinguished himself as a brilliant student, is receiving $6,000 a year. Another man is drawing $5,250 per annum. A 1914 graduate gets $4,000.

A GREAT COMBINATION.

Four Master Names in Probably the Greatest Vitaphone Photoplay.

You have all heard of the great productions, $100,000.00 stars, etc., used in photoplays but can you imagine a greater achievement than a play written by Cyrus Townsend Brady, featuring Earle Williams and Anita Stewart and directed by Ralph Ince? This is the invincible combination presenting "My Lady's Slipper," which will be at the Marshall Theatre, matinee and night, Thursday of this week.

It is a wonderful story, laid during the period which Balzac claimed as the love era of the world, and this Eighteenth Century Parisian Romance is woven around the actions of a sturdy American naval officer. The enchanting Parisian atmosphere is upheld throughout the entire production and Anita Stewart and Earle Williams are supported by such wonderful stars as Jos. Kilgour, Julia Swayne Gordon, Harry Northrup, Wm. Shen, and George O'Donnell. Our advice would be to see "My Lady's Slipper."

AGGIES ENTER FIRST

VALLEY TENNIS MEET

Nebraska University Team Comes to Manhattan Tomorrow to Meet the Aggie Racket Smashers.

Nebraska university tennis players will meet the Aggies in a dual meet at Nichols gymnasium at 4 o'clock today. The games will be the first collegiate matches of the year for the Aggies and their strength is not known.

Nebraska has been winning consistently in the net game in the past and has a team that will probably rank high in the Missouri valley. The Cornhuskers meet the Kansas Jayhawkers on the same trip and the meet at Lawrence promises to decide the collegiate championship of the valley. The Kansans have Dix Teachener, a Kansas city tennis expert, and a number of other players of high rank.

The Aggie players who will enter the singles in the Nebraska meet are Knowles, Ellis and Bird. These men finished in the order named in the recent tryouts.

Knowles and Ellis have been selected to play the one set of doubles. Spell, Wood and Lawrence in the order named are the alternates.

No admission fee will be charged but tags will be sold to help defray the expenses of the Nebraskans.

HOLDS LISTER DEMONSTRATION.

Wednesday and Thursday Will See Demonstration on College Field.

The department of farm machinery will conduct a lister demonstration Wednesday and Thursday at a field one-half mile west of the athletic field, if the weather conditions permit.

Representatives of the manufacturers of several different makes of listers will be present and assist in the demonstration, which begins at ten o'clock and lasts until five in the afternoon.

The listers to be used are made by Farlin and Orendorff Plow Co., of Canton, Ill.

Miss Stella Blaine, who won second place in the oratorical contest, has been pledged to the Zeta Kappa Psi honorary sorority.

Miss Vera King and Miss Stella Blaine were called to Minneapolis recently to attend the funeral of a friend.

AGGIES ANCIENT FOES PLAY HERE TOMORROW

Two of the Biggest Games of the Season Will Be Staged Tomorrow and Friday—K. U. Looks Like a Valley Champion.

TEAM IS IN GOOD CONDITION

Two of the biggest games on the Aggies' schedule will take place this week, when the Bendersites battle with the Jayhawkers, on Thursday and Friday, May 4 and 5.

K. U. is in line for the Missouri Valley championship this year having won two games from Ames; both games going into the extra inning column, one going for eleven innings and the other taking fifteen innings. K. U. has a good team this year, although not as strong in the hitting department as in previous years. They have, however, in Craig and Smee, two of the best pitchers in the Valley. Both of these men are experienced box-men and hard to find when going good. They depend mostly upon curve ball for their effectiveness and if the home talent can once solve the "Round-house" delivery of either of these two birds, business will pick up for the visitors.

Coach Bender has been putting the Aggie squad through hitting practice every afternoon, rain or shine, and the results of this training will no doubt be evident when the Aggie Wildcat and the elusive Jayhawk Bird tangle on Alcorn field Thursday and Friday. The Aggie line-up for the K. U. games has not been decided upon but in all probability it will be about the same gang that faced the Tiger nine in their last appearance on the home field.

Bender has not decided who will pitch in the opening game with K. U. as the choice of pitchers will depend somewhat upon the offering made by K. U. Three box artists on the Bender staff will be in condition to start the game on Thursday or Friday; Hewey, Hodgson and Ferrier. Aggie fans now know the ability of Hodgson and Ferrier from their record of last year, and Hewey has already demonstrated that he is of Varsity calibre this spring. It seems to be a toss-up, and Bender will not decide probably until the day of the first game.

If the Aggies get started right and get the jump on the K. U. aggregation there will be a good chance of the Bird from Lawrence returning home minus some of its tail-feathers.

The games will be called at 4 p. m. and a single admission at the gate will be 50c.

MAY 3, 1916.

THE UNIVERSITY'S AIM.

"We propose to train every man and woman to expert service. To that end we shall have as many broad and practical professional courses as the commonwealth needs. We propose to protect these men from the dangers of highly specialized service by giving them a broad cultural training, one which will moralize their outlook, point their responsibilities, make them flexible rather than mechanical in workmanship, give them that imagination, sympathy and tolerance which are requisite to working with, under, and above men.

"Where tradition serves our ends, we shall abide by tradition; where it falls short of function; we shall change it. Our one object is to make the university virile—to make it a forceful and dependable instrument in the efficient and democratic America which is coming. The obligation requires leadership. I grant my part. It also requires co-operation. I ask that part of you that are here. A great university is always the product of great loyalties. Every human factor must do its part with devotion. The public must sustain its freedom and support its efficiency. The regents must translate our social need into its educational plan. The faculty must teach with the courage and the caution of science. The students must be eager to attain the higher strength of its wise disciplines. The alumni must render that affectionate reverence which gives constructiveness and weight to college traditions. Together we are a university; apart we are an intelligent scrap heap. United in purpose, we build against the need of centuries; separated in aim we drift along the current of tradition and transient passion."—From the inaugural address of Dr. Henry Suzzallo, president of the University of Washington.—Daily Kansan.

LING NAM HOK HAU

The above is the Chinese name of the institution where we are to join Pennsylvania State Agricultural college in the department of agriculture which Penn State has had under development for seven years.

Ling Nam Hok Hau means "The Great Southern School" or more literally "The Great School south of the Mountain." It is somewhat equivalent to "The Southern University." The corporate name of the institution is "The Canton Christian College" but it is familiarly known, not only among Chinese but among the faculty and more intimate friends of the institution as "Ling Nam."

Since the editorial of last week, "Shall We Do It?" was written, everyone on the campus seems determined that it shall be done, and done in a way worthy of K. S. A. C. Last Saturday seven literary societies each voted to contribute an amount equal to seventy-five cents per member and other societies are to take up the matter at their meetings next Saturday.

Other organizations are also to take the matter up at their next meetings. The faculty pledges have reached more than $250 with many yet to hear from. And friends not connected with the college have expressed a desire to give such assistance as may be needed.

Mr. Herbert E. House, field secretary of the Canton Christian college, who comes here by invitation to help us understand the proposition more fully says that ten years ago the institution consisted of two bungalows on a few acres of land with less than forty students and six American teachers.

Five years ago on some fifty acres there were, besides a few small buildings, one college hall, one dormitory and two residents all of first class construction with an enrollment of two hundred students. Today on 100 acres that have cost about $50,000—American gold—there are twenty buildings of the first class, 500 students, nearly 20 Americans connected with the staff, and 40 Chinese teachers, six of whom are graduates of American colleges and institutions.

This institution is built on a great idea which in a word is true to the tradition "Do the thing that ought to be done and do it well."

The young but trained educators and specialists who have gone out to the school have been given a free hand. And they have been giving the Chinese what they want. What the Chinese want today above all things is western education. As yet such an education can only be had, with any degree of thoroughness, through a foreign language, and English happens to be the language that China desires.

Therefore, all the work of the foreign staff is done in English. Our representative, Mr. C. O. Levine, will find 200 of the most alert eager pupils in the world ready for the best he can give them the day that he steps on the campus. The great task of American friends of the institution is to support the American staff. The support of the large Chinese staff, all of the dormitories now constructed, and even more than this has come from China in fees and gifts.

The unbounded eagerness of the students, the hearty co-operation of the people and the policy of the school which aims at training leaders is making this one of the great schools of the world. Five years from now K. S. A. C. will be known over the world for what it will be doing in China. It will add to the standing of every graduate of this institution. We students of today are making history of which both we and the state of Kansas shall be proud.

PLAY BY J. M. BARRIE TO BE PRODUCED BY SENIORS

"The Professor's Love Story" Just Received in Manuscript Form, to Be Given During Commencement Week.

The manuscript for the Senior class play "The Professor's Love Story" arrived yesterday and Professor Emerson of the public speaking department immediately began plans for its presentation, as part of the commencement week program. The date of the play is June 13th. The comedy is in manuscript form, consists of three acts, carries a heavy royalty and is the work of the famous playwright J. M. Barrie who is the author of "The Little Minister" and "Peter Pan." "The Professor's Love Story" was played last year at Kansas University with marked success.

Try-outs for places on the cast will begin as soon as the parts can be distributed to the various candidates. Mr. Emerson is very anxious that all seniors with dramatic ability see him at the earliest possible moment and announces that on Thursday evening May 4th, from seven o'clock until eight-thirty, in the old chapel, the play will be read over rapidly. He also asks that all candidates for parts, be present at this reading in order that they may acquaint themselves with the play as a whole as well as the parts.

The cast includes twelve characters and is made up as follows: The Professor; a young professor, single, but blind to feminine wiles. His Sister—once disappointed in love and careful that her brother shall never come under the influence of any member of the fair sex. His Secretary—who wins her way into his affections nevertheless. His House-keeper, a Scotch woman. The Doctor—his old college chum and advisor. Another doctor. A Lord, a Lady and a Dowager; all conspiring to marry the Dowager to the professor. Two Scotchmen, both in love with the house-keeper. The servant.

Those desiring to try out for the play should report to Professor Emerson at the public speaking department immediately.

AGGIES WIN FROM BAKER BY COUNT OF 69 TO 40

Merneries Were Never in Danger of Losing After the Second Event—Scott of Baker the High Point Taker of the Meet.

RELAY WAS EASY FOR AGGIES.

With two Aggie track stars, Frizzell and Vandenberg, out of the dual meet between the Aggies and Baker Saturday, Merner's collection of speed merchants and field artists romped away from Baker with 29 points to spare—a final count of 69 to 40. Baker placed first in both the high and low hurdles, high jump, pole vault, discus and the 100-yard dash. The Merneries whitewashed the visitors in the half, the mile, the 2-mile, and the shot put. Aggie entrants also finished first in the 220 and the 440 and the broad jump. The relay went to the Aggie squad in easy fashion.

The absence of Captain Frizzell and Vandenberg permitted the Bakerites to count more points than would have been possible with these two veterans contesting. In spite of the cool, threatening weather some pretty good time was made in several of the track events. In the century dash, Scott of Baker stepped off the 100 in 10 flat, while A. Seeber for the Aggies ran the 880 to the tune of 21:1, lacking very little of breaking the present college record of 2:1.

Scott of Baker was high point-getter of the meet, garnering 15 points for his team. Wilder and Seeber gathered 10 points each for the Aggies. The result of the meet was never in doubt after the first few events were finished and most of the interest displayed by the fans was in the size of the score the Aggies could run up on the visiting team, and in the time made in the track events.

Scott gave the Bakerites a two point lead when he placed first in the 100 but the small lead wasn't retained very long by the men from Baldwin. On the next event, the mile, A. Seeber and Bixby finished in order named while Osborne for the Aggies ran a pretty race in the 220 finishing well ahead of Kirby, the Baker entry. The score stood 19 to 13 for the Wildcats after the high hurdles were won by Scott of Baker. From then on the Aggies continued to pile up points so rapidly that the scorekeeper lost count and gave up in disgust.

Scott took first in the high and low hurdles for his team but his mates failed to register in the distance events, the Aggies securing first and second in these races. Seeber placed first in the half in the excellent time of 2:14 and then duplicated his performance in the mile winning in the time of 4:46:2. "Old Hoss" Teeter, after his usual four mile warm up proceeded to leave everybody behind in the two mile, finishing in 10:5:1. Teeter's running mate, Forman, came in just behind, and finished second a country block ahead of the nearest Baker entry. The Aggies fared well in the weights when Shaper pushed the metal pellet 38 feet 5 1-2 inches, and Billings, the other Aggie contestant, took second.

First place in the discus went to Stucker of Baker, who hurled the tin platter 113 feet. Wilder placed next with a throw of 107 feet 10 1-2 inches. The pole vault and high leap went to Whitehead and Smith respectively, both of Baker.

Enlow for the Aggies secured three points in the vault while Weimer, Wilder, and Anderson the Baker entrant, divided the last three points in the high jump. Bernard in the big hop covered a distance of 20 ft. 4 inches and secured five points more for the Merneries. Anderson failed to equal Bernard's mark by 4 inches. The Aggies copped the relay in fast time after Grandfield handed the squad a good lead on the getaway. The time in this event was 3:32:4.

Summary:
100-yard dash—Won by Scott, Baker; Holroyd, Aggies second. Time 19 seconds.

One mile—Won by Seeber Aggies; Bixby, Aggies, second. Time, 4:40 2-5. High Hurdles—Won by Scott, Baker; Wilder, Aggies, second. Time, 01:06 4-5.

440-yard run—Won by Holroyd, Aggies, Havinghurst, Baker, second. Time 0:52 1-5.

220 low hurdles—Won by Scott, Baker; Wilder, Aggies, second. Time 0:27 2-5.

The Why.

We are informed that the custodian department has serious neglected its duties in one particular. The spoonholder seats on the north library steps have been so very dusty the last few days that one young man came into library the other night with dirt all over his back and right coat sleeve.

The small town man's idea of ranking as a prominent citizen, is to have a white and gold mug, with his name in red letters, on the shelf of the barber shop.

I sit alone in the twilight,
Forsaken by God and man,
And murmur over and over,
"I'll never eat onions again."

When we run out of legitimate material for this column we usually take a slam at the women.

When the unimportant news and the unwholesome news are left out, the newspaper will not sell.

THE DEATH STROKE.

Dark and dreary was the night,
A storm was drawing nigh,
In vivid streaks the lightning flashed
Athwart the leaden sky.
But see from out a lonely wood
There steals a vengeful man,
A blood stained club is firmly grasped
Within his strong right hand,
And like a spectre from the unknown world
He glides upon his foe,
A murderous light gleams within his eye,

As he makes ready for the blow.
The club is raised, and then—oh!
It falls by the stroke of the club,
And there upon the damp, cold ground
Lies murdered—A Potato Bug.

The moon shone bright, as do the moons in all well regulated stories.
The scent of the new mown hay was wafted across the road and mingled with the odor of lilacs at the gate, according to all the rules of fiction-writing, as promulgated in twelve lessons, at two dollars a lesson, with the manuscripts submitted all corrected, and sold on commission if you wish. Hiram and Lucy had not been engaged long, and they were enjoying the evening to the full. Lucy had but come to the realization that a little coquetry was a fascinating thing, and that it was safe to submit Hiram to a slight treatment thereof. Hiram was trying to say goodbye. He was going further, he was trying to give her a goodbye kiss. But every kiss he gave her she promptly returned, so that they got no where with the transaction. Presently Lucy stepped back from her side of the gate. "Did you like that kiss, Hiram?" she demanded. "Lucy, did I like that kiss?" Hiram wrestled with his vocabulary for a moment. Experience came to his rescue and suggested a simile. "Lucy, that kiss was like going to town and getting a shave and haircut and one of them there massages, and having your boots polished and smoking a five cent cigar, and drinking sod water, all at the same time. Lucy, did I like that kiss? Gimme another." Lucy realized that appreciation could go no further. She complied.

Freshies and Varsity Meet.

Coach Merner announces that Saturday, May 6, the Frosh will take on the regulars on the cinder path and in the field. A meet between the Varsity and Frosh should be even better than the recent meet with Baker. The freshmen have some mighty good material out there this year and the Varsity will have a hard time trimming the under year men. Several of the men on the squad are out after records Saturday and if the track is in good condition and the weather of the right kind there will no doubt be some new records hung up. Collier, the little speed merchant from Marquette, is out after the record in the 220 which is now held by Holroyd at 22.2. In the high hurdles the present record of 15.4 is held by "Mickie" Welch. Frizzell will be out Saturday with the intention of wrestling the honors from "Mickie." Seeber is after the record in the half-mile which now stands at 2:1. Wilder allows that he can leave the iron pike further than ever before. The present record is 121 feet held by Smith. Aggie track fans can get a good line on next year's material through this meet.

Merner is also planning on having an inter-class track meet some time this month, the date to be decided later.

With the Class Baseballers

In the inter-class series the seniors have fooled even themselves having won a game each from the sophs and juniors. The standing of the inter-class teams is as follows:

	Won.	Lost.	Pct.
SENIORS	2	0	.1000
Freshmen	1	0	.1000
Sophs	0	1	.000
Juniors	0	2	.000

High School Meet.

No entries as yet have been received for the state high school track meet, which takes place here Saturday, May 13. Most of the district meets have been decided and entries should begin to arrive by the latter part of this week. The Senior class voted twenty dollars towards defraying the expenses of the meet, in their meeting yesterday. This is the kind of support necessary if we expect to take care of this bunch of high school athletes and show them a good time. The impression these visitors receive when here at the meet will in all probability decide their choice when they finish high school and enter college. Let's put in a good strong bid for them when they come.

THE LITTLE INDIAN MAIDEN.

Contributed by Edith Olive Woodard, Aged Thirteen.

The following letter, coming with the poem below, has induced this paper to violate one of its own rules, and publish the poetry. We are sure the letter and poem both will be of interest to many of our readers.

Spokane, Washington,

April 24, 1916.

To the Editor of the Manhattan Mercury and Republic:

I am a school girl of thirteen and live in the country near Spokane. I have written a poem all of my own which I am sending to your paper hoping you will print it. My grandmother, Mrs. Sarah Woodard, lived in that part of Kansas for a long time and knows many people there. I have an aunt, Lydia E. Jameson, and several cousins in that part of the state. I visited in Manhattan with my grandmother three years ago. We take the Republic and I enjoy reading it. Hoping my poem may be a success.

Yours truly,

EDITH OLIVE WOODARD.

The Little Indian Maidens.

(To Ardath Stough.)

The white moth to the closing vine,
The bee to the open clover,
And the Indian blood to the Indian blood
Ever the wide world over.

Ever the wide world over, lass,
Ever the trail hold true,
Over the world and under the world
And back at the last to you.

Out of the dark of the summer camp,
Out of the grim and the gray,
(Morning waits at the end of the world)
Indian come away.

The wild hawk to the wind swept sky,
The deer to the wholesome wood,
And the heart of a man to the heart of a maid,
As it was in the days of old.

The heart of a man to the heart of a maid—

Light of my tents, be fleet!

Morning waits at the end of the world

And the world is all at our feet!

"BACK TO THE FARM"

Is Title to Play to Be Staged by Students of Congregational Church

"That fellow might as well start the back to the farm movement now as later," is what a recent speaker said in a chapel address speaking of a young man in a certain state school who had proved himself to be unfit for any of the professions or business. The speaker who made this statement is a well known Kansas author who lives in a country town, and when he made the statement he was speaking in an agricultural college to many students who are fitting themselves to go "back to the farm" looking upon farm life as both a profession and a business. Mr. Kansas Author with his primitive idea that a person fit for nothing else is fit for the farm might come to Manhattan May 15 and attend a play to be given at the College Auditorium called "Back to the Farm." He would at once see what a big mistake he made when he used the "back to the farm" phrase as an equivalent for "back to the woods."

The play, "Back to the Farm" is published by the Extension Division of the University of Minnesota to reach just such wrong thinkers as this Kansas author. K. S. A. C. students who are members of the Congregational church here are going to put this play on in the auditorium Monday, May 15. Miss Wilma Kammerer who was so successful in her training of the high school players is training the cast for "Back to the Farm." The characters who appear in the action include all the standard farm life individuals. There is the Swede farm hand, a Swede maid, the school farm, a shirtless neighbor, the overworked scolding farm wife, the thrifty, successful, but back numbered farmer, and the overworked underpleasured farmer's son. The three acts of the play combine these characters to show how a farm run on the old "rob the soil" basis is transformed to a modern farm, run on scientific "college farming" basis.

Sentiment and humor are combined to teaching in "Back to the Farm" not as sugar coat to a bitter pill but as a part of realism of modern farm life. Home economics is also recognized, making a complete presentation appealing to every taste and so pleasing all.

Congregational young people who are giving the play are planning to donate a good part of the proceeds toward the salary of the K. S. A. C. representative at Canton College, China. Announcement as to sale of tickets and reservations will be made soon.

In Society

Formal Spring Party.

The Delta Delta Delta sorority were the hostesses Saturday evening of their annual spring formal, which was given in Harrison hall. The rooms were prettily decorated with palms, ferns and garden flowers and the color scheme of old rose was carried out. The reception rooms looked attractive with cozy corners, comfy chairs and tete-a-tetes. There were several favor dances, one the bean bag dance, another the America favor dance, where the girls wore George Washington hats and the boy had flags.

In the last dance, the May dance, the girls carried small crepe baskets filled with confetti, the lights were lowered and the twinkle of flashlights, favors for the men, gave the effect of a moonlight dance. Punch was served during the evening and following the party a two course luncheon in which the rose color predominated, was served at Harrison's.

The chaperones for the evening were Dr. and Mrs. Edward H. Reiser.

The out-of-town guests were: Miss Ethel McClanahan of Kansas City, Miss Helen Blanc and Miss Dorothy Park of Emporia, Miss Gladys Burris and Miss Jane Flynn of Chanute, Miss Hallie Clark and Miss Lucille Sage of Lawrence, Miss Irene Broughton of Clay Center and Charles Clark of Washington.

Mrs. Walters Entertains

Mrs. Henry Jackson Waters entertained at her home 2 Park Road, Monday evening at dinner for the senior members of the Pi Beta Phi and Chi Omega sororities. Yellow and white were the colors used by Mrs. Waters in the table decorations and were also carried out in the menu. The centerpiece, was a graceful basket of sunburst roses and ferns tied with yellow satin bows, about which were placed the yellow tapers in crystal holders. Narrow ribbons led from these to the small mint baskets marking each place.

Mrs. Waters' guests were Mrs. E. L. Holton, Miss Eva Lawson, Miss Marie Story, Miss Florence Jones, Miss Margaret Fuller, Miss Louise Greenman, Miss Corinne Meyers, Miss Edith Undergraff and Miss Annette Perry.

Informal Dinner.

The Chi Omega sorority entertained informally at dinner Saturday evening Miss Dorothy Park and Miss Helen Blanc of Emporia. A large bowl of white carnations, banked in smilax, with smilax runners to the ends of the table, formed the centerpiece. Yellow May baskets, attached by cardinal and strow ribbons to the centerpiece, marked the places, and small hand painted May baskets were used for place cards.

Oh! the plate glass windows! What would the girls do without them? Have you ever noticed a girl when she passes a shining store window? If she is with a man, she will shyly glance at the reflection of herself, pat a curl into place, or straighten her collar. But if she is alone, the window will suddenly appear to hold many things of vital interest to her. She will stop and "study" each article very diligently, and then when she has taken a thorough inventory of them (or rather herself), she heaves a sigh of contentment, and moves on.—Daily Nebraskan.

"IN THE SPRING A YOUNG—"

But This Time It Seems That the Weather Stimulates Appetites.

Bright spring days bring more than the traditional trepidulous fluttering to the heart of the student on college hill. It brings tennis, baseball, hikes, golf, football practice and all of the other clean sports which develop healthy appetites and the college cafeteria under the direction of Miss Treat becomes even more popular.

At the end of the third hour the first diners stand before the menu board in Kedzie hall carefully and critically surveying the list of attractions. Some descending the stairs, with no intention of dining spy a favorite salad or pie and stop in to try it out.

The rainy moon always sends the biggest crowd to the cafeteria, filling every available chair. Supper on these rainy days is a lighter meal. In general the noon crowd is about the same size, usually from 355 to 385. But with brighter days the cafeteria supper has grown in favor. A large per cent of the men of the faculty take lunch on the hill and at night are accompanied by their families to the college cafeteria. From 150 to 175 people eat there each night which, with the noon numbers makes a total of about 15,900 people served during the month of April.

AGGIES LOSE TENNIS MATCH TO NEBRASKA

But Discover That They Have Material for Championship Title of Missouri Valley

The Aggies lost the first inter-collegiate tennis match with Nebraska Wednesday, but they gained the knowledge that they have one of the best tennis players in the Missouri Valley.

Knowles in defeating Chatt of the Cornhusker team, in the singles, established a record for himself, as Chatt is acknowledged as the premier tennis shark of the valley. Chatt has played tennis in matches all up and down the valley for the past few years, finding few that could stand up against him. The Aggie rooters are now sure that in an All-Missouri Valley tournament, Knowles would bring honor to his school if not win the championship title.

Knowles won his match of singles from Chatt 2 to 1 in a smashing contest, in which clean tennis was the feature. Ellis of Nebraska defeated Ellis of the Aggies 2 to 0 and Gardner of Nebraska took his set of singles from Bird of the Aggies by the same score.

The best event of the tournament was the set of doubles between Knowles and Ellis for the Aggies and Chatt and Ellis for Nebraska. The first set was won by the Cornhuskers 6 to 2. The second set was won 5-7.

"It was a good match," said Athletic Director Bender. "The Nebraska boys have the edge on us in that they have been playing tennis more than have the Aggies, but now that we are well started and know where we are in the matter, I see no reason why next year will not show us as well up in the schools of the valley in this form of sport. I am particularly pleased with the work of Knowles. He looks like a comer to me."

EMMERT TO BE FARM AGENT.

McPherson County Employs a Member of the Class of 1901.

The appointment of V. M. Emmert, a graduate of the agricultural college in 1901, as county agent for McPherson county has been announced by Edward C. Johnson, dean of the division of extension in the Kansas State Agricultural college.

After graduation Mr. Emmert spent seven years in general farming and raising purebred livestock near Blue Rapids. He later spent four years in farming in Texas. In 1912, he left Texas to become teacher of agriculture in the Agricultural High school at Doran, Minn., and was elected teacher of agriculture in the schools at Buffalo at an increase in salary the following year.

McPherson is the thirteenth county in Kansas to employ an agricultural agent. Three other counties have completed the organization of farm bureaus and county agents will be appointed soon.

John R. Anderson, who was obliged to return to his home in Ottawa before the end of the winter term on account of illness, expects to return to Manhattan soon to finish up his work in his winter term's subjects.

ARE SURE THAT AGENT WILL NOW GO TO CHINA

C. O. Levine, Graduate of the College in 1914 Will Sail for Canton, China, About the First of Next August.

PRESIDENT WATERS PLEASSED

The Kansas State Agricultural college will have a representative in the Canton Christian college at Canton, China. "The success of the undertaking has now been assured," Dr. H. J. Waters announced recently.

For some weeks efforts have been made to secure funds to send an "agricultural missionary" to the Chinese institution as a representative of K. S. A. C. President Waters visited the college there, on a trip to the Orient three years ago, and has lent his hearty support to the movement.

Money Is Raised

Dr. Herbert E. House, who is connected with the Oriental college, has been at the college for some time, endeavoring to arouse interest in the work. Between $500 and $600 has already been raised by subscription among the faculty and students. The literary societies and the fraternities are preparing to co-operate in the movement by raising a fixed sum of money.

C. O. LEVINE

Some of the Manhattan churches are also assisting. The younger members of the First Congregational church are to give a play in the near future, the proceeds to go to the fund. Altogether, it is expected that twelve or thirteen hundred dollars will be raised and applied to the work.

Commends Spirit

C. O. Levine, a graduate of the agronomy department in 1915, will go to the Chinese field. He is now on his farm in Marshall county. His duties in China will be the teaching of agriculture to the Chinese students at the college.

Dr. Waters commended highly the spirit of the students and faculty in their support of the project, in making the announcement.

MAKES GOOD THERMOMETER

Section in Walk Rises and Falls as Does the Temperature.

The bump in the walk north of the library causes many a student to imagine that he is ascending a steep hill when he nears the old stump.

This peculiar physical phenomenon may have been put there by order of the faculty to demonstrate to the young engineers the theory of expansion. Anyway it has proved a stumbling block to many and caused the downfall of hundreds of heavy "No. 1"s as the crowd surges down the hill to lunch.

On cool damp days the walk is not raised but when the sun shines bright and the atmosphere is warm then there is an elevation.

WASHBURN PRESIDENT HERE.

Will Speak at the Congregational Church Twice Tomorrow.

President Womer of Washburn, speaks at both the services at the Congregational church tomorrow. President Womer before coming to Washburn was one of the leading Congregational preachers of the middle West. The short time he has been at Washburn President Womer has shown himself to be able to win the loyalty of the students.

Dr. Margaret Caldwell of Waukesha, Wis., visited her nephew, Charles L. Caldwell here, Wednesday.

CUB REPORTERS ADVISED TO PRAY FOR LESS ROPE

Such was the Advice Given by Strickland W. Gillian, Author, Lecturer and Humorist to Students Thursday Morning.

WILL HANG THEMSELVES SURE

"The last thing that a cub reporter should pray for is more rope," said Strickland W. Gillian, author, lecturer and humorist in speaking to the students of the industrial journalism department Thursday morning.

"Just as sure as you are born, give the cub plenty of rope and he will hang himself. The thing that he should pray for is seventy people to go over his stuff and keep him from getting into trouble."

Mr. Gillian spoke at the chapel exercises at 9 o'clock, without announcing any subject. His address there was chiefly composed of a series of anecdotes illustrating various points in connection with humor, the sense thereof, and the human idea of it all.

Was Funny Talk

Probably a thousand students and the majority of the faculty attended the exercises and neither student or faculty member failed to laugh. Some of them even laughed more than once.

Distracted among the funny stories with which the speaker regaled the audience were a few epigrams which appaled even more than the jokes themselves. During the introduction Mr. Gillian commented on the rule of Billy Sunday against coughing in the audience. "The only way Billy wants you to cough in an audience is up," said Mr. Gillian. "If there is any one present who cannot remember the time when he or she was a fool they are still one" was another tickler. "When nature operates for the swelled-head no anesthetic is used" he assured his audience. "Humor is a mordant for truth and philosophy," he said.

He objected to the practice of calling all people who go about smiling and assuring others that everything is all right, optimists. "Many times they are not optimists, they are cheerful idiots," he said.

Praises Small Paper.

During the fourth hour he addressed several classes from the journalism and other departments, in the old chapel. Again he chose no subject, but mentioned the fact that he was going to speak chiefly on the art of conducting a "column."

Other phases of reportorial and editorial work received attention, however, during the talk, all sandwiched with bits of actual experience from his own life. As related by Mr. Gillian, the incidents appeared hilariously funny to the students. He invited his hearers to question him freely on anything in which they might be interested and a few responded.

"The small paper is the best field in which to begin work," he said. He explained that this was true because after writing a story in a small town, the reporter is quite apt to meet the subject of the story at the door the next day, and if the story was not accurate, "he kicked all over the place," whereas in the city a reporter may be able to escape for weeks without any encounter.

"The three essentials for newspaper work are first: accuracy, second and third, the same thing," was the creed he advanced.

Mr. Gillian has been at the college before in the role of a lecturer. He is the author of "Off Again, On Again, Gone Again Finigan," as well as other humorous material. He is at present on the staff of the Baltimore Evening News.

H. E. GIRLS TO K. C.

Co-eds Will Visit Factories and Schools There Next Week

The Junior Home Economics girls will spend May 8, 9, and 10, in Kansas City visiting factories, bakeries, hotels and high schools. The girls will be under the supervision of several instructors of the Home Economics department. About forty-eight girls expect to take the trip.

One afternoon will be devoted to shopping and Tuesday night they will hear Billy Sunday.

PLAN INCREASES INTEREST

Ray Gatewood, Instructor in Animal Husbandry Posts Records.

A new feature has been instituted in the stock judging class in breeding types and classes which Ray Gatewood, instructor in animal husbandry, is conducting this term which greatly increases the students interest in judging.

A large bulletin card with the names of all the students in the class shows the best records in judging made and the standing of each student in regards to his accuracy in judging.

Three hundred is taken as the basis for the perfect judging and placing of every class of animals that has been brought before the students and upon this basis, the accuracy of the student is determined.

Each student determines the placing of each class without consultation or conversation with any other members of the class. At the close of the period, Mr. Gatewood gives his placing of the animals together with a discussion of his reasons for doing so. Cattle and sheep have been considered thus far this term, the pure bred stock of the college furnishing some of the best representatives of the breeds in the state.

COACH MERNER TO COACH BASKETBALL AT COLUMBIA

Success in Work Here Attracts Attention of Big Eastern School—Will Finish the Season Here.

Carl J. Merner, who has been coach of track and basketball athletics and assistant football coach at the college for the past three years, has accepted an offer from Columbia university, New York City, to coach basketball in that institution at a yearly salary of $2,000. Merner's resignation was handed to the college athletic board some time ago but the board hesitated in releasing him before attempting to meet the Columbia offer.

The resignation takes effect September 1. Merner will continue his work with the Aggie track squad the remainder of the year. With the offer of $2,000 made to him, as basketball coach, Merner also received an offer to coach summer football at the big university at a salary of $500. The Columbia offer is several hundred dollars in excess of the amount that could be paid him by the Aggie board.

Merner's success in producing winning teams will make his departure a sad one for followers of Aggie sport. The Merner track team last year defeated K. U. in track, the first time that feat had ever been accomplished by an Aggie track squad. During the past season his basketball team was acknowledged as the best five in the Missouri valley. Nebraska was the only team that did not feel the sting of defeat from the Aggies, and Aggie rooters will always remember the fight with the Cornhuskers.

Merner had an offer from Leland Stanford university to be in charge of the track team there during the past season but decided to continue the year with the Aggies before he accepted. Then came a still larger offer from the eastern college and Merner's resignation followed.

COLLEGIAN BOARD

There will be an important meeting of the Kansas State Collegian Board in K 56 Thursday May 11, at 9 a. m. The purpose of this meeting will be to elect the Collegian staff for the coming year and to vote on the proposed new constitution and by-laws.

AGGIES DROP A PAIR TO THE JAYHAWKERS

Errors and Poor Hitting Together With Timely Hitting by the Gang from Lawrence Was Fatal to the Bendersites.

PITCHERS WORKING GOOD.

Everybody is sick. No wonder when it at first looked like the Aggies were to at last clean up on their ancient rivals from up the river. The final result was that the Aggies lost both contests by narrow margins, the first going 4 to 2 and the second one to the tune of 4 to 0.

First Game.

The lucky seventh worked the wrong way for the Aggies in Thursday's contest with K. U., when the home talent blew skyward in that inning long enough for the visitors to slip two runs across and salt the game away. By the close score of 1 to 2 the aggregation from Lawrence took the opening game of the series in one of the best exhibitions of the national pastime seen here this season.

Bender chose Ferrier to do the twirling for the locals and George was sure "right." Only four hits were secured off his delivery and two of these were of the scratchiest variety. The elongated architect pitched airtight ball all the way through striking out five Jayhawkers and allowing no one free transportation to the first station. With clean fielding behind him he would have won his game hands down. One "Red" Craig was also there, but his bottle of control seemed to be empty most of the afternoon. However Craig pitched good ball despite his wildness. Allowed only three hits, one free pass and fanned five Aggie batsmen. Griffiths played a brilliant game for the Aggies at short cutting off men at first on blows that were labeled hits.

The Aggies got the jump on K. U. in the first inning. Griffiths, first up, secured free transportation to first and went to second on Craig's wild pitch. Denman sacrificed Griffiths to third and the diminutive shortstop scored on Reynolds' hit to center. Reynolds was caught stealing second and Newton ended the inning by flying out to Wood. The second and last score came in the third when with two in the mud, Griffiths received life at first on Craig's bobble, stole second and scored on Denman's hit. Denman was called out trying to reach second on the throw in. In the fifth the Aggies threatened to score when Harvey hit to Wood who heaved the ball into the first base bleachers, allowing Harvey to get to second. Sullivan sacrificed Harvey to third. With two down and Harvey resting on third, Ferrier took three swings, and the lid was on.

The Aggies held K. U. scoreless for four innings. In the fifth with one down and Weltman safe at first on a fielder's choice, Newton dropped Sullivan's perfect peg to second to catch Weltman. Chase next up hit a roller to Newton who allowed the ball to trickle thru' his fingers, permitting Weltman to score on the play. King hit to Ferrier who cut Chase off at second. L. Weltman hit to Newton forcing King out at second. And then came the seventh—Wood first up in the seventh was safe at first when Ferrier and Williams failed to handle the ball cleanly. Went to third on Williams' miff of Smee's grounder. Since took second on the next ball pitched and Wood scored on Weltman's high fly to McCalliard. Smee taking third on the throw in and scored on Chase's weak infield hit. Chase stole second. King hit a high fly back of Newton who made a pretty catch of it. L. Weltman hit to Newton who juggled the ball long enough to coax Chase away from third who was thrown out at the plate by Newton. K. U. scored again in the ninth. L. Weltman was safe at first on a fielder's choice, secured second on Sullivan's bad peg, and scored on Chase's two-bagger to right center.

Second Game.

Errors by the Aggies and opportunity hitting by the Jayhawkers spelled defeat for the home crew in Friday's game by the score of 4 to 0. The Aggies presented the game to the visitors on a platter in the fourth inning when the visitors scored two runs on an error a walk and a three bagger. The locals failed to hit at

SIMPLY BUSINESS

Why are you attending college? That is such an old question that the writer is almost ashamed to ask it but it is so true that many students do not realize what they are here for that the question may as well be asked over and over until some students realize that the question is for them to answer. Not long ago one of the deans of the college made the surprising statement that it made little difference which course a man graduated in from college just as long as his college life has been conducted along the proper lines. The dean said that a man could do fairly well in law even if he had graduated from engineering and visa versa. Going to college is just as much a business as is building a railroad or running a department store. The main idea of college is not always to teach concrete facts from text books but the object is to train young men and women to do things in a business-like way.

The business man can not put off things until it suits his pleasure to do them. He must do them at the proper time no matter how many things there are he might like to do later. If the student in college does not hand in his note books on time or attend to his other duties in the best possible manner then it is about ten chances to one that the same system will be followed in latter life. The result is obvious.

BUT AT 1 A. M.

Now doth the freshman behold, as in a dream, the old homestead, whereunto he shall return in some six weeks or so, and thereon do the heavy. In his mind there riseth up an existence free from profts and quizzes, where the flunk slip flourisheth not, neither doth the notebook obtain.

Nor is there any shadow of laboratory, nor verily, only the labor. There he crows to be palled, and corn to be cultivated, but the college bell ringeth not, neither is there doubt about the assignment for tomorrow. And verily, the old man bawleth him out, but the bawlings out of the old man are not to be compared with the bawlings out of the profts, and drill likewise is lacking.

Wherefore the freshman rejoiceth, and tackleth the last half of the last term with pep and exuberance.

A MATTER OF COURTESY.

Due to lack of proper social life students of Friends are lacking in common everyday courtesy. Some students persist in infringing upon the rights of others in the classroom recitations, in the library, and in the chapel exercises. The individual who can talk the loudest, not the real thinkers, obtain the right of speech. This is bad for the students, the faculty, and the college.

To people who visit our college, but who do not know us, we undoubtedly furnish amusement. We should seek to avoid this evil at once for a college is judged by the kind of material it graduates. Think over this: "Have you, as a member of the student body of Friends, ever stopped to think of the opinion of a visitor to our college or chapel exercises obtains and carries away? Do you realize that your actions help or hinder the growth of our college?"

It appears, at chapel time, that we revert back to the grades, or further, in our deportment. We lay aside our decency, tact, dignity, thoughtfulness and, apparently, our self respect and "fear loose." It takes from five to ten minutes daily to so adjust this "bedlam" that the exercises may continue. Think of the time and opportunities wasted. These actions cannot be the result of thoughtlessness, for we are old enough to know what is right. Let's quit this foolishness at once or within a few short years everybody will be as foolish and disrespectful as we are. These actions are hurting both us and the good name of our college. High ideals are not compatible with this type of manhood and woman hood. We must maintain a high standard for ourselves and our college.—University Life.

ONLY A NEWSPAPER GUY.

I see a man strut through a jam in a hall,
Take a seat 'mid the speakers and chat with them all.
"Is this Murphy?" I ask. "that the crowd he defies,"
"No," says someone, "He's one of the newspaper guys."

I see a man push his way through the line
Of the cops, where a fire brightly glimmers and shines,
"Chief Kenion?" I ask, but a fireman replies,
"No, no, why that's one of those newspaper guys."

I see a man start on the trail of a crook,
And he scorns all assistance, but brings him to book.
"Mr. Burns?", I inquire. Someone scornfully cries—
"Burns?—Naw. He's just one of them newspaper guys."

I see a man walk through the door of a show
Where great throngs are blocked by the sign S. R. O.
"Is this Goodwin himself, that no ticket he buys?"
"Well, hardly. He's one of those newspaper guys."

I see a man knock on a President's door,
And the sign, "No Admittance," completely ignore.
"Is this Morgan that privacy's right he denies?"
"Morgan? Shucks! It's just one of those newspaper guys."

And some day I'll walk by the great streets of gold,
And see a man enter, unquestioned and bold.
"A saint?" I'll inquire, and old Peter'll reply
"Well, I should say not, he's a newspaper guy."

TICKETS ON SALE MONDAY.

"Back to the Farm" Promises to Be a Popular Production.

Tickets for the play "Back to the Farm" will be placed on sale at the college next Monday. Reservations will be made later in the week. This play was given by students of the Kansas State Normal last winter. Here is what the Emporia Gazette said about it at that time:

"Merline H. Shumway's play 'Back to the Farm' presented by the Normal students drew the biggest crowd of the season. The play which was copyrighted by the University of Minnesota in 1914, had its first Kansas audience last night. Its success rivals the reports of its successes in Minnesota. Probably no play ever had a more evident purpose.

"The great change on the Merrill farm, as pictured in the play, was brought about by 'Merton Merrill,' a progressive son of 'Charles Merrill,' a crabbled farmer of the old school. Young Merrill left the farm because of intolerable home conditions, only to return after his education to build up the run-down land made barren by the antiquated methods of the father. The play was pathetic, but on the whole was intensely humorous. A charming love story ran through the play."

The proceeds of all tickets sold on the campus for this play go to the support of a Kansas Aggie man for Canton Christian College in China.

SENIOR PLAY PROGRESSING

All Arrangements Are Practically Completed and Thinkers Look Fine. Arrangements for the play to be put on by the senior class are progressing rapidly. Thursday evening all candidates for parts in the play met with Professor Emerson and went over the whole play. The play is one of the best of J. M. Parrie's productions and is full of good clean humor and rich comedy. The seniors consider themselves fortunate in being able to secure the right to put this on during commencement week.

Parts will be given out the remainder of the week and try-outs will commence next week. The cast will probably be chosen early next week and rehearsals begun immediately. The date the play is to be given is June 13 and barely enough time is left to whip it into shape. All who have not yet conferred with Professor Emerson in regard to parts do so at once.

STUDENT ACTIVITY FEE IS DECLARED UNCONSTITUTIONAL

Measure Board Had Considered for Aiding the School Activities Cannot Be Passed.

Dr. H. J. Waters, president of the college, has been informed by Attorney General Brewster that the student activity fee, which the board was considering as a measure for next year, would be unconstitutional.

The board has been considering for some time the advisability of levying a student activity fee of $1.50 against each student enrolled in the college. This money was to be used by the Collegian, the college paper, the athletic association, and the debating association. The payment of the fee would have entitled the student to a season ticket to all athletic contests and debates and would have paid their subscription to the Collegian for the year.

The idea in having the fee was to promote interest in the student activities. In the past it has some times been a struggle for the students to maintain their paper and the athletic and debating associations. So many of those who enroll refuse to help support any of the above activities that the board thought it would be a good thing if the fee could be made a part of the regular school expense. With all of the students enrolled supporting the organizations they would be able to accomplish many things for the good of the school and town.

The attorney general has declared it unconstitutional though and the board will have to find some other means of aiding the organizations.

CAN YOU IMAGINE IT?

How Would You Be Affected If This Awful Thing Had Happened To You?

The following touching little—really it can't be named—was found in a May basket not long ago. No definite facts have been obtained yet as to just how the young lady finder acted when the piece was read but it is understood that she has some chance of recovery:

Girl I cherish, I love you indeed,
My heart has everything, but one great need;
That is to embrace, to caress you more,
Embark on life's ship, for life evermore.

My mind is adrift toward you tonight,
Your persuasive looks bring to mental sight
A vision so lovely, and exquisitely fair
That inspires me to this deed to dare.

I am waiting for you—so fair and free—
I am bring to you, with a heartfelt glee
A token of my reverence, I say,
To you, the Queen of this happy May.

I cannot love you with a jingling purse,
I can adorn you with such lavish verse
And love you still, and love I do make;
Come and kiss me for dear Heaven's sake.

Refrain—
Come and kiss me, or else you'll miss me,
Sweetie and deary I'll make you cheery;
Come you happy bunch, come, do with me lunch
And give me of your grace, or kisses from your face.

BOARD MAKES SEVERAL CHANGES IN FACULTY

Several Given Advancement and Some New Members Hired—Taylor on Leave of Absence.

George S. Knapp has been made superintendent of the Garden City Branch Experiment station. Mr. Knapp is a graduate of the college, and since the resignation of Superintendent Malcolm Sewell has been acting superintendent of the station. He is doing valuable work in irrigation and other investigations.

R. K. Bonnett is to become instructor in soils, taking the place of Page Bledsoe, who has resigned. Mr. Bonnett is a graduate of college and receives a master's degree this spring from the University of Wisconsin.

Raymond G. Taylor, assistant professor of history, has been given a leave of absence for a year to conduct research in agricultural and industrial history in Yale and Harvard universities. Mr. Taylor holds degrees from the University of Kansas and the University of Chicago.

Miss Minnie Sequist of Eskridge, a student in Stout university and a graduate of the state normal school, will become specialist in home economics in the division of extension next September.

T. S. Townsley, a graduate of Purdue university, has been appointed assistant in poultry husbandry.

GIRLS LEARN TO SWIM.

Miss Loring Teaches Co-eds Fine Point of Muscular Control.

That swimming is the best exercise for girls because it brings into play all the larger groups of muscles, is the opinion of Miss Ethel M. Loring, assistant instructor in physical education in the Kansas State Agricultural college.

"Swimming is less tiresome and more enjoyable than any other form of exercise," says Miss Loring. "It broadens the chest, straightens the back, makes a girl lighter on her feet, and these are all results of better muscular control which this form of exercise develops.

"It is easy to learn. In fact, this has been proved by a number of girls in college who had never tried to swim before and learned in one lesson. A few could swim well after a second lesson.

"The beginner is first taught to do the crawl, which is the easiest stroke, to swim on the back, the under and over arm stroke, and then she is ready for instruction in diving."

The red cap test has been passed by four girls this term. To wear a red cap a girl must be able to swim the length of the pool, which is eighty feet long, dive any two ways from the board or the side of the pool, and be able to do two different.

A girl must swim the length of the pool and back, do in good form six different strokes, be able to satisfactorily perform three kinds of dives, be able to rescue in water, give assistance in water, and stay on the surface five minutes, using any stroke.

"I want the girls to do more diving," says Miss Loring. "Swimming should be considered a sport of enough importance that we might have swimming teams."

DREAM DELLS.

Where the violets bloom the bluest,
Where they lift their pale blue eyes

Up among the swaying grasses
Toward the even paler skies,
Where the small brook runs the deepest,

Where the water-lilies grow,
There it is when spring is coming
That I dearly love to go.

Where the sloping bank's the greenest
And the shadows come and go,
And the sighing branches screen you
From the sun's warm noonday glow;

Where the songbirds sing the sweetest,
Scuttling off on silent wing,
There it is I love to wander
In the first sweet warmth of spring.

Where the tallest golden daisy
Beckons me over the lea,
Where the balmy air is shaken
By the humming of the bee,

Where the growing grain and grasses
Now the sloping hill adorn,
Where the nesting songbirds go to eat
Their fill at early morn,

Where the balmy winds blow softest
O'er the hills at break of day,
There it is that dreams come o'er me
And I dream my soul away.

It is reported that a candidate for the Arkansas legislature is running on an anti-talking machine platform. A pity he doesn't live in a college town where such a platform would be popular—particularly in quiz season.

A Kansas City judge sentenced a boy to attend the "Billy" Sunday meetings for a week, promising to send him back for more if they didn't reform him. Which goes to show that wife was right when she says the only way to convert a man is to make him be good.

The Alpha Beta Literary society will take their annual hay ride Saturday night.

The sophomores came back after their defeat by the seniors and took their game from the juniors Wednesday by a score of 6-3. The batteries were: Hamill and Freeman for the juniors, and Slattery and Oliver for the sophomores.

On May 20, the literary societies will hold an inter-society debate in preparation for the spring debate try-outs. The subject for debate is, "Resolved that capital and labor should settle all disputes in legally established courts of arbitration."

Fraternity Baseball

The Sigma Nus pounded the ball all over the lot in their game with the Sig Alphas Wednesday evening and won by a top-heavy score, something like 14 to 4. In one inning the boys from Leavenworth street hammered in 12 runs. The game was well attended. Beta and Acacia scouts being in evidence most of the evening. Batteries—S. N.: Wood and Wells. S. A. E.: Curtis and Guilfoyle.

Interclass Baseball

The second year men outplayed the Juniors in their game in City Park Wednesday evening. The score was 6 to 3. Batteries—Juniors: Hamill and Freeman. Sophs: Slattery and Sherwood.

High School Baseball

Entries for the State High School Track and Field Meet to be held here Saturday, May 13, are coming rapidly to Coach Lowman's office. To date the entries from the following schools have been received: Fifth district—Maple Hill, Enterprise, Dickinson County, Manhattan, School of Agriculture, Minneapolis, Salina, and Abilene. Second district—Topeka, Winchester, Hiawatha, Perry, Merriam, Okaloosa, Osawkee and Valley Falls.

Some of the meets are being run off this week and entries from these schools will come in probably Saturday or the early part of next week. Every Aggie student should appoint himself or herself a committee of one to see that these high school visitors receive a warm welcome and are shown a good time while here for the meet.

Organizations planning on having hikes, parties and the like for the afternoon of May 13 will surely be doing the athletic department and the entire school a favor by arranging so their affairs will not prevent a full attendance at the meet on Saturday afternoon. Tickets are on sale at the coaches' office and also by all K men, at 25 cents each.

There is going to be a bunch of athletes right here at our door and no reason on earth why we should allow them to go down to K. U., Missouri or elsewhere to school when by a little extra effort we might be able to show them seven hundred reasons for coming here to school. Talk it up, you loyal Aggies.

the right time and lost a couple of chances to count.

"Dutch" Hewey won a niche in the Aggie Hall of Fame by striking out 14 of the Birds from Lawrence. The big German had the Indian Sign on the K. U. gang for the greater part of the game with the exception of a few "heart-rending" moments in the fourth and ninth innings respectively. The visitors connected safely with Hewey's offerings in those frames and scored two runs in each instance. Five Jayhawkers hit safely during the game and only one walked.

"Old Hoss" Smee in the box for K. U. kept the Aggies hits well scattered and was never in any real danger the whole afternoon. The Aggies failed to get a man past second base until the last inning.

Kansas began the scoring in the fourth. Wandell hit a high drive to left-center. Harvey got under the ball but failed to squeeze the pill hard enough and Wandell was safe on second. He stole third. Wood struck out. Smee hit to Hewey who threw him out at first. Hewey walked Weltmer apparently for the purpose to get at Chase who was next up. Weltmer went to second on the next pitched ball. Chase fooled the people by slapping out a clean three bagger down the first base line, scoring Wandell and Weltmer. L. Weltmer went out Newton to Williams. The visitors scored two more runs in the ninth. Smee hit safely through second base, stole second. Coming home a moment later on W. Weltmer's two-bagger over second base. Weltmer advanced to third on Chase's infield out, and scored on a fielder's choice. L. Weltmer going out Griffith's to Williams. Chinnery ended the scoring by striking out.

The Aggies lost a good chance to score in the fourth when Griffith leading off hit safely over second. Denman fled out to Wood and Reynolds to Wandell. Newton hit safely to left field advancing Griffiths to second. McGalliard hit a weak roller to Smee ending the inning. In the ninth Denman hit through Chase at first. Going to second when Reynolds was safe on Chase's error. Newton drove one to left field but W. Weltmer made a circus catch of it, holding Denman and Reynolds to their bases. McGalliard popped up to Smee. Williams walked, filling the bases. With two down, the bases intoxicated, (and the home team four runs to the lead in the last half of the ninth, Harvey stepped up—Gentle reader does that remind you of anything? "It was the last half of the ninth inning, two men down and the bases full. Frank Merriwell sauntered leisurely to the plate, his trusty hickory in hand—the pitcher winds up—Crash! the ball soars high into the ether—outfielders dash madly toward the fence—when last seen the ball was going due north-west—Home Run! Home Run! the game is tied—Here, what the wake up Bo, turn over, you're dreamin'!) Harvey poked out an easy grounder to Smee who threw him out at first base. At least Umps Cassel says so and he should know. Next Friday, May 12, the locals will play the Indians from Haskell.

Good Is Here Find It.

What Sweeter Experience In Life
Than To Arouse Good In Others and See It Blossom Into Useful Lives
Because of Your Effort.

The good that lies sleeping within us needs but a touch to make us beings of light and beneficence.

The world at large is kindly-hearted, despite the fact that many would have us think it intensely selfish, self-satisfied and self-centered.

Even the great mass of money-getters, those who make the pursuit of dollar-making the chief end and aim of their lives, have a very human side and are kindly hearted when properly approached.

Beneath the veneer which many persons thoughtlessly assume, real hearts are beating, many times hungering for a closer touch with their kind—and longing to show the wealth of love that lies within them.

Good lies sleeping with everyone. Debased as one may become, at least a spark remains, needing but the breeze of opportunity to kindle it to a flame.

We find it in the rich society woman, bent on mere pleasure; in the busy man of affairs; in the sturdy, stolid day laborer; in the tramp who comes to our doors and in the street archer.

We find it in the woman who has closed the door of the world against herself; in the man who is serving a sentence for the infraction of some law of society, and in the eyes of a helpless babe who lifts its arms up to us.

Man, woman, child and babe all want to be good if we will only reach out to them, offering them the elements which promote goodness.

When we sow hate and unkindness it is impossible to reap goodness or to arouse it in others.

One kindly word or act is all that is needed to start the fountain of goodness in others.

What sweeter experiences in life is there than to arouse the good in others and to see them blossom into useful lives because of effort on our part?

Sometimes the opportunity comes to us with mere strangers—ships we meet in passing—and again with those whom we have known all our lives.

Someone has said that "the manner of reception depends upon the avenue of approach." Perhaps we have not approached them exactly right. We must study the case and plan a new line of reaching them.

Yet it does not take much finesse to reach hearts and arouse the good that lies within them. Usually all that is required is to fill our own hearts with good thoughts—kindliness toward others—and instantly we find response.

The world is really hungering to be good and intentions between each other, kindly thoughts and deeds flow from the heart.

It is such a little thing to do, and there is nothing that pays larger returns in the right kind of self-satisfaction.

The heart of the world is a well-spring of good if we will but start it in the right direction.—Woman's National Weekly.

TRIGG OF K. C. STAR

Calls Citizens of Kansas a Shiftless Class and Says Legislature Is House of Low Intellectuality.

KANSANS ARE SHIFTLESS.

In a burning denunciation of Kansas legislatures and Kansas citizenship at the college chapel exercises Tuesday, Fred C. Trigg, editor of the Weekly Kansas City Star, asserted that the greatest need of Kansas is for citizens with patriotism and not the spirit that holds up the state as a political prize.

"The great need of Kansas is for the state to bestir itself in behalf of the people who are already here," said Mr. Trigg. "Kansas does not need more farmers, more manufacturing plants, more industries. Kansas needs more citizens, not people who assume that citizenship lies only in voting. That has been the trouble with the people of Kansas. They have believed that all that was necessary was to cast their ballots. They exercise no intelligence or morality, in the votes which they cast."

Says Kansans Are Shiftless.

The speaker declared that what Kansas needed was the type of citizenship that would put back into the state a fair share of the ability and money that it takes out. He asserted that the citizens of the state were a shiftless class and that their only desire was to squeeze the state out of all they could get.

Mr. Trigg said the first thing that was necessary was a revision of the state legislature of Kansas. He characterized the legislature as a joke and a standing menace to everything dear to the state.

No Intellectuality in Legislature. "You should get rid of your legislature," said Mr. Trigg. "No one knows why it was formed. Seven or eight men, taking three or four hours of their time each year, could enact all the laws necessary to run the state. I was present at the last state legislature and it was the house of lowest intellectuality in which I have ever been."

Dr. Waters introduced Trigg as the man whose pastime was editing the Weekly Kansas City Star and whose business was running Kansas politics. "He knows more about Kansas politics than Kansans do themselves," said Dr. Waters.

Fred Trigg has attended sessions of Kansas legislatures since 1891. He was especially active in the days of the populists. He has covered the legislature for the Kansas City Star for a number of years.

GIRLS ARE INTERESTED.

Tennis Tournament Keeps Courts Occupied Almost Night and Day.

The girls tennis tournament is furnishing some unusually interesting games lately. The contest has aroused much enthusiasm and waging. As the girls are busy with other things and the courts are always full a contest may be seen at almost any time—noon hours, chapel time, vacant hours, after eight until dark and at five in the morning.

The second round, closing Saturday, May 8, eliminated eight more players from the race. The following sets were played off:

Elizabeth Cotton-Muri Gann—Muri Gann.

Florence Evans-Ethel Joss—Florence Evans (by default).

Sibyl Blackburn-Hattie Bryan—Hattie Bryan.

Bess Gordon-Lola Davis—Bess Gordon.

Nellie Farrish-Greta Gramse—Nellie Farrish.

Dorothy Skinner-Ruth Haff—Dorothy Skinner.

Margaret King-Ruth Thomas—Margaret King.

Alice Nelman-Emma Taylor—Alice Nelman (by default).

The next round must be played off by this evening, the winner of the first match playing the winner of the following.

Norton County Students.

BIULD ORNAMENTAL GATEWAY.

Work Is Started at Athletic Field on $500 Structure.

Work has been started on the ornamental gateway to the college athletic field. The gateway is to be erected by the class of 1916 as a memorial. The concrete work and part of the stone work has already been done.

The contract for the work was let by the class to J. J. Paddock & Sons. The gateway will be divided into three entrances. One ten-foot entrance in the center will be for automobiles, and will be guarded by massive iron gates. The posts, of native stone, will be 11 1-2 feet high. On each side of the automobile entrance there will be a five foot entrance for pedestrians, with a turnstile.

In each of the large posts is to be set a stone with a design in full relief. One post will bear a baseball, and the words "Class of 1916." The other will have a football, and the words, "Athletic Field."

The gateway will be finished in the next two weeks, and will cost the seniors $500.

MANY ENTRIES ARE IN FOR HIGH SCHOOL MEET

Sixth Annual Meet Will Be Held at College Athletic Field Next Saturday Afternoon.

The sixth annual state high school track meet, to be held here at 2:30 o'clock next Saturday afternoon, promises to be a very successful affair, according to Prof. Guy S. Lowman, who has the meet in charge.

Up to date there have been 81 entries for the 13 events, and the schools to enter from the Third and Seventh congressional districts have not yet been heard from. Only those who place first or second in the district meets are eligible for this meet.

The college offers and furnishes gold, silver and bronze medals for the first, second and third in each event and a relay cup. Entertainment is furnished to those competing. Governor Canper offers a cup to the school which wins the meet and the A. C. Spaulding company offers a $25 cup to the school which wins three annual meets.

The schools which have entered so far are:

First district—Winchester, Hiawatha, Topeka, Perry, Meriden, Oskaloosa, Ozarkie and Valley Falls.

Fourth district—Lawrence, Marion, Alta Vista, Emporia, Overbrook, Lost Springs, Peabody, Eskridge, Emporia Normal high school and Burlington.

Fifth district—Enterprise, Dickinson county high, Manhattan, School of Art, Minneapolis, Abilene and Salina.

Sixth district—Almena, Logan, Smith Center, Norton, Phillipsburg, Goodland and Agra.

Eighth district—Wichita, which won the district meet. The other Eighth district schools declined to compete with Wichita.

SENIORS TO HOLD TRYOUTS.

Actors for Class Play Will Be Selected Soon.

The Senior Play committee as yet have not announced the parts for the play as tryouts are now going on. By the end of the week the list of those chosen for the different parts will be announced by the committee. Great interest is being taken in the play and there are three or four seniors contesting for each part in the play. The play is to be given June 13, in the College auditorium. Announcement in regard to the ticket seating arrangements will be made later.

Tryouts for the play will be held in the old chapel this evening, and Thursday evening tryouts will again be held in Professor Emerson's office in G-55.

PLow COMPANY DEMONSTRATES

Experts Show Students Advantages of Their Wide Tread Lister.

Different classes in farm mechanics under the direction of F. A. Wirt, instructor in farm mechanics, went out to the lister demonstration at the college farm given by R. A. Thompson and S. H. Cowell of Parlin and Orendorff Plow company of Canton, Ill., last Friday and Saturday.

Mr. Thompson and Cowell explained the advantages in regulating the amount of ground to cover the seed as well as the depth of seeding when desired. They also brought out the fact that the wide tread lister will keep all the furrows equally instant without extra effort from the driver.

SENIORS GET AWAY WITH

HIKE A LA SNEAK MONDAY

Two Hundred of the Mighty Fourth Year People Enjoyed Boating, Baseball and Pranks at Eureka Park.

FACULTY ALL FORGOTTEN.

It was on a hike a la sneak that the dignified seniors nearly two-hundred strong, journeyed to Eureka Lake, Monday morning, via interurban, automobile, and cross country on foot. Which accounts for some odd hundreds of unexcused absences that were turned in on that day and as many vacant chairs in the various class rooms.

It was all planned with the greatest secrecy and the seniors, just to prove that they were not getting sedate and conservative, gave themselves up to a day of pure fun with no ones consent but their own.

Boating, baseball, games learned in the grades, and pranks learned in freshman days, which had been put away with other childish things, made the hike one to be remembered in after years.

The eight boats belonging to the park were pressed into service and the many sunburned faces and arms are ample testimony of the admirable service which they performed.

A baseball game between the boys and girls was staged in the forenoon, the girls winning in a close count of 7 to 8. And then came lunch time with trained D. S. dispensers at the baskets who knew all about the scientific diet, which was forgotten for the occasion, and with men chefs to serve who had been patiently instructed, by their sister sufferers, in the finer niceties of table etiquette, also relegated to oblivion for the day.

The afternoon ball game was an even greater plea for equal suffrage, the senior men went down to a defeat of 32 to 16 before the rapid fire battery and heavy hitting nine mustered by the senior girls.

And then like penitent children before the faculty and with much more dignity before the underclassmen, the transgressors returned.

MUST SPELL CORRECTLY.

English Students Must Either Spell or Flunk.

grade in rhetoric the students in the classes of Don Burke, instructor in English, must spell correctly 98 per cent of all the words studied.

Each week 100 words are posted for study, and of these, 50 are selected for a written list. Students who fail to get the proper number of these at the end of six weeks are requested to take up a make up quiz in which 700 words have to be studied. Two hundred from this list are given for the quiz and of these all but four have to be correctly spelled.

"The students here show a sad need of correct spelling," says Mr. Burke. "This plan has worked well and given results in eastern schools and is hoped that it will have its intended effects here."

CO-ED DEBATORS TO BE AWARDED SCHOLARSHIP

Beard Will Give $100 to Most Proficient of the Women Debaters Hereafter.

For the first time in the history of the college, a debating scholarship for girls is to be offered. Dr. H. J. Waters, president of the college, and the board of administration are extremely anxious to encourage and further the interest which has already been manifested by the girls of the college in debating.

A scholarship of $100 will be given to the girl achieving the greatest proficiency in inter-collegiate debating next year.

Interest in debating among the co-eds has been steadily increasing for the past few years, there being twenty members on the squad during the season just closed.

The placing of this scholarship for woman debaters puts debating for them on the same basis as that for men. Through the efforts of Professor J. W. Searson, a debating scholarship of $100 has been offered to the men.

The college club is rapidly becoming famous on account of its baseball team. They are challenging the fraternities one at a time and are meeting with splendid success.

TRACK TEAM WILL MEET

TEACHERS NEXT FRIDAY

Aggie Speed Merchants and Field Artists Will Go to Emporia to Meet the Normal Squad—Men Good Shape.

FRIZZELL TO BE ON DECK.

The Aggie track team, under the supervision of Carl J. Merner, track coach, will journey to Emporia Friday and will tangle with the teachers in a dual track meet that afternoon. Little is known of the prowess of the teachers' team but it is thought that the Aggies have their work cut out for them if they take Hargriss' protégé to a cleaning.

The Aggies had a chance to show their worth in the Aggie-Baker meet and while there were not any records broken or equalled, yet the lightly clad athletes should show to a better advantage with Captain Durge Frizzell in their midst.

The weakness caused by the crippling of Vandenberg and Wilder will be felt in the meet. Both are still suffering from strained tendons and it is feared that they will not be in shape for the K. U.-Aggie meet which will be staged next Saturday. Frizzell may be forced to compete in both the high and low hurdles which will weaken him materially for the high jump.

The strong points of the Aggie team lie in the distance events. Foreman showed his ability in the Baker meet by sticking close to Teeter all the way and Teeter is good for a first place in almost any meet. Seeler ran a slow mile in preparation for a fast half-mile and has exceptional ability in these two events. Keys is good for 2:02 in the half and the teachers will have to show a good man to beat him. Holroyd was not pushed in the quarter and should win five points easily.

The Aggies have not been running true to form in the dashes yet but should get to going enough to take points from the teachers.

SENIORS TO FORT HAYS.

Study Experiments and Soils at and Near the Experiment Station.

Approximately twenty-eight students accompanied by W. E. Grimes and R. I. Throckmorton spent Friday, Saturday, and Sunday at the Fort Hays experiment station observing the work of the station and gathering soil samples of that portion of the country. The students were members of the classes in soil survey and advanced farm management.

Friday the party was given an informal talk and welcome by Superintendent Weeks of the station. Saturday morning was spent at the old fort and visiting the Normal. Farms of special interest were inspected Saturday afternoon and interesting soil formations observed. Different types and samples of soils were taken and studied.

Short lectures were given Saturday night by W. E. Grimes and Mr. Montague, bookkeeper at the station, on the subject of farm management, the management of the experiment station which comprises 8,000 acres being described to the students.

Sunday the party went over the experimental work of the station and received much information of interest. Sunday evening several short talks were given, one by Mr. Lloyd, 15.

The students had meals at the station boarding place and slept on straw and tarpaulins in an elevator. They returned early Monday morning after gathering valuable data on farm management, soil types and the experimental work of the station.

GIRLS TO KANSAS CITY.

Co-eds Will Inspect Restaurants and Manufactures for Three Days.

The junior girls of the Home Economics division left Monday for their annual inspection trip of several plants in Kansas City. Previously the trip has been made in two days but as that was found to be too short a period of time for the work three days will be used this year.

While in Kansas City the young ladies will visit the Fred Harvey eating house at the Union Station, inspect the domestic science equipment in some of the best high schools of the city, go through several packing establishments, and some food stuff manufacturing plants such as Loose Wiles.

ON EXPERIMENTAL TRIP.

Alden A. Potter of Washington Investigates Sorghum and Corn Smuts.

Alden A. Potter of the office of cereal investigations, Washington, D. C., is here on his annual inspection trip, in co-operation with the department of botany. Mr. Potter is assistant pathologist in cereal diseases and is carrying on investigations in the sorghum smut and corn smut diseases.

Mr. Potter will be here about one month, and the work that is being done is mainly along technical lines, studying the life history of corn smut, with the idea of developing some way of getting at control measures. The importance of this can be understood, when it is known that the corn smut disease in this state causes about three millions dollars loss a year.

In the kernel smut of sorghum, they are working on the study of the susceptibility of all the different varieties of sorghum with the idea in mind of discovering which varieties are the least susceptible. The investigations involved are very detailed and will require a number of years of investigations.

AGGIES IN SHAPE FOR REDSKINS BY FRIDAY

Benderites Are Hitting Every Day to Get in Form—Hodson to Start Friday.

Coach Bender is putting the Aggie squad through a stiff practice every night this week in preparation for the Redskins from Haskell, who mix with the Bender aggregation Friday afternoon, May 12.

The afternoon schedule for the squad consists mostly of hitting practice, which the team no doubt needs and needs badly if one were to judge from their poor showing against the slab artists from the University. The inability of certain members of the team to hit at the right time in the both contests with K. U. was responsible for the team's failure to even up the score in several instances in both games. In either game a safe blingle at the opportune moment would have made up for bobbles in the field.

Hodson will probably start the game against the Indians in Friday's contest and with proper support the big boy should be able to "get their wampum" without a great deal of effort.

Tuesday, May 16, St. Marys will play the Aggies on College field. K. U. was taken into camp by the St. Marys boys by a goodly margin, and the Aggies will have to extend themselves in order to trim the gang from down the Kaw.

SIGMA DELTA CHI MEET CLOSES.

Journalistic Fraternity to Hold Next Convention at Illinois University.

The national convention of Sigma Delta Chi, journalistic fraternity, which was held at the University of Missouri, Columbia, closed last Friday night. The next convention of the fraternity will be held during the Christmas holidays of 1917 at the University of Illinois.

Chase S. Osborn, former governor of Michigan, was elected honorary vice president; E. W. Lowry of the Dallas (Tex.) Statesman, president. Frank Mason of the American Boy, vice president; C. M. Church of the Detroit (Mich.) Free Press, secretary; Mr. Davis of the University of Missouri, treasurer, and Lee A. White, editor of the Quill, the fraternity magazine.

Delegates from California, Washington, Michigan, Maine, Minnesota, Louisiana and other states were present at the convention.

The University of Missouri chapter of the fraternity initiated Arthur E. Killick, writer of the "Fatty Lewis" stories in the Kansas City Star, and Mr. Meng, editor of the Missouri Notes in the Kansas City Star, during the convention.

Class to Kansas City.

The class in beef production will visit the Kansas City stock yards as the guests of the Stock Yards company May 16. The class is composed of seniors in the animal husbandry course. The entire day will be spent in the yards inspecting one of the large packing houses.

Thirty men expect to make the trip in charge of W. A. Cochel, professor of animal husbandry.

Carl P. Thompson, specialist in animal husbandry in the division of college extension, will go to Garrison next Friday to attend the commencement exercises of the high school at that place.

BEST DRILLED COMPANY

SELECTED JUNE TENTH

Prizes Are to Be Awarded to Both Company and Officers Who Prove Most Efficient in This Competition.

ONE MISTAKE IS FATAL.

Order has just gone forth from the office of Lieutenant Mathews, commandant of cadets, to the effect that the competitive drill of the different companies making up the college cadet corps will be held June 5.

The winning of first place in this competition means much to both the men in the ranks and to the commanding officers of the winning company.

Following is the order as it was sent out by the department:

1. The annual competitive drill of the companies of the First Cadet Infantry, Corps of Cadets, will be held at 4:00 p. m. Monday, June 5, 1916.

2. The maximum number of points in determining the standing of companies will be 100. Values of exercises will be given as follows:

Position of the soldier, condition of equipment, and general appearance, will count 50 per cent. To be determined by an inspection of the company by the judges.

Manual of arms counts 25 per cent. Each movement in Infantry Drill Regulations from paragraph 77 to 94, inclusive, will be executed without repetition.

School of the company will make up the remaining 25 per cent.

The companies will be limited to the following movements and will execute them without repetition and without delay: Squads right, front into line, right by squads, on right into line, company right, right turn, platoons right by squads, squads right front into line, and double time in column of squads off the campus.

In the School of the Company judges will pay particular attention to the commands given by officers and non-commissioned officers.

No extended order will be given.

Company commanders will draw lots immediately after parade Friday, June 2, to determine order of appearance before judges.

Prizes will be awarded the officers of the company and a cup to the company with the highest score. This presentation will be made at graduation day parade.

The date and hour of competition is liable to change, and if changed a notice to that effect will be posted on the bulletin boards.

MAY WIN BEAUTY CONTEST.

Miss Hazel Beck Is Entered for Beauty and Brains Contest.

Without her knowledge or consent, Miss Hazel Lucille Beck of 1115 Blue-mont avenue is in a fair way to win the nation-wide beauty and brains contest running in the Photoplay Magazine. Miss Beck believes some one sent in her photograph as a joke, so she says.

Lillian Russell, one of the judges, has selected 100 photographs from among 8,000 sent in during the contest. The final selection of 11 winners will be made from this 100, among which is Miss Beck's photo. The other judges are William A. Brady, the famous theatrical manager, and Sophie Irene Loeb, New York society writer.

There will be 10 winning candidates from the United States and one from Canada. The 11 successful young ladies will be taken to New York, a month will be devoted to teaching them the value of various dramatic angles, and then those who show proper interest and sufficient ability, will become permanent members of the World and Equitable stock companies, and at goodly salaries appear in films.

Lectures, theater parties, studio lessons and a number of events are carded for the successful candidates and it is very likely that Hazel Lucille Beck will be one of the successful entrants.

The winning candidates will be announced throughout the country early in June.

Miss Helen Green, two years assistant in domestic science here and who is now studying at Simmons College, Boston, will receive her degree in June and will return here to teach in the summer school.

KANSAS HELPS SELF BY HELPING EASTERNERS

The claim is made for Kansas, and it is not likely to be disputed, that it is the only state in the American Union spending money to increase the business of eastern manufacturing concerns, and of its own local merchants and newspapers. This is to be done through the medium of a news bureau to the maintenance of which the state contributes $10,000, conditional upon the contribution of a similar amount by the newspaper proprietors. The bureau, it appears is to be operated by the school of journalism of the University of Kansas, its object being to furnish eastern manufacturers with information as to the needs of Kansas people, so that these will give more advertising space to the Kansas newspapers and help to increase the business of the local merchants. It will be seen that the plan is arranged in accordance with the endless chain idea. The bureau supported by the state, and the newspapers give valuable information to the eastern manufacturers; acting on the information the eastern manufacturers advertise finished products required by the Kansas trade, and the business of the newspapers and the local merchants is increased.

The point of greatest interest here however, regarded from the viewpoint of the other forty-seven states, is that Kansas in this matter is doing something which was regarded as entirely out of the province of state government a short time ago. It simply makes plain for the millionth time or so, that whatever the people of a state or a country want to do in advancement of the interests of their people, they can do.

We should not be surprised if, one of these days, Kansas would prohibit within its borders all forms of monopolistic imposition quite as effectively as it now prohibits the traffic in liquor. Kansas, indeed, disregarding all precedent, may be the first state of the Union to fix the price of gasoline and other commodities.

WOMEN'S ATHLETICS

The ideal woman, in the days of our grandmothers, was the one who was "pensive and pale as a lily." The active, progressive woman was the whispered topic of conversation at many a pink tea and missionary meeting. Women did not even believe it was "ladylike" to exert themselves to the extent of taking ordinary outdoor exercise. Finally, the condition of the health of the American women were actually dying for lack of healthy exercise.

Vassar college was founded about this time and particular emphasis was laid on the physical training of the students. Since then women's athletics have gained in importance in the college curriculum despite precedent; unfounded prejudice has vanished, and the health of the American woman has been greatly benefited.

When athletics for women were established at Nebraska, no men were admitted to the contests. Later they were given permission to attend only a few of the events, and in the past few years the change in the attitude of the men in this university toward woman's athletics has been marked. At the track meet yesterday, there was a lack of the customary scoffing which is usually present, and the men entered into the spirit of the day with an enthusiasm that was refreshing.

The possibilities which women's athletics afford are astonishing, and the self-sacrifice which is learned in athletic competition is vital in the composition of character.

Women are entering every line of work and are meeting competition at every turn. Let us encourage, then, a thorough athletic training for women, not from the viewpoint of physical development or sport, but the development of the characteristics which mold real women in the biggest sense of the word.—Daily Nebraskan.

Pi Beta Phi Dance.

The freshmen of the Pi Beta Phi fraternity entertained Saturday evening with a very pretty dancing party given at Harrison's hall. The hall was a bower of spring flowers, ferns and palms. In the center was a canopy of pink crepe streamers, which were hung from each corner light and hanging from the main center light was an artistic wicker basket filled with pink roses. On the radiators were wicker baskets filled with garden flowers and throughout the rooms and hall were arranged tall wicker vases with spring flowers. In the reception rooms the same color scheme was carried out. Punch was served all evening and later the guests were taken to Harrison's where refreshments were served at quartet tables decorated with pink shaded candles. Prof. and Mrs. E. L. Holton and Mrs. F. A. McConnell were the chaperones of the evening. The guests were Miss Helen Halm, Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Quinlan, Miss Marie Babcock and Miss Grace Harrison of Wichita, Miss Antoinette West of Topeka, Miss Evelyn May of Newton, Miss Irene Held of Clay Center, Miss Grace Lightfoot, Miss Maurine Fitzgerald, Miss Esther Peck and Mr. Arthur Adams of Maple Hill.

LATEST SONG; SOME WHERE A VOICE IS CALLING 10:33

(With Apologies.)

Dusk and the shadows falling
O'er land and sea,
Somewhere a Freshman's waiting
Dating with me.
Eyes and a smile are beaming
Beautiful to see.
Somewhere a bell is ringing
Ringing for me.

LATER.

Quiet and a watch case clicking
Giving a cue
Somehow you have a feeling
Suggesting "Adieu;"
Sighs and a yawn needs stifling
Painful to see.
Then comes a voice that's calling.

ELIOT'S NOVEL EASILY FILMED.

Frederick Warde, Tragedian, Gives Great Character Impersonation.

When Frederick Warde, the distinguished tragedian, and his son Ernest were first starting the production of the film version of that unforgettable novel, "Silas Marner," Mr. Warde made the remark "that it was very seldom that he had seen a book that lent itself so readily to interpretation as a photoplay." He later justified this remark by appearing in one of the most remarkable character impersonations ever screened. As the famous weaver and miser of Raveloe, made familiar to every student of English literature through the wizardry of the pen of that immortal English novelist, George Eliot, Mr. Warde has given us one of the greatest of his creations. "Silas Marner," as a screen play, ran for two weeks at the Willis Wood theater in Kansas City, and it was there that Mr. J. J. Marshall, of this city, viewed the film and immediately arranged for the showing of the production in the Marshall theater Thursday afternoon and evening of this week. For the benefit of the students the matinee will not begin until four o'clock, the evening performances starting at 7:30 and 9:00. The usual admission will be charged.

Tickets for the play "Back to the Farm" which will be given by the young people's society of the Congregational church at the college auditorium Monday evening, are now on sale. Seat and section reservations may be made at the window opposite the post office Saturday.

Ivar Mattson, former student has secured a position with the Louden Manufacturing Co. of Fairfield, Iowa. The company makes hay loaders and farm equipment.

Out of the "HELL BOX"

Contributed by Sigma Delta Chi, National Journalistic Fraternity.

Someone from within the "Hell Box" of the Kansas State Collegian complains that we cannot indite jingles to other girls than Lucile because Lucile rhymes so readily. What about Eloise, Geraldine, Marguerite, Elele, Lizzie, Grace, Anne, and Sue?—Kansas Industrialist.

For the benefit of the complainant, we wish to suggest a few little jingles for the names submitted above: Of all the girls, there is Eloise Who is always hard to appease, Next in line comes Geraldine Who lives on oleomargarine, Then there is dear little Marguerite Whose only virtue is big feet, Of all modern beauties there is Sue Who buys drug store paint of a scarlet hue.

And Anne, listless Anne, Whose face makes one feel uncanny, Is not to be outdone by Lizzie Whose nose is so crooked that it makes her dizzy.

Then there is attractive Elise Who wears very flimsy fleece At the rear of the line stand poor little Grace

Who stops clocks by a mere turn of her face.

Editor's Note: No responsibility is assumed for the meter of this verse, but it is allowed to pass simply to show the result of rhyming with the names suggested.

Don't sleep on your back as it heats the spin.

Don't sleep on your stomach as it will cause indigestion.

Don't sleep on your right side as it will turn your liver over.

Don't sleep on your left side as it hinders the action of the heart.

Don't sleep standing up as it will cause big feet.

Don't sleep sitting down as the muscles are not allowed to relax properly.

Don't hang yourself on a nail as that does not allowed proper development of the body.

But remember to sleep, get plenty of fresh, invigorating sleep if you wish to have a vigorous, healthy body.

TOP DRESS all your Crops with Nitrate of Soda alone, no matter what other fertilizers you may have used. 100 pounds to the acre for seeded, and 200 pounds to the acre for cultivated crops will do the work. The increase will yield large profits over the cost.

Our campus is dotted with seniors, Not useless, for they make quite a show.

But when it come along Monday, They all hiked to Eureka to row.

They frolicked and rambled and gambled

All over the woods and the hills, And the grave little statutes o'er-looking.

Were exchanging compassionate thrills.

While the profs and the deans and prexy,

With nothing whatever to do, Just sat and twiddled their fingers,

And the remarks they made were not few.

But the seniors penitent returning—

Sunburned, wounded, and bereaved, Were welcomed so joyous and gladly,

That the profs all forgot they were peeved.

Should Think Pure

It is not Hate and Unkindness Which Bring Happiness but it is the Seeing of the Good in Everything Which Makes for Real Restfulness.

All things work together for good to things who love the good in everything.

To attain true godliness we must banish from our hearts every evil thought, just as we would expect an invading army of any kind.

Evil thought is the enemy of the soul and body.

If we are to know our full strength as men and women, created with every attribute of the Perfect Good, we must treat our minds as the great laboratory of the soul and allow to enter into it only those elements which coalesce for growth.

Evil thought poisons not only the blood and retards our physical well-being, but it poisons our spiritual nature, reacting on the material side of our lives.

When we hear a thought knocking at the door of our minds, we should look it over before we bid it enter in.

If it is an evil thought that will not make for growth, or will stultify our finer feelings, we should lock and bar the door against its entrance.

As we keep out evil, the good that is within us will find room to grow.

As we admit only good the good that is within us will be strengthened.

There is nothing so beautiful in life as nobility of soul and action.

These come only where men and women lead beautiful, clean lives.

How clearly it is written on the countenance!

How beautiful it is, in the stress of some tense situation, to see the veil lift slowly and a beautiful soul reveal itself in readiness of self-abnegation.

Perhaps it means the laying upon the altar of one's dearest wish, but it means also the attainment of the power to look beyond the present moment and grasp the vision of ultimate good.

In such supreme moments we witness soul development, and find one who has learned the science of living.

Life is beautiful when we drive out evil thought, selfish ambition and glimpse the good for all.

This we can do and be captains of our destiny, Kings among men, when we allow only Good to dominate us.

There is an actually scientific process of cause and effect going on within us. We must learn to recognize this assimilation and lend it our daily support.

Life is truly an exemplification of the Good then.—Woman's National Weekly.

ELECT ARTHUR BOYER AS COLLEGIAN EDITOR

Sophomore in Journalism Is Honored by Collegian Board—Boring Will Become Business Manager.

NEW CONSTITUTION PASSED.

Arthur Wm. Boyer, of Scranton, a sophomore in the course of journalism and a member of Sigma Delta Chi, national journalistic fraternity, was elected editor of the Collegian for the coming year at a meeting of the Collegian Board held Thursday. The selection of the editorial staff was left to the decision of the newly elected editor.

Boyer is a student of ability and it is expected that the paper will show considerable progress under his control.

J. M. Poring of Spring Hill was elected business manager of the paper for next year. Poring acted in the capacity of editor of the paper this year. He is taking the course in journalism at the college and is also a member of the local chapter of the national journalistic fraternity.

A new constitution abolishing the clumsy method of control by a board composed of representatives of all the organizations in the college was adopted. The new method of control will be by a board of five members. One of these members will be the head of the journalism department. The other four, who must be juniors or seniors, will be elected by the subscribers of the Collegian enrolled in the college. The election of the board members will be held each spring.

By the new constitution the business manager will be required to put up a $500 bond and assume all financial responsibility of the paper. He will be paid a regular salary and at the close of the college year will assume all debts or get what is left over. The positions of assistant business manager and circulation manager have been combined into that of circulation manager.

LECTURES TO S. AND S. CLUB.

Dean W. M. Jardine spoke to the Saddle and Siroin club on the size and importance of pastures in the United States, and particularly those in Kansas.

He gave a little history of the depletion of the western grazing grounds and some of the methods that have been used in trying to "bring back" worn out ranges. Work that has been done in Utah, Arizona and Oregon that has proved to be of much value to cattle and sheep men was treated. Mr. Jardine stated that there were one and one-half acres of pasture to one of cultivated land in America, and that the ratio is forty to one in Kansas.

He emphasized the need of good pastures to the economical production of livestock, and gave results from experiments that have been conducted by the college on the Casement ranch near here that will be of great value to the cattlemen of Kansas.

AGGIES TAKE FIRST IN MEET AGAINST EMPORIA

Although the Field Was Muddy the Merners Took Both Places in Four Events—Count 68-41

On a muddy, soggy track yesterday, the Aggie track and field artists took first place in a dual meet against the Emporia Normals by the figure of 68 to 41. The Aggies took first and second in four events and first in six events. Emporia was able to cop both places in but two events.

Frizzell was high point taker at the meet having 14 to his credit after taking first in low and high hurdles and tying with Weimer for first in the high jump.

The events in which the Merners took both places were the high jump, mile, half, and discus. First position only went to the Aggies in the 100 yard dash, 220 dash, the two mile run, and the high and low hurdles, and relay.

Emporia got away with first in the broad jump and shot put events.

Owing to the time when the Collegian received the returns on the meet, it was impossible to print the names of the winners and their records.

JUNIOR-SENIOR FRIDAY.

Two Upper Classes Will Dance and Play at Seventh Annual Party.

The Junior-Senior Prom this year is to be the biggest event of the kind ever held at the college. The affair Friday evening will be the seventh annual Junior-Senior party.

A special feature of the party this year will be the entertainment in the women's gym for those persons who do not care to dance. An exact and detailed account of the nature of this part of the entertainment is a mystery and the only part the committee in charge will tell about is the name—Departmental Review. However, it looks like there was to be plenty of entertainment here for everyone and it will keep up the pep and amusement for every one until they become too ravenously hungry and venture forth in search of the usual "ice cream and cake." It is promised that it will not be this same-old-stuff this time and while they refuse to say just what it is everybody says that it is to be a "Scream."

Preparation for the Junior farce is well under way and promises to be a most pleasing entertainment for all who go to the auditorium that evening.

The floor of the gym is being scrubbed, waxed and polished until it would be impossible for a freshman to stand up on it.

WEEKLY SEMINAR FOR ENGINEERING STUDIES

Starts Next Year in Order That Students May Become More Familiar With Their Profession.

In order to enable the students in the Division of Engineering to become familiar with the various phases of their chosen profession, with the ideals and ethics of master-engineers, and to become better acquainted with college regulations and with the other students and teachers, a weekly seminar will be held every Thursday at 3:30 p. m., beginning with the fall term 1916 and continuing throughout the year. Compulsory attendance at this seminar will be expected of all students and the seminar will appear on their assignments.

It is the intention to devote two seminars each month to papers and discussions pertaining to the particular courses and branches of engineering. In order to carry this out, the civil engineering students will meet twice a month in E-23, the electrical engineering students in C-60, and the mechanical engineering students in S-54. Students pursuing the agricultural engineering course (irrigation and drainage option) will meet with the civil engineering students in E-23, and the agricultural engineering students pursuing the farm machinery or the flour milling option will meet with the mechanical engineering students in S-54. Architectural students will meet in E-23.

The mechanical engineering students, above the sophomore year, will be expected to subscribe to the Journal of the American Society of Mechanical Engineers; the electrical engineering students above the sophomore year, to the Journal of the American Institute of Electrical Engineers; and the civil engineering students above the sophomore year, to some magazine pertaining to civil engineering. Articles appearing in the above transactions and magazines will be discussed by students and teachers in such a manner that the freshmen and sophomores will be able to derive much benefit.

The other two meetings of the month will be devoted to meetings of the Engineers' Association or to a general engineering seminar, where talks of interest to engineers will be given by educators and by practicing engineers. These two meetings will be held in the old chapel (A-49) of Main building.

NEW HOME FOR ACACIAS.

Fraternity Will Build on North Sixteenth Next Summer.

A charter of incorporation has recently been granted by the Charter Board of Kansas to the alumni of the local chapter of Acacia, said organization to be known as the Acacia Alumni Association of Kansas. This association is directed by Acacia members of the faculty, alumni and representatives from the active chapter. The association has definite plans under way for the erection of a new home on North Sixteenth street.

With favorable weather conditions for building, the new home will be completed by Sept. 1, 1916.

SOVEREIGN PROCLAIMED SANS BATTLE OR DEATH

Mary Polson I to Rule K. S. A. C. on May Day—Faculty Oligarchy Is Overthrown—Election Is Peaceful—600 Voted.

CLASSES SELECT ATTENDANTS.

Mexico has revolutions, so does China, when a change in government is accomplished. Happy is K. S. A. C. where the passing of the faculty oligarchy was not marked by the thunder of guns, the rattle of musketry, nor the splash-splatter-drip-drip of patriotic blood.

Peaceful and serene was the college this morning, and the well known casual observer would never have suspected that a new regime had been declared; a new ruler had been exalted to the throne; the old powers thrown down, and a new and powerful start of royalty become ascendant. In short, that Her Most Pussiant and Gracious Majesty, Long May She Live! Queen Mary Polson I, had been proclaimed sovereign of these precincts.

The new ruler will ascend unto her throne at 3:30 o'clock on the afternoon of Saturday, May 26, in the year of our Lord, 1916. That has been chosen by her loyal adherents as the day whereon she is to be crowned Queen of the May, at the festivities devised for the annual May Day fete. Already she has been enthroned in the hearts of her friends, among whom are a goodly majority of the six hundred and odd voters in the contest.

Miss Polson is a senior in the home economics course, and her home is in Fredonia. She is a member of the Delta Zeta sorority, the Y. W. A., the Forum, Zeta Kappa Psi, the crary debating sorority, and other student organizations. She has taken a leading part in student activities throughout her college career, was chosen among the six co-eds whose pictures were placed in the Vanity Fair section of Royal Purple. The class candidates for the attendants to the May Queen, for whom the purchasers of tickets voted on the same ballots as were employed in the election of the May Queen were elected as follows: Junior, class, Miss Laura Ramsey, of Topeka; sophomore, Miss Pauline Richards, of Delphos; freshman, Miss Sarah Drake, of Manhattan.

MISSISSIPPI GOVERNOR HERE.

With Committee From Legislature He Inspects the College.

Theodore G. Bilbo, governor of Mississippi accompanied by a committee from the legislature of his state is in Manhattan to inspect the work of the Kansas State Agricultural college. Both the University of Mississippi and the Mississippi Agricultural and Mechanical college are among the oldest and strongest in the south. Careful work is being done by the authorities to broaden the efficiency of the institutions.

STUDENTS RECITAL MONDAY

First Musical Affair of Its Kind Ever Held Here.

Miss Beulah Truesdell, a charming soprano singer, and Miss Frances Stall, accomplished young pianist will be presented in a recital at the college auditorium on Monday evening May 29. Miss Truesdell is the pupil of Arthur Westbrook, head of the music department and Miss Stall is the pupil of Fanchon Easter. This is the first student recital to be given in this college.

WANTED AT WEST POINT.

Cadets From K. S. A. C. Have Opportunity to Enter Army School.

Five Kansas State agricultural college men will have the opportunity to enter West point as cadets, according to a telegram received yesterday by Dr. H. J. Waters, president of the college from the adjutant general of the United States war department. The men will be selected by competitive examination not later than July 10. Higher graduates of the institution are preferred.

Mrs. Smith to Entertain.

Mrs. Stanley Smith will be the hostess next Tuesday afternoon of her embroidery club, which she will entertain at her home, 511 Laramie street.

ROLYPOLIES ON TRAINING TRIP TO HOUSTON, TEXAS

Team of Eugenic Wonders Go South to Get in Training for Game With Toothpick Athletics Here Next Saturday.

"SKINNAY" WENTWORTH—BOSS

Manager "Skinnay" Wentworth and his team of engenic wonders will leave for the south Saturday, the unlucky day of May. The big Boss is not afraid of the thirteen jinx as he intends to take thirteen men on the trip and expects each man to lose thirteen pounds in thirteen days.

Every man of last year's team has reported except Outfielder Burt. He is holding out for a motorcycle as he is losing flesh pushing his model 65 up the hill. "Burt" threatens to join the confederate league if he isn't given a new "chugger." We should hate to lose this demon gardener as he is fast on his feet and was never known to step away from the plate—at meal times.

The spikball artists have developed some new salivary slants that will float over the plate before the leannites awake to the fact that the health laws of Kansas have been broken. Dr. Reimer claims that he has perfect control of his submarine ball and that there is no chance of a blow-up so far as he is concerned.

If Doc's periscopes fail to work and he is unable to locate the plate he will be given the elevator and Prof. Reed will get a chance to shoot his bean ball at the cadavers.

President Waters will again be at the first base station and we predict that it will be as hard for a runner to get by first base as it is for a freshman to get by drill.

At the key-stone sack our old friend "Jawn" Bender will cavort in true Eddie Collins style. Short is bound to be the strong point in the "engagement ring" as the veteran Dr. Walters has clinched the position. Tearing up the earth round third base and performing impossible plays will be that good old war horse Schoenleber.

Corralled in the outer pasture and Ty Cobbing to beat the Ozment crew watch Racehorse McCampbell, Clarinet Floyd, Tennisnet Allee and if Dr. Burt sees the light and signs his contract you may count on him to show the bugs some real pasturing in the suburban districts. Chenn. Ut is slated to do the bulk of the backstopping for the Clydesdales and his throwing arm is working like a piston rod.

A. R. White is to accompany the team south and is busy arranging the training trip schedule.

Puny Lippincott expects to write to keep the men in great spirits with some interesting stories.

The morals of the team will be looked after by the Professor of horticulture who will see that those players who break training and raise the Dickens are brought before Reason who is bound to give them "Fitts." Look for our account of the first game.

BULLETIN

Reports Declare That Leans Are Thirsty for Gore.

Official reports from the K. S. A. C. war office declare that General MacArthur and his troop of leans have started violent training for the coming battle with Skinnay's Ezenickers. The report also states the attenuated ones are thirsting for gore and that they are particularly fond of Pattemers so look out for their smoke.

Following is a list of the Toothpick Athletes who will tangle with the Rolypolys at the May Pete at 3:30 when his ribs (name deleted by the senseless) yells Play Ball.

IN TIE FOR FIRST PLACE.

Betas and Sigma Nus Must Play Another Game to Decide.

In "what might have been" the last game in the Pan-Hellenic League the Sigma Nu baseball aggregation won from the Beta sluggers by a count of 4 to 1 Thursday afternoon. The game was marked by the strong twirling of Hargis for the Poyntz street gang and the exceptional fielding of the Sigma Nu squad.

Until the game Thursday the Betas were leading in the inter-fraternity race having won all games played while the Sigma Nus had lost one. The dropping of this game by the Betas makes a tie for first place between them and the Sigma Nus.

The date of the playing of the game which is to settle the championship between the Greek letter men has not yet been set.

CONTEST AMONG STUDENTS FOR BEST VERSE WRITER

Don L. Burk of English Department Announces Verse Contest Open to all Students of College.

Don L. Burk, instructor in English announces a verse contest which is to be open to the entire student body. For some time Mr. Burk has been receiving a considerable amount of verse in his classes since coming to K. S. A. C. this term and as he has found much of it to be very good he now extends the contest to any and all students in college.

Any student may submit one or more poems to Mr. Burk either at his office in A 53 or through the post-office. The verses do not need to be signed unless the writer desires, but it is desired that the writer indicate his year in college.

The contest will close on Wednesday, May 24, and at least the three best poems received will be published in the Collegian the following Saturday. Other student verses will be given "honorable mention."

Mr. Burk's idea in promoting this contest is to stimulate under-graduate verse as a means of self-expression. Much good verse is turned out from other schools and Mr. Burk believes that at least 200 students will enter the contest.

Tickets for the play "Back to the Farm" given next Monday by students who are members of the Congregational church, were placed on sale Monday and have been rapidly purchased.

Under the direction of Mrs. Kammerer the cast is continuing its drilling on the presentation, meeting almost every evening. Those who have parts in the play and the parts taken by them are: "Charles Merrill," a crabbed farmer of the old school, Charles Croyle, "Mrs. Merrill," overworked, scolding farm wife, Lillie Davis; "Merton Merrill," young man impatient of home restraints, Ward Petrow; "Gus Anderson," a Swede farm hand, Floyd Fletcher; "Pose Meade," a district school m'aim, Vida St. John; "Mr. Ashley," attorney and real estate agent, Glenn Van Horn; "Mr. Allen," a shiftless neighbor, Harry H. Nelson; "Robert Powell," a law student, Richard H. Parsons; "Gertrude Langdon," a society belle, Miss Kate Giles; "Hilda," a Swede maid, Emily Wilson.

The part of the farm dog, "Don," will be taken by Professor Cochel's Lassie.

The action of the play covers three acts. Act I shows the Merrill farm yard. Act II shows a corner of a reception hall at the Junior-Senior reception at the close of a school year at the agricultural college. Act III shows a room on the Merrill farm.

Those who buy tickets to the play "Back to the Farm" should not be alarmed when they note the date upon the ticket. The play is yet to be given in spite of what the tickets say. The correct date is that advertised and elsewhere announced, Monday, May 15. The correct place is as given on the tickets, the college auditorium.

HIGH SCHOOL TRACKSTERS PERFORM THIS AFTERNOON

Fifty Schools Send a Hundred and Twenty-five Men to Battle for Championship on College Field Today.

EVERYTHING IN READINESS.

Everything is in readiness for the state high school meet which is to be held on Ahearn Field this afternoon. The officials for the meet have been selected by Coach Lowman and all arrangements for the meet have been made. Coach Carl J. Merner will have complete charge of the meet, promptly at 2:30 the track and field events will be started.

The first event in the track will be the 50 yard dash and the opening event in the field will be the pole vault. This year's visiting track athletes will have to show considerable form and speed if they expect to carry off any records, for there are some hard ones to beat. But with about fifty schools represented and 125 or more contestants entered there is danger of some of last year's and other records being broken.

The following schools have sent names of one or more entrants. Abilene, Alta Vista, Almena, Agra, Attica, Burlington, Caney, Dickinson county, Dodge City, Enterprise, Eskridge, Emporia both high school and Normal high, Florence, Garden City, Great Bend, Goodland, Hutchinson, Hiawatha, Lost Springs, Logan, Larned, Meriden, Manhattan, Minneapolis, Marion, Mackaville, Neodesha, Norton, Nickerson, Overbrook, Oskaloosa, Ozawie, Pratt, Peabody, Perry, Phillipsburg, St. John, Syracuse, Smith Center, School of Agriculture, Topeka, Valley Falls, Winchester, Wichita, Maple Hill, Salina, Logan and one or two more.

As has been said before in this column, it is up to the students of this institution to show these high school athletes what we have here and to see that they enjoy every minute of their visit. Coach Lowman has made arrangements to take care of most of the visitors and he expects the students to do their share of the entertaining.

"Old Man Opportunity" will be knocking at our door today and we don't want him to leave without making a strong bid for his aid. Every live, loyal Aggie should be out to the track meet this afternoon to show those high school men that we are interested in them. Make their visit worth while to them and to the school. Talk it up to them. Possibly they don't realize that we have the largest and greatest school of its kind in the world—if they don't, then —You tell 'em.

Meet called at 2:30. Admission 25 cents.

Delivered Address at Horton.

JOURNALISM SEMINAR MONDAY FOURTH HOUR

Meeting Promises to Be One of the Best Ever—Several Important Papers to Be Read.

A special effort is being exerted to have a large attendance at the next journalism seminar, to be held Monday, the fourth hour.

Several papers upon subjects for newspaper work will be presented. It is felt that since this is entirely a student affair that as many students as possible of those enrolled in the journalism courses should attend in order to assure the highest degree of success.

Professor Crawford and Mr. Snow of the journalism department have each declined to act as chairman of the seminar as they desire it to be entirely a student affair. They are, however, on hand to take part in the discussions which follow the main papers.

No Aggie-Indian Game.

The Aggie-Haskell Indian baseball game, which was to have been played on the college athletic field Friday afternoon, was postponed on account of the rain. The date for the game has not been set.

CROWDED COLLEGES.

It has been remarked upon that an exceedingly large per cent of students in the various colleges of the country failed to make passing grades this year and have been "plucked" in consequence. Possibly this means less in one direction and more in another than some may imagine. It does not mean what it seems to mean—that the students of today are manifesting an inferior scholarship to that displayed ten or fifteen years ago. On the contrary, the News is inclined to believe that the scholarship of today is better and that a great majority of those who are "plucked" today would have been passed along in previous years. The truth of the matter is that the standard has been materially raised in practically every good college in the country, and it has been raised for the reason that these schools are overcrowded. Twenty-five years ago it was the exceptional family that could send a boy to college, whereas today the average family, by making sacrifices, can do so. The value of a college education is so generally appreciated today that ten youths are after it in this country today where one sought it a few years ago. The great increase in the number of new colleges and the wonderful expansion in the equipment of old ones have failed to take care of the situation and today the college authorities do not trifle with a trifling student. They simply fire him out, unless peradventure he is a member of the football team. Indeed, it is notorious that in some schools, so great is the press, that many are excluded who might do very well with any sort of encouragement. The situation is one which parents of prospective students should take notice. Better keep the youth at home unless they are properly prepared and honestly ambitious.—E. L. Wayne (Ind.) News.

THE DAY OF THE COLLEGE MAID.

It is some time yet before the commencement season rolls around, but it must be confessed that this is the day of the college girl. She is in the limelight much of the time, whether it be as the rival of her brother in roughing it, or robbing Venus of the charms which have been hers through the ages, or illustrating the respective merits of fudge or potatoes as a luncheon dish, or vying with children in the elementary schools in startling answers to questions on current events.

Only the other day we had Wellesley and Swarthmore coming to the front with rival goddesses. Not that all the fair ones in these and every other college are not to be included in that category in young men's mind, but in this particular case the rivalry was as to physical perfection figured basis. Radcliffe rather spurns such diving maid stuff and goes in for culture with a touch of the modern. A course in current events has been a feature there, as is right and proper in an age when women are taking such a part in affairs generally, besieging a Congress that has plenty of things to worry about, and submitting resolutions for the approval of a body, every member of which has some of his own to spring and finds that it can't be done. Whereupon the lucky ones—the members of Congress, that is—get them printed in the papers and allow that they do just as much good.

The current events students were not much happier than some of the militant congressmen. The girls didn't know much about some of our leading statesmen, and that's what the members have been saying right along. Some of the girls for instance, thought Secretary of State Lansing was Secretary of War, a view which might drive even Mr. Garrison to say something, while others thought he was "an American Ambassador of some sort," and there be those who think the Secretary might be hard put to give a better definition of himself some days.

But Vassar goes them all one better.

Good old Vassar, what a name to conjure with, reminiscent of all that has been best in our school life these many days, symbolic of sanity ever. Vassar knows the meaning of that line: "Mens sana in corpore sano," which, quoted ever so oft is quotable still, and as safe from any danger of libel as a statesman's reliance on the Constitution. The girls of Vassar, healthy maids as is the manner of our time, got away with pretty hearty lunches, such as we term in the better circles "substantial." Sometimes the teachers thought them a bit dopey, an affliction attacking all us students. So the lunches were cut down to mere samples of the bird-seed style of provender. But the girls grew more dopey and sallied forth to the leaneries of the town. They weren't strong for "potatoes and point," especially with the spuds cut out. They won, henceforth, real eats.

Knowing the value of hain and cabbage and all the rest of it, they may be presumed to know how to prepare it. Wherefore, shall not men call them blessed? Somehow that name Vassar always did appeal. —Pittsburg Dispatch.

ABOUT DEBATING.

The subject of debate has been discussed pro and con in these columns. Some people have wondered how it came that debate was not thrown open to anyone and everyone in the college. It is impossible to throw debate open to everyone and expect the public to provide all necessary support for debating. Some means of support must be assured and these must be a definite source of financing.

The literary societies have been financing debating to the tune of more than $500 each year. When that fact is considered there is some justice in limiting debate participation to literary society folks.

The debating council is making an effort to devise some plan whereby debating will be open to the whole school. If the expense can be prorated among certain groups and organizations a plan can probably be decided on.

As it now stands only a relatively few members of the literary societies debate, but all members pay toward its support. A season ticket is then given to these members.

Not only has a request come from outside the societies for the opening of debate to the whole school, but it has come from the debaters also. Keener competition would result. The standard of debating would be raised, and the debaters want the whole school behind them in addition to those who are there at present.

More competition is desired by the coaches, by the faculty committee, by the debaters and by those who listen to debate here. More competition will make more victories likely. The feeling is high now in favor of debate work. Many who did not formerly see the value of debating now see that it is one of the best trainings that a student can get. Besides being an honor to work for the college it is an experience of profit to the man or woman who debates.

The question for the spring debate tryouts are ready for those who want to debate next year. There will be between twenty and thirty people chosen this spring for next fall's squad. The tryouts will be held during the last week in May or the first week in June. The question to be used in the Ames-K. S. A. C. dual debate is: "Resolved, That capital and labor should be compelled to settle their disputes in legally established courts of arbitration."

Material may be obtained in the library for study on this question. Miss Derby will be glad to help any who want help at getting the material and will show them how to use it.

The question to be debated with the four other schools in the Pentangular next spring is: "Resolved, That the United States government should enact a law providing for the subsidizing of a merchant marine upon the high seas."

Fertilizer Quality

When you buy fertilizer remember you are buying what is in the goods and not merely a weight of two thousand pounds.

When a smelter buys gold ore he buys not merely two thousand pounds but he insists on knowing how much gold is in the ore, and you should know the amount of active nitrogen, which is the gold of the fertilizer.

Writing On The Typewriter!

(Advertisement Series No. 2)

Nebuchadnezzar had to have an interpreter when he saw the writing on the wall.

Don't cause your professor to be like Nebuchadnezzar when he gets your note books, in that he has to get an interpreter to make out your pen or pencil-scrawled note books. Be modern—use the typewriter, so when your professor gets your note book he will not have to call in a "Daniel," but will find your notes up-to-date, plain, concise, clean, neat and properly balanced on the page. This is necessary now-a-days and typewriters from our office do your work neatly, and in the modern way—needing no interpreter at all. The work shows for itself; our typewriters speak for themselves; and our SERVICE excels for YOURSELVES—YOU get the benefit—needing no interpreter.

Call in and see us when you want a writing machine and let us "show" you.

PAGEANT OF THE NEW YEAR

Out of the "HELL BOX"

Contributed by Sigma Delta Chi, National Journalistic Fraternity.

Hiram and Lulu were driving. It was the regulation moonlit, new-mown hay and lilac and apple blossom scented night. The conversation was being carried on mostly by telepathy. Their souls were en rapport to the minutest degree, and mere vocal speech seemed unnecessary, nay, even vulgar and crude. But Hiram couldn't stand it. He clucked to old Dobbin, the only horse on Hiram's Dad's farm which had not been a victim to conscription, serving in the trenches at the spring plowing. He thought desperately for some subject of conversation, but none came to his aid, except that universal refuge of the brain-fogged conversationalists, the European war. Hiram talked for some time on the new offensives which were under way, but Lulu did not listen. Hiram determined that she should answer, and asked her directly: "Lulu, what do you think of this spring drive?" Lulu drew a deep breath, and came back from the imaginative realms of day dreams. "Oh, Hiram dear, I think they are just absolutely lovely," she assured him. Hiram concluded to put his faith in telepathy.

An eastern university professor is credited with the doctrine that it is better, because cheaper, to import laborers from southern and eastern Europe than to rear American children. In Kansas, we have state institutions of a different kind for freaks.

Should Earn Farm

Dean Jardine Urges Young Men to Earn a Farm in Kansas--Practice Modern Agricultural Methods and Produce Return on High Priced Land.

Kansas young men should own and operate the 36 per cent of the total number of farms in the state that are now handled by tenants. These young men can accomplish this end if they will practice the most modern farming methods, according to W. M. Jardine, dean of agriculture in the college and director of the Kansas Agricultural Experiment station.

Dean Jardine emphasizes the value of the best farm practices in Kansas particularly in relation to the yield of wheat, the growing of which is one of the chief industries of the state.

"Wheat growing," says Dean Jardine, "has been and will probably always continue to be one of the chief industries of Kansas. Eight to nine million acres is a large area to plant to one crop every year, but this is what the farmers of Kansas are doing in the case of wheat. We are extensive rather than intensive wheat farmers; that is to say, we operate large areas with big machinery and without very much detailed attention. We do not spend much time in figuring out suitable rotations to employ, how to build up the humus of the soil, and how to maintain soil fertility, all of which are essential in intensive farming. The extensiveness of our farming methods is emphasized by our low average acre yield.

Land Values, Not Yields, Rise.

"During the past 15 years the farm lands of Kansas have advanced more than 100 per cent in value, while during the same period records show little if any increase in acre yield. Under the system of farming practiced during the past 10 years and still in use on the majority of farms, it is impossible for a young man to buy a farm on borrowed capital at 6 to 8 per cent interest and pay for the land from the proceeds of the crop.

"While in the days gone by our fathers and grandfathers probably made money in extensive farming of the virgin soils which they secured at very little cost, conditions have changed. The same land today brings from $60 to $150 an acre, and if handled in the old fashioned way seldom can be made to produce yields that will return a profit on the investment, to say nothing of proving a reasonable salary for its owner.

"It is not very likely that many of our farmers who are past the prime of life--and it is these men who own the majority of Kansas farms--will change their methods now. A good many of them are retiring to the city and turning the management of their places over to tenants. According to the best information we have some 36 per cent of our farms are being operated by tenants. While this is the trend of agricultural conditions, we continue to produce in Kansas large numbers of young men on whose shoulders rests the hope of Kansas agriculture. The majority of these young men, however, cannot become owners of farms in this state, except through inheritance, unless they put more intelligence into the business of farming than it is now receiving, because it is practically impossible for crops under the present system of farming to furnish money to pay 7 or 8 per cent interest on $150 an acre land and leave anything to liquidate the principal.

Reduce Cost of Production.
"Today the cost of producing a bushel of wheat on Kansas farms ranges from 40 to 60 cents. This is about the cost of producing wheat in Montana, the Dakotas, and Canada. In Kansas this cost can be reduced by readjusting the farming business through the production of a diversity of crops in rotation and the growing of live stock on the farm, thus allowing a better distribution of labor, the feeding of byproducts, and the upkeep of the fertility of the soil.

"While the average farmer today is operating his farm in much the same fashion followed 20 years ago, except that he is employing bigger machinery and is working less land--which is a very good thing--he does not need to be particularly concerned about increased yields, because he owns his farm and it cost him little. If he secured 3 or 4 per cent interest on his capital he has sufficient to care for himself and family comfortably. It is not for the welfare of this man that I am concerned. It is the young man, the prospective farmer, the farmer of the future, for whom I am concerned and whom I want to reach. Some day, and not in the far distant future, our boys will be the farmers of this state--at least they ought to be and will be if it is made half possible for them to be--and I want to try to show them that there is a way which if followed will enable them to become owners of land even at its present high value.

JUNIOR-SENIOR PROM WILL BE BIG AFFAIR

Informal Dancing Together With Junior Farce, Stunts and Speeches Promise Most Enjoyable Evening for Upper Classmen.

THE PROM STARTS AT 7 O'CLOCK.

Special entertainment for all will be the main attraction of the big Junior-Senior Prom on the campus Friday evening. Often before there has been some one who did not like to play, or dance, or watch stunts, or even eat but this year there is going to be such a variety of things to take up the time of departing seniors and aspiring juniors that every one will be provided for. The affair will be informal, it being requested that no one wear full dress suits.

The evening's entertainment will start with the general reception in Nichols gymnasium at seven o'clock, which will continue until time to adjourn to the Auditorium for the Junior farce at eight o'clock. All anyone can find out about this part of the program is—mighty little. No definite information is to be had except that the seniors are to hear their history and future proclaimed in a way they never before dreamed was possible.

After the farce is over there will come the presentation of the Shepherd's Crook. For 18 years, since 1898 this Crook has been handed down from senior to junior class and is now decorated with the colors of as many classes. It is said that this same Shepherd's Crook was the cause of the untimely death of a student some years ago. A certain student of the senior class had the relic in keeping each year and this particular spring it was stolen from the keeper. The thief was caught and taken to the park where he was bound and placed under the spray of the fountain. The following morning the victim was found and released, after having lost his mind from the continued dripping of the water on his body. For some days he wandered about town and then disappeared. Sometime after, his body was found in the woods near Wildcat. It was supposed that he starved to death.

At present J. L. Garlough is guardian of the Sacred Crook and will present it to some member of the junior class Friday evening.

Dancing in the big gym will begin at 9:30 o'clock and continue until one a. m. Korsmeier's 15-piece orchestra will play for the dancers. The floor will be in the best condition.

During the time that the dance is in progress upstairs there will be entertainment going on in the women's gym for all those who do not care for the fox trot and fish bobble. The entertainment downstairs is to be known as "The Departmental Reportment Review" and will consist of stunts, serious speeches, and special music.

The eats for the evening are to be ice cream and wafers—and plenty of each.

The committee in charge says that a person does not have to spend all the evening dancing, or eating, or listening to the talks just because that is the first thing he does but that a person may dance an hour, eat an hour, listen an hour, and then do what ever he pleases the rest of the time.

Chairmen of committees in charge of the prom are: dates, W. W. Wright; reception, Joe Sweet; farce, Nina May Powell; gymnasium floor, L. E. Howard; music, L. M. Hanna; entertainment, Madge Thompson; decorations, W. N. Caton, eats, May Sweet.

WOULD STOP SMOKING.

President Waters Sends Communication to all Men Students.

Dr. H. J. Waters, president of the college would stop smoking among students, and consequently among the majority of people within a few years. President Waters recently sent cards to all men students of the college setting forth what effect his own experience as a smoker.

The note sent to the students follows:

"If you were applying for a position of any kind would you deem it wise to mention among your qualifications the fact that you use tobacco? Do you realize that if your prospective employer knew that you smoked and particularly if he knew that you smoked cigarettes, he would employ you, if at all, in spite of the fact and not because of it?"

"It is my deliberate conviction, after using tobacco twenty-five years and then quitting it, that smoking is to be entered always as a debit item in the ledger of life. Let me urge those of you who have not yet formed this injurious and unnecessary habit to resist its temptation. Let me urge those of you who have begun the use of tobacco to show strength of character by quitting. Such an act will greatly increase your respect for yourself and will give you strength and courage to meet the greater crises of life."

Will Read Paper at University Celebration of Institution—Honors to Zoology Men.

During the twenty-fifth anniversary celebration of the founding of the university of Chicago, the first week in June, Dr. R. K. His work will be in fresh water biology, in which subject he has specialized several years. During the summer, before assuming his duties in Cornell in the fall, Mr. Allen will teach in Indiana university.

A. W. Bellomy, assistant in genetics in the zoology department, has been awarded a fellowship in genetics in the zoology department of the university of Chicago. This much prized fellowship was awarded to Mr. Bellomy largely on account of the merits of a paper—to be published this summer—describing a breeding experiment which he has carried on during the past two years.

FINAL PRACTICE FOR FETE THURSDAY NIGHT AT 6:30

Dress Rehearsal of All Events Will Take Place in Women's Gymnasium Then—Arrangements All O. K.

The final practice for the May Fete is to be held Thursday evening at 6:30 o'clock in the women's gymnasium according to announcement by Miss Pauline Groves last night.

The practice Thursday night is to be a strictly "dress rehearsal" affair, and the people in charge of the fete are making every effort to get every student taking part in the fete, to be present for the final practice.

Arrangements for the fete have been coming on in good shape, in all quarters, and the event promises to be one of the most successful in the history of the project.

THERE'S A DIFFERENCE THE LAYMAN DOESN'T SEE

Between the Newspaper and the News Gathering Association, According to E. W. Wingert, Head of Topeka A. P. Office.

SPOKE TO JOURNALISTS.

There is a difference in aim between a news gathering association and a newspaper which is seldom recognized by the layman, according to E. W. Wingert, manager of the Associated Press at Topeka, who spoke to students in industrial journalism at the Kansas State Agricultural college, Tuesday.

"Three fundamental aims of a newspaper are: to inform, to influence, and to entertain its readers," declared Mr. Wingert. "The association has but one aim—to inform newspapers of world news and to do it accurately, quickly, and adequately, in a non-partisan, non-political and non-sectarian manner."

The speaker explained that the scope of the Associated Press extends throughout the United States, Alaska, Hawaiian Islands, the Philippines, the islands of the Caribbean sea, Mexico, the Central American states, all foreign countries, and by an exchange with the Canadian Press, Ltd., the British possessions of this continent. Every member has equal rights with every other member and each paper is obliged to furnish the A. P. with all the news that happens in its territory.

In the United States, the A. P. is cut into four divisions, each with a superintendent who governs the handling of the news. There is also a traffic chief who looks after the telegraphing end of the work, governing the operators and seeing that the telegraph companies keep the lines in proper order.

"The working organization of the Associated Press is divided into two parts—the editorial and the traffic departments," said Mr. Wingert.

"While working together, the news men and the operators are in distinct departments as are the editors and printers of a newspaper."

The editor's task, explained the speaker, is to pass judgment on the varied collection of news items, to put one more important story ahead of another of lesser importance and to discard some stories because they are of no importance in the territory. As he judges the story and prepares it for the wire, he passes it over to the operator who sends it out.

This process of assembling, assorting and re-editing the news goes on at bureau points in all parts of the United States. News judgment is the editor's most valuable asset. An item of interest in one part of the country may be of no value to newspaper readers in another.

It is important that a story be told in as few words as possible because of the volume of news that pours in over the wires every day. Editors and writers must bear in mind that space in newspapers is limited and the story must be prepared in such a manner that if exigencies of space prevent more than one paragraph being used the reader will get a good idea of the story by reading the first paragraph.

"When you consider that every minute of the day and night everywhere in the world there are men working at feverish speed to get the important news sent out to newspapers in all parts of the country, the tremendous work carries a romance of achievement that few people realize when they pick up the daily paper and read of events that happened in Europe only a few minutes before they read the words telling about it," said Mr. Wingert.

CHEMISTS WILL MEET HERE.

National Society Comes to K. S. A. C. May 20 for 118 Meeting.

The 118th meeting of the Kansas City section of the American Chemical Society will be held here on May 20. Saturday afternoon will be given to inspecting the department of chemistry and the college in general.

Saturday evening the following papers will be presented: "The Chemical Conditions Essential for Making Alfalfa Silage," C. O. Swanson; "Notes on New and Non-official Remedies and the Propaganda of Reform," R. H. Needham; "On the Nutritional Deficiencies of Corn," J. T. Willard.

DEBATING THROWN OPEN TO MORE ORGANIZATIONS

Any Body of Students Willing to Stand Their Pro-rata of Expense to Be Eligible for Inter-collegiate Squad.

TRYOUTS EARLY IN JUNE.

"Intercollegiate debate is at last open to the whole college." This statement was given out today by J. B. Sweet, chairman of the committee recently appointed by the debating council to see what steps could be taken to accomplish this end.

In consequence of the discussion arising last year out of the student activity fee, it was felt by many of the members of the literary societies, especially by the debaters among their numbers, that there was a wish on the part of some, outside of the societies to engage in this student activity. More than a year ago the debating council took steps to admit the whole college to debate. The revival of interest in the student activity fee last fall and the unanimous approval of it by all the college classes, resulted in the abandonment by the debating council of any further effort to formulate a plan. It was understood that if the fee were established, intercollegiate debate would be one of the activities supported by it, and as a consequence would necessarily be open to all students.

As soon as the debating council learned that the fee would not be put into force, D. E. Hull, president of that organization, appointed a committee, consisting of J. B. Sweet, chairman; Irene Walker, and William Wunsch, to consider ways and means of opening debate to those outside of the literary societies.

The co-operation of various organizations was sought, and with encouraging results. The Women's Pan-Hellenic has already unanimously endorsed the plan proposed by the committee. There are several other organizations that have given similar assurances that they will do likewise.

The recommendations of the committee were passed unanimously by the debating council and referred by them to the eight large literary societies who in their turn unanimously approved the proposed plan.

The proposed plan is that intercollegiate debate shall be open to all members of college organizations willing to pro-rate the expense of debate among their membership.

It is felt by those most interested that intercollegiate debate will receive a great stimulus, not only from the keener competition for the places on the teams, but also from the fact that it will have the whole college behind it.

In speaking of the proposed change, Dr. MacArthur, head coach of debating here, said, "The debating council and its committees are to be congratulated upon the service that they have rendered to this activity; and the literary societies, are to be much commended for the broad and generous spirit they have exhibited in this whole matter."

This spring try-outs for the squad will be held early in June. At that time those organizations which have declared themselves willing to stand their share of the expenses will be eligible to compete.

To Meet Thursday.

All students who are interested in the try-outs are requested to meet Miss Derby in the basement of the library at 9 o'clock Thursday morning. Miss Derby will explain how to use the material in the library on the subjects for debate for next year.

Not all the subjects have been selected as yet. The debating council and the coaches are carrying on negotiations with other schools in regard to contracts and subjects.

SHORT COURSE IN MILLING.

Fourth Annual Series of Instructions Begins Monday—Closes May 27.

The fourth annual short course in wheat and flour testing, offered by the department of milling industry of the college, will open Monday and continue to May 27. The course will be of special interest to wheat buyers, millers, bakers and flour salesmen.

The work in the short course will consist of a course of lectures with discussions and laboratory practice. Instruction will be given in methods for determining absorption, gluten (both wet and dry), gliadin, moisture, ash, total protein and acidity. The laboratory practice will be given in the model mill and laboratory of the department.

Representatives of mills who are planning to take the short course have been asked to furnish 10-pound samples of their flour for laboratory tests, also a quart supply of the wheat from which the flour is made.

A laboratory fee of $3.50 to cover breakage, will be charged each person who enrolls for the course.

TRACK MEET TO BE CLOSE.

Both Teams Well Balanced—Some Aggies Make Last Appearance Friday.

According to the dope the meet with K. U. promises to be a close one. Everyone is working hard for the tangle and the Aggies are determined to put a crimp in any K. U. aspirations. This meet will mark the final appearance of some of the Aggie track and field stars. Frizzell, Tetter and Vandenburg will all "sing their swan song" as far as home performance is concerned. All these men will graduate this June. Frizzell and Vandenburg via the Sheepskin route and Tetter will have served his time in the M. V. at the end of the year. K. U. has a well balanced team this year and the Aggies will have a tough nut to crack when the two aggregations get together. Last year the Aggies defeated the Kansans for the first time in the history of track competition between the two schools.

COBURN PLAYERS TO GIVE OPEN AIR PERFORMANCES

Famous Company Will Offer Two Productions on June 7—Is Annual Spring Term Feature.

The outdoor presentation of classical plays, which has been an annual feature of the spring term at the college, is not to be omitted this year.

According to an announcement by the Lyceum Course committee, the Coburn Players have been secured to give two performances on the campus, on June 7. It is stated by the committee that there is more expense attached to the engagement of the Coburn Players, than to the engagement of the Ben Greet players, who have played at K. S. A. C. several times.

Two performances will be given. "The Tempest" will be produced in the afternoon, and "The Rivals" in the evening. The outdoor stage will be constructed in the natural theatre east of the auditorium, where the Ben Greet players held forth two years ago.

Eight hundred tickets, admitting to both afternoon and evening performances, will be sold. These tickets may be reserved on June 5. Tickets will also be sold admitting to either one of the plays. The two-performance tickets will be sold for $1.00, with the privilege of reserving. The tickets to "The Tempest," in the afternoon will be sold for 50 cents, and to "The Rivals," in the evening, for 75 cents. The single admission tickets cannot be reserved.

A. H. MEN GO TO K. C.

Visit Stock Yards and Packing Plants—Hear Billy Sunday.

Twenty-five students from the animal husbandry department went to Kansas City yesterday, on a special car, to make a trip of inspection to various points of interest to stockmen in the city.

The stockyards, the packing plants, the livestock exchange, and the yards where horses and mules are sold, were visited.

The students were entertained by the member of the Kansas City Livestock Exchange, during their visit. Seats were reserved at the Billy Sunday tabernacle for them last night.

Professor W. A. Cochel was in charge of the party and other members of the faculty of the department accompanied the students. The party left at 5:50 o'clock Tuesday morning.

Dairymen on Trip.

The class in advanced dairy judging will make a trip to Holton and Topeka May 26 and 27. They will visit several pure bred dairy herds and do some practice judging. This trip is preparatory to picking the dairy judging team which will represent the college in the various dairy shows next fall.

No Y. W. C. A. Thursday Night.

There will be no regular meeting of the Y. W. C. A. Thursday night, on account of the final practice for the May Fete, which has been announced for that time.

AGGIES BEAT ST. MARYS BY EASY 2 TO 1 SCORE

Lefty Williams' Hitting Feature of Game—Hodgson Held Irish to Four Hits—Aggies Scored in Fourth.

THE PICKINS' WAS SLIM.

The Aggies staged a real comeback in their contest with the Irish from down the Kaw yesterday afternoon, taking the visitors into camp by the score of 2 to 1. Said Irish after drubbing K. U. last week undoubtedly imagined that they would have pickin's here with the Aggies, and they did—but the pickin's was woefully slim. In fact they consisted mostly of a beautiful collection of choice sterile goose eggs. Eight of 'em. One lonely tally coming in the first inning, prevented the Saints from being shut out. Hodgson on the mound for the Aggies was in hot water for only one inning during the game, the first, when the visitors scored their one run. After that inning the Aggie twirler pitched superb ball and was never in danger the remainder of the game. He allowed only four safe hits and whiffed eleven of the opposing batsmen, while his team mates were gathering in eight safe blows and the game.

The hitting of "Lefty" Williams was easily the feature of the game. Bill hit safely three times out of four trips to the plate. His clean drive in the fourth being responsible for the two Aggie scores and the winning of the game.

St. Marys started scoring in the first inning. Canary second man up, walked, stole second and scored on Dowling's hit through third base. This ended the scoring for the visitors. The Aggies started off well in their half of the first. Griffith led off with a clean drive to left, advanced to second when the Irish pitcher booted Newman's perfect bunt. Reynolds, Newton and Harvey failed to deliver the goods and Griffiths died on second. In the fourth, Newton hit safely to left, going to third on a hit-and-run play when Harvey hit to right.

"Lefty" Williams then cleaned up the bases with a screaming drive to center, scoring both Newton and Harvey. McGalliard hit safely to center, scoring both Newton and Harvey. McGalliard hit safely to center advancing Williams to third. Next three up went out in one, two, three order via the St. Marys infield. The Aggies had an opportunity to score in the sixth when Harvey led off with a safe blow through short and advanced to second on Williams's sacrifice, but the next two up failed to come through with the necessary hit.

THE WHY OF THE LOAN FUND.

Started by President Waters and Is Steadily Growing.

There are young men and women in every Kansas community who would be glad to go to college if they could be sure of a loan in time of need. To provide for this is the purpose of the loan fund now being established at the college.

The fund was started by President H. J. Waters, who volunteered to donate all the Kansas royalties from his textbook, "The Essentials of Agriculture," for the purpose stated. Further contributions have been made by Governor Arthur Capper, and by alumni, members of the faculty, and citizens of Manhattan. The fund is expected to reach $4,000 in the near future.

The money will be used to help needy and deserving students by means of small loans. The fund will be a revolving one.

TO GET ALONG IN THE WORLD.

The primary cause of success or failure is in the individual. If a man has the right material in him he will make opportunity master fate and win out honorably.

A man's chance for success in life is determined by the strength and number of positive elements of mind and character. The negative, passive person is not wanted anywhere. The young man of positive impulses, mental alertness, and forceful energies is by the law of natural affinities in demand.

Young man, if you would succeed in life start with the idea of making your own way, earning what you get and giving value received. Don't be afraid of hard work. Every winner is a worker. Constitutional laziness is a worse handicap in the race of life than tuberculosis. Genius has been defined as the capacity for intelligent, persistent hard work. Edison says, "Genius is 2 per cent inspiration and 98 per cent perspiration."

Get control of your appetites. They are excellent servants but tyrannical masters! They rule to ruin. They wreck genius, blast hopes, and defeat ambition. The employers of 80 per cent of the employed in the United States refuse to keep a man on their pay rolls that drinks intoxicating liquors.

Dismiss the notion that you can do everything equally well. Find out what you are fitted for by studying your tastes, talents, and sentiments and the requirement of various vocations; then select the line for which you have the most natural ability and educate for it. Take time to put your money into your brains. Prepare thoroughly; concentrate upon the one thing. The first class man in his line is always in demand.

Learn to carry responsibility. There are 100 men that know how for one that can be depended upon to always do as directed. If somebody has to "O. K." your work, you have to pay his salary.

Take advantage of your present opportunities. Do the best right where you are and greater opportunities will open to you. It is the margin of work, of interest, of courtesy, and of character that a man puts into his life's effort over and above what is required of him that develops him and opens the way for greater achievements.

Selfishness is suicidal. He who lives for self suffers much, accomplishes little, and dies a failure; but he who loves God and lives to serve his fellow men grows daily, becomes efficient, enjoys life, and wins a victor's crown.—Dr. Newton N. Riddell.

Dr. E. C. Miller of the botany department, left Tuesday for Garden City where he will carry on his physiological experiments with corn and sorghums. He expects to be gone three weeks. W. B. Coffman, '16, will spend the summer assisting Doctor Miller in this work.

The annual Athenian-Browning "Owl-Bake" will take place May 27 at Hackberry Glen. The Athenians are now going through the process of getting dates.

Never Did Anyone Ever Suspect that K. S. A. C. Would be the Scene of a Real Live Hold-up—And a Wise Senior was the Victim.

Just recently, two college students were strolling leisurely homeward from the library. He was a senior and she a junior. The library had been closed for more than an hour, yet they were distinctly seen to be coming from the east entrance to that building.

They were going toward the east gate, hand in hand, and entirely unmindful of their surroundings. At the rate they were traveling there is no doubt but what they would have been off the campus within another hour.

Just as they came opposite the bulletin board located at the dividing point of the walks that lead to the two east gates, two masked men stepped from behind the board. One of them approached closely to the senior saying, as he pointed a wicked looking revolver at his chest, "Raise your hands quietly, and be quick about it." The senior was nothing loath to act. Indeed, one might have thought from the neatness and quickness of action, that he had been practicing just that act for some time.

Masked man number two took advantage of the raised hands to go deftly through the pockets of the senior. From them he took one gold watch, a box of cigarettes, two calling cards, two dice, a fountain pen and three lead pencils. The only money found was a nickel, a dime and eight pennies. This was not taken. The young man begged so hard that the watch was also returned. Only two rings were taken from the girl, who had not screamed, and who seemed the cooler of the two.

After cautioning the strollers about making an outcry, unless they cared to have the whole episode aired, the masked men bid them good night and quickly disappeared in the trees and shrubbery north of the road leading up to the college.

The next morning the senior and junior each received his personal belongings through the college postoffice. In each package was to be found additional advice and warning concerning late hours on the campus.

The masked men were two sophomores taking a half hour's relaxation after an evening of study. The revolver was a flashlight pistol containing a dead battery.

Writing On The Typewriter!

(Advertisement Series No. 2)—As Corrected.

Belshazzar had to have an interpreter when he saw the writing on the wall.

Don't cause your professor to be like Belshazzar when he gets your note books, in that he has to get an interpreter to make out your pen or pencil-scrawled note books. Be modern—use the typewriter, so when your professor gets your note book he will not have to call in a "Daniel," but will find your notes up-to-date, plain, concise, clean, neat and properly balanced on the page. This is necessary now-a-days and typewriters from our office do your work neatly, and in the modern way—needing no interpreter at all. The work shows for itself; our typewriters speak for themselves; and our SERVICE excels for YOURSELVES—YOU get the benefit—needing no interpreter.

Call in and see us when you want a writing machine and let us "show" you.

You need no interpreter when dealing with us!

Gasoline—What Is It?

Gasoline is obtained from petroleum in much the same way that whisky is obtained from corn; and, like whisky, is capable of raising more hell in a given space of time than anything of its size, weight and previous condition of servitude with which we are acquainted.

When petroleum is boiled up it gives off cymogene, rhigolene and ether before it lets go of the gasoline; so it will not do to say that this pernicious product is not the result of mature deliberation. It is. And not only that, we believe old "malice aforethought" lurks somewhere in the background. Without doubt, selling them gasoline is a sinister way that "John D." has of getting back at the dear "peepul."

Gasoline is three times heavier than air; therefore when the lid is off, this Genl has a habit of hugging the ground, and while the unsuspecting victim is tolling in a sense of security that would do credit to William Jennings ord, Henry Bryan, it sneaks off in search of a light. It has been known to travel five hundred feet, get loaded, and come back to its port of hail in a blaze of glory. It has a yellow dog baying at the moon when it comes to dragging things back home and musing up the front yard. This half-breed being heavier than air takes delight in mixing with it when not engaged in some other deviltry, and it depends upon how badly he mixes whether he paints the town red or shoots it up. Under ordinary conditions, he will contaminate the atmosphere on a 2 per cent mixture by volume. Let him go 5 per cent, block his passage, shoot in a spark, and the undertaker will spend a week looking for enough material out of which to make a decent funeral.—Our Paper.

Better Hold 'em Without Bond.

The stories written by members of the classes in elementary journalism, on the address by Strickland W. Gillland last week, were under discussion. One cub had written: "The young reporter," said Mr. McGilliland, "usually uses his own language, and for this reason should be put under a heavier bond than a bank cashier."

NEWSPAPER ENGLISH IS SUPERIOR SAYS CONOVER

The Newspaper Itself Is an Unconscious But Potent Teacher of Language, According to Instructor in English Dept.

TEACHES CONCISE PHRASING.

Newspaper English is superior to that used by the average person. The newspaper is an unconscious but potent teacher of English, asserts Robert W. Conover, assistant professor of the English language in the college.

"Newspaper English," says Professor Conover "is a phrase repeated with parrot like inflection by persons who have accepted it as an epithet applicable to any mistake in English that occurs in a newspaper. The term should not include in its meaning common mistakes in the use of language. It was meant originally to describe a certain peculiarity in the use of language not restricted to newspapers but reaching its worst and most absurd development in them.
After this absurd, high sounding diction came into the open its violation of good taste was recognized and it has now disappeared except from the extreme provincial papers.

"Within recent years the use of schools of journalism and courses in journalism has come as the result of the feeling among older newspaper men that training for the profession of journalism should be put upon a professional basis.

"It may be said that there has been steady improvement in newspaper English. This is shown in clear concise, and honest use of words; in simpler and more direct sentences, and to conscious attention to the higher or more difficult elements of style."

"It is in the more hastily written and hastily printed portions of the newspaper that mistakes in English occur most frequently," states Professor Conover. "News is given out with a rapidity which seems almost magical. In New York, baseball fans returning from a game uptown may read not only the final score, but the description of the game by innings when the subway or elevated takes them down town. A recent issue of Judge shows a picture of a couple in a taxi buying a newspaper containing an account of their own development. In this case, perhaps one of them had been thoughtful enough to send it in before hand.

"Editorials, less hastily written, continue to hold an important place in the newspaper," says Professor Conover. "They are often excellent both in scholarship and expression.
They aim to be both timely and interesting and to influence public opinion in regard to politics, war, business, education, and philanthropy.

"But I wish to point out briefly some of the excellencies of the newspaper as an unconscious but potent teacher of English. The first of these good qualities is its departure from stilted phraseology. The value of simplicity is constantly insisted upon.
William Cullen Bryant said: 'Be simple and unaffected. Never use a long word where a short one will do. Call a spade by its name, not a well known oblong instrument of manual labor.
Let a home be a home not a residence.
Speak of a place and not of a locality.
Elegance of language may not be in the power of us all, but simplicity and straightforwardness are.' The work of many writers may be cited as examples of this kind of clear incisive prose. That of Rudyard Kipling will serve as one."

Star of Meet.

MADE ALL AG'S 15 POINTS.

First place in the sixth annual high school track and field meet, held last Saturday on the college athletic field, went to the Topeka high school athletes with a total of 16 points.
The School of Agriculture of the col-of 12 yards held by McCallen, the Topeka finishman, in the last lap of the relay, Stout of Minneapolis snatched the relay for his school.

The Manhattan high school made

MAY FETE

COLLEGE CAMPUS

Saturday, May 20th--4:00 p. m.

Faculty Baseball Game--Fats vs. Leans

PAGEANT OF THE NEW YEAR

THE KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN.

VOLUME 27. NUMBER 65.

KANSAS STATE AGRICULTURAL COLLEGE, MANHATTAN, SATURDAY, MAY 20, 1916.

PRICE 5 CENTS.

REIGN OF MAY QUEEN TO BEGIN AT 4:00 TODAY

Care Will Be Banished Then—Ceremonies Start With Procession and Coronation of Queen—Cadet Band to Furnish Music.

WEEKS GIVEN TO PREPARATION.

On this, the twentieth day of May, in the Year of Our Lord, one thousand nine hundred and sixteen, at 4 o'clock, post meridian, central time, beginneth a new reign.

Then shall the faculty be deposed, and the omnipotence of the board of administration be no more. Then shall the Queen of the May, Her Most Gracious Majesty Mary Polson I, and Gayety and Lighthouse, and Joy, and Carefree, her handmaids, and the other members of her court attain to the reigns of government, and the annual May fete shall be declared in effect. And there shall be no more care and no more sorrow, on May Day. Hear ye the proclamation.

For some months preparations for the fete have been going on with great vigor. One hundred and fifteen men and between two and three hundred girls have been rehearsed and trained in the dancing, by Miss Blanche Enyart and Miss Ethel Loring, instructors in the department of physical education. Costumes for the different events in the fete have been designed by Miss Florence Hunt, of the department of domestic art.

A large number of girls of the Y. W. C. A. have spent much time and effort on the committees which have been at work on the project. A Y. M. C. A. committee has also been busy on the details.

The sale of tickets has been going on rapidly and successfully. Bleachers from the athletic field have been brought to the campus, and reserved seats thereon sold to the public.

Represents Much Work.

The fete consequently represents an immense amount of time and labor on the part of those in charge, and promises to take its place among the most spectacular of the series which has been staged.

The ceremonies will open with a procession from the gymnasium to the throne, which will be set up on the campus east of the auditorium. All the people who take part in the fete will be in the procession. The variety and beauty of the costumes will make this feature one of the most striking.

The May Queen will be crowned by Mrs. Mary Pierce Van Zile, dean of women.

Maid of Honor.

The Maid of Honor is to be Miss Wilma Burtis. Other attendants in the train will be Miss Ruth Adams, Miss Jeanita Reynolds, and the three elected by the classes, Miss Laura Ramsey, Miss Pauline Richards, and Miss Sarah Drake.

WOULD GET UP EARLIER IN THE DEWEY MORNING

Aggieville Merchants Declare for the "Hour of Daylight" Plan—Petition City Officials.

Who wants to get up earlier in the morning? Isn't it bad enough to have to get up for the first hour anyhow? Nevertheless, some of the Aggieville merchants have started a petition to the mayor and city commissioners of the town, to have Manhattan adopt the plan which is being followed in various cities, of setting all clocks ahead an hour, and thereby gaining an extra hour of daylight.

The petition has met with a good deal of approval in Aggieville, particularly among the business men, who believe that it will give them letter hours.

It is doubtful whether such action by the commissioners, if taken, would affect the college time. Dr. Waters has said that the matter had never come up for consideration, and that he had not the slightest idea what action, if any, would be taken if it was presented to the college authorities.

RAMBLERS ARE REORGANIZING.

Manhattan Baseball Bugs are Again in the Field.

Aggie baseball fans who cannot get enough of the game by attending the inter-collegiate battles are to be offered an opportunity to see a little bush league stuff.

The Manhattan Ramblers are being reorganized under the same management as last year, and are scheduling games for the spring and summer. They have already played two games. Several semi-pro Topeka teams are on their list for games at Manhattan, though definite information as to dates is not yet available.

K. P.'S VISIT THE CAMPUS.

Delegates to State Convention Inspect Grounds and Buildings.

Delegates and visitors to the annual state convention of the Knights of Pythias, held in Manhattan this week, have comprised the greater number of college visitors.

Wednesday afternoon a special trip for the delegates to the college grounds was arranged, and four street car loads took advantage of the opportunity. They were provided with guides and shown over the entire campus, and through the buildings. Many of them have friends or relatives in K. S. A. C.

SPEAK AT DAIRYMEN'S MEETING.

Members of College Faculty Will go to Abilene Today.

Dairymen from all central Kansas are expected to attend a meet at Abilene today at which problems of interest to producers of dairy products will be discussed by specialists. Dr. H. J. Waters, Prof. O. E. Reed and Prof. J. B. Fitch of the college will speak at the meeting.

A. H. STUDENTS GO TO KANSAS CITY ON TRIP

Are Guests of the Stock Exchange Members for One Day—Forty-Five Members of Class Make the Journey.

VISITED MANY K. C. PLANTS.

The Kansas City Live Stock exchange was host to 45 students of the animal husbandry department of the Kansas State Agricultural college on their annual inspection trip to the Kansas City stock yards last Tuesday.

The party arrived in Kansas City at 9 o'clock and went immediately to the Stock Exchange building where G. N. Neff, editor of the Drovers' Telegram made them an address of welcome. Here several pictures were taken of the group.

Thomas J. Zeok, president of the Zeok and Zeok Commission company, then conducted the students through the yards where they saw different kinds of live stock bought and sold.

They next visited Swift's packing house, being conducted through the killing, dressing, cooling and butchering departments. In the butchering department a light lunch consisting of sandwiches and pasteurized milk was served.

At one o'clock the visitors returned to the Exchange building where luncheon was served by the Hoof and Horn club. In the afternoon they were treated to an automobile ride over the city.

A number of the party returned to Manhattan Tuesday night but the majority remained in Kansas City and heard Billy Sunday, returning Wednesday morning.

Professor Cochel and Professor McCampbell were in charge of the party. The following students made the trip: F. B. Cromer, J. M. Aye, W. L. Wilhoite, R. V. O'Neil, S. H. Taam, W. B. Adair, J. S. Wood, R. P. Ramsey, B. M. Anderson, Robert R. Lancaster, E. C. Miller, R. E. Curtis, J. W. Crumbaker, A. C. Berry, F. N. Welch, S. O. Browning, G. F. Wallace, W. J. Ott, J. P. Loomis, R. S. Orr, G. L. A. BIXBY MAY BE WEST POINT CADET FROM CO. 1

Aggie Student Takes Examination for Admission to U. S. Military Academy—Is K. N. G. Veteran

Lawrence Bixby, captain of one of the cadet companies, and a non-commissioned officer in Company 1 of the Kansas National Guard, went to Topeka Thursday, where he took an examination for admission to West Point, as a cadet.

Owing to the demand for officers which is sweeping the army, in connection with the national defense program, the war department has ordered that one member of each regiment of militia be recommended to be examined for admission to West Point.

Bixby was selected as the candidate from the First Regiment of the Kansas Guard. Following the examination at Topeka, he will go on to Leavenworth for the final physical examination.

He has been a member of Company 1 for the past two years, and has risen in that time to the rank of second duty sergeant. He has distinguished himself at two state encampments as a rifleman, also in the cadet regiment and rifle team.

Visitors Appreciated Cadets.

The college cadets drilled before a very appreciative audience Wednesday afternoon when a good sized delegation of the Knights of Pythias, who were holding their state convention here attended the regular drill period. The regimental parade was highly appreciated and the "bookies" responded to the repeated clapping with the best parade that they have given this year.

The cadets were to have taken part in the parade which the order gave Tuesday afternoon but the absence of Dr. Waters made it impossible to obtain his permission.

JAYHAWKERS WIN DUAL TRACK MEET 66 TO 43

Frizzell Ties With Davidson for High Points—Each Capture 10—Relay Race Fastest in History of Field.

DISCUS RECORD IS BROKEN.

Running in the best of form yesterday the Kansas Jayhawkers won the dual meet from the Aggies by a score of 66 to 43.

Frizzell, the Aggie captain and Davidson of K. U., tied for high point honors with a total of 10 points each. Frizzell took the high hurdles and the high jump and Davidson took the century dash and the 220 yard dash. Wilder for the Aggies and O'Leary of K. U., each took a total of eight points apiece.

K. U. started off with a rush, taking first in the century and the mile. These two races were the fastest of the day. Sproul beat Seeber of the Aggies, in the mile by a few yards in the fast time of 4:32.

The high hurdle race was the sensation of the day. Frizzell led until the last three hurdles when he lost a shoe. He finished the race however, taking first by only a few inches with Wilder a close second. This was the only shut out for the Aggies. Frizzell injured himself when he threw himself at the tape but came back strong in the high jump when he took first at the height of 6 feet and 3-5 inch.

Doddrell created a surprise when he won the discus throw with a record breaking heave of 122 feet and 6 inches. This beats the old record, held by Smith of last year's squad by about a foot. The old record was 121 feet, 2 inches. This was the only record broken in the meet.

K. U. took both places in the quarter, O'Leary winning in the fast time of 50 1-5 seconds. This equals his own record made last Saturday against Missouri.

Wilder won the low hurdles in the time of 27 flat. The race was a tie until the last hurdle was passed when Wilder pulled away from Winn of K. U.

Keys created another surprise when he pushed Rodkey in the half which went in 2 minutes and 3-5 seconds.

Davidson and O'Leary of K. U. added 8 more points to K. U.'s total when they took first and second in the order named in the 220 yard dash.

Much interest was centered around the two mile when Teeter and Grady were pitted against each other. Teeter and Grady have alternated with each in taking first when they have been racing together and this was Teeter's time to win. The "Wamego Flyer" ran a conservative race till the last lap when he sprinted the K. U. runners off their feet. Grady's name was lacking when the points were counted and it looks as though Teeter would again be the Missouri valley champion two-miler.

Reber won the shot put with a mighty heave of 43 ft. 2 3-4 inches. Schaper, Aggie won second.

The broad jump was won by Grutzmacher of K. U., by a leap of 22 ft. 9 inches. Bernard, Aggie, captured second place.

The high jump was won by Captain "Duroc" Frizzell by a hop of 6 ft. 3-5 inches. Rice of K. U., won second place.

The relay was run in the fastest time in the history of the Abnerr field. K. U. won it in 3:24.1. Grandfield gave the Aggies a lead in the first quarter, which was overcome by Campbell of K. U., in the second lap. Grandfield is the only man who passed Elliott of K. U. this season.

Summary.

100 yd. dash—Davidson, K. U., first; Holroyd, Aggie, second; time 19 flat.

One mile—Sproul, K. U., first; Seeber, Aggie, second; time 4:32.

FIRST BLUE CAP GIVEN.

Miss Eva Wood Receives Mark of Exceptional Water Nymph.

The first blue cap to be awarded to girls passing the swimming test was won this week by Miss Eva Wood, a freshman in domestic science.

To obtain the honor of wearing the blue cap the swimmer must be able to do five strokes—the side, over arm, under arm, back crawl, and breast strokes—to do five dives—the roly poly, front and back dolphin, back, forward and right and left side dives. In addition to these there is the further requirement of being able to rescue a person from the water and also to remain on the surface for five minutes. Besides these Miss Wood adds to the excitement of the spectators by doing a "cart wheel" along the side of the pool and down into the water.

Thirteen other girls have won the red caps this term and are now working for the blue. The red cap is awarded when the swimmer has mastered two strokes and two dives.

FLORENCE EVANS TENNIS CHAMPION OF THE CO-EDS

Defeats Dorothy Skinner in Final Match of Girls' Tournament—Interest Aroused in the Game.

Florence Evans, junior in the home economics course is the girl tennis champion of the college, having won first place in the open tournaments for co-eds which started several weeks ago with 32 entries.

In the semi-finals, the competition was narrowed to four girls, Margaret King, Dorothy Skinner, Hattie Bryan, and Florence Evans. Miss Skinner defeated Miss King, and Miss Evans defeated Miss Bryan. In the finals Miss Evans won over Miss Skinner, and was awarded the cup which had been offered by Elmer Kittell, of Aggieville, to the best girl tennis player in the college.

Interest in the sport has been developed through the tournament, and there is some agitation in regard to placing inter-collegiate tennis for girls on the regular schedule of athletics for the college.

THIRTY AGGIES WRITE VERSES.

Contest Started by English Instructor Rouses Muse to Action.

Thirty pieces of poetry, some of them very good indeed, have been submitted in the contest which is being conducted by Don L. Burk, instructor in the department of the English language.

The contest will close Wednesday. Mr. Burk, who is much pleased with the results which he has secured so far, hopes to have a large number of additions to the contributions by that time.

The fact that several verified exercises were turned in in the class work in his department, some of which showed merit, induced Mr. Burk to announce the contest in the first place. Some of the best of the verses submitted will be published in the Collegian, and the names of the authors will receive "honorable mention."

C. S. Briggs returned Monday from his home in Parsons where he was called by the illness of his mother.

300 GRANGERS GATHER AT K.S.A.C. AG. FARM

Delegations from Entire State Visit College Experiment Plot—Have Picnic Dinner—Make Speeches and Listen to Them.

IS TO BE ANNUAL EVENT.

Three hundred members of Granges from all over the state gathered at the college agronomy farm west of town last Wednesday, in a species of field day event which is to become an annual affair, it is hoped.

The Grange members gathered at the farm and were escorted on an inspection trip by L. E. Call, professor of agronomy. The experiments which are being carried on were explained to the visitors.

Later a picnic dinner was held at the farm house. There was a short program of addresses by state officers, many of whom were present. Dr. J. T. Willard, dean of the division of general science, spoke for President Waters, who was unable to be present. Dr. Willard welcomed the Grangers to the college, and spoke of the relations which should exist between the college and such organizations. Professor Call also made a short address.

It is expected that the meeting will be larger next year, as not only Grange members, but students, farmers, and townspeople are invited.

Gatesville sent a delegation of 60 persons to the meeting, and a large number also attended from Wakefield.

SEMINAR WELL ATTENDED.

Successful meeting last Monday—Another Promised Next Week.

The journalism seminar last Monday, fourth hour, was well attended and great interest was manifested in the several talks and papers which made up the program. Miss Eva Hostetter read a paper concerning the use of newspaper writing in connection with the teaching of English in high schools. Miss Dora Otto read a paper which dealt with the choosing of electives in connection with a girl's preparation in journalism.

The seminar next Monday will be held at the same time and place and the program will consist largely of papers and discussions by students who have passed through "club" experiences. It is urged that all students interested in journalism be present.

VALUABLE BOOKS ARE GIVEN BY OLD GRAD

C. J. Willard, '13, Is Donor of the New Set of Ten Volumes—Are in Library.

A donation of valuable books was received this week from C. J. Willard, '13, now of Chicago, and son of J. T. Willard. The books include a ten-volume set of "The Messages and Papers of the Presidents" and a "Complete Set of Gardening Magazines."

The compilation of the messages and papers of the presidents was authorized by an act of Congress in 1897. It includes many important plates. One of which is a facsimile of Jefferson's declaration of independence and another of the declaration of war with Spain.

The messages of the presidents to Congress and many personal notes that will be of special interest as they have not been given out before are also included.

After the present European war is over and the strenuous diplomatic relations have been settled many things will be included in similar works that will reveal things that are entirely unknown to the public on account of the censorship of the press and the suppression of news at Washington.

These books will be on the shelves of the library after this week.

WAS UNABLE TO COME.

President of Kansas Farmer Will Speak at College Next Thursday.

Albert T. Reid, of Topeka, president of the Kansas Farmer, was unable to be at the college Thursday for the speech to the students of the journalism department, for which he had been scheduled.

It is expected that he will be at the college next Thursday, and at that time he may speak in chapel, as well as to the students of the department.

REPORTERS.

B. B. Brewer. H. B. Dudley
Floyd Hawkins Elizabeth Wadley

MAY 20, 1916.

REPUTATION.

Reputation is not one's accurate record of achievements and failures as it should be.

Reputation is what other people think about you.

Reputation of an attractive sort is sometimes difficult to build up; it depends upon what scenery you have on hand, whether you have the gift of gab.

People with "animal magnetism" build perfectly good reputations easily.

People without pulchritude have to deliver the goods.

Bear this in mind as you strive to improve your condition.

And your reputation is a regular Old-Man-of-the-Sea, you can't get away from it.

POLITENESS IS A CLOAK.

Politeness is the conventional and systematic disavowal of egotism in the trifles of daily intercourse, and is, of course, a piece of recognized hypocrisy. Gentle manners are expected and commended, because that which they conceal—egotism—is so odious that no one wishes to see it, however much it is known to be there; just as people like to have repulsive objects hidden at least by a curtain.

Ill will, or spitefulness, is very frequent, indeed, almost a common thing. It is very fortunate for us that the cloak which prudence and politeness throw over this vice prevents us from seeing how general it is, and how the war of all against all is constantly waged, at least in thought. Yet ever and anon there is some appearance of it; for instance, in the relentless back-biting so frequently observed, while its clearest manifestation is found in all outbreaks of anger, which, for the most part, are quite disproportionate to their cause, and which could hardly be so violent had they not been compressed—like gunpowder—into the explosive compound of long cherished brooding hatred. Ill will usually arises from the unavoidable collisions of egotism which occur at every step. It is, moreover, objectively excited by the view of the weakness, the folly, the vices, the failings, shortcomings and imperfections of all kinds, which everyone, more or less, at least occasionally, affords to others. Indeed, the spectacle is such that many a man, especially in moments of melancholy and depression, may be tempted to regard the world, from the esthetic standpoint, as a cabinet of caricatures; from the intellectual, as a madhouse; and from the moral, as a nest of sharpers.—Schopenhauer.

NEARING THE STRETCH.

We are at the three-quarter post. The stretch is just ahead. At the head are the judges, the winning post, the cheering crowds. Some of us, at least, are feeling "the bat" assiduously applied by the jockeys who may be urging us on. Negligence. Stupidity. Carelessness, most of us are burdened with some hard riding jockey who is using whip and spur to get the last possible notch of speed out of us for the rest of the race, if we are to finish.

Yes, uncomplimentary as it may sound, the analogy between the last few weeks of college and the last stretch of a horse race, with the students in the role of the "geats" and "dogs" is not half bad.

Some of us have been loafing through the first of the run, and now we are straining every nerve to come out of the field, and place. It is to be feared that some of the rest of us are "laying down," and are content to come hobbling in with the dust-eating stragglers, for lack of the stamina to carry the fight through.

For some of us this is only one heat of the College Sweepstakes. For some of us it is the last. The majority will have another run for their money, another chance to make good slips and delays, another college year. But there are some for whom this is the last heat, either we win now, or we go back to the peddler's cart.

The race has been long. It seems as if some of the luckier ones have had the pole all the way. Others seem to have been pocketed. Some bolted on the start. Others made flashy starts, but blew up somewhere on the course. It is the steady consistent runners who will win at the end of the College Sweepstakes, and be ready to enter on that more grueling run, Life.

Let's let out another notch, if your own particular jockey seems to be "pulling" you, stay with the fight anyhow. If the handicap which the great judge Fate has put on, weighs down, fight the harder.

Make the last stretch a speedy trip, with a clean finish, where the judges are waiting, and the crowds are cheering, and there are prizes to be won. And not the least of the prizes is to have finished clean; to be fit and ready to be entered in the big run, just now commencing.

Made Soil Inspection Trip.

C. O. Swanson, associate chemist in the agricultural experiment station, has returned from a trip to Garden City where some experiments to determine the effect of soil treatment, under dry land agricultural conditions, on organic matter in the soil are being carried on by the chemists of the agronomy department.

Samples of soil to be tested were obtained from the plots used in co-operation between the department of agriculture and the experiment station.

Which came half way to her knees.
She wore it up to school one day
When there was quite a breeze.

It made the men all stop and stare
At such a neat attraction;

Because of counter action.

Be modest, we beseech you;
We are but mortals, like yourself,
And may want to escheat you.

LIFE MEMBERSHIP FEES OF ALUMNI TO LOAN FUND

Association Plans to Assist in Raising Money for Deserving Students—
Fee Will Be $20.

A system of life membership fees has been devised by the Alumni association of the college, for the purpose of adding to the loan fund for the use of deserving students, started some time ago by President Waters.

A letter has been sent out by the board of directors of the association to the local associations, asking for their co-operation in the matter.

"The time is ripe for the alumni of the college to participate in the creation of a loan fund for the use of deserving students," says the letter. "The increased requirements of the college course in class work and laboratory and the increased number of students, makes it more difficult for the students to work their way through college than in days past."

The letter further explains that a life membership fee for the association has been devised. The fee is to be $20, and the money is to be applied to the loan fund. It will be added to the amount which has been raised by subscription among faculty members and alumni, already, of which the royalties on President Waters' text book formed the nucleus. The royalties are expected to amount to something like $3,500 in five years. The fund will be revolving.

Many members of the association dislike the inconvenience of paying annual dues and assessments, and the payment of the life membership fee of $20 will obviate such inconvenience, according to the association directors. Also the expense of sending out statements of dues will be cut down.

The committee in charge of the arrangements for Commencement this spring is endeavoring to secure a statement from each member as to his or her stand on the fee question, and also as to whether he or she can be present at the Commencement exercises in June.

piece of tinfoil. A Kansas Aggie student saw it; pounced upon it and sticking it in his pocket tried to walk unconcernedly away.

"See here," said a Manhattan park policeman, "what are you doing with that stuff?"

The Aggie student answered not a word but started to beat a hasty retreat.

"Come back here, or I'll run you in," war the bull pulled by the minion of the law, and under fear of what might happen to him in police court, the Aggie student revealed the following dread secrets.

The members of the girls' sororities of the Kansas State Agricultural college are saving tinfoil.

They say they are saving it for their "house funds" but will elucidate no further.

They elucidate this much however to the members of the fraternities, it takes a wad of tinfoil as big as a golf ball to buy a date, no tinfoil no date.

In desperation, the members of the various fraternities have sounded the S. O. S. among their "barb" friends who are not affected by the edict pronounced by the sorority girls.

In consequence, one has to look a long way to see a bit of tinfoil on the college campus, in Aggieville (the students' section of Manhattan) or even in the down town business districts of Manhattan.—Topeka Capital.

EN ROUTE.

If I should from this speeding window drop
Into that fragrant meadow, 'neath that tree,
I'd hear the locust hum and see them hop,
And be in tune with earth's sweet melody—
But I should miss the goal toward which I've sped,
And, for all use I might as well be dead!

If I should find some quiet country town
Where, honey-fed, I'd drowse to hum of bees,
And settle there, my anxious cares to drown,
I surely could pursue a life of ease—
And yet, I'd miss the gladness of the fight:
The supreme joy of using all my might.

If I should live as many people live—
Just eat and drink and sleep—and scarcely think—I'd something get, extremely little give:
Float round and round Life's melancholy rink—
Rather than play this sad and dreary role,
I'd blaze new trails—with agony of soul!

If I should say: "Let well enough alone!"
And, by this rule, hedge in my narrow road—
I'd live the life of any other drone.
Of fond ambition never feel the goal—
But I should never hear God's word,
"Well done,
Thou good and faithful servant,
Hither come!"

So, in this rushing train I'll gladly stay.
I'll choose—not places smooth—but places rough.
I'll work, as only seers and saviours may,
Knowing that only cowards cry,
"Enough!"
Life's train speeds on from cradle to the sod—
And on and on forever—unto God!

WAR DIDN'T BOOST PRICES.

On Horses According to Dr. McCampbell—Is Help to American Breeders.

The European war has not caused the advance in the price of horses that was freely predicted. Good horses command a slight increase, but the average horse has fallen off to a sufficient extent to lower the horse market, according to Dr. C. W. McCampbell, assistant professor of animal husbandry in the college.

"A large number of horses have been shipped out of the country since the war began but they are as but a drop in the bucket in comparison with the available supply," says Doctor McCampbell. "It is an easy matter to make the people think that the war has created a heavy demand for horses."

"The war is aiding the horse raising industry of the United States by decreasing the importation of stallions. Before the war many of the cull stallions raised in France were shipped to this country. These cull stallions were not allowed to stand in France and men made a business of buying up these scrubs, cutting off their tails, and shipping them to America realizing a handsome profit."

PALE FACE SEEM NO MATCH FOR REDSKINS

Aggie Nine Lost to Haskell in Thursday's Game After Starting Counting in the First Period—Garnered Only Two Hits.

HASKELL 6; AGGIES 1.

Talk about Custer's massacre! Sitting Bull and his redskins had nothing on the Indians from Haskell when it comes to taking care of the pale face. They sure scalped the Aggies in Thursday's contest and left town with the big end of a 6 to 1 score. The Aggies were off—yes they were off in every sense of the word. They batted the ball around, pulled off several "Bones" in the field, and that same old weakness at the bat was noticeable throughout the whole afternoon's entertainment. Only two safe ones were gleaned from King's offerings while the Indians rapped the old pill for ten safe ones. Nine Redskins laid down their bats on three strikes and ten Aggies whiffed.

Ferrier started the game for the Aggies but lasted only three innings and was replaced by Hewey who fared considerably better than his predecessor. Young Mr. King heaved for the visitors and kept the home crowd guessing most of the way. He seemed to have considerable "stuff" judging from the way the locals were swinging at 'em.

The Redskins started the scoring in the first inning. Koddot hit a Texas Leaguer back of third base and was safe at first when Denman and Griffiths did the "Alfonse and Gaston act" and allowed the ball to drop between them. Kalama flew out to McCalliari. Dunbar drove a horse hide out between left and center for a two bagger and scored Koddot. Stover hit to left and Dunbar was thrown out at the plate by Harvey who made a beautiful peg from left. Poolaw struck out.

The Aggies came back strong in their half of the inning when Reynolds, with two in the mud, hit a hot c.e. to Poolaw at second who let the ball go through him. Reynolds stole second and scored on Newton's hit to center. Newton stole second. Harvey fanned.

The third inning proved to be a veritable Waterloo for the Aggies. King first up laid down a bunt in front of the plate but Sherwood in his anxiety to grab the ball fumbled long enough to permit the Indian to arrive safely at first; he went to second on a passed ball and took third on Koddot's infield out. Kalama drove one down the first base line and scored King. Took second on Newton's miff of Sherwood's peg. Ferrier. Stover stole second and third scoring on Denman's fumble of Poolaw's drive. Poolaw was thrown out at second. The visitors secured another score in the seventh on William's miff of Campbell's grounder, a stolen base and Koddot's hit over second. An additional tally was registered in the last frame when Brown drove the old pill clear to "Toad City" for three bases and scored on William's error of King's grounder.

Only in two innings were the Aggies able to get men as far as third base. In the fourth inning Harvey got a clean one over second and went to third when Campbell pegged wild to second. Williams and McCalliari both fanned leaving Harvey on third. In the sixth, Newton was safe at first on a fielder's choice, stole second and went to third when the Indian catcher failed to hold the third strike on Harvey when went to first and stole second. Williams hit a weak one to the Redskin twirler and was an easy third out.

The playing of the Aggies in the field and at the bat was a disappointment to the fans who witnessed the recent contest with St. Mary's in which it was thought the Aggies had at last found their stride and had rid themselves of Mr. Jinx. They will have a chance to redeem themselves when they tangle with the Saints on the latter's home ground today. About the only redeeming feature of the game was the pitching of "Dutch" Hewey who whiffed six of the Reds and kept them in check most of the game, after relieving Ferrier in the fourth. The outer garden was well taken care of by Messrs. Harvey, Reynolds and McCalliari. The score by innings:

WILL LEARN TO FLY KITES.

Students at Pittsburg Manual Make Art of Boy's Game.

Kite flying has become a part of a course at the State Manual Training Normal. Although those engaged in what ordinarily is a pastime get considerable amusement out of it, the real purpose is not sport. The flying is merely incidental to the building of the kite. The building is the important thing.

A tailless box kite that will go up into the air 1,000 feet, obeying slight manipulation of the cord by a person who doesn't move his location, is one of the hardest things to make. Every adjustment must be perfect. It must weigh just so much. The angles are required to be properly set. The student who can make such a kite can make most anything else, no matter how delicate, in the woodwork and cabinet department of the Normal.

It is to teach the niceties of construction, the fineness, that instructors are having the kites constructed. And of course the only way to prove whether the student has been successful in his building is to submit the kite to the crucial test of a fight. It takes close calculation and balancing of forces to make a kite that doesn't need a tail. Measurements must be exact and construction based on a carefully defined theory.

USE YELLOW IF A PESSIMIST.

Bright Color in Your Home Will Help Dispel the Grouch.

If you are a pessimist, yellow decorations in your home will help dispel the grouch, according to Araminta Holman, instructor in color and design in the college.

"If you have a small room and want to make it appear more roomy, furnish it in blue," says Miss Holman. "Blue is a receding, cool color. A bit of yellow used in decorating a room finished in blue adds cheerfulness, making the room cool, bright and pleasant. Green, a combination of blue and yellow, is a soothing, restful color, and may well be used on the walls and floor if grayed."

"Red is warm, exciting and advancing color. A room furnished in red appears smaller than its actual size. When combined with yellow it gives both warmth and cheer, and is the basis for the rich tones of brown and tan. Light tones suggest youth, frivolity, informality and femininity, while dark tones suggest strength, dignity, repose and masculinity."

D. S. CLUB TALKS HEALTH.

Members of College Faculty on Program for Addresses on Scientific Life.

The science department of the Domestic Science club had charge of the last regular program for the year at the library Thursday. As the year book was opened for the day the line which greeted was, "The World is Advancing—Advance With It." Public health was the topic announced by President Brink. The discussion was led by Mrs. Dickens from the standpoint of the club woman. Mrs. Montgomery presented the promotion from the children, Dean Van Zile added the housewife's attitude or aid and Mrs. Birdsall presented the promotion of health by the tradesmen. An interesting discussion ensued. Miss Hungerford, Miss Palmer and Miss Stahl furnished the music. The reading of "The Antiseptic Baby and the Prophylactic Cup," by Miss Alice Sennacke was quite apropos and much enjoyed.

AMERICANS WILL NOT USE POTATO FLOUR THINKS FITZ

The Product of the Tubers, When Milled Has a Very Undesirable Dark Color.

Experiments in the milling department of the college have demonstrated that unless conditions in the United States change, the Americans will probably not wish to change to a diet of bread made from potato flour, such as Germany is said to be using at present. The flour from potatoes seems to have a darkish color which will militate against its use by the fastidious Americans.

"The department of milling industry of the college," says L. A. Fitz, professor of milling, "recently milled 15 barrels of dessicated potatoes for Dr. H. C. Gore, chemist in charge of fruit and vegetable utilization of the bureau of chemistry of the United States department of agriculture. The potatoes were sent to this mill to be milled because this was the only publicly owned mill available which was equipped with purifiers. The potatoes were dessicated with the skins on and it was desired to find out if the purifiers would remove the particles of potato skins just as it removes the particles of wheat bran."

"Though some of the skins were removed a proportion of them remained in the flour. Enough remained so that the finished flour was of a decidedly dark color."

"This project is not one in which we are directly interested, so we will not carry out any official baking tests with it. We know however that this flour is largely a starch product and bread could be made with it, but with corn starch. Its color would effect the color of bread so much that it would have to be used in small proportions. To be used for bread baking it would have to be mixed with wheat flour and it is doubtful if over 15 per cent of the potato flour could be used."

"This work has demonstrated that potatoes can be milled into flour with the same equipment used in milling wheat. It is probable, however, that if potatoes were to be milled extensively, special mills would be built for the purpose for a different type of rollers than is used in the milling of wheat would be advantageous and furthermore it would be practical to mill potatoes with cheaper machinery than is used in the milling of wheat."

"Although it has been proved that it is possible to make flour of potatoes it is not probable that any appreciable amount will be made. At present the price of potatoes is so high that potato flour could not compete in price with wheat flour. It is possible that small potatoes might be used economically in this way or if the price of potatoes would go to 14c a bushel—as it has done here in the Kaw valley—it might be practicable to mill them into flour."

TO GIVE EXPERT TESTIMONY.

College Poultry Men Will Offer Advice and Information.

W. A. Lippincott, professor of poultry husbandry, and Superintendent Harris, of the poultry farm, will appear at the next meeting of the Manhattan Commercial club, to give expert testimony in regard to incubators and the manufacture thereof.

A plan is on foot for the establishment of a factory for incubators, in Manhattan, and the club plans to back the organization of a company to finance the project, if after discussion, it is found advisable. The two college men will be called on for opinions in the matter.

A series of tests have been run at the college poultry farm during the winter, on the incubator which it is planned to manufacture in Manhattan.

SELLS MEAT TO PAY EXPENSES.

A College Student Has Unique Way of Getting Education.

Buying beef on the open market, having it killed in a local packing house and then retailing it to the boarding houses of the city is the unique way that Albert C. Hancock of Stanley, a sophomore in animal husbandry in the college, has of meeting the expenses of a college education.

Last winter Hancock ran out of funds and decided to buy beef, have it killed and then retail it. On the first animal which he purchased he made a profit of $3.89. On the second he realized $11.36 and on the third, $8.21.

Prior to entering college Hancock was engaged in farming during the summer and in buying and selling cattle during the winter. Having acquired some knowledge of scientific farming, he now spends his summers in growing seed corn—the Iowa Silvermine variety. Recently the agronomy department of the college purchased five bushels of the corn. It is to be grown in different parts of the state in co-operative experiments in variety tests.

THE KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN.

VOLUME 28. NUMBER 66.

KANSAS STATE AGRICULTURAL COLLEGE, MANHATTAN, WEDNESDAY, MAY 24, 1916.

PRICE 5 CENTS.

MARY POLSON IS CROWNED QUEEN OF THE MAY, 1916

Twenty-five Hundred Persons Pronounce the Program Monday as the Best of the Kind Ever at the College.

PAGEANT OF THE MONTHS.

"Happy is that reign whose history is not diverting," saith some historian. But he knew not whereof he spoke. There reigned in the realm of K. S. A. C. a queen, and her regime was diverting, likewise was it happy. Wherefore let us drink confusion to all historians and their absurdities.

Mary Polson, Queen of the May, and her court held sway two hours in these precincts, and joy reigned likewise. The reign was auspicious and was marked by the utter absence of rain, to the exceeding great joy of the assembled populace and the courtiers.

The fete has been pronounced the most successful ever held at K. S. A. C. Every event scheduled was staged without a hitch, and the attendance was record breaking.

A special brand of sunshine was out tap "for this occasion only."

The new method of presenting a pageant instead of a nondescript assortment of the disconnected "stunts," was highly appreciated.

The costumes worn by the three hundred students participating in the fete, spoke all the spirit of spring in their variegated tints.

Among the different presentations of the months, it was difficult in the extreme to select features. The dance of the Harlequin and Columbine among the roses, embodied all the lively and luxurious abandon of the months of June. In its unique beauty, the dance of the thunderclouds and rainbow of April, stood out prominently. The "grand finale," in which the entire cast crowded the grassy stage, in a final whirling finish, just after the delightful dance of the snowflakes, Christmas bells and fairies, provided a most charming ending for the thoroughly beautiful whole. The music by the college band added much to the effectiveness of the fete.

Her Royal Majesty and her attendants are not to be forgotten soon, nor shall the brilliancy of the court tout ensemble be easily dimmed or surpassed in the future.

The Y. M. and Y. W. C. A.'s wish to express their heartiest thanks to those who took part in the fete, and especially to the committees which had charge of the various parts of the event.

FIRST PAYMENT ON LOAN FUND.

Secretary of Board Receives $687.70 as First Installment.

Topeka, May 23.—The first annual installment of President H. J. Waters' gift for the benefit of young Kansans working their way through college was received Saturday by Lee Harrison, secretary of the state board of administration. It was a check from Ginn & Co. for $678.70, one year's royalties on the state high school text on agriculture. When the state school book commission adopted the Waters text more than a year ago, the author announced that he would not take a penny of the royalty, but would turn it over to the commission as a loan fund for students working their way thru school.

The school book commission recently passed a resolution that the Waters' Loan fund should be used for the benefit of the boys and girls attending K. S. A. C. It will be left under the control of the state board of administration. In a few years the fund will run into thousands of dollars.

The Waters fund is the first loan fund established for students at the Agricultural college over which school authorities will have complete control. There are several small loan funds given by persons interested in college people, but they are managed privately. The Waters fund probably will be disbursed by a committee of faculty members, with liberal time allowance for its repayment. It is the history of such funds that they practically always are repaid, generally with interest and an addition to the fund from those who have learned to appreciate what it means to get help when it is needed most.

Miss Ivy Fuller and Miss Esta Hungerford returned Sunday night from Kansas City where they attended grand opera.

"DEFENSELESS AMERICA"

One Hundred and Sixty Copies of This Are Received by Library.

Mr. A. B. Smith, college librarian, has received one hundred and sixty nine copies of "Defenseless America" from the author, Hudson Maxim, to be distributed among the college faculty. Each copy of the book is accompanied by a booklet "Leading opinions both for and against national defense." The books will be placed in the college postoffice for distribution.

CO-OPERATE IN FARM SURVEY.

High School and College Conduct Investigations in Reno County.

P. E. McNall, of the extension division of the college, will leave the first week in June for Nickerson, where, with the co-operation of the county high school, he will conduct a farm survey of Reno county. This is the first farm survey to be conducted at the suggestion of a Kansas school board, according to Mr. McNall.

L. C. Christy, in charge of the department of agriculture at the Reno County High school, will assist Mr. McNall and the data collected will be used in the course of farm management in the county high school next year.

WATERS WILL DEDICATE NEW RURAL HIGH SCHOOL

President of College to Officiate at Agenda—Board Plans Modern Structure and Course of Study

Dr. H. J. Waters, president of the Kansas State Agricultural college, will make the dedicatory address the first week in September, at the $10,000 rural high school building now under construction at Agenda, in Republic county.

The members of the board of education from Agenda were here last week to confer with H. L. Kent, principal of the school of agriculture, in regard to the course of study to be offered the ensuing year. Mr. Kent for some time has been interested in the plans for this modern school building and has made many valuable suggestions that will be put into actual practice.

The new building will be modern in every respect. It will be possible to convert the upper floor into an auditorium for public meetings. At the time of opening next September, a neighborhood picnic and dinner will be held in the basement rooms, which are well adapted for such occasions.

The course of study will provide for short course work for special students during the winter months. Agriculture, shop work, cooking, sewing and other home economics work, as well as English and mathematics, will be so arranged that by coming for three consecutive winters students may complete all the work offered in these subjects.

It will be primarily a country school.

KANSAS CHEMISTS MEET HERE.

Kansas Section of American Chemical Association in Session Saturday.

The Kansas section of the American Chemical association met at the college last Saturday afternoon and evening. The visitors attending the meeting were mostly instructors from the schools and colleges in the eastern section of the state. Only a small number were present. The visitors were shown over the college campus Saturday afternoon and in the evening a number of addresses were given.

Miss Leonard to Wellesley.

Miss Annette Leonard, instructor in the English language, is planning to attend the commencement exercises at Wellesley college, June 17 to 22. A reunion will be held by the class of 1901 of which Miss Leonard is a member. She will spend six weeks attending summer school at Harvard and the remainder of the summer visiting friends in the New England states and New York city.

Pure Breds to Kansas.

Four Hereford bulls sold at the McCray sale in Kentland, Indiana, last week, were purchased by Kansas breeders. The highest average prices paid at a cattle sale in recent years were secured for the McCray stock at this sale. Seventy-four head of cattle were sold at an average price of $1,287.

Mr. and Mrs. John Koerber motored down from Clay Center to attend the May Pete. While here they were guests of Miss Pearl Dakin.

Miss Katherine McFarland's mother of Topeka, has been spending the week end with her. Miss McFarland is a sophomore in college.

RESIGNATIONS OF BENDER AND LOWMAN ARE RECEIVED

Both to Go Into Effect September First—Leaves Aggies Needing Entire New Coaching Staff for Next Year.

NEW MEN NOT SELECTED.

That Aggie athletes will be trained by an entirely new staff of coaches is the situation brought about by the recent resignations of Professor Guy S. Lowman, head of the department of physical education, and Athletic Director John R. Bender, head of the department of inter-collegiate athletics, together with the resignation of Coach Carl J. Merner who tendered his resignation some time ago that he might accept a position with Columbia university.

Professor Lowman and Mr. Bender recently handed their resignations to the board of athletics asking that they take effect at the close of the present college year, September 1. President Waters states that the resignations have been received.

It is rumored that the new head of the department of athletics will have charge of all the athletic activities of the school, in charge of the physical training classes in the department of physical education as well as being head coach of all the varsity teams, with powers to act in conjunction with the members of the athletic board in selecting the coaches for the various teams.

Coach Bender is just completing his first year as director of inter-collegiate athletics at the college. From the first his coaching ability inspired enthusiasm and confidence in the home team. It was those qualities of the man as a coach that were so strongly evident in the "Wildcat" eleven who romped the Missouri valley teams in some of the best games of the season.

With the same enterprising energy. Coach Bender, despite the many discouragements of the season, produced a good representation for the Aggie diamond events of this spring and unusual interest has been shown in baseball. In the short time that he has been here, Coach Bender has made hosts of friends among faculty, students, and townspeople.

Professor Guy S. Lowman, head of the department of physical education, and until the present year in charge of inter-collegiate athletics of the institution has been identified with Aggie teams since 1911. During that time he has ever been a booster for K. S. A. C. and has become a permanent institution in the minds of the graduates and older students of the college. "Old grads" whom he kicked and jolted into form to defend the purple and white don't forget to drop in to see "Coach Guy S." when they stop over between trains.

Much of the credit for the advancement of Aggie athletics to what they are today is due to Coach Lowman and several successes of the department of physical education since he has devoted his entire time to that work are significant of his application to the work at hand. He is in demand throughout the conference as a fair minded referee and umpire of clean sportsmanship.

Coach Carl J. Merner's resignation was received and accepted some time ago when he made known his offer with the Columbia university of New York. "Coach Carl Jawn," as he is affectionately known by his men, has a natural ability for handling men in such a way that they take an increased liking to their work. His ability as a coach was demonstrated to the Missouri valley teams when they met his basketball quintet last fall.

Professor Lowman and Athletic Director Bender say that they have nothing to give out in regard to their plans for next year.

RAMBLERS WON GAME SUNDAY.

"Slim" Baker, Manhattan's Prize Pitcher, Showed Usual Speed.

The Ramblers, who played the Junction City ball team at Eureka park Sunday afternoon, took the game in a walk-away, with a score of 8 to 0. "Slim" Baker, who has pitched for the Manhattan team for the past three years, played his usual game, getting 17 strike-outs and allowing no hits or walks in eight innings. The game was called at the end of the eighth inning as the Junction City team wanted to catch the car.

DEBATE TRYOUT FOR FALL DEBATES TO BE JUNE 2-3-5

Will Be Open to Members of all Organizations Who Are Willing to Help Pay Expenses.

FIFTEEN ON THE SQUAD.

In consequence of the recent action of the debate council which has opened inter-collegiate to the members of all college organizations expressing their willingness to co-operate in bearing the expense of that activity, some radical changes are to take place in the tryouts by which the teams for the fall debates are to be chosen.

These tryouts will be held on June 2-3 and 5 in K 56 and 57. All contestants will be judged by the same three judges, who will be the three debate coaches, Don L. Burk, J. G. Emerson, and J. R. MacArthur. No restriction will be placed on the number of candidates entered by any organization. Approximately two-thirds of the entire inter-collegiate squad for next year, which will consist of 18 men and 18 women, should be selected at this time. The candidates, however, according to managing coach MacArthur, will be required to come up to a definite standard of excellence in order to gain a place. If a sufficient number cannot attain this standard, additional tryouts will be held next fall.

The speeches in the tryouts will be four minutes in length and the rebuttals five minutes. Each contestant will be allowed a few minutes after being given his rebuttal. This will enable him to get his material in better form than heretofore.

All organizations wishing to enter members in the spring tryouts are requested to hand a statement to J. B. Sweet, chairman the debating council retention committee, to the effect that they desire to enter debaters and are willing to bear their share of the expense of inter-collegiate debate. This statement, together with a list of entrants should be handed to Mr. Sweet before June 1.

The question upon which all candidates will be required to tryout is as follows:

Resolved, That capital and labor should be compelled to settle their disputes in legally established courts of arbitration.

AGGIE TRACK ATHLETES GO TO COLUMBIA THURSDAY

Merner Aggregation Will Take Part in Big Missouri Valley Meet There Saturday.

Carl J. Merner and his Aggie track team will leave Thursday morning for Columbia, Mo., to enter the Missouri Valley Conference track meet which will be held there Saturday.

That the Aggies have a good chance to win some points in the big meet was evidenced by the showing that they made against the K. U. track team here last Friday. Although they were defeated the Aggies did not give up a single point without a fight and every race was close.

Captain "Duroc" Frizzell is the main hope of the Aggies. He will enter the high jump exclusively and should set up a new Valley record in that event. Frizzell jumped 6 feet and 3-4 inch last Saturday and this is an inch above the Valley record. However, a record must be made in a Valley meet to stand as a Conference record.

Teeter, last year's champion two-miler will again enter that event. Teeter easily defeated Grady of K. U. Friday and the race Saturday ought to be easy for him unless there is a dark horse in the meet.

Keys and Seeler should have a chance for points in the half and the mile. Keys pushed Rodkey in the half and Seeler led Sproull in the mile until the last few yards.

Dodrill, who broke the Aggie discus record Friday ought to get a first or second in the discus if he is only in form. The big boy has been going good lately.

The following men will make the trip to Columbia. Frizzell (Captain), Teeter, Wilder, Keys, Dodrill, Seeler, Holroyd, Turner, Grandfield, Eslick, and Crumbaker.

Dr. E. W. Allen, chief of the office of the experiment station, United States department of agriculture, made his annual inspection trip to the college Saturday and Monday.

MILLERS TAKE SHORT COURSE.

Men From Three States Take Work in College Laboratories.

The fourth annual short course in wheat and flour testing offered by the department of milling industry of the Kansas State Agricultural college, opened Monday and will close Saturday, May 27. It has attracted men interested in milling problems from Missouri, Texas, and Kansas.

The work in the short course consists of a course of lectures with discussions and laboratory practice. Instruction is being given in methods for determining absorption, gluten—both wet and dry—gliadin, moisture, ash, total protein and acidity. The laboratory practice is given in the model mill and laboratory of the department.

Representatives of mills who are taking the short course are furnishing 10-pound samples of their flour for laboratory tests—also a quart supply of the wheat from which the flour is made.

Among those enrolled for the short course in milling are A. Grant, Denton, Tex.; C. M. Parks, Versailles, Mo.; Fred Pinkall, Marquette, Kan.; Sidney Swaller, Clay Center; James W. Bonham, Manhattan; R. Ray Gunn, Great Bend; Robert K. Pierson, Kansas City, Mo.

INTER-SORORITY TENNIS NOW ENTERS THE FIELD

Members of Six Co-ed Organizations Have Formed a League and Battle Honors.

That the co-eds interest in tennis has not died out with the completion of the all-college girls tournament some time ago is shown by the announcement of an inter-sorority tournament. The Greek letter men battle for supremacy on the baseball diamond then and gain a cup and glory so the girls ask why they should not take a chance on the tennis court since they are not so very proficient on the baseball field.

Two girls from each of six sororities have entered the race and the matches will be played off as rapidly as possible.

Some of the girls interested have been wondering if the fraternity men are going to be as attentive to the tennis games as the sorority girls have been to the baseball contests.

The following girls will play:

Chi Omega—Helen Ogden, Florence Mitchell.

Tri Delta—Bueneta Myers, Alice Newman.

Pi Beta Phi—Irma Boener, Martha Webb.

Delta Zeta—Caroline Laer, Ruth Hutchings.

Lambda—Betty Cotton, Emily Loflinck.

Alpha Delta Pi—Muri Gann, Greeta Gramse.

Mr. Oman was hospitably entertained at Sunday dinner at the home of Mrs. Eleanor White Sullivan and family where, during the afternoon, a number of the local "clan" of K. S. A. C. people gathered. On the Tuesday following the gathering at the Sullivan home, Mr. Oman visited Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Howard who live on the technical experiment farm at Pocatello.

TIGERS SHUT OUT THE AGGIES.

Missouri Tigers Take First Game of Series With K. S. A. C., 3 to 0.

A triple play by the Aggies, Denman to Griffith to Williams; nipped a Missouri batting rally in the seventh inning. Giltner, however, held the Aggies safe throughout the game. The score:

McCAMPBELL ADDRESSES S. & S.

Many Hear Lecture on Subject of "The Army Horse."

Dr. McCampbell spoke to the Saddle and Siroin club last Monday evening on "The Army Horse." He gave the type desired by the army and showed how that type differed from that of the farmer and that desired by the market. He emphasized the fact that raising army horses in Kansas is not advisable, since they differ so much from the type suited to our conditions. He suggested a plan whereby the army might raise its own horses, and develop the type suited to its own needs.

L. B. Mann, fellow in animal husbandry, spoke to the club on the cattle feeding experiment conducted by the college during the past winter. He gave the results so far obtained.

Following the above, Preston Hale, senior in animal husbandry, gave a short talk on "Auction Buying vs. Private Treaty."

SUCCESS.

I am Success. I am the most sought after, but the most seldom gained, of all things in this world. I make my abode with but few. Some men think that I am wealth while others seek me through power. I am seldom either of these. In reality I am simply Self Satisfaction. I may be found dwelling with the poorest fisherman and his wife and at times, but seldom, in the homes of the rich and powerful. The people I visit are those who have done their best, honestly. I visit not the liars and the thieves. The world calls a man a success when he has gained fame or wealth. I name the man after myself when he has a clear conscience and the knowledge that he has done the best possible in the way he believed was right.

THE OTHER FELLOW.

Thoughtlessness is acknowledged to be one of the chief characteristics of youth. Perhaps that is why it is so noticeable in our school eye—thoughtlessness of the Other Fellow. Who is the Other Fellow?

He sits next to us in class. He wants to be attentive and get value from the instructor's remarks or class discussion. Yet by our inattention we prevent him.

He goes to the library to read. His time is valuable; yet we sit near him and visit with our friends.

He sits down to get a lesson. We insist that he go with us to a movie or what not. And we insist until he goes.

He rooms next door to us in the dormitory or fraternity house. He tries to get a regular amount of sleep; yet because of our carelessness and indifference he can not do either.

He is conscientious and tries to do his best; but we, because our way is different from his, ridicule him or do our best to frustrate his plans.

Who is the Other Fellow? He is every other person in the world. He is in the majority. The majority deserves to be respected. Shall we not consider him—the Other Fellow?—Arizona Wildcat

A MATTER OF MINUTES.

"I haven't the time," is a statement you often hear when someone is asked to perform some more or less difficult and unpleasant task. We wonder if the remark is true most of the time? Its author may not intentionally be making a misstatement, but the probability in many cases is that he is deceiving himself, as well as others, when he makes this plea.

The work done by those who are enlisted in big student movements, such as the ox-roast campaign is proving itself to be, gives strong evidence that this view is the true one. In this, and in many other lines of work, one sees numbers of persons taking on new duties of surprising extent, and yet carrying on their everyday work. It is largely a matter of will rather than of time, one would judge.

There may be such a thing as having too many irons in the fire, but the suspicion is that the real cause of the trouble lies in the fact that the one who is heating them isn't interested in all, and not that he is too busy with some to pay attention to the others.—Ohio Lantern.

RATING STUDENT CHARACTER

Billings (Mont.) Gazette

As a means of giving prospective employers a better line on the qualifications of students applying to them for work the authorities at the State Agricultural college at Bozeman have adopted a system of character rating.

Under this plan each instructor in college is asked to grade every student who comes under his instruction on the following: ability, honesty, application, thoroughness, aptitude, punctuality, reliability, neatness in work, personal appearance, command of English, industry and cheerfulness. Instructors are asked to grade only those students and for those qualities upon which they feel that they have a definite opinion. The average of each student's rating in these respects is compiled by the college registrar and is used in recommending a student for position after graduation. The student is allowed the opportunity to know the average opinion of his instructors, though he is not permitted to see their individual gradings.

The idea in making these facts known to the student is to enable him to correct deficiencies in his character; and since the grading is to be done once each half year throughout his four years course, the student will have abundant opportunity if he desires to improve his standing with his instructors and to establish before his graduation a reputation for such qualities as most employers are seeking.

This system of grading students upon personal characteristics was suggested by plans in use in one or two other educational institutions and more particularly by the schedule of grading used in a number of large commercial concerns. It properly takes into account the fact, so long ignored by educational authorities, that mere scholarship is not an adequate or dependable measure of a man's worth.

The "grind" who wins high marks in examinations is in the majority of cases a one-sided man, and what the world is calling for now is all-around men, not jacks of all trades, but men who combine character with intelligence, common sense with scholarship, personality with power of concentration. Optimism is rated higher now a days than omniscience.

ALUMNI ARE EAGER TO SWELL THE LOAN FUND

Answers to Alumni Letter Sent Out by Alumni Association Are Coming in Fast.

Recently letters were sent to all alumni of K. S. A. C. asking that they pledge twenty dollars each toward the student loan fund started by President Waters. Although it has been but a week since the letters were sent out Miss Ada Rice, who has charge of the work, has received many replies and each alumnus answering expresses the desire to help the fund. Many of the writers are not only willing to help to the extent asked but promise much more and several of them do not simply pledge the amount asked for but enclose checks.

Two letters, which are typical of those being received by Miss Rice follow.

Lafayette, Indiana.

Alumni Association, K. S. A. C.

Kind Friends:

The letter to the alumni of the college has been received.

I desire to go on record as being heartily in sympathy with the movement for the creation of a student loan fund, and I will be more than glad to a life membership fee.

I am sorry that it will not be possible for me to be with you during commencement week.

Very sincerely yours,

O. F. OSHEL, '13.

May 20, 1916.

Miss Ada Rice,

Kansas State Agricultural College,

Manhattan, Kans.

Dear Miss Rice:

This will acknowledge the circular letters of yourself and Brother Rushmore, recently received.

I haven't time to write much of a letter this morning, but you can register me as being heartily in favor of the proposed changes in the alumni constitution, recently printed in the Industrialist, and also the life membership at $20, to be used for the creation of a student loan fund. You can have my check whenever you are ready for it.

President Waters has certainly done a splendid thing in turning the proceeds of the copyright over to the association. For twenty years I have felt very strongly that the alumni of the college were not the force they should be either in building up the college, or in spreading its doctrines among the outside world. I hope that at last it is going to get off on the right foot, and occupy the position it properly should.

Enclosed you will find the best list we have been able to compile to date of the K. S. A. C. crowd in and near Chicago. There are some mistakes in it yet, I suppose, but most of the names and addresses are correct at this writing.

We folks around here are particularly glad to know that you are now the Alumni Editor of the Industrialist, and hope that you can do a good deal to bring those of us who are so widely scattered over the country into closer touch with one another.

Sincerely yours,

R. S. KELLOGG, '96.

President Waters on Trip.

H. J. Waters, president of the college, left Manhattan Monday for Sabetho where he will give the high school commencement address. From Sabetho he goes to Holton and Effingham, giving commencement addresses at both places.

WILL LEARN TO FLY KITES.

Students at Pittsburg Manual Make Art of Boy's Game.

Kite flying has become a part of a course at the State Manual Training Normal. Although those engaged in what ordinarily is a pastime get considerable amusement out of it, the real purpose is not sport. The flying is merely incidental to the building of the kite. The building is the important thing.

A tailless box kite that will go up into the air 1,000 feet, obeying slight manipulation of the cord by a person who doesn't move his location, is one of the hardest things to make. Every adjustment must be perfect. It must weigh just so much. The angles are required to be properly set. The student who can make such a kite can make most anything else, no matter how delicate, in the woodworking and cabinet department of the Normal.

It is to teach the niceties of construction, the fineness, that instructors are having the kites constructed. And of course the only way to prove whether the student has been successful in his building is to submit the kite to the crucial test of a flight. It takes close calculation and balancing of forces to make a kite that doesn't need a tail. Measurements must be exact and construction based on a carefully defined theory.

What I want to know is who it was who ate onions Monday for lunch and then went and talked over the telephone in Main hall. No we were not on the other end of the line, but we talked over the same phone about five o'clock the same afternoon.

What was the use of giving out more than one program at the May Fete Monday? The lady who sat several doors to our right explained the action of the pageant to everyone any way.

Seems like the lion and the lamb should have exchanged places in the program of the May Fete—or maybe Dorrill was not large enough to handle the boisterous lambkin.

Something else about the lady on our right Monday afternoon: She could not understand why they wanted to leave the May poles all wrapped up like that. She thought it was a hot day.

Honor Among Thieves—But.

One of the leading lights in the journalism department was being urged to compete in the contest for space in the Industrialist. He maintained that he didn't have time, and there was no money in it. "But think of the honor," urged his advisor. "Honor," howled the journalist in accents of unutterable sarcasm. "Where do you get that honor stuff, when you are competing with the class in elementary journalism?"

Fair Bertha wore an ankle watch. Where it was meant to wear. Sweet Bertha walked upon the lawn. And many chiggers there Did find themselves upon her foot. And faint would higher climb. But ennuï claimed them everyone. They could not pass the time.

THE MAY FETE.

On the K. S. A. C. campus, in the city of Manhattan, in the valley where a river leaps into the light of morning. There was held a jubilee time in the month of May time. Mary Polson, she the beauty from the cloud draped deck they carried.

Sat erect and called her people: Called her subjects all to follow. Through the forest went the buglers piping that the queen was coming. She, the white gown'd Mary Polson, she, the Merry Queen of May Close upon the piping heralds, With a slow and weakly walking, Came the aged father time. Eight good friends had Mary Polson Singled out from all the others, Bound to her in closest union, Garbed in some faint purple color Looking beauteous in their youthness, Aided by two purple babies. And the line came slowly, slowly, Through the tranquil campus pathways.

First came gay pink dancing figures With their powdered wigs and faces Dancing to the minuet. Then a single line of darkness, Grey and black robed gloomy figures, Like an angry storm cloud rising. Came the raindrops and the thunder. Then the people on the campus Fair, "Behold the May pole dancers." Down the hill and through the bushes

Came the winders of the May poles, Came the Hamiltons and Ios, Came the Euros and the Websters, Came the Brownings and Athenians, Came the happy dancing Franklins, Came the crowd of Alpha Betas, All of them drawn close together By the signal of the music, By the will of Mary Polson. Now came pink and tiny rosebuds Heralding approach of June. Onward through the sparkling daylight

Came the spirit of Dacotahs With their weapons and their war gear Wildly glaring at each other. Then came red haired, gold crowned damsels Gently plying golden harpstrings, Stirring softly strains of music In the playing Maytime breezes. Maidens, then with horns of plenty: Youths, who followed in their foot-prints

Frolicked with the crimson oak leaves Frolicked with pure joy of living; Frolicked o'er the college campus. Then the downy, melting snow flakes Greeting lightly o'er the snowsward, Came like pure white lily petals Rising,—sinking on the water,— Now seemed floating—now seemed flying Coming nearer, nearer, nearer, Onward through the emerald forest Passed in crimson dress and greeness, Passed the ringing bell of Christmas. Last of all the starlit fairies Danced like white capped foam in ripples

On the Queen's regalia party— On the train of Mary Polson. Never bloomed the earth so gayly— Never shone the sun so brightly As the day they crowned the May Queen— As they stood upon the campus. Stood like flowers from every brook side, Stood the dancers of the May Fete In the city of Manhattan. Then the gracious Mary Polson Led her maidens to her throne seat, Seated them about her smiling— Seated them on fragrant grasses. And the honored Dean of Women Gave to her a crowd of laurels— Gave to her a richest blessing In the presence of her people. Thus the people of Manhattan Honored Mary, Queen of Maytime. And the evening sun descending Set the clouds on fire with redness While the people from the margin, Watched the dancing, fairy movements

Till they said farewell forever.

And the campus dark and lonely Held but echoes of the day time— Of the happy jubilee time, Of the merry month of Maytime And the May Queen, Mary Polson.

Spring Formal.

The Delta Zeta sorority gave its annual spring formal Saturday night in celebration of its first anniversary. The party was given in Harrison's hall, which was artistically decorated with pink roses and ferns. The lights were embedded with pink roses and around the seats in the hall there was a low hedge. In the corners of the rooms and around the orchestra was lattice work of green hedge and in the lattice by the orchestra were the Greek letters, Delta Zeta, made of pink roses. The reception rooms were decorated in imitation of a Japanese tea garden and under a Japanese parasol in one corner, iced tea and wafers were served. The rooms were lighted with Japanese lanterns. The first dance was the candle walk, similar to a grand march, which was led by Miss Mildred French and R. V. Murphy. Miss Maude Hassler gave a beautiful solo rose dance, which was one of the features of the evening. She wore a rainbow tulle dress and carried a rose. The german was the last dance, during which balloons and confetti were thrown. After the dance the guests were taken to the dining room in Harrison's, where refreshments were served at quartet tables.

Among the out-of-town guests were Miss Jean Thompson and Miss Sargent of Junction City, Miss Izil Polson of Fredonia, Miss Marjorie Pike and Miss Anna Thompson of Salina, Miss Sofia McQuillan of Clay Center, Miss Esther Lear of Stafford, Mrs. J. T. Brooks of Hutchinson, Mrs. E. T. Hadley of Topeka and Mrs. Sargent of Junction City.

Junior-Senior Prom.

One of the prettiest parties of the year was held Friday night when the junior class of the college entertained for the seniors. Nichols gymnasium was beautifully decorated with white lattice work. The ceiling was of lattice work, with Japanese lanterns hung from this. Palms and ferns were used throughout the hall and the orchestra played behind an embankment of palms. The reception was from 7 until 8 o'clock, where the guests were received by O. K. Rombel, Dr. H. J. Waters, Mrs. H. J. Waters, F. S. Turner, Dean C. M. Drink, Mrs. C. M. Brink, Miss Mae Sweet, Dean J. T. Willard, Mrs. J. T. Willard, J. B. Sweet, Dean W. M. Jardine, Mrs. Jardine, W. W. Wright, Dean Mary Van Zile, William Caton, Dean A. A. Potter, Mrs. A. A. Potter, L. E. Howard, Miss Madge Thompson, L. M. Hanna and Miss Nina Mae Powell. After the reception a very clever farce was given as a takeoff on several of the seniors. After the farce the guests danced, those not wishing to dance being entertained by games, amusements and other interesting features. Mrs. Cora G. Lewis and Mr. Lewis and E. T. Hackney of Topeka were out-of-town guests.

OUTDOOR PLAYERS TO BE HERE ON JUNE 7

Most Powerful Presentation of Shakespeare's "The Tempest" Is Seen Out Doors—Seldom Achieved in Theaters.

"RIVALS" IS STRONG PLAY.

Most admirers of Shakespeare, even in the metropolitan centers, are compelled to go through their lives with no better acquaintance with the most mature of the master's plays, "The Tempest," than may be gained in the library, for an account of the difficulties in producing it, it is rarely seen upon the stage. This makes the announcement that The Coburn Players, the leading company devoted to the classic drama in America, will present "The Tempest" on the college campus Friday, June 7, doubly interesting.

By means of an out-of-door production of this play Mr. Charles Douville Coburn has been able to surmount those difficulties which have deterred theatrical managers from presenting this acknowledgedly most enchanting of plays. The vales of green and the swaying of trees that are the background for the magic arts of Prospero can never be simulated so as to create any sense of illusion in the theater, but by going to those very vales and trees Mr. Coburn has created an already settled, the mind's eye more readily upward on the words of the poet.

In preparing for this important production Mr. Coburn has exercised the utmost care in costuming and accessories. Each of the former as well as each time are of course very correct, and an artist noted for fancy and originality has designed the dress of those other-than-mortal dwellers on the enchanted isle.

"The Rivals," most famous of the plays of Richard Brinsley Sheridan, is a worthy addition to the repertoire of classic drama for the production of which the Coburn Players have become so noted throughout the length and breadth of the country. This masterpiece of comedy will be offered during the same visit to the college as when "The Tempest" is produced.

Written in 1775, just at the time when the reaction against insincerity and formalism was developing new force in Europe, "The Rivals" was an almost instantaneous success, and from that day till this, such is the universal nature of its appeal, its popularity has been perennial. Sheridan attacks what Fielding declared to be the only fair object of ridicule—and which, alas, we have always with us—affaffectation, consisting here of false sentiment, hollow forms and empty words in life and literature, shams and windy sentimentalities. But Sheridan's war against these was not waged in bitterness of heart; rather he blows them from him with one of the healthiest and heartiest laughs in the world.

The company with which Mr. Charles Douville Coburn has surrounded himself to present this immortal comedy is fully worthy of the play; a gathering together of trained artists, wholly competent to do justice to the famous characters they are called upon to interpret.

GIVE PUPILS RECITAL.

Two Students Will Present Program Monday Evening.

Miss Francis Stall, piano pupil of Miss Fanchon Easter, and Miss Beulah Truesdale, vocal pupil of Arthur E. Westbrook, will give a pupil's recital in the college auditorium Monday evening, May 29. Both of these young ladies show exceptional ability in their lines and the program of an hour and a half promises to be very good.

Beginning at 7:30 the same evening as the recital there will be a rehearsal of the Choral society.

Web-Euros' Hike.

The Websters and Eurodelphians will leave by special car this afternoon via Rock Island train Number 27 to celebrate their annual spring hike. This is the big event of the year for the Websters and their sister society and arrangements to make this year's event a grand success have been made by the joint social committee. They will return this evening by special car on train Number 39. Professor and Mrs. Dickens will chaperone the hikers.

BETAS PAN-HEL CHAMPS.

Take Final Game from Sigma Nus, and Hang Up the Inter-frat Trophy

In the contest to decide the Pan-Hellenic championship, the Betas defeated the Sigma Nus on Freshman field Thursday by the score of 11 to 5. Hargis for the Betas pitched good ball all the way through and the Sigma Nus were unable to connect safely except on rare occasions. Andy Harrold started the game for the gang from Leavenworth but the Betas drove him from the mound. Husted took the box after Harrold retired and was wild as a March hare. He retired in a couple of innings in favor of Geyser who finished the game. The Betas now have the privilege of placing the little old tin-cup on their clock shelf as a sign of their superiority at the national pastime, over the other members of the Pan-Hellenic League.

BIG SISTERS MET TUESDAY.

Y. W. C. A. Branch Members Have Cafeteria Supper at College.

Sixty Big Sisters of the Y. W. C. A. met in the D. S. building Tuesday afternoon. The girls ate dinner at the cafeteria. The tables were beautifully decorated with purple and white flowers. The entire back room was reserved for the purpose. After dinner, songs were sung, after which Miss Stella Blain, chairman of the Big Sister committee, made the girls acquainted with the entire work for next year.

Interesting talks were given by Miss Pauline Groves on "Difficulties and Opportunities," Miss Grace Derby on "Standards," and Mrs. J. W. Hamilton on "Needs to be Met."

TRACK MEN LEAVE FOR CONFERENCE TRACK MEET

Eleven Meriterites Off to Columbia to Bring Back Bacon—Chances Are Good.

Eleven Meriterites left yesterday for Columbia, Mo., where they will compete in the annual Missouri Valley Conference meet, today.

The Aggies intend to bring back several chunks of bacon in the way of points from the meet and with an even break should return with two or three firsts and several seconds. Captain "Duroc" Frizzell in the recent meet with K. U. broke the conference record in the high jump, by an inch, after running the high hurdles in which he placed first. The record must be made at a conference meet in order to go as a conference record. Teeter in the two mile event looks like a sure first at the Columbia meet. Keys and Seiber should place in the half and the mile. Dorrill, after his record-smashing exhibition of last Friday in which he broke the college record for the disses, should place near the top in this event.

Following is a list of the men who will take the trip under the direction of Coach Merner: Frizzell (captain), Teeter, Wilder, Keys, Dorrill, Seiber, Holroyd, Turner, Grandfield, Essick, and Crumbaker.

FATEFUL FACULTY MEETING.

Prof's Will Pass Judgment on Applicants for Degrees June 12.

At the faculty meeting to be held on Monday, June 12, will be determined the seniors who are to receive degrees at the spring Commencement. A rumor to the effect that the names of those who will finish their work at this time was to be published this week, was contradicted by Miss Machir, the college registrar.

The final action on the 393 applications for degrees will be taken at the faculty meeting mentioned.

Athenians Will Bake Owls Tonight

The owls in the vicinity of Hackberry Glen will suffer this evening when the Athenian literary society men with their Browning sisters as guests camp in that noted retreat for hikers to celebrate their annual Owl Bake.

The freshman debaters and orators will make an early start to catch the owls and locate the place for the festivities. More than 40 couples of Athenians and Brownings will leave the Athenian hall at 3 o'clock, chaperoned by Professor and Mrs. J. E. Kammer, and tempted by this native grown delicacy will make haste to the cooling shades of the Glen.

The afternoon will be spent in playing games and a social good time. A short program with ex-emporaneous numbers has been arranged by the committee to make the after lunch hour a very entertaining feature.

M. F. Ahearn, professor of landscape gardening, has returned from Chapman where he gave a commencement address.

U.S. WASTES $2,500,000 ON BAD ROADS ANNUALLY

Albert T. Reid, of Topeka, Tells Students of the Tribute to Bad Roads—Talks to Journalists.

TALK WAS ILLUSTRATED.

"Good roads would save the United States Two hundred and fifty million dollars a year," Albert T. Reid, president of the Kansas Farmer and Leavenworth Post, told the students of the state agricultural college Thursday morning in chapel.

Mr. Reid chose as his subject: "The Kansas Farmer and Good Roads." The cartoons, the speaker announced, were to "depict emotions." The emotions he chose to exemplify were typical of those enjoyed by different members of the rural communities, under the conditions of bad roads, and an inaccessible market, closed schools, absent mail man, and kindred ills.

His cartoon work was of a high order. Mr. Reid has been a member of the art staffs of newspapers in Chicago and New York, and his work has acquired a finish and technique agreeably enlivened by the originality of his subjects. His "Kansas Farmer," appearing frequently on the front paper of the paper of the same name, is famous.

A total reorganization of the system of road supervision is the remedy recommended for the betterment of conditions. "The office of road overseer, in many of the districts of this state, has been the biggest joke I know of, for a good many years," said Mr. Reid. His talk was illustrated with cartoons.

Mr. Reid also addressed the students in industrial journalism in one of the class rooms, at 11 o'clock, telling them some of the technical details of work on a farm paper. "Above all things be constructive, in running a farm paper," he said. He emphasized throughout his talk the necessity of having ideas and sticking to them, in running the farm paper.

In his address, Mr. Reid brought strongly home to the students the part they might play in spreading the gospel of good roads, in all parts of the state. He mentioned several concrete instances of the loss and delay caused by bad roads. A farmer in the western part of the state, according to the speaker, lost $1,800 on a single shipment of cattle. "If his tax assessment for good roads for any one year had been one per cent of that amount he would have checked to death," said Mr. Reid.

ALL OVER A PADDLING.

Three Freshmen Take Revenge on Mighty Senior.

Recently an unlucky freshman was caught without the proper head gear and was given the usual treatment by upper classmen. A senior desirous of joining in the fun but lacking the customary paddle and with none in sight, picked up a five foot 2x4 and took a place in the line somewhat beyond the center.

The freshman happened to see the senior with the unusual disciplining weapon before his lone race began and gave him a friendly warning not to use it. The senior, not to be bossed by a freshman, ignored the warning, and took his place in line, really meaning to threaten and not to use the big wooden piece. It was so decreed, however, that the forward movement of the bigstick and the floating body of the freshly should try to occupy the same place at the same time. This was more of a surprise to the senior than might be thought, except by those who saw what followed. No sooner had the senior realized what had happened than he dropped the 2x4 and disappeared in the crowd.

The freshman, who is a burly fellow, came slowly back along the line of march, or flight, looking for the holder of the big stick but he was not to be found. Nothing daunted he sought out two other freshmen and a private meeting was arranged for that evening after dark.

Between ten and eleven that night as the senior was returning from his "date" he was surprised by the three freshmen, who caught him, took him to a nearby hydrant and proceeded to give him a good drenching. His plea of good clothes and cold water was unheeded and he went home a wiser senior and muttering threats upon all concerned.

L. A. ZIMMERMAN BEST VERSE WRITER

Takes First and Second Place in Contest Staged by Mr. Burk—Velma Carson Takes Third Place on List.

VERSE IS EXCELLENT.

The verse contest which has been going on under the supervision of Don L. Burk for the past three weeks ended Wednesday with L. A. Zimmerman as winner of first place. Sixty persons sent in productions and according to Mr. Burk many of them were far above the average for students. Second place also went to L. A. Zimmerman while Miss Velma Carson was awarded third honors. Mr. Burk says that his reason for giving first place to the sonnet is because of the admirable way in which the object matter is placed into sonnet form.

First Prize.

A SONNET

(To J. H. Payne in Appreciation of "Home Sweet Home")
Mid lonely wilds of Oklahoma's hills
There lives a rustic artist all alone.
No mighty deeds nor learning's lofty tone
Give voice to what his humble being fills.
But for one window this immortal thing
Would, like encaged birds, beat useless wings
And die for voice to sing its carolings.
A violin is this one opening.

Oh pensive Poet 'mid the peaceful dead!
As does this instrument a soul set free,
So do thy strains my heartache voice for me.

O thou who never owned thy sweet ideal
And yet couldst such a wholesome longing feel Hast sung what my full heart could not have said.

—L. A. Zimmerman.

Second Prize.

A GLIMPSE OF UTOPIA

At the end of the rainbow miles away
A thousand isles in a beauteous bay
Present a sunset scene.
The golden orb, the king of day
Both gild the hills with a parting ray—
The hills of velvet green.

The clouds like silvery ships afire
Float aimlessly and higher, higher
In fathomless, silent seas.
The tireless gull with pink-white breast
Doth flash the light, and, wings at rest,
Doth show his perfect ease.

The ripples on the shell-strewn beach
Are lapping, lapping, tossing each
A sunbeam on its crest.
The swallow, flitting o'er the deeps
Then o'er the leas a repast reaps
To carry to his nest.

Look traveler in this land of dreams!
Behold the isle whose beauty seems
To designate it queen.
Just glance across that strip of sea
With bosom smooth as smooth can be Like glass with a silver sheen.

And see the oaks and giant pines
In deep dark woods and green inclines
That fringe a treeless vale.
Behind the scene and o'er the trees
The mountain tops our traveler sees
Of barren rocks and shale.

Then in the vale, a wondrous maze
Of flowers grows; the wild deer graze
A brooklet babbles by.
White fishes flit o'er pure white sand
Through limpid blue like a magic band
In pools that paint the sky.

From wooded slope to beach's end
The colored wings of skippers blend
With myriad colored flowers.
And now the night with mystic veil
Excludes the light. The flowery dale
Must sleep its gloomy hours.

Third Prize.

THE FARM WOMAN.

Just a farm woman a tendin' the hens,
Or hangin' the clothes on the line,

A carryin' swill to the pigs in the pens,
Or trainin' a cucumber vine.
A peelin' potatoes or slicin' off ham,
An' packin' up butter to sell,
Or maybe a puttin' up jelly an' jam,
An' hoein' the weeds for a spell.

Dear tired farm woman, a tendin' the hens,
There's some of us don't understand,
Don't you know, we forget that your longin' for fren's,
'Stead of milkin' an' churnin' My land!

We sit here and tell you to gaze at the sky—
Enjoy the great out of doors—
Not thinkin' you're almost too tired to sigh
In the night, when you're through with your chores.

When you come into town sort of dusty and blown,
And your shoulders and petticoats sag,
We are apt to forget, wonder woman, we own

That you've hitched up and harnessed that nag
And jig-jogged along through the wind and the dust
For many a wearisome mile,
And with little-town smugness we give you a thrust
In the shape of a pitying smile.
Instead of due honor, we pass wisps of scorn,
Forgetting the whole world depends
For its food, for clean blood, for great men that are born
On the rugged farm woman a tendin' the hens.

—Velma Carson.

TUESDAY, DECORATION DAY IS COLLEGE HOLIDAY

Only the Rookies Will Work—Will Report in the Morning—Many Students Will Go Home for a Rest

Tuesday will be a holiday about these dignities, in celebration of the fact that it is Decoration Day. There will be no classes on that day, except for the cadets.

The college regiment will report for duty in the morning, and will take part in the parade down town.

On account of the fact that the holiday comes at the end of the week-end, some students are planning to go to their homes for a day or so, before the finals begin.

RESIDENT ALUMNI FROLIC.

Annual Picnic Will Be Held on College Campus Tuesday Afternoon.

The annual resident alumni picnic will be held on the college campus Tuesday afternoon, May 29, commencing at 4 o'clock.

Each year the resident members of the college alumni association have a picnic on Decoration Day. This particular day is selected because it is a holiday and everybody can attend. The object of the picnic is not only a social function with a general good time, but also to make arrangements and talk over plans for the annual alumni reception which is held each year on the night of commencement day.

This year the meeting place will be just east of Fairchild hall. In case of inclement weather the crowd will move inside the building and the festival will go on just the same.

Every alumnus in Manhattan or in territory near to Manhattan is most cordially invited. If only one member of the family is an alumnus of the college this one may invite all other members of the family and every one will be welcome.

The members of the committee in charge of the arrangements for the afternoon are: President, Ed. Shell-enbaum; vice president, L. A. Fitz; secretary, Ed. M. Amos; treasurer, Miss Alice Melton.

CRAWFORD IS HONORED.

Elected to Important Positions at Episcopal Diocese Meeting.

Professor N. A. Crawford, head of the journalism department of the college, was accorded signal honors at the meeting of the state Episcopal diocese, which he attended in Winfield this week.

Professor Crawford was elected editor of the Kansas Churchman, the official organ of the diocese, was appointed chairman of the committee on church publicity, and elected delegate to the Provincial Synod, to be held in Little Rock, Arkansas. The idea of the committee on church publicity was originated by Professor Crawford.

Don't forget to send the Collegian home this week.

AGGIES TAKE GAME FROM NORMALS—SCORE IS 6-1

Aggies Reformed on Their Hitting, and Landed Five Runs in the Fourth—Normals Lonely Tally in Ninth.

AGGIE FIELDING EXCELLENT.

The Aggies walked away with the big end of a 5 to 1 game with the Teachers from Emporia yesterday. All the Aggie scores came in the fourth inning on four hits, two errors and a wild pitch. Sullivan's three bagger cleaned the bases ahead of him scoring three men. The visitors scored their lone tally in the last inning on three successive hits. The feature of the game was the hitting and fielding of one "Scotty" McLeod who replaced McGalliard in the right garden. Scotty got two hits out of four trips to the plate and in the ninth inning raced outside the foul line and speared Supe's long drive with one hand. The fielding of the Aggies was an eye-opener for the fans who attended the game. Only two errors were registered against the home crowd during the afternoon and neither of those featured in the scoring of the Normals. In the sixth inning a fast double play, Griffiths to Newton to Frank stopped what might have been a batting rally. Dutch Hewey in the box for the Aggies pitched a good steady game and was never at any time in and serious difficulty. He struck out four men and walked one. Young Mr. Supe on the mound for the Normals was anything but normal. This bird struck out eleven of the Aggies but eight of the locals connected safely with his hooks and slants. In the fourth, Denman, first up, hit safely through third base. Reynolds laid down a perfect bunt but Christman dropped the throw from the pitcher to catch Denman and both were safe. Newton bunted and everyone was safe when Supe toyed with the pill too long. Harvey struck out. Frank followed suit, but Sully caught one on the nose and lifted it out the third base line for three sacks cleaning up the bases. McLeod hit to short center scoring Sullivan. Hewey lifted one to center but the center felder failed to get under it and Hewey was safe at first. Griffiths took one of Supe's hooks in the slats, filling the bases. Supe then walked Denman forcing McLeod. Reynolds fled out to left field. In the seventh inning Reynolds hit to deep right center for three bases and was thrown out at the plate on Newton's bunt to Supe. Newton stole second and third but advanced no further for Harvey fanned.

The visitors lonely tally came in the ninth inning on successive hits by Pratt, Faler and Hirschler. Long-fellow flew out to Reynolds and Christman fanned. The visitors threatened to score in the fourth when Pratt walked went to second on Sullivan's low peg and to third on Griffiths' delayed throw.

The Aggies sure looked good to the fans in yesterday's contest.

One of the local dailies quoted Coach Bender as saying the Aggies were the weakest hitting team he had ever coached. Well, they did pretty well for such a weak bunch of hitters, only got eight safe ones, two of them for extra bases. "Nick" Ems a former diamond star and captain of last year's team appeared to be running the Aggie end of the game from the bench.

The score by innings:
R. H. E.
Normal000 000 001—1 4 4
Aggies000 500 00x—5 8 2
Batteries—Normal: Supe and Faler; Aggies: Hewey and Sullivan.

PERSONALITY.

The best asset a college faculty can give a student is personality. The hardest and most delicate task a faculty has is that of developing personality in students. And experience is the greatest developer of personality. To hamper, to guard and protect constantly will not allow personality to develop. Freedom in act and thought is the condition under which students rise or fall. If they do not meet them on the campus they will find these conditions later in life and no few college satellites with bright prospects have gone down before the freedom which the world gives and the campus tends to prevent. Ames has no abundance of freedom or personality.

Returning from the Pan-American congress in Washington last winter, President Pearson reported to a few persons here that the biggest thing he got out of the entire convention was a thought which a prominent South American expressed in discussing the preparation of young men for foreign service; i. e. that regardless of the training it was personality which should be counted as the most important factor in any man's make-up. Technical training was secondary.

Ames has an abundance of technical training but has it the other? We dare to believe that there is too much of the patronage which stands as a barrier when an original thought or act is perpetrated. There are many college men who cannot approach their professors because in daring to be themselves they are classed as too flighty or improperly trained. And it is at this point that opportunity to find the personality of each other is lost. We plea for that big majority of men who though they do not live up to all the canons of the best are rich in personality and spirit. That stolid soberness which is the offspring of Y. M. C. A. doctrine does not make for personality.

Like the accepted short stories which are published we urge that Ames recognize a bit more the man of personality, regardless of his creed or deeds. We conclude with an article written by the editor of Ainslee's magazine to the Bookman in reply to the question of why manuscripts are rejected:

The rejection of a well written story by Ainslee's is in most cases due to its lack of what in people we call "personality." Often a poorer story in point of writing and construction finds acceptance because of this quality, just as in every day life we are sometimes strongly drawn to the man of many faults, while his irreproachable neighbor, upright and respected, makes not the slightest appeal to us. It is this intangible something that draws us alike to people and stories even though they respectively eat peas with a knife and split their infinitives. If they lack this personality, however well bred and law abiding they may be, whether flesh-and-blood people or ink-and-paper ones, we politely reject their companionship.—Iowa State Lantern.

BEEF MAKING FASCINATING.

Is the Opinion of D. D. Casement, Extensive Cattle Feeder.

Beef making is both hazardous and fascinating, in the opinion of D. D. Casement, manager of the Casement ranch north of Manhattan and an extensive cattle feeder, who spoke to a class in beef production, on "Cost of making Beef."

"It is hazardous because you are working with a sensitive organism," said Mr. Casement. "Then you are dependent on weather conditions, for bad weather may do a great deal of damage as it did two years ago when many feeders lost as high as $20 per head on their cattle. These risks, however, are what makes the feeding game interesting."

While these risks cannot be determined ahead of time, there are a number of things connected with the business which can be definitely determined such as cost of cattle, and feed, pointed out Mr. Casement. In this connection he mentioned the use of concrete feeding floors and good sheds as a means of reducing the cost of feeding.

"Animals must have good stamina and especially a good digestive system if they are to be good feeders for the process of fattening is abnormal and very hard on their systems," said Mr. Casement.

"Feeding methods vary greatly in different localities. Many successful feeders use the self-feeder after the cattle are on full feed while others wouldn't think of putting cattle on the self-feeder but make them eat up all the feed and lick out the bunks each time. I am inclined toward this latter method for cattle, but with hogs the self-feeder is the best way."

"Many believe that silage has a great place in the making of beef, and I am inclined to think so too. Corn and alfalfa however, are the basis of beef making. Some feeders use bluegrass but I have not been very successful with it."

Mr. Casement also emphasized the necessity of keeping records and read over some of his own accounts which showed exactly what he was making or losing on his cattle each month. From this he is able to determine whether or not he is feeding them properly.

"The time will come, I hope," said Mr. Casement, "when the farmer and feeder can work more with his head and less with his hands, and conditions on the farm will not be so strenuous. At present when the day is done he is so ground down that he has no inclination to make plans but when that time comes he must know how to do the work for without that he cannot be successful."

After experiencing real summer weather for several days I move that we go back to the mode of dress used by Adam and Eve.

It sounds almost impossible but the journalism students would be glad to see Snow just anytime now.

DEAR ELEANOR, I have arrived—into the farm's depths I have dived. The house we live in is a barn. This life don't suit me worth a darn. At night I sleep in the attic; its dampness makes my bones rheumatic. At three o'clock the farmer wails, "Get out of bed and grab the pails, and milk the tall, lank, brindle cows, and feed the pigs and scour the pious, and put the harness on the mule, while yet the atmosphere is cool."

A little while I hesitate, until I realize my fate; I then jump out and grab my pants, and do a warlike Injun dance; I salt the cows and feed the mule,—do chores for hours just like a fool. At last we're served with tough pancakes; it's finished in about three shakes. Out in the field we start to boil. From face and neck then must toll; old Sol comes up and I lose my skin; my tongue hangs out and ribs cave in.

At noon we dine on pork and beans; a million flies swarm thru the screens; some swim the soup; some on my ear, rejoice me with their songs of cheer.

We then toll on 'till Sol goes down; then back to take the chores a round. At nine o'clock I sit to sup, and rake the bugs from out my cup. At ten o'clock I go to bed, and wish 't'wosh that I was dead.

In just ten days I'll take my junk, and throw it loosely in my trunk; and bum a freight for your good place, to see again your smiling face. My love for you is not a myth. Believe me dear, (Sincerely, Smith.

Summer Courses in Athletics.

The summer school catalogues recently distributed through Professor Holton's office contain the information that there will be special summer courses in athletic instruction and coaching under the direction of Athletic Director Bender. There will be courses offered in football, baseball, basketball and track. This work is given especially for the benefit of high school instructors who coach high school teams.

Coach Bender has built up his courses upon the work which he took last summer at the University of Illinois under Coach Zuppke, who is head coach at the big school. Mr. Bender is officiating at the conference meet at Columbia today. He expects to gather some information for his courses this summer while attending the meet. Undoubtedly "Bob" Simpson can give him considerable information upon the art of negotiating the high sticks in less than record time.

We know how to take care of him, treat him right and deal with him right. THE PROFESSORS LOVE STORY" BY THE SENIORS

Play by Prominent English Playwright to Be Produced by Class of 1916, June 13.

The senior play, "The Professor's Love Story" will be given in the college auditorium Tuesday evening, June 13. "The Professor's Love Story" was written by the noted English playwright, J. M. Barrie, author of "Peter Pan" and "The Little Minister." Mr. Barrie has the reputation of being one of the best play writers the age has produced and the play to be given by the class of 1916 is one of his best productions.

"The Professor's Love Story" hinges about a college professor who becomes afraid that he is growing old. Having had no previous experience in the line the worthy professor does not realize what is the matter when he falls in love with his private secretary. Not realizing that his is a case for the preacher rather than a physician, the poor man goes to a doctor and is told that his trouble is lumbago. Of course everything comes out beautiful as is al-ways true in love stories and the professor comes to himself when the young lady of his dreams faints and he has to carry her for some distance.

In the part of the private secretary will be seen Miss Wilma Burtis and according to Professor Emerson, who is coaching the play Miss Burtis is very good in the part.

"Zane" Fairchild takes the part of the college professor and those who have seen him working in the part say that it is surprising just how good a "prof" he makes.

It is easy to realize how well Ralph Erskine fills the bill as a real Eng-lish lord. His hobby throughout all the action is ladies fashions and Miss Mary Polson as his wife is the apt subject for the "hobbies."

Practice is held for nights each week and twice a week at chapel hours. Special scenery will be used for the production.

The date of the seat sale has not yet been set but will be announced soon.

The cast is as follows:

Wilma Burtis, Professor's Secre-tary, leading lady; Mary Polson, Lady Gilding; Lois Witham, Effie, the Scotch housekeeper; Florence Justin, the Professor's sister; Mildren Bran-son, the Dowager; L. H. Fairchild, the Professor, the leading man; J. H. McAddams, Dr. Cosens; R. C. Erksine; Sir George Gilding; H. M. Mc-Clelland, J. E. Garlough, two Scotch farm hands; Ray Whitenack, a coun-try doctor.

Some cages are being prepared in the new agricultural building, for the guinea pigs which E. N. Wentworth, professor of animal husbandry, ex-pects to use in his experiments in genetics. Prof. Wentworth also ex-pects to use some white rabbits in this experiment which is for the pur-pose of studying the inheritance of color.

Most of the churches were dismiss-ed Sunday evening in order that their members might attend the high school baccalaureate sermon which was given at the Marshall theater.

CHEMISTS IN SESSION AT COLLEGE SATURDAY

Kansas City Branch of American Society Meets Here—Next National Meeting at Kansas City 1917.

PAPERS REED BY LOCAL MEN

The Kansas City section of the American Chemical society held its 118th meeting at the Kansas State Agri-cultural college Saturday. This is the first time it has met here. Meet-ings were previously held at Kansas City and Lawrence alternately.

Announcement was made that the next national meeting will be held in Kansas City in April, 1917. Member-ship in this organization, which is the largest chemical society in America, is 7,000.

Those who attended the local meet-ing were shown over the campus in the afternoon and in the evening pa-pers were read. "The Chemical Con-ditions Essential for Making Alfalfa Silage" was the subject of a paper by C. O. Swanson, associate professor of agricultural chemistry in the Kansas State Agricultural college. Alfalfa tests were explained in detail and the reasons given for their success or fail-ure.

Experiment by Doctor Waters. "New and Nonofficial Remedies and the Propaganda of Reform," was dis-cussed by R. H. Needham, associate in stock remedy analysis. He explained in detail the unworthiness of some well known advertised medicines.

A summary of the five years' ex-periment work carried on by Dr. H. J. Waters, president of the agricultural college, and the departments of ani-mal husbandry and chemistry in in-vestigating the nutritive deficiencies of corn, was given by Dr. J. T. Will-ard, dean of the division of general science.

"It has long been believed," said Dean Willard, "that this cereal has some definite lack in its chemical com-position. These investigations are be-lieved to have proved that the mineral constituents of corn are inadequate, and that characteristics of its proteins are responsible to a large extent for the fact that the young swine on corn alone make very slow growth, or none at all, and in some instances actually die from starvation."

Piano Recital.

The piano pupils of Miss Abernathy will give a recital in the college au-ditorium Thursday afternoon at 4 o'clock.

The pastor of the First Methodist church, the Reverend John M. Mc-Clelland, has returned home after a month spent at the general confer-ence, which was held at Saratoga Springs. Doctor McClelland reports a very profitable and enjoyable trip and devoted his entire sermon Sunday morning to it.

45 WILL GRADUATE FROM MANHATTAN HIGH SCHOOL

Exercises to Be Held Friday, June 2 —Dr. Arthur Henderson, Topeka, to Speak on "Fateful Forty-Five"

Forty-five pupils of the Manhattan High school will graduate at the an-nual Commencement exercises which are to be held in the Marshall theater on the evening of Friday, June 2.

The closing exercises of the High school will commence with a class sermon for the seniors, preached at the Marshall theater tomorrow night by the Reverend J. M. McClelland, pastor of the First Methodist church at Manhattan.

There will be class day exercises by the members of the class, in the high school auditorium, on Friday morn-ing. At that time the grade cards for the year will be given to the seniors.

Dr. Arthur S. Henderson, pastor of the First Congregational church at Topeka, will deliver the address, choos-ing as his subject, "Fateful Forty-Five." The diplomas will be present-ed at that time.

The high school orchestra and cho-rus will furnish music, both at the class sermon and at the graduation exercises.

HUNDREDS OF STOCKMEN TO ATTEND CONVENTION

June 9, Stockmen from all Over the State to Attend Event at the Kansas State Agricultural College.

STRONG PROGRAM ARRANGED

Indications point to a large attend-ance at the live stock event which will be held at the Kansas State Agri-cultural college June 9. The pro-gram announced Monday by W. A. Coehel, professor of animal husband-ry, is particularly strong.

Dr. Henry J. Waters, president of the college, will preside at the morn-ing session. W. M. Jardine, dean of agriculture, will read a paper, "Pro-gress with Pastures." "The New Method of Controlling Blackleg" will be discussed by Dr. F. S. Schoenleber, professor of veterinary medicine, and Dr. O. M. Franklin, assistant in veteri-nary medicine. L. E. Call, professor of agronomy, will tell of "Experi-mental Work in Crops and Soils." Prior to the lunch hour the experimental farm will be visited. Lunch will be served in the judging pavilion.

The first thing on the program for the afternoon will be the inspection of breeding and show cattle. This will be followed by an address, "Relation of Breeding of Purebred Live Stock to the Breeding Industry," by Charles F. Curtiss, director of the Iowa Agri-cultural Experiment station and dean of agriculture in the Iowa State Col-lege. Dean Curtiss has been promi-nent in live stock and other agricul-tural work for many years.

The closing, and perhaps most im-portant feature of the meeting, will be the explanation of results of ex-periments in feeding by Professor Coehel and L. B. Mann. Results will be presented of tests made at Man-hattan of feeding 100 calves to make yearling beef. These tests are to show a comparison between shelled corn and ground corn and corn and cob meal, between ground kafir and ground corn, and between kafir heads and ground corn and corn and cob meal. The effect will also be shown of adding silage to a ration of corn, cottonseed meal, and alfalfa hay.

AMONG THE HORTICULTURISTS.

Strawberries Are Ripe and Sweet Potatoes on the way.

A "poor" student in journalism was searching every crook and corner of the horticultural building for that "stuff" called news, when he en-counterd a man. So anxious was the student for "news" he cried out to this stranger, "Any news today?" "Yes," said Mr. Blain, the horticulture fore-man. "We are making crates for the rapidly ripening strawberries. But," continued Mr. W. T. Blain, "if you must put this in print you had bet-ter add that the department has just bought several boxes of shells and a good gun, so beware, Good-day."

Ninety hills of Spanish peanuts are up in a good stand, according to Mr. Blain, the foreman. This is an ex-periment as to yield and fertility.

The department is putting on the third and last spray on the apple trees.

Four thousand sweet potatoe plants are just up. This is a trial plot ex-periment, to compare the yield of the following varieties: Yellow Nans-mond, Red Nansmond, Yellow Jersey, Early Golden, Southern Queen, and the Pride of Kansas.

The trial plots of popcorn this year contain the Golden Queen, squirrel Tooth and White Pearl.

The sweet corn trial plots are up and growing fine. The varieties are: The Country Gentleman, Golden Bantam, Stowell's Evergreen, Corey White Cob, Corey Extry Early, Extry Early Evergreen, and Shoepeg.

Arrangements are being made by the Jayhawker Saddle and Sirloln club for entertaining the cattlemen who will be at the college on "Cattle-men's Day," June 9.

The Franklin Literary society will entertain the societies of the school of agriculture, with a special pro-gram in the women's gymnasium next Saturday night.

N. E. Dale, a junior in the agron-omy department, spent the week-end in Kansas City, where he attended the Billy Sunday meeting and Roose-velt lectures.

AN EXCEPTIONAL STUDENT. Maude Bradley, Perfect Grader, Here Next Year.

The Kansas State Agricultural col-lege is to be honored next year with having as a freshman Miss Maude Bradley, of Kansas City, Kan. Miss Bradley is the first pupil to leave the Kansas side high school with perfect grades. She has made her own way through the high school by teaching. Miss Bradley is an honor student and has been chosen valedictorian for a class of 186 with which she is gradu-ated.

DAIRY JUDGERS INSPECTING.

Twelve Members Go on Trip to Holton Friday Morning.

Twelve members of the advanced dairy judging class, under the leader-ship of Professor J. B. Fitch and W. E. Tomson, of the dairy department, went to Holton Friday morning, where they inspected a number of purebred dairy herds. They went from Holton to Topeka Friday night and spent Sat-urday inspecting the herds of H. B. Cowles, State Insane Asylum, and T. F. Doran of Doranwood farm. They returned to Manhattan late Saturday night.

The following men made the trip: Professor J. B. Fitch, W. E. Tomson, O. O. Browning, R. Campbell, Carl L. Huffman, E. J. Otto, W. W. Wright, R. E. Terrill, F. S. Turner, Robert Os-born, A. Sone, H. P. Miller and J. Robert Dawson.

STUDENTS EAT TOO MUCH DINNER SAYS DR. NICHOLS

College Physician Says That Students Go Without Breakfast—Then Eat
Too Much Dinner.

Gorging at dinner time would be prevented if students would not go without breakfast, asserted Doctor R. T. Nichols, college physician.

As a rule most students in this college take their meals in exactly the opposite order from that which will insure the best health and the most study, in the opinion of Doctor Nich-ols.

Dinner should be made the heavy meal, while supper should be a light-er meal. Most students reserve the hours after supper for study. The brain, points out Doctor Nichols, must have plenty of fresh, unpoisoned blood in order to think quickly, accurately, and efficiently. If a heavy supper is eaten the brain is robbed of much blood during digestion, and conse-quently the student can not study to the best of his ability. He wastes much time trying to get a chemistry or German lesson on only a partially equipped brain.

Eat regularly, drink plenty of wa-ter, don't go without breakfast and thus make E grades is the advice of Doctor Nichols. If breakfast is slighted the student finds he has an enor-mous appetite at noon and proceeds to gratify it. The stomach is over-loaded and indigestion follows. Cold and scanty lunches, however, prove in-adequate to the bodily needs, and the student can not do justice to his school work.

The habit of piecing should be checked at once. Fruit may be pieced upon to the heart's desire, but beware of piecing on other foods.

IONIAN-HAMP "CAKE FEED."

Good Program and Eats Are Enjoyed in Lover's Lane Saturday.

The Ionian literary society enter-tained alumni Ios and the Hamps with a "cake feed" Saturday afternoon. The following program was given in the hall:

Music, Frances Stahl; Leap Year Consequences, Fae Wright; Oracle, Ruth Adams; Music, Josephine Allis; Egg Roast Stunt, Juanita Reynolds.

The Ios and guests then went to Lover's Lane, where Mrs. Guy Low-man delightfully entertained the crowd with her well told stories.

Cake and ice cream was served as refreshments. Each lo married dur-ing the year sends a cake for the feed. If she marries a Hamp then two cakes are required. The fee cream is furnished by the engaged Ios in college.

Among the guests were Miss Blan-chard, Miss Elsie Adams, Mrs. Als-paugh, Miss Kell, Mrs. Potter, Miss Katherine Adams, Mrs. Amos, Mrs. Ackert, Professor Ackert and Mr. L. N. Moody of Riley.

The senior class in soil survey went to Topeka Saturday on an inspection trip. R. I. Throckmorton, of that de-partment had charge of the trip.

Don't forget to send the Collegian home this week.

BASEBALL CHAMPIONSHIP DECIDED BY ONE CONTEST

Aggies Will Journey to Lawrence
Tomorrow to Tangle With Jayhawkers in Two Game Series
—One Game Tells

K. U. DOPED TO WIN BOTH.

Tomorrow will see the Aggies again pitted against their old rivals—the Jayhawkers and chances look any way but good for the home crowd to bring home any grapes. The Aggies lost both games to K. U. here on the home grounds. At Lawrence they will be playing on a sod field which will much handicap them after being used to the skinned diamond here.

Another thing that bodes no good for the Aggie nine is the fact that both the K. U. star hurlers are in the best of form. Smee will likely push the pill over during the Thursday contest and Craig will be on the mound Friday.

Both the high and cellar champion-ships of the Missouri Valley will be decided by the result of the Aggie-Jayhawker battles this week. Should the Aggies get away with one out of the two game series then Missou-ri will come in for the pennant of the Valley and our home boys will be placed in third position—the same place they were last year. If the Lawrence bunch gets away with a clean slate as they are doped to do, then the high position goes to them and the low—clear at the bottom—to the Aggies. Ames will get the place that the Aggies do not and, al-though no one wishes our brother farmers any bad luck we hope that we do not come in for the last position at any rate.

The coach will probably take about fifteen men on the Lawrence trip. Hodgson, Ferrier and Hewey will all be along to help drop them over if all are needed.

AGGIES SHOT WITH OKLAHOMA. Result Not Known as Ok. Has Not Been Heard From.

Saturday and Monday the College Rifle club held its annual contest with the Oklahoma A. & M. college. The scores made by the Oklahoma club have not yet been received. Fol-lowing are the Aggie men who par-ticipated in the contest and the scores made by each out of a possible 150 points:

Fairman	131
Warren	128
Farmer	126
Allis	125
Copple	116
Willis	113

The club is taking the N. R. A. course in rifle shooting. Under this course the man making 160 points out of a possible 250 is entitled to the rank of marksman, if he makes 150 the rang of sharpshooter, and 210 points out of 250 entitles him to the rank of expert. The scores of the in-dividual members are posted on the rifle club bulletin board in the gym-nasium each week.

C. G. Steinsmeyer, a graduate stu-dent in agriculture, spent Friday and Saturday in Topeka.

UNIFORM GRADING.

Why not a uniform system of grading for all the larger colleges of the country? In looking over the grade reports from different schools one finds every system imaginable. To look at the average of Kansas University the persons here would think that the standing there was exceptionally low as none of the organizations rank above 70. It seems that the schools in one state could at least use the same system. Everyone attending K. S. A. C. would be glad to know the comparative tanding of the college as compared with that at other institutions.

Everybody in college except the cadets and the Collegian staff enjoyed the holiday yesterday. The cadets had to put on the show for all of you and then the Collegian staff had to get a paper ready for you to read this morning.

EMPLOYING A COLLEGE MAN.

Too frequently the recent college graduate regards his degree as a document which should pay dividends. He is often inclined to believe that he is employed because of his college gained knowledge, and that his willingness to employ that knowledge, when asked, in shaping the business policies of his employer, excuses a somewhat indifferent performance of the routine work to which his employer may have assigned him. Accordingly we will not employ a recent college graduate unless he agrees to the following principles: First, the knowledge he gained at college is not to be counted as an asset when we employ him. Second, the only possible value of his college education from our standpoint is that it may prove to have taught him to think and co-ordinate thought with action. Third, the value of his education will be judged solely by the manner in which he accomplishes the tasks to which he is assigned; not by the manner in which he might perform different and possibly more congenial work.—William Maxwell, in Collier's Weekly.

Why is it that on a moonlight night the young swain always starts by calling her "dear" and by the time he goes home it is "dovey"? Something soaring.

News item: "One of the most interesting features of the evening's entertainment was a dressing contest in which Miss _____ and Mr. _____ won the prizes." We admit that it sounds interesting, but just what was the program?

Education consists no less of the abandonment of illusions, than of the absorption of impressions.

It is a wise co-ed who knows her own configuration, in these days of loose gowns.

Reformers, preachers, lawyers, judges, have sought for years for the primary cause of divorce, but have overlooked their best bet. We shall enlighten them. What is it that is absolutely essential of the very first proceedings for divorce? What is the very first step in that direction? What is it in which every person connected in any way with the wedding, is implicated, and which leads directly to the divorce court? Perfectly simple. It's the wedding itself. Abolish the wedding, and presto, there will be no more divorces.

TRIP TO CASEMENT RANCH.

Livestock Management Class Inspects Big Farm Near Manhattan.
Twenty-five members of the livestock management classes, under the direction of A. M. Paterson, assistant in the animal husbandry department, made a trip to Dan Casement's ranch Saturday afternoon.

The start was made from the slaughter house, and the trip out was made in 45 minutes. The barns, sheds, and stock were inspected, and many interesting facts were brought out by Mr. Casement.

Mr. Casement is fitting 19 head of Herefords for the International stock show, and they are rounding up in good shape. Mr. Casement is also fitting another lot of Hereford yearlings for the Royal stock show at Kansas City. They are now on a full ration, but their hair is still a little coarse due to the fact that they have received no cottonseed or linseed meal. However, when this feed is added, they will show up to better advantage, the excellent shape they are now in.

Self-feeders are used for the hogs with excellent results. Mr. Casement secured good gains at the low rate of five cents a pound, and his hogs are now getting good growth.

Mr. Casement is carrying a small flock of sheep, and a fair sized band of young horses which he raised up in the mountains, and which he is finishing for sale at his home ranch.

HIKE BY R. R.

Lit. Societies of College Take Easiest and Fastest Way.

One hundred and eight members of the Webster and Eurodelphian literary societies made the annual hike to Keats Sunday via the Rock Island.

The two societies had chartered special cars for the trip, but it was decided by the railroad company that there would be sufficient accommodations with the regular equipment.

The Webster band was one of the most prominent feature of the occasion. The organization gave a street concert in Keats, much to the edification of the entire town. Regular picnic amusements and refreshments were in order.

The students returned on the midnight train, and it is reported that little sleeping was done by the other passengers. A pep meeting and parade was staged in the day coaches.

THE COLLEGE MAKES SEARCH FOR DIRECTOR OF ATHLETICS

He Must Be Man of Executive Ability —Letters Are Sent Out to Big Institutions of Country.

A search for a man who has the executive ability to direct the entire department of athletics and physical training at the Kansas State Agricultural College is now being made by Dr. H. J. Waters and the athletic board of the institution.

Fifty-five letters were sent out yesterday to directors of athletics in big educational institutions of the country, asking them if they would care to make application for the position of director of athletics at the Aggie college. It is the intention of the college authorities to secure first a man who has the executive ability to direct Aggie athletics. To this end the athletic board is willing to pay him a salary of $3,000, if necessary. "It is not essential that this man be a coach of any particular branch of athletics," said Dr. Waters. He must, however, have the executive ability."

When a director of athletics has been chosen coaches for the various branches of athletics at the college will be secured. These men will be picked with the advice of the new director of athletics. It is probable that two coaches will be selected in addition to the new director of athletics.

WORK AT HOME.

Aggie Students Urged to Make Vacation Worth While.

The home study department of the Division of extension has issued a circular letter to the students in the college, telling of the work which may be done at their homes during the summer vacation, or at other times, for college credit.

There are 27 courses listed by the department, for which college credit will be given. They are classified under the heads of mathematics, English, agriculture, education, industrial, and economics.

The work is to be done by a series of assignments, and twelve months is allowed to finish the work. The students are being urged to accomplish some of their college work during the summer, by the method mentioned.

EXPECT AN INCREASE AT '16 SUMMER SCHOOL

Indications Point to Attendance of from Six to Seven Hundred Students—535 Here Last Year.

SCHEDULES ARE OUT.

The college officials believe that there are prospects of from six to seven hundred students being present at the annual summer school, which will begin at the end of the regular spring term. Last year a total of 535 students registered for the summer work.

Inquiries and applications are coming in at present so rapidly that the number who will attend, so far as forecasts may go at this time, bids fair to go far above the 1915 attendance.

Professor E. L. Holton, head of the department of education, who is director of the summer school, has been granted a leave of absence this year. He will teach at the summer school of the University of Chicago during the summer, and will spend next year in the Teachers' College at Columbia university, New York city.

Dr. E. H. Reiser, associate professor of education at the college, will be the acting director of the session.

Registration Friday.

Registration will commence on Friday, the day following the regular college commencement. It will continue Saturday. All classes will meet Monday morning. The schedule for class work has already been printed, and is being distributed. The session will be over July 27. In order to give the necessary amount of time to the work to secure the college credit, extra long class hours in some subjects have been arranged and the work will commence at 7 o'clock in the morning instead of at 8 o'clock, as in the case during the regular college year.

Instructors to Remain.

Some of the best instructors at the college will remain to teach in the summer school. In addition to the many faculty members who are giving up a part of their vacation, specialists have been secured in their lines.

Mrs. Ann Gilchrist Strong, of the University of Cincinnati, who has had charge of the work in home economics at two previous summer sessions, will again be here to have charge of that division.

Dr. C. A. Prosser, director of the Dunwoody Institute at Minneapolis, Minn., will be at the summer school to give a special series of lectures.

Dr. Layton S. Hawkins, specialist in agricultural education of the University of the State of New York, will assist in the agricultural division.

Dr. Hawkins will also conduct a seminar in the teaching of agriculture. This is for the benefit of school superintendents, high school principals, and other administrators, as well as all instructors of agricultural subjects.

Dr. Hawkins will be assisted in this work by President Waters, Dean W. M. Jardine, the heads of the departments in the division of agriculture, and Prof. H. L. Kent, of the department of education.

TO BE PLENTY OF APPLES.

Superintendent of Institutes Returns from Inspection Trip.

The prospects for apples are good this year, according to L. C. Williams, assistant to the superintendent of farmers' institutes in the college, who has returned from Miami county, where he has been assisting the county agent, O. C. Hagan.

"Two orchards at Paola and two at Osawatomie were visited. These orchards are under the direction of the college. The third spray was applied in these orchards for the prevention of blotch, black rot, codling moth, and plum curculio," says Mr. Williams. "Bordeaux mixture was used made up of three pounds copper sulphate, four pounds of lime, two pounds lead arsenate, and 50 gallons water."

"At Baldwin in Douglas county the orchards of A. F. Baker, and Julius Smith were visited where the work in spraying was begun. In all these orchards there is a good set of fruit."

Don't forget to send the Collegian home this week.

JUDGING CLASS IN K. C.

Inspect Hereford Herd and Judge Horses and Sheep.

The advanced judging class, accompanied by C. W. McCampbell, assistant professor of animal husbandry, left at 5:50 Thursday morning for Kansas City. Thursday forenoon the class visited the sheep market. In the afternoon they put in their time judging Hereford cattle. They stayed over until Friday when they spent their time on horses. Doctor McCampbell says this was an opportunity for the animal husbandry students to work with one of the best herds of purebred Hereford herds in the country.

DEAN POTTER TO VIRGINIA

Will Speak Before Engineering Society There.

A. A. Potter, dean of engineering in the Kansas State Agricultural college, will address the Society for the Promotion of Engineering on "Occupation and Distribution of Engineering Graduates." The meeting will be at the University of Virginia June 19 to 22. Dean Potter will also present the report of the industrial committee and discuss the report of the program committee.

THETA SIGMA PHI TO BE INSTALLED HERE JUNE 8

Nine of the Signers of Original Petition Will be Taken Into Journalism Fraternity.

Theta Sigma Phi, national journalistic sorority, will be installed at the Kansas State Agricultural college on June 8. The Women's Press Club received word Tuesday that they had been granted a charter in the national organization and the setting of the date for the installation was left open for their decision.

As it will be impossible for some young ladies whose names were on the original petition to be back at this time it is likely that only nine members will be taken into membership this year. Those who will be initiated into Theta Sigma Phi June 8 are: Mrs. Ethel Strother, Mrs. Lucile Berry Wolf, Misses Edith Updegraff, Erba Kaul, Dora Otto, Hazel Beck, Nell Flynn, Eva Hostetler.

The other signers of the petition are: Mrs. Lucile Mills Zeigler of Springfield, Ohio, Misses Mary K. Williams and Lula L. Case of Topeka.

GET HIGH SALARIES

Two Aggie Grads Now Get $10,000 Per Year.

R. S. Kellogg of Chicago must now share with George W. Wildin of New Haven, Conn., the distinction of being the highest salaried graduate of the Kansas State Agricultural college. Mr. Wildin, like Mr. Kellogg, is receiving $10,000 a year.

Mr. Wildin received his degree from the college in 1892, and immediately entered engineering work, occupying a variety of subordinate positions such as fireman, locomotive engineer, and draftsman to gain a thorough knowledge of railroad work. He is now mechanical superintendent of the New York, New Haven & Hartford railway, has under his 10,000 men and is responsible for the annual expenditure of $14,000,000.

SORORITY TENNIS PROGRESSES

First Rounds in Order for the Six Preliminary Winners.

The inter-sorority tennis tournament which has been interrupted by rain and then more rain is now progressing rapidly. Tennis is the meal time subject and vacant hours, chapel periods, before breakfast, and after dinner hours are utilized for playing off the sets.

Five matches have been played off to date: Ruth Hutchings defeating Bueneta Myers, Betty Cotton over Helen Ogden, Muri Gann over Martha Webb, Irma Boerner over Carolyn Lera, and Emily Lofinck over Groeta Gramme.

One match in the preliminaries between Florence Mitchell and Alice Neiman, has not been played.

Philippine Men Back.

The Kansas State Agricultural college appointments to the Philippines in 1914 will return to the United States this coming summer at the expiration of their appointments. The men seem to be well pleased with their work and were successful but all seemed to think that they have greater opportunities in this country. It is understood that Mr. McNamara, Mr. Hoffman, and Mr. Potter will return in July or August and Mr. Doryland and Mr. Laulman will return in October.

ENGINEERS CELEBRATE THEIR ANNUAL HOLIDAY

Chapel Program, Inspection of Engineering Building, Hike and Dance on Program for Occasion.

CADET COMPANY ASSISTS.

A chapel program, a "trip on the scenic railway," a stag hike to Eureka Lake, and a dance Thursday night were the main features arranged for the celebration of the annual "Engineer's Day" at the college.

The chapel program was the first event of the day. Speakers from the students of the engineering division took the floor, and made short addresses on the work of their department.

The first speaker, R. F. Mirick, spoke for the civil engineers, O. K. Rumbel for the architects, William Paterson for the mechanicals and R. H. Oliver for the electricals. The attendance at chapel was large.

The talks took up only about half the time allotted for the chapel hour, and the remainder of the period was taken up by the ride on the scenic railway.

The engineering company of the cadet regiment had laid sections of small track over which the coal and ashes are hauled in the engineering building, nearly to the main hall. The small cars were backed up to the building, loaded with the chapel audience, and hauled by a motor truck to the engineering building, where guides were posted to show the visitors over the entire plant.

The regular work done by the students in engineering was in progress in all the departments. A special run of metal was made at the foundry, and tests were in progress on engines and in the different engineering laboratories.

In the afternoon the students in the department went to Eureka Lake, on the interurban, where a program of amusements had been prepared, to include swimming, boating, baseball and eats.

The day concluded with a dance at the gymnasium in the evening.

SENIOR MEMORIAL COMPLETED

Ornamental Gateway to Athletic Field Stands as Monument of '16.

Senior brains have designed and students, mostly seniors, have aided in the construction of the ornamental iron gate that is to be a part of the memorial placed as an entrance to the college athletic field by the class of '15. The gate is 29 feet in width, averages seven feet in height and was made in the department of shop practice under the supervision of W. W. Carlson, superintendent of the shops.

A saving of at least 30 per cent in cost has been effected by constructing the gate in the college shops, according to Professor Carlson.

Ornamental iron scroll work of the most difficult designs has been produced and the work will rival that put on by any steel works. All joints in the design have been made rigid by the use of an oxy-acetylene machine.

STUDENT RECITAL MONDAY

Fourteen Members of the Music Department Will Take Part.

Fourteen music students of the college will give a recital in the auditorium beginning at 8 o'clock Monday evening.

The students who are to take part in this program are the best from the vocal, piano and violin departments of the music division and the entertainment promises to be exceptionally good.

Each of the persons on the program will render several selections. None of the faculty members will take part.

DEAN A. A. POTTER ON PROGRAM.

Potter, dean of engineering in the Kansas State Agricultural college, will address the Society for the Promotion of Engineering Education on "Occupation and Distribution of Engineering Graduates." The meeting will be at the University of Virginia, June 19 to 22. Dean Potter will also present the report of the institutional committee and discuss the report of the program committee.

"THE TEMPEST" WRITTEN FOR OUT-OF-DOOR SCENES

Is Rarely Produced Because of the Cost of Scenery for Indoor Production—On Campus June 7.

The performance of the rarely produced "The Tempest" of Shakespeare, which the Coburn Players will give on the campus Wednesday, June 7, is one of the most notable events in the annals of this distinguished company of actors, whose appearances under the auspices of prominent universities, colleges, and other educational bodies have had remarkable results in quickening interest and appreciation in the classical drama.

"The Tempest" lends itself with especial aptitude to out-of-door production and under the direction of Mr. Charles Doucille Coburn full advantage has been taken of the added opportunity for illusion offered by scenes which are not the painted semblances of those of Prospero's isle, but the very duplicates of the places themselves. Even the magician is there to transform the audience out of itself, but in this case the magician is not Prospero, but the poet with his enchanted words.

If one looks up the "sources" of Shakespeare, one finds that he founded his works mostly on old chronicles or histories, tales and legends, but after "The Tempest" is the word "unknown." Is this not because when he came to write this last play he ever completed, to weave a marvelous tale bounded by no other thought than his own. There is even a legend, Jim thought it is, that this was his own favorite of all the wondrous things he did.

Mr. Coburn has given to the preparation of this production all the careful attention that has won for his presentations of the classic such serious attention before the most critically attentive audiences everywhere. Every actor has been selected with an eye to special abilities, so every part is taken in a manner that tends to perfect balance and smoothness of performance—since the productions by the Coburn Players.

TREES ON THE CAMPUS.

Greater Variety Than Anywhere else in the State.

Everyone appreciates and admires the beauty of the K. S. A. C. campus but there are few students, who realize that there are more varieties of trees upon it than on any similar area in Kansas.

Every native variety of this community is growing upon the campus, besides many foreign trees, that have been brought in from time to time, by people who have had charge of the campus. Professor Gale who had much to do with laying out the campus was a great lover of evergreens, consequently there is a large number of red cedars, spruce, firs, larch and maiden hair. All are foreigners to this state but the red cedar.

In addition to these, many of the broad leaf trees from foreign countries are growing upon the campus. Some of these are the English hickory, hawthorn, white birch, Norway maple, Tartarian maple, English elm, Russian wild olive, Lombardy poplar, white cottonwood, and German linden.

There are also other American trees on the campus, that are not native to this state, as the yellow wood, polonia, and the tall cypress.

The athletes who have earned their letters on the track team are: Captain Frizzell, Teeter, Seiber, Holroyd, Wilder, Bernard, Dordill, Enlow, Schaper, Bixby, Turner, Granfield, Essick, Welmer, and Keys.

Athletic Director Bender has sent out notices to this year's baseball and track men calling a meeting for the purpose of electing captains for the coming year. The meeting is to be held Wednesday at 5 o'clock in Mr. Bender's office.

SENIOR MEN MEET.

Special Gathering Held at the Y. M. C. A. Thursday Night.

A special meeting for men of the senior class of the college, was held at the Y. M. C. A. Thursday night at 7 o'clock. Invitations to the meeting were sent out through the college postoffice, to all the men of the class. A large number responded.

The purpose of the meeting was to give an opportunity to the senior men to talk over informally, the religious and moral problems of college life, as they have seen them.

A special meeting for seniors is to be held at the First Methodist church Sunday night. A special sermon by Dr. J. M. McClelland, pastor of the church, special music, and an informal reception by the Epworth League, are to be features of the evening.

ANOTHER AGGIE MAKES $10,000.

R. S. Kellogg Must Share Distinction of Being Highest Salaried Grad.

R. S. Kellogg of Chicago must now share with George W. Wildin of New Haven, Conn., the distinction of being the highest salaried graduate of the Kansas State Agricultural college. Mr. Wildin, like Mr. Kellogg, is receiving $10,000 a year.

Mr. Wildin received his degree from the college in 1892, and immediately entered engineering work, occupying a variety of subordinate positions such as fireman, locomotive engineer, and draftsman to gain a thorough knowledge of railroad work. He is now mechanical superintendent of the New York, New Haven & Hartford railway, has under him 10,000 men and is responsible for the annual expenditure of $14,000,000.

Miss Judith Briggs who has been in charge of the Lazarus tea room at Columbus, Ohio, arrived here Friday. Miss Briggs is on her way to her home at Hope, Arkansas, after several brief visits in Chicago, St. Louis, and Kansas City.

The farm management class spent last Monday inspecting and scoring farms at Wamego and Louisville. At Louisville the young men were entertained with a basket dinner in the park by the young ladies of the town.

AGGIES DROP BOTH GAMES TO LAWRENCE JAYHAWKERS

First Game Went Ten Innings With Hodgson Working Like a War Horse for Eight Periods—Fielding Was Great.

FIRST, 4-3; SECOND, 10-4.

Inability to hit the ball and that same old tendency to bobble in the field cost the Aggies both games with the University at Lawrence on Wednesday and Thursday of this week. The first game, developed into a pitcher's battle between "Red" Craig and Hodgson and K. U. nosed the Aggies out in the tenth inning winning by the score of 4 to 3. The second game went to K. U. by the score of 10 to 4. Weak hitting and fielding on the part of the Aggies and the heavy hitting of the Lawrence aggregation tells the tale of this game.

First Game—"Red" Craig was right all the way and only one Aggie was able to hit safely during the game. Newton got the lone hit of the Aggies during the game. Even at that the Aggie boys played a good brand of ball for it took the Jayhawkers an extra inning to win out. Hodgson pitched air-tight ball until the ninth inning. He only allowed four safe hits up to that inning, but weakened in the ninth and tenth innings and allowed five more safe ones. In the last half of the tenth "Red" Craig drove in the winning run.

The Score: R. H. E. Aggies 000 001 020 0—3 1 3 K. U. 002 010 000 1—4 9 3 Batteries—Aggies: Hodgson and Sullivan; K. U.: Craig and L. Weltmer.

Second Game—Ferrier started the game for the Aggies, but was jerked after the K. U. bunch had secured a total of nine hits and six runs off his delivery. Hewey relieved Ferrier in the fifth and allowed four hits and four scores were made during his regime. The Aggies were unable to hit with any great amount of success and the Jayhawkers had on their hitting clothes. Errors on the Aggies infield allowed the Lawrence team to increase their lead. K. U. used two pitchers, Fisher and Craig.

The Score: R. H. E. Aggies 010 020 000 0—3 4 9 K. U. 103 020 004 8—10 14 4 Batteries—Aggies: Ferrier, Hewey, and Sullivan; K. U.: Fisher, Craig and L. Weltmer.

BRILLIANT SPEECHES MADE.

Extemporaneous Tryouts Very Successful the Past Week.

An unusually brilliant set of speeches marked the semi-final round in the extemporaneous speaking tryouts, this past week. Twenty students were in competition for the nine final positions. All fought hard and the rankings were close.

R. E. McCarragh, Walter Gillespie, and Lois Witham were the winners in their respective divisions. Those also qualifying were L. A. Dubbs and Rose Bentley; A. L. Meyers and Clyde Fisher; Josie Griffith and A. C. Hancock. The nine named are the select speakers of this term's class. From these will be selected three winners, first, second, and third.

The final contest will be held early during the week of final examinations. There will be nine speeches, and each speech will be six minutes long. The speakers are allowed to choose their own subjects. No speech will be memorized.

The winner of last winter's similar contest was "Jimmie McGarragh, with H. B. Dudley second and Velma Carson third.

JUNE 3, 1916.

How are you going to spend your vacation? Are you going to just stick around home doing nothing in particular and everyone else in the family in general, or are you going to get out and do something on your own account? It is the opinion of many students that they have earned three months of doing nothing after they have put in nine months at college. Every student has earned a vacation but that vacation may be taken in many different ways. It does not mean that the student should do absolutely nothing but that the student should have a change of work. If the student does nothing but "spend the summer" then he is dissatisfied when he has to start back to work at college again in the fall. Working through the summer means that the student will be more glad when it is time to start back to school again and so will do much better work than would be the case if he was going from doing nothing to working at college.

Ancient Farming

Herodotus, in the year 450 B. C., said that good cultivation yielded two-hundredfold in the Valley of the Euphrates. Ever in that land of Eden, poor cultivation yielded but fiftyfold.

In 1898, the average Wheat yield per acre in New York State was 21.2 bushels; in 1907, 17.3 bushels per acre; in 1912, but 16 bushels. This does not speak very highly for our Fertilizers.

Average American yield per acre of Agricultural Produce is at present about Eleven Dollars. European yields are more than double.

Isn't it time for our farmers to get down to business methods? Home Mixed Fertilizers will help.

DARN TETAOIN ETAOIN XX Darn the Weather!

The hotter grows the weather, the duller grows my brain
I pray for cooler evenings, I long for gentle rain.
When I study.

I yield to the woodland's calling, and plan a gorgeous time
It frosts and rains and blows then, like the veriest Arctic clime.
When I hike.

Senior—"No, who's that?"
Soph.—"Jack ———, a third lieutenant."
Senior—"Huh! I didn't think he would ever get to be a national problem."

A very enthusiastic student of bacteriology recently said that there was only one man that he would feel any real deep gratification in meeting in that lower region and that man his instructor in this branch of the sciences. He has it doped that in such a sterile media, the prof would have nothing on him.

Doctor Ackert—"I have an embryo in my mind." Please doctor, just what kind?

Did you ever notice that the longer a political party is out of office the more Puritan its members become? The more reforms they have to put into action. Could that possibly account for the present "spells" of some Bull Moose members. They have never been in office so must be even more Puritan than some others.

Professor Iles—"If the government of territory taken by the United States during a war was unconstitutional, what would be the result?"

THE KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN.

VOLUME 22. NUMBER 70.

KANSAS STATE AGRICULTURAL COLLEGE, MANHATTAN, WEDNESDAY, JUNE 7, 1916.

PRICE FIVE CENTS.

MANHATTAN'S GREATEST ASSET IS THE COLLEGE

City Commercial Club Would Advise K. S. A. C. and Bring More Students and Parents to Manhattan.

SPEND $100 ON ADVERTISING

Can 100 new students be secured for the college next year through the use of judicious advertising? The Manhattan Commercial club believes that that number can be brought here above the natural increase for next year and will probably appropriate at least $100 Thursday night to push the campaign.

Two uses will be made of the money, according to the plans of C. G. Lewis, secretary of the club. An advertising campaign of America setting forth the advantages of the Kansas State Agricultural college and Manhattan and a personal campaign, involving writing a special letter to the graduates of all Kansas high schools and also to all persons who ask for information from the college registrar, would be kept up from the offices of the club's secretary.

Literature descriptive of the college and the town would also be sent to the parents of the prospective student in an effort to bring more families to the town. Views of the college, town and surrounding country would be incorporated in the small booklet to be sent the student.

"One hundred new students would spend an average of $500 a year or $50,000 and five hundred students would spend $250,000," says Secretary Lewis, in speaking of the financial benefit to the town's merchants.

"We cannot conceive of a possible industry for Manhattan that would more equally distribute its profits to every individual than the college and its students. Take the students from Manhattan and we would have a population less than Wamego."

SENIORS ARE GOING FINE.

Practice for Play Is Good and Ticket Sale Is Fine.

Practice for the senior play to be given Tuesday evening in the auditorium is progressing in fine shape and promise an exceptional production of "The Professor's Love Story."

Many tickets for the production have been purchased and reservations will probably be made Monday. Any organization desiring more than six reservations may get them made at once if they will see Don Jordan who is handling that end of the proposition.

ANOTHER DEGREE FROM HIS ALMA MATER TO DR. WATERS

The Noted Agricultural Worker Doctor of Law from Missouri University.

Dr. Henry Jackson Waters, president of the Kansas State Agricultural college, was honored with another degree Thursday morning. It is the degree of doctor of laws and came from his own alma mater, the University of Missouri.

After the conferring of the degree, Doctor Waters made a brief talk in which he emphasized the duty of alumni to the institution from which they had been graduated. The program at Columbia included the commencement exercises with the conferring of degrees and the address to the graduating class by Dr. A. Ross Hill, president of the university, and the class day exercises of the Class of 1916.

Doctor Waters received his first degree, that of bachelor of science of agriculture, from the University of Missouri just 30 years ago. He later studied in the universities of Leipzig and Zurich. He taught agriculture in several leading institutions and held a number of important positions in Missouri, being successively assistant secretary of the state board of agriculture, assistant in the experiment station, and director of the experiment station. He has been president of prominent organizations including the Missouri State Board of Farming congress, the Kansas State Teachers' association, and the American Society for the Promotion of Agricultural Science.

Doctor Waters has been president of the Kansas State Agricultural college since 1909. In 1913 he received the honorary degree of doctor of laws from the New Hampshire State college.

SEMI-FINALS FOR SORORITIES.

Rain Has Interrupted Playing But Much Interest Is Shown.

The inter-sorority tennis tournament, between rains, has reached the stage of semi-finals. Florence Mitchell will play Ruth Hutchings and Elizabeth Cotton will play Irma Boerner. The winners of these two sets will play the finals which determine the championship. The matches have aroused great interest and each contestant usually has her crowd of rooters to keep up the excitement.

ALPHA ZETA INITIATES.

Nine Men Become Members of Agricultural Fraternity.

The Alpha Zeta honorary agricultural fraternity held its eighth annual initiation Monday evening. The initiates were: Dr. E. C. Miller, Paul Findley, C. R. Adamson, C. W. Mullin, O. T. Bonnet, C. R. Enlow, W. A. Gillespie, D. D. Hughes, and L. M. Mason.

Formal initiation was held in the Alpha Zeta room in Anderson hall at 8:30 p. m., after which a banquet was served to the faculty and active members of the chapter at the Congregational church. Professor W. A. Lippincott acted as toastmaster. Those responding to toasts were: President H. J. Waters, H. J. Bower, Waldo Heppie, Prof. W. A. Cocheil, Prof. J. B. Fitch, and A. J. Mangelsdorf.

PRIZE IN STORY CONTEST GOES TO JAMES B. ANGLE

Freshman in Agriculture Gets Gold Medal as Winner in Quill Club Contest.

In the Quill Club short story contest just closed, James B. Angle, freshman in agriculture, of Courtland, received first honors. The subject of the story written by Mr. Angle was, "The Inevitable," and showed much ability and work on the part of the writer. A gold medal will be given to the winner of first place.

"The Kaffir Girl of the Vaal," by Arthur Boyer, and "The Lost Slipper," written by Miss Stella Barnum, tied for second place. Although it was impossible for the judges to decide which of these productions should be placed ahead of the other it was agreed that both writers deserve much honor for their respective productions.

L. R. Hiatt won third honors. The subject of the story by Mr. Hiatt was, "A Game of Singles."

Out of the ten stories submitted to the judges only two were by persons who are not already members of the Quill club. These two stories were by Mr. Angle and Miss Barnum, one winning first honors and the other tying for second.

DEBATERS FOR 1916-17 CHOSEN

Fourteen Men and Twelve Girls Are Selected for Next Year.

Fourteen men and twelve girls were selected for the debate squads for the collegiate year 1916-17 during the debate tryouts which were held Friday, Saturday and Monday afternoons. Nearly fifty persons tried out for places.

Following are the names of the persons who made places. The names are arranged in alphabetical order: Men: A. W. Boyer, Merle Converse, L. A. Dubbs, W. W. Fetrow, G. C. Gillespie, W. A. Gillespie, L. Hamill, L. R. Hiatt, R. E. McGarrough, H. A. Moore, T. R. Pharr, O. Steanson. Alternates, R. L. Foster, C. W. Howard. Women: Lois Bellomy, Hazel Crabb, Hazel Merillat, Laura Mueller, Fern Roderick, Jewell Sappelfield, Donna Faye Wilson, Louise Ziller. Alternates, Vilona Cutler, Marie Johnson, Anna Neer, Erba Kavill.

Much interest was shown in the tryouts and it is stated that the debate coaches are pleased with the results. Dr. J. R. MacArthur, Don L. Eurt and Dr. J. G. Emerson judged the tryouts. The debates for the coming year will be under the supervision of these men.

Double "K" people are not required to try out. Those who have double "K's" at present and who will probably debate next year are: Men: J. B. Sweet and Floyd Hawkins. Women: Madge Thompson, Stella Gould, Mary Dakin, Rose Baker and Mae Sweet.

Farm Management Survey.

W. E. Grimes, assistant professor of agronomy, and P. E. McNall, farm management specialist in the division of extension, will begin the second farm management survey of Cowley county in the early part of July. This survey will be a repetition of the work that was done by them last year.

SECOND ANNUAL JAYHAWKER FAIR WEDNESDAY, JUNE 14

Exhibitions of Fine Stock, Catching the Greased Pigs—Wonderful Side Shows and Judging Contests on Program.

MORE EXTENSIVE THAN BEFORE.

Big plans are being laid for the second annual Jayhawker Fair to take place Wednesday afternoon of Commencement Week. Those who attended the first fair will be looking forward to the occasion for there never was such a fair at K. S. A. C. as that pulled off by the Saddle and Siroin Club last year. The grounds will be located at the north end of the campus centering around the big stone animal husbandry barn.

The fair this year promises to be a hummer with all sorts of novel features. There will be the usual stock judging exhibition and display of choice specimens from the college herds and flocks. A parade of livestock that promises to outdo that of the semi-centennial celebration will open the fair.

There will be the big tent with its accompanying side shows and several startling features are promised. Ambitious chasers of the greased pig are earned to get in practice for Bob Simpson will not be in it with the man who can get a strangle hold on the slippery squeal which will be released in the pasture opposite the stone barn.

This fair will afford an exceptional opportunity to see the college stock at its best and enjoy the afternoon among the side shows and free exhibitions and races.

THE PAST AND FUTURE.

Today sees the last issue of the Kansas State Collegian put out by the present staff. The last issue of the year, June 10, will be edited by the staff which is to serve next year.

While we cannot say that editing this sheet for the past eight months has always been a pleasure we will say that it has often been most amusing and at all times instructive—both in regard to newspaper work and as an insight into human nature.

We know that we have printed some stories that would have much better been dumped into the waste basket and on the other hand we have missed some of the best stories that happened. At all times though it has been our intention to print the clean news—the kind that every one likes to read and which does harm to no one at all. When we took the editor's chair it was one of our firm resolves that we stay just as far away from criticizing other people as we could. That resolution was made so good that we believe it was overdone. It helps us all to know our faults if they are pointed out in the right manner and a little more of the truth sometimes would have been better for all concerned.

In many ways we have failed and in many others we have been fairly successful. Sometimes we have been mighty ashamed of the old sheet and at other times it looked pretty good. We have been criticised by some people who know just about as much about running a paper as we do about what heaven will be like to the lucky ones. We have listened to them when we had nothing else to do. But with patience and respect we have listened profitably to the remarks of persons who know more about the newspaper business than we will likely ever know and we thank these persons for the help they willingly gave.

Anyway we have really been glad to be at the top of the "Mast Head" on the editorial page for the past year and we look toward the coming year with great hopes for K. S. A. C. and every one connected with the institution. We have seen the great progress the school has made in the past and it is easy to forecast that the growth in the future will be even greater.

The enrollment in Kansas State this year has been greater than ever before and all indications point to a still larger one for 1916-1917. Hundreds of young people from all parts of the country are looking to K. S. A. C. as their Alma Mater and all departments of the school are surging forward to meet these young men and women.

While the college in general is growing in every way the Collegian will grow with it. No more is the paper handicapped by the old debt it has been under for several years and may now advance to the position of the best college papers in the country.

KANSAS GIRL WILL ASSIST.

Miss Mary Wright of State Normal to Work in Extension Department.

Miss Mary Wright, a graduate of the Kansas State Normal school, has been appointed specialist in domestic art in the division of extension, Kansas State Agricultural college, to assist in the extension school work in home economics throughout the state. She will take up her new duties September 1.

Since completing her work in the normal school, Miss Wright has taught one year in the Boys' Industrial school at Topeka, one year in the public schools of Greeley, Colo., and one year in the high school of Tacoma, Wash. She also has studied in the American College of Dressmaking and Tailoring in Kansas City and has taken a course in millinery, textiles, and art needlework at Stout institute, Menomonee, Wis. During the year 1914-1915 she studied designing and costume drawing in the University of California.

Don't forget to send the Collegian some this week.

Thirty-Five Coeds Take Part in Exhibition in Women's Swimming Pool Friday.

A swimming carnival, participated in by the best swimmers of the season was held Friday evening in the girls' gymnasium, swimming up and exhibiting the term's work.

There was expert diving, forward, backward, and sideways, and all kinds of fancy swimming. The diving was so spectacular in fact that one small girl almost in convulsions, had to be hurried out. She afterwards remarked that if the girls wanted to kill themselves she didn't care to watch them.

The two features of the carnival were the presentation of "solid comfort"—swimming on the back, holding an open parasol in one hand and manipulating a fan with the other—and a candle relay race. The teams consisted of four members, each being supposed to finish the race with the candle still burning.

Only the best swimmers took part in the carnival. These are 35 girls who have won red caps by good swimming.

One hundred co-eds have been enrolled in the swimming classes under the instruction of Miss Ethel Loring and Miss Blanche Enyart this term.

About seventy-five women of the faculty and other friends of the contestants attended the entertainment Friday.

QUILL CLUB INITIATES.

Six Members Are Taken Into Organization of Writers.

The Quill club held initiation for six new members at 8 o'clock Monday evening in Kedzie Hall. The initiation formalities was the first business of the evening. Chancellor H. W. Snell impressed the new members with their duties and obligations to the club in a short talk, after which the initiates presented the program of the evening.

The program was highly appreciated by the older members who pronounced it one of the best programs that they had had this year. Each of the productions was original. Short Story, "Poppin' Pop Corn"—Miss Erva Kaull. Essay, "Time"—Mr. Rex Criswell. Poem, "The Lonesome Old Pussy Cat"—Miss Velma Carson. Paper, "The Passing of the Bonanza Farmer"—Mr. Leo C. Moser. Stunt, "Editorial Rooms of the Manhattan Truth Teller"—Miss Edith Updegraff and Miss Erwin McLean. After the program, a social half hour was spent over the luncheon, which had been prepared by the ladies of the club.

W. S. Acton, '14, and Miss Nora Smith of Clyde, were married recently in Concordia. They are now in North Dakota where Mr. Acton is managing a large ranch.

Dr. William A. Lewis, president of the Hays Normal school, spent Saturday and Sunday in Manhattan visiting his brother-in-law, J. Robert Dawson, a junior in dairy husbandry.

COBURN ARTISTS PLAY IN AUDITORIUM TODAY

Because of Recent Rains "The Rivals" and "The Tempest" Will Be Played Inside—Are Wonderful Productions.

DRILL TO BE DISMISSED.

In order that the cadets of the college will be able to attend the Shakespearean performance by the Coburn players Wednesday afternoon the hour for the play has been changed from 2:30 to 4 o'clock. Cadets will be excused from drill to attend the performance.

The rain Monday has made the campus so soft that the lycium committee announced Tuesday that the plays would have to be given indoors. Both the afternoon and the evening performances will be given in the college auditorium. Special woodland scenes will be used on the stage. "The Rivals" will be staged in the afternoon and the "Tempest" in the evening.

Tickets can be reserved at the Palace drug store down town and at the Co-op store in Aggieville.

The Coburn Players are acknowledged to be the leading interpreters of classic drama in America. Their distinction has been won by their sincere and steady aim toward artistic success in every detail of performance throughout a career which has included appearances under the auspices of almost every educational institution of importance in the United States.

Perhaps the most striking feature of the Coburn Players is the clearness of diction for which they are famed. Not only are the actors selected for their acting ability but great attention is given to their pronunciation and speaking tones.

"The Tempest" which is to be produced in the evening is one of Shakespeare's most wonderful productions and when played by such a personae as the one to be seen in the auditorium today is marvelous. While the play is especially adapted to be played in natural surroundings the special preparation which has been made in the auditorium means that little will be detracted from the performance because of its being played indoors.

The Seaboard and Blade, a military society, hiked to Rocky Ford Saturday on an all-night hike. Captain L. H. Bixby and 1st. Lt. Clode Keller were initiated into the organization.

Howard Hoffman and George Keel drove to Manhattan yesterday in the Hoffman motor car and visited at the Delta Tau Delta fraternity house. *

REPORTERS.
S. C. Sherwood B. Q. Shields.
B. B. Brewer H. B. Dudley
Floyd Hawkins Elizabeth Wadley

JUNE 7, 1916.

THE EXPLANATION.

Henrietta Rathbone Palmer asks, in the columns of the Writer, "Why are typographical errors and gross mistakes in English as common now in our periodicals as they were rare two decades ago?"

We do not profess to know anything about the increase in, typographical errors, if there has been one, but perhaps we can answer the other part of the question. Editors and proof readers have been learning how much wisdom there is in quaint Josh Billings' observation when he remarked: "I would rather not know so much than to know so many things that ain't so." The old-time editor and proof reader had a tremendous knowledge of things that were not so. They thought that there was just one right way of writing the English language, and that the one right way of writing it was their way. The brilliant Charles A. Dana suffered from that kind of hallucination. But editors and proof readers who are up to date know that there is no one right way of writing the language, and that probably there never will be.

It is rather amusing to observe that the author of the question in the Writer finds fault with the English of several recent English language uplifters. For example, Florence Finch Kelley recently had an article in The Bookman condemning practically all of our modern writers for their mistakes, but Henrietta Rathbone Palmer discovers that her literary sister also makes them. That kind of discovery has been often made, and it has always played havoc with a writer's nerves. Just after you have succeeded in showing how badly everybody else writes, it is naturally shocking to have somebody come around to prove that you are not impeccable yourself.

We heard of a man once—we believe he was a discovery of the late Professor Lounsbury—who was able to derive no benefit from his reading of the Bible, for he had found there, in his conceit, a terrible error in grammar. He could not enjoy the poetry, nor the philosophy, nor the history, nor anything else, because of that grammar-blasting mistake. At last, unable to control himself any longer, he wrote to a great English scholar to tell him all about the grammatical sin he had found in his Biblical reading. The great scholar replied that he was making much ado about nothing, as the passage was excellent English. It is not likely, however, that the scholar's reply proved convincing, for when an ignorant thinks that he has made a discovery warranted to confound the scholar, he hugs it with an affection only equalled by the affection of a mother for the babe in her arms.—Hochester (N. Y.) Herald.

Brown-Neerman.

Miss Ena Bess Brown, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. G. Brown of this city, and Mr. Claude F. Neerman of Tulsa, Oklahoma, were married Thursday morning at the bride's home on West Humboldt street in the presence of relatives and the more intimate friends of the young couple. Preceding the ceremony Miss Ruth Brown played "To Spring" by Grieg, and Miss Myrtle Broberg sang, "At Dawning" by Cadman.

The bride and groom were unattended. The ring ceremony was used, the Reverend J. B. McClelland of the First Methodist church officiating. The bride wore a simple gown of white net and satin and carried an arm bouquet of roses and valley lilies.

Following the ceremony an elaborate breakfast was served, the color scheme of pink and white being carried out in the decorations and menu.

Mr. and Mrs. Neerman left on the noon train for a short eastern trip after which they will be at home to their friends in Tulsa, Oklahoma.

Mrs. Neerman is a very popular young woman and has many friends in Manhattan. She is a graduate of the Kansas State Agricultural college with the class of 1915. Mr. Neerman graduated in 1913. He was a member of the Pi Kappa Alpha fraternity.

The out-of-town guests at the wedding were Miss Catherine Neerman of Tulsa, Oklahoma, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Brown and Dr. Charles Brown of Herington, Mr. C. M. Scott of Kansas City, and Mrs. W. L. Blizzard of Stillwater, Oklahoma.

Alpha Delta Pi Farewell.

The Alpha Delta Pi sorority gave a dancing party Saturday evening in Harrison hall in honor of the senior members of the sorority. Banks of daisies and ferns were used in the hall and drop lights in daisy baskets lighted the rooms. The parlors were transformed into a rustic garden by means of shrubs, ferns, and potted plants. Bird houses were placed about the rooms and birds perched on the trees and flowers. Punch was served throughout the evening from an old oaken bucket pulled from an old fashioned log well. A gateway of rough wood was placed in the doorway of the parlors. Several favor dances were given. In the nut dance, the boys took the nuts from a squirrel nest, finding their partner's name inside the nut. For the Fraternity Bouquet dance the girls were dressed in paper dresses of all colors and were masked. They each carried a bouquet of sweetpeas tied with the fraternity colors of their partner. Following the dance supper was served in the tea room. Blue candles in crystal holders tied with blue tulle decorated the tables.

Out-of-town guests for the party were: Miss Onal Wishard, of Emporia, Miss Ida Bryan of Fairbury, Nebraska, Miss Marvel Rains of Perry, Miss Peg Howard of Kansas City, Mo., and Mr. Harry Kaull of Glen Elder.

Engagement Announcements.

Miss Mae Skinner and Mrs. Frederick Elliott entertained Thursday afternoon at the home of Miss Skinner with a very pretty announcement luncheon for Misses Emma and Wilma Kammeyer. The guests were the members of the Tusitalla club of which Miss Wilma Kammeyer is a member and the Embroidery club to which Miss Emma Kammeyer belongs. The Skinner home was very attractive in decorations of daisies and peonies. In the dining room the tables held wicker baskets of daisies. Place cards were sly cupids swinging in hammocks. Between the sandwiches, which were tied with yellow ribbon were found the names of Miss Emma Kammeyer and Mr. Rae Hull of California, and Miss Wilma Kammeyer and Mr. G. E. Thompson of Manhattan.

The date set for the double wedding is June 18. The other guests besides the members of the two clubs were Mrs. J. E. Kammeyer, Mrs. E. T. Skinner, Mrs. Ed Apitz, Mrs. M. D. Collins, Mrs. McConnell, Miss Gale Tatman, Miss Helen Rannels, Miss Mildred Huse and Miss Cockrell.

Week-End Guests.

The Pi Beta Phi fraternity entertained last week-end for several house guests. Miss Mary Churchward of Wichita arrived Friday. Miss Churchward graduated with the class of '15 and has been teaching in the Wichita schools. Miss Judith Briggs of Columbus, Ohio, also arrived Friday to spend several weeks. Miss Briggs has been with Miss Love in the Lazarus tea room at Columbus for the past year and is on her way to Hope, Ark. Miss Carol Thrall of Topeka was a guest at the Beta house dance Friday. Miss Helen Robinson of Lawrence will visit her sister, Miss Mildred Robinson.

For Mrs. Holton.

Mrs. J. E. Taylor, 1415 Leavenworth street, gave a card party Wednesday afternoon, the honor guest being Mrs. E. L. Holton, who will soon leave for Chicago and New York City where Professor Holton will teach for a year. The rooms of the Taylor home were attractively decorated with pink roses and blue bachelor buttons. Tiny pink rose baskets filled with nuts were used at the table and candles covered with pink rose shades lighted the room. Dainty refreshments were served at six tables with a group of four at each table.

Campus Club.

The Campus club met Thursday evening with Miss Margaret Doonan at her home, 1025 Blumont avenue. Sixteen members were present. After a short business session and installation of officers the evening was spent socially. Light refreshments were served by the hostess, assisted by Misses Grace and Carrie Shute. The following officers were installed: Miss Florence Whipple, president; Miss Ruth Cooley, vice president; Miss Caroline Brainard, treasurer; Miss Elva Phillips, secretary; Miss Wilma Whitmore, marshal.

For the Senior Girls.

Mrs. F. A. McConnell, chaperone of the Pi Beta Phi sorority, gave a buffet supper Friday evening for the senior girls. Miss Virginia Mende of Topeka, Miss Mary Churchward of Wichita, and Miss Helen Halm were out-of-town guests. The dining room looked pretty, being decorated with daisies and lighted with blue shaded candles.

The Christians to Wichita.

Dr. and Mrs. R. V. Christian left Saturday for Wichita where Dr. Christian will have charge of a serum plant. Dr. Christian was formerly superintendent of the serum plant at the college. The Christians have lived here for the past year and have a wide circle of friends who will regret their going away.

Farewell Dance.

The Pi Kappa Alpha fraternity will give its farewell dance Wednesday evening, June 14, in Harrison hall. A number of alumni members and out-of-town guests are expected for the party.

NOSES AND NOSES.

The nose is such a funny sort Of contour on the face, And many different kinds are found Among the Human race.

Noses that are long and thin, And noses hooked and jointed, And some are Heve'n uptugged, And others earthward pointed.

There's the nose that's broad and flat, And one that had a pimple; Perhaps there is a nose somewhere, That even has a dimple.

Noses crooked and noses straight, And noses big and rosy; But the nose that everybody knows, Is the nose that's long and nosy. —Found.

Journalism Student: "Just what should an editor do when a two hundred pound man comes into the office with blood in his eye and asks that a correction be made on the front page under a top head?"

Journalism Professor: "Run like hell!"

Journalism Student: "When I get to be the editor of my own sheet, would it not be highly commendable to take up the fight for the down trodden laborer against capital?"

Journalism Professor: "You won't have time. You'll be too busy getting money to take your patent insides out of the express office."

Lucy: "They say people with opposite characteristics make the happiest marriages."

Cholly: "Yes, that's why I'm looking for a girl with money."

Excitement over the latest developments of the European war has begun to subside; Villa seems to have gone into camp and is showing no signs of life in Mexico; T. R. seems to be pursuing a watchful waiting policy just at present; skirts and shoe leather remain just about on a par. Something is bound to break loose pretty soon, but we wonder which.

THE COLLEGE ANNUAL MAKES DEBUT ON CAMPUS TUESDAY

The 1916 Royal Purple Is the Utmost in High Quality Printing and Engraving.

Royal Purple Volume VIII, the college annual, made its appearance on the campus Tuesday and caused no little stir among the lucky ones who were able to secure copies from the limited supply that arrived in the first shipment.

The annual easily is the best year book put out by a senior class at the college. Not only is the printing and engraving of the best but the book is artistically arranged and is a credit to the college and its editors.

The 1916 Royal Purple is divided into eight sections. These are: Campus views, college year, classes, beauties, athletics, student activities, organizations and college life. The section, college year, is a unique feature. It shows by pictures the round of the college year. The opening picture is that of the main gate of the college, followed by a picture of students arriving in Manhattan. The last picture of this section is that of a railroad track leaving Manhattan.

The annual is dedicated to the state of Kansas. A part of the dedication are the write-ups of eight of the better cities of Kansas with a photograph showing some part of each. The eight cities which are honored by being thus mentioned in the annual are: Kansas City, Topeka, Wichita, Dodge City, Coffeyville, Leavenworth, Winfield and Manhattan.

The annual contains photographs of Governor Arthur Capper, Dr. H. J. Waters. Photographs of the members of the board of administration and the deans of the college divisions are included in the book.

The annual contains 450 pages. Fifteen hundred were printed.

W. C. Calvert is the business manager of the annual and Price H. Wheeler, editor.

THE KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN.

VOLUME 22. NUMBER 71.

KANSAS STATE AGRICULTURAL COLLEGE, MANHATTAN, SATURDAY, JUNE 10, 1916.

PRICE FIVE CENTS.

COLLEGE ENTERTAINED CATTLEMEN YESTERDAY

Two Sessions Were Featured by Strong Papers and Explanations by Experts of Results of Feeding Experiments.

CAME BY MOTOR CAR AND TRAIN

Nearly 500 cattlemen from all parts of the state were the guests of the college yesterday attending the sessions of the Fourth Annual Cattlemen's convention. A program of interest to stockmen and breeders, together with visits to the college herds and experiments served to make the day an unusual success.

The cattlemen began to arrive by motor car and train yesterday morning and when the morning session opened in the old chapel of Anderson hall at 9:30 o'clock, more than 300 visitors were present. Many of the cattlemen brought their families with them in their motor cars. More than 50 cars were parked around Anderson hall yesterday morning while the morning session was being held.

Dr. H. J. Waters presided at the morning session. Dr. W. M. Jardine, dean of the division of agriculture, opened the program with a paper on "Progress in Pasture Improvement." This was followed by papers on "A New Method of Controlling Blackleg" by Dr. F. S. Schoenleber and Dr. O. M. Franklin of the veterinary department of the college. The morning session closed with a paper by L. B. Call, professor of agronomy, on "Experimental Work With Crops and Soils." Some of the papers were illustrated with lantern slides.

Between the hours of 11 and 12:15 o'clock the visiting stockmen were taken on an inspection trip of the experimental farm. This farm includes 320 acres, all of it under cultivation and being used for crop experiments. The visitors were taken from the experimental farm directly to the livestock pavilion where they were served lunch by the Saddle and Sirolo club of the college. Inspection of the college show steers followed the lunch.

The afternoon session was called to order in the old chapel at 1:30 o'clock. The opening paper was read by F. D. Ransom, president of the Union Stock Yards National bank of Wichita. The subject of the paper was, "Financing the Cattlemen." Dr. C. F. Curtiss, dean of agriculture and director of the experiment station, Iowa State college, on "The Influence of Purebred Livestock on the Cattle Feeding Industry."

The meeting closed with an explanation of the results of the feeding experiments that have been carried on by the college this winter and spring. W. A. Cochel, head of the department of animal husbandry, and L. B. Mann explained the experiments and their results. The experiments were carried on for the purpose of comparing corn and kafir for beef production. One hundred high grade Hereford calves were used for the experiment, which was carried on for 166 days, yesterday being the closing day. A complete report of the methods of feeding, the amount and cost of feeds and grains, the value of the cattle and profits secured from the different rations were presented.

The barns and feed lots were open to the visiting stockmen during the day and it is estimated that approximately 500 took the opportunity of inspecting the cattle, horses, sheep and hogs maintained by the animal husbandry department. The dairy herd of 150 cattle, the poultry plant and the experimental calves in the feed lots also were visited.

MISS BLANCHE ENYART RESIGNS.

Women's Physical Training Director Will Not Be Here Next Year.

Miss Blanche Enyart has resigned her position in the athletic department of the college. She has been in charge of the women's physical training department. Miss Enyart will be married this summer.

The resignation of Miss Enyart leaves but one of the present members of the athletic department who will be back next year. All the other members of the department have resigned.

Don't forget to send the Collegian name this week.

ELECT LUEKER PRESIDENT.

Will Have Charge of Agricultural School in Arkansas.

It is seldom that the Kansas State Agricultural college sends out a man to such a high position as that to which C. G. Lueker has been called. Out of a large number of applicants, the board of regents of the Fifth District Agricultural school of Russellville, Ark., selected Mr. Lueker for their president for the ensuing year.

Mr. Lueker came to this institution last year as a graduate from the Arkansas university. He has wide teaching experience having taught in schools in Texas, Missouri and Tennessee. He has also filled the positions of assistant in Germanic languages at the University of Missouri and instructor in German in the University of the South.

Mr. Lueker will graduate in the agronomy course here next week and is considered one of the strongest men the college has enrolled. It is expected that he will measure up in every way to the responsible position to which he has been elected.

DAN CUPID HAS BEEN ACTIVE AMONG FACULTY

Troublesome Sprite Has Been Playing an Active Game of Hearts With Instructors During Past Year.

There aches in this world a small but great creature which entices men and women into bondage. This creature's ways are more subtle than man's eyes or skill can behold or measure. Cupid is the name of this little monster which has been more victorious at the Kansas State Agricultural college than have been the contesting armies on the battlefields of Europe.

During the past college year fourteen members of the faculty have been prostrated by Sir Dan. These uncombated victories have invited the constant attack of this Knight of Hearts upon this institution, and unraveled lines indicate that more are to "fall for" the glaring promises of Dan. May the mercy of Allah be upon those who are already fallen! May the sword of Mohammed guard those who are on the verge of bowing to the inevitable!

Those who have "succumbed" during the past year are: R. V. Christian, assistant in the veterinary department; W. L. Latshaw of the experiment station; Dr. J. G. Jackley, instructor in the department of bacteriology; and Dr. R. K. Nabours, professor of zoology.

Dame Remor has it that the following will be "tied" with the bonds which no man shall but asunder before another year rolls around: R. L. Throckmorton, assistant professor of soils, and Miss Marcia Story; G. R. Thompson, field superintendent of substations, and Miss Wilma Kammerer; L. E. Melchers, plant pathologist; F. E. Mussehl, instructor in the poultry department; R. C. Wiley of the chemistry department; I. V. Iles, associate professor of history and civics, and Miss Edith E. Jones, assistant to the dean of the division of agriculture; F. A. Wirt of the department of farm mechanics, and Miss Louise Fewell, instructor in domestic art; and Miss Emyart of the physical training department.

EXTEMPO CONTEST TODAY.

Final Round Will Be Held in G-51 This Afternoon.

The final round in the extempore speaking contest being conducted by the public speaking department will be held in G-56 at one o'clock today. Nine speeches, six minutes in length, will be delivered and will be extemporaneous in nature.

Three classes in extempore speaking are represented in this final contest, each having a team of three contestants. Professors and downtown business men will act as judges. No charge for admission will be made, and everybody is invited to attend the contest.

Those contesting and the order of speaking is as follows: Walter Gillespie, Lois Witham, A. C. Hancock, R. E. McGarragh, Josie Griffith, A. L. Myers, Clyde Fisher, L. A. Dubbs, Rose Bentley.

Miss Ina Cowles, formerly an instructor in the domestic art department of the college, will spend the summer with her brother at Ventura, California. She will be back in the fall to take up her work at the college.

FORMER CABINET MEMBER COMMENDS K. S. A. C.

Ex-Secretary of Agriculture Wilson Says Kansas is to be Congratulated on Its Agricultural College—Visits Other Institutions.

INSPECTS THE RESEARCH WORK.

James Wilson, of Traer, Ia., former United States secretary of agriculture, was in Manhattan Tuesday and Wednesday visiting at the college and inspecting the work being done along research and experimental lines. Mr. Wilson is visiting the various agricultural colleges of the country. This is the thirteenth institution of this nature which he has visited. He believes that the state of Kansas is to be congratulated on its agricultural college.

"I have just visited 12 agricultural colleges," he said, "and none of them is doing more for the people of its state than is this one. The way in which your college is reaching out to help the men and women and boys and girls of the state would seem incredible to a man unfamiliar with its work. I had known President Waters for many years, and I had expected great things at the college under his administration, but even with my expectations as high as they were, I am surprised at the wonderful things that are being accomplished."

Secretary Wilson is interested especially in work among boys and girls. When he was secretary of agriculture, he introduced the crop contest plan among the children of the south, with unprecedented results. He regards efforts of this kind, together with the teaching of agriculture in the schools and colleges, as among the most hopeful signs for a practical farming system of permanent worth.

PROF. SEATON WRITES BOOK.

New Volume Deals With Concrete Construction on the Farm.

A book entitled "Concrete Construction for Rural Communities" by Professor R. A. Seaton of the applied mechanics department of the college has just been published.

The volume deals particularly with the use of concrete on farms and in the country, and gives rules for determining the strength of simple beams and columns and for the design of cylindrical structures subjected to internal pressure such as tanks and silos.

The book has been highly commended by Professor Ekblaw of the University of Illinois who is author of several texts on agricultural engineering subjects.

H. H. Haymaker, '15, who has been taking graduate work at Wisconsin university spent a few days visiting friends here. He will be at his home in Wichita two weeks and will then return to Wisconsin for summer school.

"The Professor's Love Story," J. M. Barrie's well known comedy drama, which is to be presented by the Class of 1916 in the College Auditorium on Tuesday night of next week, is one of the best from the pen of that famous English playwright. Those who have seen this play produced in other places have nothing but the highest praise for the play. Professor Emerson of the Public Speaking department, is coaching the play and has complete charge of the production. He has chosen the cast from the best talent of the senior class, and has been working day and night with the members of the cast, whipping the parts into shape for the "Big Night." THE LAST ISSUE.

This is the last issue of the Collegian for the college year 1915-16. The editorial staff for next year has handled the "news-side" of the paper this time, and we hope that our efforts are such as to merit the confidence which our fellow students have placed in us. We have thoroughly enjoyed the work, and trust that our labors will be as pleasurable next year. While this is our first effort along this line, we hope that this is but the forerunner of better things to come.

ENGLISH AND JOURNALISM TO MEET STUDENTS' NEEDS.

Special Work Will be Offered in Summer School—Is Planned for Teachers and Others.

Work in English composition and literature, journalism, and printing will be correlated in the summer school of the agricultural college to fit the needs of teachers in all grades of the schools, as well as the needs of persons planning to enter other occupations. College credit will be given for every course, and students in the regular college courses can make up work in this way. The work will be under the direction of Dr. J. R. MacArthur, professor of the English language, and N. A. Crawford, professor of industrial journalism.

Work in English is now required of all students in the college, and in a recent address Edwin L. Holton, director of summer school, advocated a similar requirement with respect to journalism and printing.

The English courses planned for the summer are of practical character, fitting precisely the needs of teachers in Kansas schools.

The course in English, printing and journalism are as follows:

Hour 1, 7-8:25. Vocational English. Mr. Davis.

Hour 2, 8:30-9:55. American Literature. Mr. Davis.

Hour 2, 8:30-9:55. Constructive English. Miss Rice.

Educational Class Finds That Half of Students Who Keep Records Spent Less Than 64 Minutes in Preparation of Each Lesson.

FOUR HOURS IS THE MAXIMUM.

At the beginning of the present term, the class in educational psychology under Professor Reinsner undertook an investigation of the study habits of the students of the college. Blanks were distributed by the members of the class on which a daily record of the time spent in preparation of lessons was to be kept by such students as would voluntarily undertake to keep the record.

Early in May these records were collected and the average amount of time spent in the preparation for each hour of recitation or lecture and of each laboratory period by each student reporting, was computed. When all the reports were counted up, it was found that there were eight hundred twenty-one records of the average amount of time spent in preparation for each hour of lecture and recitation courses, and three hundred three records for laboratory courses.

The medium time spent in preparation for one hour of recitation or lecture was found to be 64 minutes; that is to say, half of all students reporting their study time spent less than sixty-four minutes in preparation for one hour of recitation or lecture, and half of them spent more than that amount of time. The medium time spent in preparation for laboratory exercises of two hours in length was found to be twenty-nine minutes.

It was thought to be desirable to know the relationship existing between the grades the students received and the amount of time spent in preparation, but owing to the difficulty of getting these grades in a way that would violate no confidences, only three hundred sixty-seven were secured. It was found that out of a total of seventy-five, twenty-seven were gained through one hour or less of study for each hour of recitation or lecture, thirty-three through from one to two hours and one through over four hours, two through from three to four hours and one through over four hours. The medium time spent in preparation was seventy-two minutes, which is eight minutes more than that for all students considered in this investigation.

Out of one hundred seventy-four G's sixty-seven were won by one hour of study or less, eighty by from one to two hours, twenty-two by from two to three hours, four by from three to four hours, and one by over four hours of outside preparation for each hour of class recitation or lecture. The median in this case was seventy-two minutes also.

ELECTED FOR NEXT YEAR*K Men Elect Harvey Captain of 1917
Baseball Team and Wilder Captain of the Track Team.

Marshal P. Wilder, a sophomore in Journalism, was elected captain of the track team for next year at a meeting held in President Water's office, Thursday afternoon. This season has been Wilder's second year on the team and the honor accorded him is in recognition of his value to the team. Wilder has performed well this year in the hurdles and is easily the best all round track man on the team, performing well in the shot, discus, hurdles and jumps.

The election of captain for next year marks the close of a track season of varying success. The Aggies got off to a poor start in their indoor meet with K. U. but they won from Baker and Normal hands down. They fought K. U. to a finish in their dual meet here last month and only lost by a close score.

Frizzell, Teeter and Vandenburg have completed their three years of Valley competition. All have been consistent winners in their events. "Friz" has raised the high jump record to 6 feet 2 inches, and Teeter has lowered the college record in the two mile to 9:54.

The prospects for a good team next year are bright. The places of Frizzell and Teeter will be hard to fill, but Wilder and Totten should be able to take Frizzell's place in the high jumps next year. Holroyd in the quarter, Dodrill in the discus and shot, Wilder in the hurdles and Keys and Seebor in the half and mile will form a nucleus around which a strong team can be built.

The addition of Collier in the dashes, Shaw in the half and Glover in the mile will strengthen the bunch considerably.

"Durge" Frizzell, the sorrel topped captain has made an enviable record for himself during his three years of Valley performing. He holds the indoor and outdoor records for the high jump at 6 ft. 2 inches. He equaled the college record in the high hurdles at 15:3. He made the high sticks indoors in 4 flat and equalled the record in the low barriers. He has led the team in the number of points scored and has made one of the best captain's that the college has ever had. His ability and his grit has made of him an ideal leader in every respect. "Friz" will compete at the M. A. A. in St. Louis this summer.

Following is a summary of the number of points scored by the members of the track squad this season: Frizzell, 41; Holroyd, 21.75; Seebor, 21; Teeter, 21; Wilder, 18; Keys, 16; Dodrill, 10; Enlow, 9; Schraepfer, 8; Bernard, 8; Bixby, 6; Weimer, 5; Osborne, 5; Vandenburg, 3; Billings, 3; Foreman, 3; Granfield, 7; Essick, 2.75; Turner, 2.75.

Harvey Baseball Captain.

Edward W. Harvey of Parsons, Kansas, was chosen by the baseball team to lead the nine for the season of 1917. Harvey has held down the left garden for the greater part of the season and has acquitted himself creditably both in the field and at bat. He has lead the team in batting with an average of .233 and his hits have on several occasions come at the right time. Five of this year's regulars have played their last game for K. S. A. C. These men are Hodgson, Ferrier, Denman, Williams and McGalliard. These men have all been instrumental in winning games for the Aggies during their time on the team and their places will be hard to fill. This year's team has been a team of "in and outers;" they have played some great baseball in some of their contests and in other contests—well, we'd rather not go into details. The bunch can attribute the loss of the majority of the games lost to their weakness with the willow.

The pitchers were going good most of the season but the offensive of the team was not strong enough to give pitcher the necessary lead. A glimpse at the batting averages of the team will show how effective was the pitching department of the opposition during the season just past.

Harvey, .235; Reynolds, .200; Hewey, .190; Newton, .172; McLeod, .153; Williams, .146; Sullivan, .142; Denman, .132; Griffiths, .101; McGalliard, .043; Ferrier, .000; Hodgson, .00; team, .150.

CHANGE FOOTBALL RULES.Plays Will be More Dangerous Says Coach Bender.

New rules for football as promulgated by the commission which met in New York last February, were received by Athletic Director Bender this week. The changes in the rules will result in a still more open game and the place kick will be practically eliminated, according to a statement of Coach Bender.

The most important change in the rules for the coming season according to Bender, is that allowing a player who breaks through the line when the opposing team is making an attempt at a place kick, to kick the ball.

"This will be one of the most dangerous changes I have seen made for some time," said Bender. "It will result in many of the place kickers being kicked in the face and on the hands. I expect many injuries as a result of this rule and if it is not amended or repealed at the next meeting of the committee I miss my guess."

"Another result of this new rule will be in that the drop kick will be used more and the place kick less. Also when the place kick is used it will be started farther back of the line than has been the rule in the past. It is certain that one will see fewer goals from place kicking this coming fall than ever before."

"The side which manages to break thru the line this fall during the attempt at a place kick, will, if successful in blocking the ball, be enabled to score touchdowns."

Another change which, according to Bender, tends to still further encourage the open play is the one increasing the penalty from ten to fifteen yards for interfering with a forward pass.

THINGS SURE LOOK GOOD IN ATHLETICS THIS YEAR

NEVER WERE PROSPECTS BRIGHTER IN ALL LINES.

Coach Clevenger is Happy—Sixteen First String Men From Last Year are Scheduled to Be on Deck.

Prospects for Aggie athletics never looked brighter than they do at the present time. An unusually large number of old men are coming back to make up the football, basketball, baseball, and track teams—especially football. K. U. lost a big bunch of their star men the past spring and not wishing the Lawrenceites any bad luck at all, it seems probable that the Aggies will pluck about all the feathers there are in that old Jay-hawker bird when the time comes to journey to Mount Oread.

Coach Clevenger seems like a prince, if there ever was one, and is doing all in his power to line things up in proper shape for the coming gridiron battles.

next year would send in their names now to the Y. W. C. A. it would greatly help many girls who desire to attend college. Some of these would-be-workers have even offered to drive automobiles for their board or room. A lady student as a chauffeur would be rather novel at least.

The girls who have written in have asked for practically every kind of work one can imagine and most of them seem very sincere.

As a general rule, points out Chase Quoin in the Phillips County Post, every man considers himself fairly well informed until one of his children gets old enough to ask questions.

NEW STUDENTS SENDING IN GRADES TO REGISTER

Much Easier for Freshmen to Enroll If High School Credits Have Been Checked.

Almost a hundred and fifty young people who graduated from high school the past year have already sent in grades to the office of the registrar of the college and more are coming in each day. While not as many are in now as there were at this time last year there is every prospect that the first year people the coming enrollment will outnumber

ENGINEERING BUILDING IS UNDERGOING REPAIRS

LULL GIVES A CHANCE TO MAKE MUCH NEEDED IMPROVEMENT.

New Concrete Floor in Machine Shops—Hydraulic Lab is Getting New Machinery—Big Corliss Takes a Rest.

During the summer vacation, the management of the engineering division of the college has taken advantage of the comparative lull to do a great deal of much-needed improvement and repair work.

The wooden floor in the machine shops at the north end of the engineering buildings, is being torn up and replaced with concrete. A large gang, composed mostly of students, who are working for the college, in order to pay expenses next year, is crushing rock with the crusher and one of the engines belonging to the department, west of the college buildings. A large percent of the labor

JUST PART OF THE COLLEGE IS DEAD DURING THE SUMMER

Journalism Department, Extension Division and Registrar's Office the Busiest.

Not all the college instructors and employees are spending the summer in idle happiness on beaches and in forests. There are at least three departments on the hill which have been operating to capacity.

The Journalism department has charge of the college publicity, which "comes out" the year around, and the force left on the summer "dog watch" has faced no easy task in securing live news from a college in vacation time.

In the extension offices in the basement and on the first floor of the administration building, there has been something doing all the time. Many of the regular students have been making up extra work by correspondence, and the entire schedule of institutes for the fall has been planned and arranged during the summer. Two hundred institute programs have been made out, speakers assigned, and dates arranged with local officials.

In the registrar's office, a force of clerks and stenographers has been busy all summer looking after inquiries from prospective students, and from former students and graduates who are anxious about grades. No, the college hasn't been entirely dead this summer.

BREAKFAST BY CAFETERIA.

But Lunch Will Continue to be Big Meal of the Day.

It is understood that the college cafeteria which has hitherto served only two meals a day, will serve breakfast in addition to lunch and supper, beginning with the commencement of the fall term.

Lunch at noon will continue to be the meal of the day most in demand. Additional facilities for handling the hundreds of students who prefer to stay on the hill for the noon hour, are being planned. Miss Nola Treat will have charge of the establishment again next year.

A book agent, tells the American Greeting, was selling a book in this vicinity which describes a telephone which will soon be perfected whereby you can see the person to whom you are talking. If the invention comes into general usage, the Greeting adds, a young fellow will have to put on his Sunday clothes before he talks to his girl over the telephone.

CLEVENGER OF TENNESSEE WILL COACH THE AGGIES

TEAMS HAVE WON CHAMPIONSHIP IN THREE SPORTS.

Will be Head of Athletic and Physical Training Departments—Graduate of Indiana University.

Z. G. Clevenger, director of athletics and head coach in the University of Tennessee, whose teams won the southern championship in football, basketball and baseball, has been made professor of physical education and director of athletics in the college.

After communicating with the leading institutions of the country and interviewing numerous candidates, the authorities of the college narrowed down the field to three men who were invited to Manhattan for a conference. Of these three, Mr. Clevenger was selected.

Mr. Clevenger was a student in Indiana University from 1906 to 1904, during all of which period he was short stop on the baseball team and half-back on the football team. In his last year, he was captain of both teams. He played basketball his last college year—the first in which the game was carried on in Indiana.

For three years Mr. Clevenger was named on the All Indiana baseball and football teams, for two years on the All Western baseball team, and for one year on the All Western Football team. Just this year the Indiana university voted him to have been the greatest all round athlete ever enrolled there.

For two years following his graduation, Mr. Clevenger was assistant director and general manager of athletics for his institution. He assisted in football coaching and was head coach of baseball and basketball.

In basketball his team defeated parties which will open the social season of the college during the fall term, W. C. Calvert, foreman of the college greenhouses, and two assistants have been laboring through the summer in a temperature which was rarely below 110 degrees.

The temperature wasn't measured in the shade, because there is no shade in the greenhouses. And the atmosphere was always kept humid, to secure the best growing conditions possible. Wherefore, the college flower factory has not been exceeded in unobtainability as a working place, by any harvest field in the state.

The mainstay of the college flower trade is roses and crysanthemums. Several thousand of each have been planted, and will be ready for sale during the fall term. The "mums" will be ready shortly after school opens, and the roses not long afterwards.

MANY MEMORIES PASS WITH OLD ADMIN. STEPS

New Concrete Steps Now Replace the Ancient Stone Ones at South of Main.

No more will the proud coeds and gentlemen studees slide down the south steps of old Main hall. Replacing the ancient stone steps now may be found new concrete ones.

No doubt those old steps brought back fond—and otherwise—memories to the grads who came back, even years after they had been handed their sheepskins. Could one ever forget that time in the winter of—when the steps had been covered with ice and he started to hurry down them on his way to some class. The hurrying student did not sit down on purpose but, perhaps, just because old gravity willed that way.

Then the lovely maiden, soaring proudly out of the door. Of course she liked to be noticed but why was it that such a big crowd of fellows were about when she made a sudden, and probably most ungraceful, she down those ice covered steps. Something else: Can anyone ever PROMISES FOR BEST YEAR IN HISTORY OF INSTITUTION.

More Equipment Has Been Added and New Members Will Take Places on the Faculty This Fall.

The school year of 1916-17 is on the horizon and with it come bright prospects and cheerful hopes for probably 3000 young men and women who will attend the Kansas Agricultural college during the year.

As the beginning of each school year draws near it is said that this is surely to be the greatest year in the history of the institution and, surely this is true. Each year there are new advantages offered and new channels opened. Hundreds of things beneficial to the students are instituted each year and each successive generation of young persons has advantages never dreamed of by those students of the past.

K. S. A. C. has added more teachers and better equipment for the year of 1916-17, than has ever been enjoyed in the past. It is these students for the coming year who are to get all the benefit of these things and they are the ones to be congratulated on their good fortune, at being able to attend this college.

K. S. A. C. is the largest school of its kind in the country. And, while the college makes a specialty of teaching agronomy and animal husbandry, that alone is only a part of the branches offered. The domestic science and home economics department is recognized over the entire country as being one of the finest in existence. The engineering course is exceptionally good, the music department is gaining an excellent reputation over the entire country. The Journalism department is teaching

FOND (?) MEMORIES.

He has written personal letters to all football men, especially urging them to be back for practice by September 11, and the men have come through good, a large percentage of them saying that they will be back at the appointed time, full of pep and ready to battle their best in all the games.

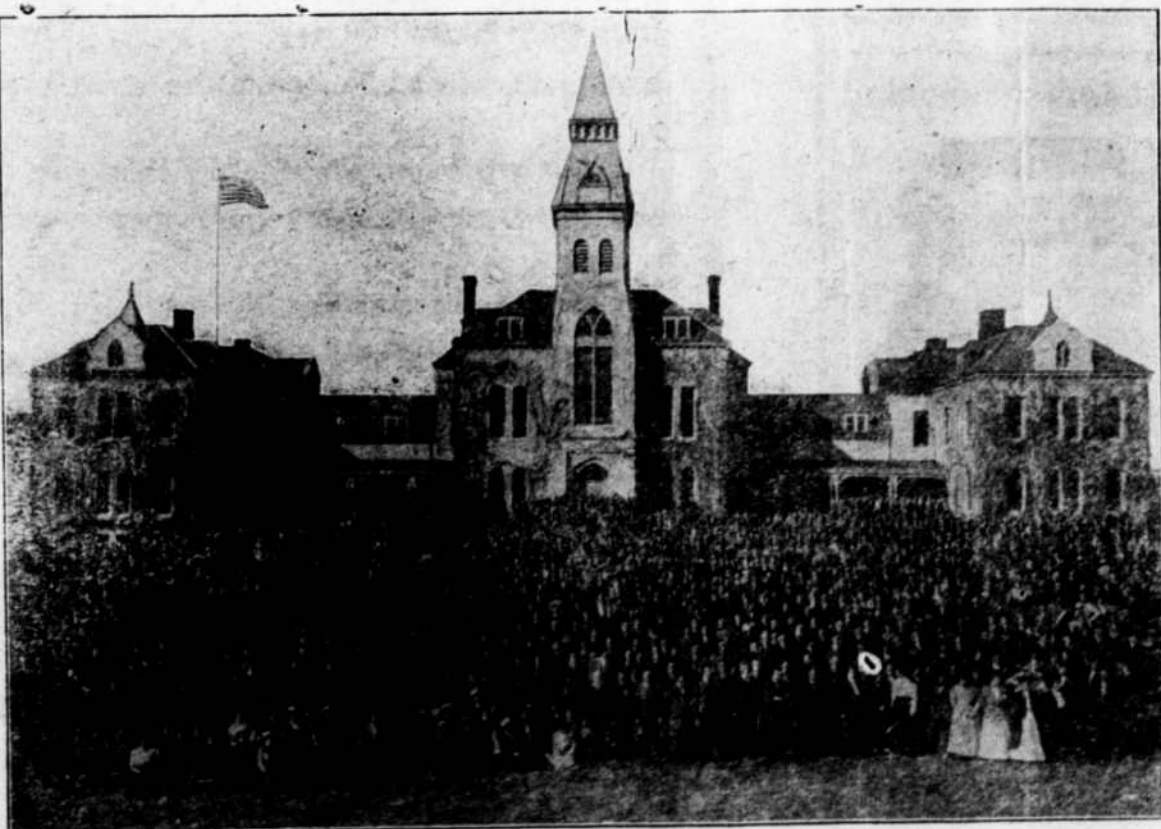

You old students can pick an all star team out of the following. The only positions for which there are no first string men of last year are at the guards. But remember that the freshmen were right up in trim last year and the men who played next to center on that team are sure able to take places in the first squad. In the following list you find 16 men who were on the Varsity last season.

The men who are expected back for sure are: J. B. Barnes, half; G. J. Sullivan, quarter; N. D. Harwood, full; H. E. Alexander, q. b. and half; E. W. Skinner, end; M. P. Wilder, end and half; W. W. Wright, center; H. B. Bayer, tackle; F. A. Slattery, end; Lee W. Randels, end; G. W. Oliver, half; E. H. Pateck, tackle; J. M. Dorrill, tackle; A. L. Husted, half; L. A. Guilfoill, half and end; G. R. Hewey, tackle; Eddie Wells, tackle and full back; G. A. Franz, guard, C. O. Roda, center and guard, J. A. Clark, quarter; M. J. Cleland, guard and center; C. M. Wilhoit, end; Robert Fairman, half; S. B. Marshall, center; Chas. Frankenhoff, line; O. W. Reed, Leo Pateck, Jewett, Hammill, P. A. Barnes, Sam Barnes, D. A. Hines.

WOMEN STUDENTS HUNT WORK

Some Offer to Drive Automobiles—Those Desiring Student Help Have Chance for Plenty.

There have been about 50 inquiries in the past few weeks at the local Y. W. C. A. from girls wanting work for the next school year. The inquiries are principally from girls who want enough work to pay for their room and board. It is impossible for many of these girls to attend college unless they have some way of paying at least a part of their own expenses. Usually the ladies who wish help during the school year do not send in their names until it is almost time for the term to open and it is then too late for the girls. They have given up hope of coming by that time. If the ladies desiring student help Ames two out of three years. At that time Nebraska Wesleyan was not playing Missouri Valley teams in football.

Since 1911, Mr. Clevenger has been athletic director and head coach of the University of Tennessee at Knoxville. Under his direction the football team steadily improved until it won the southern championship over teams fully the equal of teams in the Missouri Valley. In basketball Tennessee has lost but four games in the last three years and no games in the past year. It has also won a big majority of the baseball games in the last three years. In the past year the entire team hit above 300.

Coach Clevenger is regarded as exceptionally strong not only in handling teams but in managing the athletic finances and in dealing with the students as a whole. He is a man of strong character and has shown unusual executive ability. "As an executive," writes one of the authorities of the University of Tennessee, "he is broad enough for men to work under him without friction and is then broad enough to give all credit to whom credit is due." Mr. Clevenger is further regarded as standing for the highest ideals and honesty in sportmanship.

Halls are Being Refinished—President Waters Will Have New Looking Offices.

All of the walls in the lower hall of the building are being replastered and the wood work will be either replaced with new or else gone over with paint and varnish.

When the good (?) students are called before Prexy the coming year they may be happy in the contemplation of one thing at least. The offices of President Waters are being refinished and in an elegant style.

AUGUST 19, 1916.

JUST A WORD.

The Kansas State Collegian is the official student paper of the college and is run entirely by students. The staff is elected by a board selected by the subscribers to the paper. The policy of the collegian is to support all student activities, showing favor toward none and doing every thing possible for all of them. Loyal support will be given the athletic teams, debating squads, grain and stock judging teams. Every effort possible will be put forth to treat anything connected with K. S. A. C. with all fairness, showing consideration to all and partiality to none. It is intended and hoped that the Collegian is run to suit the best interests of all students and faculty members of the college. The staff for the coming year asks for your loyal support and promises to the best of its ability to carry out to the letter the policy of the paper.

THE NEW STUDENTS.

Many new faces may be seen at the college soon, faces which we will soon all be familiar with. At first, freshmen, you will feel strange and perhaps it will seem to you as if you never could get used to some of the college "ways." But you will. We all started where you are now, and some of us not such a long time ago but what we can still vividly remember some of the "circumstances" in which we were placed.

College "ways" are not such high sounding bombastic things, anyhow. You will be surprised how gradually you will take them on, almost unconsciously. And then you will be surprised at yourself for ever thinking that you never could take up with college "ways."

But don't think in a week or two that all will be smooth sailing. Far from it. The trials and troubles, and there will be many of them, are only just beginning. But there is nothing to do but just go pegging right along. Every difficulty mastered makes the next one just that much easier. And in a short time you will find that the old "bugbears," that used to present themselves so often have almost entirely disappeared. Keep at it, Freshman; make every minute count; and at the end of the year you will come off with flying colors.

CHANGES IN THE FACULTY.

Appointment of New Instructors and Resignations Announced.

Announcement of the appointment of several new instructors and the resignation of others was made Tuesday at the college.

Dr. F. W. Caldwell, extension specialist in veterinary medicine in the University of Minnesota, will be specialist in veterinary medicine. Raymond F. Smith of the University of Michigan becomes instructor in physics. J. P. Cavanagh will be assistant in power plant, and L. H. Drayer, assistant in heat and power. Miss Lenora Richards of the University of Illinois becomes assistant in domestic science.

Dr. J. J. Frey has been authorized to make a study of cream grading problems in collaboration with the United States department of agriculture. Dr. John Harris will handle hog cholera work in Nemaha county for one month.

The resignations: P. J. Freeman, assistant professor of applied mechanics; Dr. J. W. Good, assistant professor of English literature; L. G. Hepworth, feeding-stuffs inspector, agricultural experiment station, and C. L. Woodington, assistant in heat and power.

APPOINT FACULTY MEMBERS.

Three New Instructors Given Places in K. S. A. C. at Board of Administration Meeting.

Among the other transactions of the board of administration recently was announced the appointment of three new members of the college faculty, in the entomological, physics and English language departments.

Dr. M. C. Tanquary, who has recently returned from his work with the Crockerland exploring expedition in the Arctic region, was appointed to be assistant professor of entomology.

Miss Elizabeth Maclean, of the Iowa State college at Ames, Iowa, is to be an instructor in the department of the English language.

Walter H. Pielmier, a graduate of the University of Michigan, is to be an instructor in the department of physics.

It is also stated unofficially that Elton Calkins, of Chicago, a tenor, is to come to the music department as a vocal instructor. Calkins has studied and lived in Chicago and New York and is a well-recommended vocalist.

Letter to All Students.

As the new Director of Athletics I want to say that I am going to do everything in my power to conduct the athletics of K. S. A. C. on the highest plane possible. The best results and greatest success can only be attained as all the faculty, alumni, students, and friends of the college work together for the common good. Everyone can do his share to make things go. Optimism, the spirit of accomplishing, goes far toward ultimate success. Let us all be filled with an enthusiastic outlook for the future of K. S. A. C., talk to every old athlete about returning early this fall, and see how many good Freshmen we can influence to come here. Let us all boost, develop the victorious spirit; let each put his shoulder to the wheel, for the good of all, and we will be surprised what splendid things we can accomplish for our college by this united enthusiastic effort. Yours for the success of the Aggies. Z. G. CLEVELAND.

NOTES OF INTEREST TO ENGINEERS

The demand for engineers has been so great this season that many undergraduates of the Kansas State Agricultural college have accepted remunerative positions with important concerns. Positions were open for more than 200 persons, but only 40 graduate students were available.

"We have been forced to recommend men who have had as little as one year of training," said A. A. Potter, dean of the division of engineering in commenting upon the unusual situation. "The demand is not due as much to the European war as to the fact that the manufacturers of the United States more than ever before recognize the value of trained men. For a long time they were prejudiced against all college men."

"This year the demand for graduates from the engineering division in the courses of mechanical, electrical and civil engineering, has greatly exceeded the supply. In fact, the majority of the men who were graduated in June in the professional courses were placed several months before graduation."

One freshman, who had previously worked three years in shops, is now employed at a salary of $225 a month.

Y. M. C. A. Notes

Work for New Students a College Enterprise.

All old students remember that at one time or another in those first few days of college life that there was a feeling of home-sickness. Pretty hard to get some of our Senior football heroes to acknowledge this but its a fact just the same. The new students with plenty of friends does not feel this as does the man who lands here without knowing a soul.

A friendly word will mean more to the home-sick man than anything else and many a man will never forget the old student who took a friendly interest in him during the first few days of college. Through the Y. M. C. A. an effort is made to organize this friendly feeling of the old men to the new. That is why trains are met, help given the new student to find room and board, and so on.

In this work there is a place for every K. S. A. C. student whether or not he may care to identify himself with the Y. M. C. A. as a member. The committee in charge will welcome the help of every old student. What better way of showing "college spirit?" than for the old men to get back a few days early to give the new students the right impression of K. S. A. C.?

Mr. McLean is down in Texas working for the army Y. M. C. A. among the troops. He will be back the first week of September.

All the committeemen are expected back the Saturday night before the opening of the college year. A conference is to be held with the special purpose of preparing the workers for the new student work.

The hand-books will be out about the first of September. If you can't wait until you get back for one drop a card to the Y. M. C. A. and one will be sent you. It is the purpose of the hand-book committee to see that all new men get the book before they arrive.

While not so busy as during the college year yet the building has been appreciated by the summer students or students who have been staying

JUDGED THE PRETTIEST GIRL AT HARVARD U.

Miss Ivy Fuller of Manhattan Famed in the East.

Cambridge, Mass., Aug. 18.—Miss Ivy Fuller of Manhattan, Kan., has been declared to be the prettiest girl in the Harvard summer school, a committee of boys from the physical training department making the choice. Miss Fuller, who is a young school teacher, is a beautiful blonde, a perfect type of outdoor girl, such as artists delight to have pose for their magazine covers.

This is her second season in the school here where she is very popular and one of the brightest of the 200 girls pursuing studies here in physical training.

Miss Fuller is well known in Manhattan, living with her parents at 617 Poyntz avenue. She graduated from the college here in 1913 and last year was teacher of physical training in the local high school. Miss Fuller has always been very popular with her many friends in Manhattan.

"Well, I could hardly do that, sir. You have the general contour, but I don't believe you have the speed."

A lie, according to a certain small boy's definition is "an abomination unto the Lord, and an ever present help in time of trouble."

Give the average cub a little latitude in his story, and he will develop the longitude with the greatest efficiency.

The Freshman.

He was a freshman, he was a freshman.

He was as fresh as ever freshmen get,

He was never quiet, would never try it,

Always talked again or yet.

He wouldn't bear it, he wouldn't wear it,

He wouldn't wear a freshman cap.

Darn the customs, he'd up and bust 'em,

He'd show 'em that he didn't give a rap.

"I'm a devil, I'm a devil,

"I'm a devil in my own home town."

There came a senior, with grave demeanor,

And a stern and awful frown.

And the freshman murmured, "Yep

I'm a devil in my own home town,

but I feel that I am far from home, and that I have been away a long, long time.

Feet.

Feet are found on animals in measurements and were sometimes discovered in poetry before the coming of vers libre. They form an essential part of the complete human anatomy, track athletic records, and architectural specifications. They are attached to the feminine form, by a connection which has only recently been established. It was formerly believed that they were merely associated with the figure, kept in its vicinity by a sense of duty. The means of attachment, however, have been recently been revealed by the dressmakers.

The uses of feet are as follows:

hunting work, kicking footballs, carrying their wearers along the straight and narrow path—the primrose path is usually traveled in jitneys—as component parts of gas meters, in discharging reporters, and for displaying art footwear, for advertising purposes (NOT advertising the footwear).

Feet may be composed of inches or corns or syllables, according to their nature.

ORIGINAL SURVEY STONE OF COLLEGE UNCOVERED

Excavators for New Varney Building Discover Relic More Than 50 Years Old.

While excavating for the new Varney building at the corner of Anderson and Manhattan avenues Wednesday afternoon the original survey stone of the college campus was discovered. The original land of the college was purchased about 1862 and no doubt the stone was placed at that time. It is perfectly solid yet.

For a long time there has been a dispute as to whether the college or the city was laid out crooked and as the old survey stone just uncovered is in direct line with the north wall of the college campus, it seems that the city lines are the ones which are not straight.

The old survey stone will come almost directly in front of the door of the new building and Mr. Varney expects to place a brass plate on top of the stone.

WHY HE IS YET SINGLE.

Manhattan Citizen Gives Reason for His Not Having Married.

It has often been asked why a certain citizen of Manhattan had never been united in holy wedlock, and, someone summoning together all his courage, asked the unmarried man why he had never taken unto himself one of the fair sex. Well, it is this way said the gentleman of single blessedness:

"I did propose to a young lady once and was engaged to her for several months but all that time I was in deathly fear, some nights never sleeping, but lying awake to worry. When I started to propose to that girl we were walking down the street late one evening. I had made up my mind early that morning that I would make the leap and just when I was in the middle of my speech we turned a corner and met some friends of ours—some married people we had both known for some time. That man was carrying a baby on one arm and dragging another hopeful along with the other hand. Trailing about five feet behind was the wife—encumbered much the same as was her husband. Well, I looked that couple over and the girl with me will never know how near she came to not getting a finished proposal. I did manage to get through with it though and was accepted. My enthusiasm had gone down below the freezing point and I am afraid she felt that I was rather cold.

"The days and weeks dragged on and all the time I could see myself coming closer to that time when I would be trying to raise a family on my fifteen per. It was torture to me and one night I made the girl break the engagement. I did not have the heart to break it myself, so I made her do it. I never have been a drinking man but that one time. I go gloriously 'stewed' as they say now, and went out to see her. She did the rest and I have been perfectly happy and sober ever since."

INSTRUCTORS ON VACATION.

Faculty Members Plan Summer Joy Ahead of Time.

The close of the summer school was the signal for a very considerable reduction in the college population of Manhattan. The students who have been grinding through the summer, hardly hesitated between the last class room and the depot. The dignity of the faculty membership had but little restraining influence on the haste of the instructors.

Following are the summer destinations of only a few of the professors, assistant professors, instructors, and other faculty people:

Dr. H. J. Waters left about August 1 for Detroit, Minn., to fish and hunt for a few weeks. Mrs. Waters and Jack, who have been visiting at Mrs. Waters' home in Columbia, Mo., joined him at Kansas City.

W. M. Jardine, dean of the division of agriculture, will spend his vacation at Estes Park, Colo., where he will combine a rest and a course

Y. W. C. A. Notes

Miss Pauline Groves, our last year's secretary, is spending her vacation at Bay View, Mich., with her family. Next year she goes as an assistant secretary to Louisville, Ken. There she will be in the city association work.

Miss Mildred Inskeep, our new secretary, is in Manhattan at present. She spent most of her vacation at the National Training School for Secretaries in New York City.

The conference of the West Central Field meets next August 22 in Estes Park, Colo. We have a delegation of eighteen this year. It is our ambition to beat K. U. in numbers and quality this year. Last year they beat us in numbers but not quality.

Miss Hazle Beeson, the chairman of our social committee, is not able to return to school this year. She expects to attend Fairmount and in the spring take her degree from here if possible.

There is to be a change in the time of our weekly meetings the coming year that we hope will be better than last. They are to be held at 4:30 Thursday p. m. in the Y. W. rest room in the D. S. building.

Our Big Sister committee is doing fine work in planning to care for the new students next year. Letters of friendship and welcome are being sent to all the girls whose names have come into any of the offices. Each Big Sister is given one freshman girl to have as her little sister during the year.

The plans for this year's work are very well started and we are planning for the best year yet. There will be no big campaigns but just the regular work will go on, doing as much good as possible.

Many of the cabinet officers will attend the conference at Estes Park. Some of them are already there attending the conference of the city associations.

Now we have no down town office but we are going to use the Y. M. C. A. building during registration week. The boys have been kind enough to offer us the privilege of using it.
